Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Two Smart Men

By ROY L. SMITH

This week's lesson deals with two smart men—one who appeared smart, and the other who proved to be smart. There is a profound teaching in the two stories for any one young and old who is smart enough to learn.

The Son of His Father

The first of the pair was a youngster who had achieved position, power, and wealth by virtue of the fact that he was the son of his father. He was rich, and the only way a youth of that time could have become rich was by inheriting wealth. He was a "ruler of the Jews," which means he occupied some kind of office—probably a post he had inherited from his father.

The scripture says that Jesus "loved him," which indicates that he must have been a personable young man of unusual attractive ness. But he had one serious weakness; he could not give up privilege for the sake of personal worth. He wanted to DO something, not BE something.

The Guilty Rich

The second of the pair was a disreputable who had made a sorry business very profitable. He had sacrificed the respect of his fellows for the sake of his bank balance.

A Roman tax collector was, in the opinion of a good Jew, about the lowest and most contemptible creature a man could become. He was a religious renegade, having gone over to Rome. He was a social outcast, having betrayed his race. He was an economic parasite, making his money out of grafting off the people.

But he had at least this redeeming quality. He was still able to see himself for what he really was. Even his great wealth could not blind him to the fact that he was a man in desperate need.

The Two Decisions

When the rich young man asked Jesus what he could DO; the Master advised him to get rid of his money, for it was smothering all the best in him: In other cases Jesus advised rich men how to use their money, but this youngster would have to get rid of it to save his own soul. And this, he decided, was asking too much, so he sacrificed his soul.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Feb. 10: "The Decisions of Two Rich Men," Luke 18:18-30; 19:1-10.

The rich tax collector did not need to ask what he had to do. He knew. And he did it without having it suggested to him. The result was that Jesus left him in charge of his money for the simple reason that he demonstrated that he could be trusted with it.

The Doctrine of Stewardship

They make a mistake who assume that Christianity and any economic system are synonymous.

Jesus did not come preaching either socialism or capitalism. He came teaching the doctrine of responsibility.

Wherever socialism has been tried it has been demonstrated that selfish and greedy persons have found a way of exploiting their fellows. And wherever capitalism has been the economic system it has been necessary to curb certain individuals in the name of the rights of the public.

The seat of government is inside the heart of the individual citizen. Christian stewardship is the answer.

Templer Faces Hard Fight To Win Malaya Conflict

By ROBERT HEWETT

Singapore, Feb. 8—(AP)—Britain's new high commissioner for Malaya, Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, must solve a Chinese puzzle if he is to win the jungle war against communist terrorists.

Approximately 95 per cent of the terrorists are Chinese. In this guerrilla war, it takes a Chinese to fight a Chinese.

To ease Templer's task somewhat, Britain this week named Donald MacGillivray as deputy high commissioner of the federation to deal with Malaya's complex political problems.

With someone else to take care of civil affairs, Templer can concentrate on the urgent task of beating the reds in this important dollar-earning tin and rubber country.

Main Problems

Everyone agrees the jungle army—which calls itself the Malayan races liberation army—could not have existed long without the help of other Chinese.

The British military estimate there are 20,000 red sympathizers among the Chinese workers of Malaya. For most of the Chinese in the villages and on the rubber estates it is a choice of giving food and money to the terrorists or sharing the fate of 3,000 civilians slain by the terrorists since mid-1948.

There lie the main problems for Templer; first, to provide protection and stop the terrorists' aid; second, to win over the Chinese to active co-operation in the anti-red war.

Sir Cheng Lock-Tan, Malaya's No. 1 Chinese who was knighted recently, told Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton: "The best man to catch the Chinese bandit, communist agent or rebel is the Chinese policeman, Chinese spy or Chinese soldier."

But the Chinese co-operation will not come easy.

Bitter at British

There is bitter resentment among the Chinese because they feel they are little better than second-class citizens —or no citizens at all—under Britain's policy of "Malaya for the Malays."

Malaya's 5,300,000 population includes 2,000,000 Chinese. More than 60 per cent of them were born in Malaya. Only a handful has been granted citizenship. Malsys are permited to join the British-dominated Malayan civil service. Chinese are barred.

The government has refused to arm the Chinese "home guards" in many cases for fear the weapons will get into communist hands.

Remove these sore spots, says Sir Cheng Lock-Tan, and the Malay Chinese will feel they have a real stake in Malaya.

After the long months of conflict with the jungle reds, there is evidence that Britain is ready to give the Chinese a better deal in return for active help. Britain has found that distrust and criticism of the Chinese as "fence-sitters" has not altered the basic fact that the war won't be won without Chinese help.

Four-fifths of Malaya is jungle. Troops patrol the wastes daily without seeing a single bandit. Most successful raids come on tips from Chinese, usually inspired by liberal rewards.

"The terrorists have to rely on Chinese villagers for food and money," one British general said. "The Chinese know where the bandits are. All we need is to get them to tell."

Plans were completed for the annual Ice Carnival, to be held in the Stirling Skating Rink, at a recent regular meeting of Branch 228, Canadian Legion, Stirling.

The carnival is to feature the Quinte Skating Club, an exhibition hockey game between Marmora and Stirling peewee teams, and judging of fancy dress costumes in the various classes for prizes. The Legion is very grateful to the Quinte Skating Club for their participation and help in producing the carnival and Stirling and district are anticipating a fine show.

A highlight of the meeting was the ceremony of initiation when D. M. Armstrong and William G. Moynes were admitted to membership. The induction was handled by president F. W. Houchin with vice-presidents James Cranston and George Heasman assisting.

R. A. Hermiston was appointed chairman of the membership committee and Herb Stewart named chairman of the property committee.

We banish fear

Pardon us, but we think we help make this town and this world a better place for a lot of people, because we drive out fears.

The insurance policies we write enable people to forget fear of losses by fire, windstorm, burglary, theft, hold-up, personal accidents, and damage suits for accidental injuries to people or property.

We bring a definite factor of safety and security to life in this community. A lot of folks here will tell you we've added to the serenity of their lives.

We're fear fighters.

Dr. Logan's Wife

By Diana Gaines

Gus Logan had bounced from the couch, was pacing, and her heart was cold as a wet stone.

"You must think I'm very stupid, Jennet. He means nothing, there is nothing between you and yet you told him you could never see him again. That isn't something you tell a total stranger." He wheeled and stood leaning down to her, his face a caricature, ugly with anger. "Has he kissed you?" he asked.

Jennet stared at the man to whom she had been married for 10 years and she did not know him. He was a god of righteousness and she an unrepentant Magdalene and her tongue cleaved to the back of her teeth.

"Answer me!"

"No," she said to the old man with the punishing face, "I will not answer you. I don't have to answer you."

He grabbed her hand and pulled her roughly to her feet. "Why—why don't you have to? I'm your husband. I feed you and house you and clothe you, I give you medicine when you're sick and worry when you're late; the flesh of your shoulder is sweeter to me than my own—how can you hate me like this when I love you so much?" He dropped her hand and turned his body away from her and spoke with his head down in a low, flat voice. "Cota said there was evidence of a more personal nature. Where could he have found the check but in Surinov's room. I suppose everyone knows about the affair but me. And if they didn't before, they know now."

"What do you mean?" Jennet asked.

"The meeting tonight was about Surinov. They want to fire him."

"Because of the loyalty oath. Pelletier backed him and so did I. I spoke in his defence. Cota was furious and pulled out a photostatic copy of the check. I thought it was some trick. But it was not, then there are only two conclusions the men can draw. Either my wife is a tart or I am a communist paying off my young helper."

Jennet's hand went to her mouth. She began to cry and the tears ran down her hand and finally they seeped through her fingers. She flung herself on Gus's back. "Oh, my darling, what have I done to you?"

Down against her flung body, she felt him sliding, down, down, until she, staring, saw him writhing and gasping at her feet. She didn't know she was screaming until Ingrid came in, running, wild in hibiscus wrapper, her braid bouncing, her eyes popping.

Before sunrise the morning after Gus Logan's death, Peter Surinov sat, by invitation in the breakfast room of the Pelletier home.

"I phoned Rafe Warner at two this morning—that was the first chance I had to get the results of last night's meeting. It happened as I expected. They voted you out of a job, Peter. Unanimously. I told Rafe of Gus's passing. No one knew he had a bad heart, not even Cota." Dr. Pelletier sighed. His eyes were as weary as the lids which almost obscured them. "Peter, Peter," he sighed, shaking his head, "what manner of man are you?"

And Peter who had for several stunning minutes heard himself cast in a villain's role that included treason, adultry and vicariously achieved murder, could yet wince at the doubt in his friend's question.

His head jerked up as Stella Pelletier, who, like her husband, had not been in her bed for almost 24 hours, came through the swinging door with a platter of scrambled eggs and bacon.

"Peter," she said, spooning the fluffy yellow mound onto his plate, "you're to eat some breakfast. I don't know how much Walter has told you, but we both have the utmost faith in you, and you're not for one minute to lose faith in yourself."

Peter did not bestir himself from the task of threatening the sides of his egg-pile with the tines of the fork. Without raising his eyes from his plate, he announced in flat insulting recital. "I have not had an affair with Jennet Logan. I am not and never was a communist. So help me God." And then, riled by the necessity for such a speech, he leaned forward and slapped the table with a hand as big as a plate. "And to tell you the truth, I don't feel in the least responsible for Dr. Logan's death. All I feel is so mad my teeth hurt. I'd like to sink them into Cota's throat—I'd like to claw that ugly face till it ran. . ."

"Good," said Mrs. Pelletier, the dole of her lavender eyes belying the cheer in her voice. "Good for you. That's exactly what I hoped you'd say. Now calm yourself, Peter, and eat your eggs before they get stone cold. We've been through a lot tonight—and that poor child, Jennet, I just hope she doesn't lose her reason. But we've been through bad times before. I always say to myself while they're happening, 'this, too, will pass.' and it does. Do you take cream, Peter? Don't eat so fast, Walter, you'll get heartburn."

Peter was alone in Dr. Pelletier's office. The department of radiation therapy was deserted. The last patient had been seen at noon, and the staff had sped off shortly afterwards to their weekend shopping and engagements. Dr. Pelletier had gone to the Logan funeral, cautioning Peter to lock up when he had finished stocking the cabinet with the isotopes he had prepared for the next week's treatments.

Peter had said no goodbyes, having agreed with his chief that the less fanfare connected with his departure, the better. So far, to his knowledge at least, his case had not been broken open to general hospital gossip, and no one in his department had seemed to know that this was his last day of work. It was too much to expect that the cause for his leaving would remain undiscussed for long, but Dr. Pelletier had apparently been successful in persuading the members of the Medical Executive Committee of the injustice of publicity on the affair and he had bullied Cota into promising that no story on it would be released to the newspapers which were naturally on the lookout for any incidents relating to the loyalty oath controversy.

Suddenly, in the defunct quiet, the telephone began to scream. Back and forth, back and forth, in staccato demand until Peter decided that in decency to the gesture of the tossed keys he was not gone.

"I have an emergency call for Dr. Pelletier," the hospital operator said.

"I'm sorry, he's not here. The office is closed. You better leave a message with Dr. Pelletier's exchange."

"Is this Dr. Dunning?"

"No, this is Surinov. Dr. Dunning's gone too and I'm just about to lock up. What's the emergency?

You literally "sleep on air," every square inch has hundreds of tiny interconnected air cells whipped right into "Liquid latex", then moulded. This construction, plus air tubes top and bottom, make it literally true; you're sleeping on air!

- You have comfortable support; cushions, the body firmly and gently — depresses easily yet springs back quickly to an even, smooth surface.
- It's dust free; there's no filler in a Latex Foam Rubber Mattress to give off dust or attract moths.
- Air conditioned; breathes with every turn you make — air will actually pass right through it.
- Light-as-a-feather; easy to move, lift or reverse.
- Reversible; construction is the same on both sides — even the handsome covering is the same.

Latex Foam Rubber Mattresses are covered with imported cotton damask in a panel pattern. Edges are diamond stitched. Available in all standard sizes.

FATHER, DAUGHTER DROWN IN TRENT RIVER

Country Folk File Past Bier to Pay Respects to King

Four Gamekeepers Stand Silent Guard in Church

Sandringham, England, Feb. 9—(AP) — Humble villagers filed through their hushed country church today to pay last homage to the man they called squire—King George VI.

Farmers, carpenters, woodsmen and servants sorrowfully stopped before the candle-lit bier to look for the last time on the coffin of their sovereign and friend.

Inside the big mansion nearby, where the King was born and where he died, Queen Elizabeth II—proclaimed throughout the land yesterday as the new ruler of the British realm—remained closeted in deep mourning with her mother and sister and others of the royal family.

The new Queen's flag flew high over Sandringham House. It was raised there yesterday when finally she joined her bereaved family after performing the first heavy and solemn duties of her queenly station. Her father's standard, which had flown over the mansion until his quiet death in sleep Wednesday, now covers his oaken coffin.

The body of the fallen Monarch lay in the little greystone 16th century Church of St. Mary Magdalene 250 yards down a winding garden path over which it had been carried last night from the big residence.

A village policeman stood guard at the wrought iron gates near the chapel. Only the 300-odd villagers whom he could recognize as the King's own workers were admitted.

Men Stay at Jobs

The new queen had asked that work at Sandringham go on today just as any other day. The men stayed at their jobs—tending the animals and gardens and other duties on the vast estate—except for the king's game keepers, who kept a silent watch over the coffin.

Some of the game keepers had stood the same grim watch over the body of the late king's father, George V, when he died here. And some had played with the late king when he romped over the estate as a boy.

Inside the church, a carpet had been laid to hush the shuffle of feet past the king's coffin. A strong, warm sun sent shafts of multi-colored lights through the stained glass windows. Four candles flickered at each corner of the bier. On the coffin was a silver plate engraved "Albert Frederick Arthur George Windsor, born 1895 died 1952."

On the coffin, too, lay three wreaths bearing the cards of his daughter, the new Queen Elizabeth II; his widow, and his only other child, Princess Margaret.

The still air in the little church was fragrant from the wreaths of lilies of the valley, roses, carnations, hyacinths and apple blossoms.

In Church Till Monday.

The body of the King will lie in the church until Monday. Then it will be taken by special train to London for its last lying-in-state at Westminster Hall.

No services will be held Sunday in the church.

The 25-year-old Queen came home at last to her dead father at dusk yesterday after pledging faithful sovereignty and being proclaimed through the land. She had been driven 130 miles from London in her green Rolls Royce limousine.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 9—(CP)—Synopsis: There is nothing spectacular in the way of weather promised for Ontario this weekend. A series of minor disturbances are tracking in from the northwest and as they pass across the northern sections of the province they will bring increasing cloudiness and some light snowflurries. Clear skies tonight will lower temperatures in southern Ontario to the low 20s and to below zero in some northern localities.

Sunday will be mainly cloudy for most forecast regions with milder temperatures expected for southern Ontario.

Husband Dared To Shoot 'Other Man' Says Wife

Brampton, Feb. 9 — (CP) — A wife testified yesterday that the "other man" in a love triangle dared her husband to shoot him.

Mrs. Henrickson told Mr. Justice W. F. Spence and an Ontario supreme court jury that on several occasions she and Hackim had sexual relations. She said her husband became suspicious because of a change in her attitude.

When Hackim went to the Henrickson apartment at Cooksville, near here, that December day, Henrickson asked him to sign a paper admitting he had been friendly with her, she said.

"My husband had a gun. Hackim dared him to shoot and he did."

The trial is continuing.

Hour Program Will be Aired

London, Feb. 9 — (Reuters) — A one-hour program on the BBC's general overseas service Sunday entitled "A Commonwealth Mourns Its King" will feature tributes to the late King George VI from many parts of the British Commonwealth.

The speakers will be heard Sunday at 2:30 p.m. EST and 8 p.m. EST.

There will be personal messages from men and women in Australia, Canada, Ceylon, The Gold Coast, India, Kenya, Malaya, New Zealand, Pakistan, South Africa, Britain and from British troops in the Suez Canal zone.

How to Ease Shortage

Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 9. (CP)—Local contractors last night told city council that the city's critical housing shortage could be eased if the Canadian government relaxed its restrictions on loans.

Sault Ste. Marie could then adopt the land-assembly plan of rental housing.

Contractors told the council they can build houses for sale, but residents can't afford the necessary down payments.

The contractors approved the land-assembly plan, under which the federal, provincial and municipal governments finance construction of rental homes.

RAILWAY UNIONS LIKELY TO MAKE HEFTY DEMANDS

Expect They Will Ask 35 Cent Hour Increase

Ottawa, Feb. 9 (CP) —The rail unions are going to make hefty wage demands on the railways when current contracts are opened for negotiation this summer.

Expectations are, too, that the unions will press for a speedier showdown than the last time, when a dispute dragged out for 15 months before climaxing in the general rail strike of August, 1950.

Best information now is that the railways will be confronted with an initial demand for an increase of about 35 cents an hour for non-operating employees— those who do not actually run the trains — when the talks start in early July.

Negotiating officers for the union men will not hammer out the specific figure until later, but informed quarters indicate they now are thinking in terms of a 35-cent hoist.

Since the current contracts took effect Sept. 1, 1950, the unions estimate, the cost of living has outstripped rail wages by 17 cents an hour. Besides wanting to overtake that, the unions will be seeking an extra amount to serve as a cushion against further rises in living costs during the run of the next contract.

Under the 1950 post-strike settlement laid down by a government-named arbitrator, the unions won for most of their members a seven-cents-an-hour wage increase plus a short work week without reduced pay.

Want Quick Settlement

This time, the 35 cents would represent more than that, for the 1950 combination worked out to an increase of 26 cents an hour. It brought the base pay to $1.29 cents an hour.

For some months past, the non-operating unions have been trying to get the railways to give them a temporary cost-of-living bonus pending the negotiation of new contracts. That effort has failed up to now and the failure is one reason why the unions will be pushing for a quick settlement of their demands.

These demands are expected to be laid down right after July 1, when negotiations can open. If there is no settlement by the time the contracts run out Sept. 1, union informants indicate, the labor group will promptly demand government conciliation machinery be put in motion.

In the dispute that wound up in the 1950 strike, it was almost five months before conciliation began. From the start of negotiations, it was almost exactly 11 months before conciliation boards reported.

The unions figure they lose wages when negotiations spin out. After the strike, their increase was made effective from Sept. 1, 1950. They had been demanding retroactivity back to the expiration of the old contracts in July 1949.

Another request of the rail unions this year may be for the application of the "Rand formula" of union security. This calls for the payment of union dues by persons outside unions who benefit from concessions negotiated by unions. The railways customarily extend union won benefits to around 70,000 unorganized employees.

Soprano Eleanor Steber Creates Precedent With Operatic Twin Bill

New York, Feb. 9 (AP) —Soprano Eleanor Steber has major roles in two operas at the Metropolitan today, and no one around the Met can recall a star volunteering for such a doubleheader before.

"Everybody thinks I'm crazy," says the beautiful Miss Steber. But she adds: "I feel I can do it."

She will sing the tragic Desdemona in Verdi's "Othello" this afternoon, and then change to the gay and frivolous Fiordiligio in Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte" in the evening. In all she will sing 3 1-4 hours

And for good measure, she plans to exercise her vocal chords for 10 minutes between the performances.

There have been times in the past when a Metropolitan star sang in two operas in a single day, but all the instances recalled were emergencies. Miss Steber is doing it because she wants to.

Her day at the Met will start at 12.30 p.m. It will be along about midnight when she leaves the opera house. Here is her schedule:

12.30 to 2 p.m.—Dressing for the Desdemona role with a good deal of time devoted to fixing her hair.

2 to 5.30—The "Othello" performance with Miss Steber on stage singing for one hour and 15 minutes.

5.30 to 8.15—In her dressing room undergoing a complete change of hair-do and costume while dining on a steak, along with a glass or two of champagne. Then a 30-minute nap, followed by 10 minutes of vocalizing.

8.15 to 11.20—The "Cosi Fan Tutte" performance requiring her on stage for about two hours.

By the time she changes from her costume, it will be well after midnight and time to celebrate her feat. That is, it would be but she has other ideas:

"I'll go home and probably collapse."

Allies Agree to High-Level Conference After Armistice But Only on Korean Affairs

Munsan, Korea, Feb. 9 (AP)—The United Nations command today agreed to a high-level conference after an armistice — but insisted that discussions be limited to strictly Korean affairs.

The Allies also insisted that south Korea be given a voice in the peace talks. The communist proposal last Wednesday ignored President Syngman Rhee's government.

Vice-admiral C. Turner Joy made the Allied counter proposal in a 10-minute plenary session. North Korean Gen. Nam Il asked time to study it. The senior envoys will meet again at 10 a.m. Sunday (8 p.m. Saturday EST.)

There was no disagreement on the first two points of the red proposal. The Allies agreed that the post-armistice talks should include discussion of (1) withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea and (2) the peaceful settlement of the Korean question.

The joker was in point three. The reds wanted the talks to include "other problems in Asia related to the Korean question." The Allies proposed that this be changed to read "other Korean questions related to peace."

This apparently was designed to prevent the reds bringing up such topics as Indo-China and Formosa.

The U. N. proposal also raised, for the first time, the question of unification of Korea under an independent, democratic government.

The Allied plan made no mention of the red proposal that five delegates from the United Nations meet with five representatives of red China and North Korea.

It proposed to the belligerent governments "that steps be taken within a period of three months" to deal with the listed problems "in a political conference" or by "such other political means as they (the countries concerned) deem appropriate."

This reference to "other political means" could mean direct negotiation on a diplomatic level rather than a political conference.

Both sides seemed in agreement on whether the later conference should be held. The reds said within 90 days, the U.N. command three months.

Bus Careens Into Ravine At Hamilton, 10 Injured

Hamilton, Feb. 9 (CP) —An inter-urban bus, skidding on an icy pavement, ran off a highway into a 100-foot-deep ravine here today. Two persons were injured severely and at least eight others suffered minor hurts No one was killed.

About a dozen persons were in the big Gray Coach Lines vehicle, bound for Toronto, when it veered off No. 2 highway at the western approaches to the city and careened down the almost vertical embankment. It toppled on its right side at the bottom of the ravine and broke in two.

The embankment at the scene of the crash is so steep rescuers formed a human chain to pass the injured up to the highway where six ambulances waited.

Snow that fell during the night made travel difficult. The accident occurred on an icy stretch of pavement near the second of a series of bridges over old Desjardins Canal, not now in use. A rock garden, a Hamilton beauty spot, is nearby.

The bus fell against a bridge abutment which blocked the exit door. The injured were removed through the emergency door on the left side of the vehicle.

Two other persons, unconscious and severely injured, were carried with difficulty up the precipitious hillside. The extent of injuries suffered by the other persons in the bus could not be learned immediately. Apparently they were not serious.

The enbankment where the bus crashed through a guard rail is almost a sheer drop. The lumbering vehicle, which on a week-day morning usually is crowded with passengers bound for Toronto, ran straight down the hillside in a straight line.

Motorists and pedestrians assisted police in carrying the injured up the bank, passing the limp forms one to another until all were removed from the wreckage.

Elizabeth Sidelights

She and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, hurried back to their official residence at Clarence House yesterday from the accession ceremony at nearby St. James's Palace and watched closely the entire 54-minute telecast of the proclamation ceremony from a palace balcony and from Trafalgar Square and Temple Bar in downtown London.

The Queen heard a man's voice order, "Garter, put your hat on," at the end of the proclamation, and she asked her secretary to find out what had happened.

The explanation: it was the Duke of Norfolk talking in an aside to Sir George Bellew, the Garter King-of-Arms, who read the proclamation.

Caernarvon, Wales, Feb. 9. (AP)—History was made at Caernarvon when, for the first time on record the accession proclamation was read in the Welsh language. The Home Office in London first gave its approval for the innovation.

London, Feb. 9. (AP)—Lord Derby, the Lord Lieutenant of Lancashire, decreed the correct form of the royal toast in Lancashire would be, "The Queen, the Duke of Lancashire."

That is contrary to precedent set in the reign of Queen Victoria, said court officials. Derby said it will be that way, anyhow.

London, Feb. 9. (AP)—Churches of all denominations will hold commemorative services for the King tomorrow.

The Archbishop of York, Dr. Cyril F. Garbett, will preach at Westminster Abbey, memorial services. Bernard Cardinal Griffin, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, will attend services of benediction in Westminster Cathedral Sunday night. The congregationalist service will include the Queen Mother's favorite hymn, "The Lord Is My Shepherd." The Archbishop of Canterbury will broadcast from Lambeth Palace at 8 p.m. (3 p.m. E.S.T.)

London, Feb. 9. (AP)—Some 10,000 police have been assigned to control the throngs who are expected to line streets Monday when the King's body is brought to London from Sandringham.

London, Feb. 9 (AP) —Queen Elizabeth II will award her first decoration — the Victoria Cross which is Britain's highest—to Private William Speakman for his bravery under fire in Korea. The late King was to have given him the cross in a ceremony at Buckingham Palace Feb. 27.

London, Feb. 9 (AP) —The Ministry of Works announced the playing of all games, including golf, has been suspended in the royal parks until after the King's funeral.

Sandringham, England, Feb 9 — (Reuters) —A white wreath "to papa from Lillibet" lay at head of the hand-carved oaken coffin of King George VI today.

"Lillibet" was the pet name Elizabeth's father had given her when she was a little girl—but a name always confined to the family circle.

KOREANS URGED TO BUILD UP WAR POTENTIAL

Statement Issued By N. Korea Official

Tokyo, Feb. 9 — (AP) — The North Korean red radio tonight broadcast a statement by Choi Yong Kun, North Korean defence minister, urging Koreans to build up their war potential for possible future air battles and air strikes at United Nations-held South Korean territory.

"All Koreans must strive to step up their war potential," Choi said in the statement heard here.

"Especially must they build it up hereafter to engage in air battles and also to undertake the bombing of United Nations-held South Korean territories and thereby introduce a new phase in defence of the skies of the motherland."

Choi's statement was made yesterday on the fourth anniversary of the founding of the North Korean armed forces.

North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung in an order of the day broadcast yesterday called on all red troops to "prepare constantly for decisive fighting" in "our holy campaign for liberating the fatherland."

"The people of Korea will continue to make an effort to successfully negotiate an armistice," Choi said in a reference to the Panmunjom truce talks. "However, the talks are fraught with many difficulties."

2 Queen Mothers Will Help New Queen to Reign

London, Feb. 9 (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth II begins her reign with the sure comfort that behind her stand two women—one middle-aged, the other an octogenarian—steeped in the elaborate traditions and etiquette of queenship.

She knows that whenever she is at a loss she can ask the help of these two Royal ladies who, in two reigns lasting 42 years, have mastered the finest subtleties of queenly behavior.

For the first time in British history two Queen mothers are alive.

Queen Mary, product of the Victorian age, is regal, gracious. She has lived to see six reigns. She is kindly, but strict. In her eyes, every human emotion must be subordinated to the demands of the throne.

Queen Elizabeth is of the people. She married the late King without knowledge that she would be Queen. She has warmth, a ready comradely smile. With the King she has shown that the Royal Family, above all, is a happy, united family.

CANNOT SEND DELEGATES

Moscow, Feb. 9—(AP) — Pravda, official paper of the communist party, said today the United States is "forbidding its satellites" to send representatives to the Russian - sponsored international economic conference in Moscow next April.

Motorcar Plunges Through Railing After Collision

Bodies of Jack Phillips And Daughter Recovered

Trenton.—A Glen Miller father and his 10-year-old daughter were drowned in the Trent River Friday night when after a two-car collision on No. 33 highway, one car went through a guard rail and dropped 20 feet into 15 feet of water.

Dead are Mr. Jack Phillips, age 50, and his daughter, Hazel Mary Phillips, who was the only child in the family. Their bodies were recovered an hour and a half after the accident.

Mr. Phillips was employed at Batawa.

The accident occurred in the village of Glen Miller, four miles north of Trenton. The Phillips car was in collision with another vehicle driven by Raymond Jensen, 22 Weeks Ave., Trenton, and went out of control crashing through the guard rail carrying Phillips and his daughter to their deaths.

Both Cars Southbound

According to provincial police who investigated the accident, both vehicles were southbound when the Phillips car apparently tried to make a left hand turn onto the Glen Miller bridge. As the car commenced the turn it was struck by the Jensen auto and both went out of control. The Phillips auto crashed through the guard rail and dropped into the river, the Jensen auto narrowly escaping the same fate.

Visibility was poor at the time of the accident and the highway was snow covered and slippery.

Although the car dropped into more than 15 feet of water, the lights remained on and would-be rescuers were able to spot the submerged car immediately.

Two Glen Miller men Harry Long, and "Buck" Ferguson braved the fast river current and from a boat were successful in hooking chains from a garage tow truck onto the bumper of the submerged auto. After an hour and a half the car was hauled out of the water and the bodies of the two occupants removed.

Inquest Ordered

They were taken to Weaver's Undertaking parlors in Trenton. Coroner Dr. A. E. McQuade of Trenton, has ordered an inquest and the preliminary hearing was held this morning.

Several accidents of a similar nature have occurred along the stretch of highway between Trenton and Frankford in recent years. The highway at points skirts the river bank and is treacherous when slippery. On several occasions in recent years cars have gone off the road and dropped into the river drowning occupants.

Where last night's accident occurred the banks of the river drop steeply from the guard rail to the water and once the car crashed through the railings the occupants had no opportunity to escape.

American Genetic Group Reports Odd-Tailed Mice, Slow-Action Cow

By FRANK CAREY

Washington, Feb. 9 —(AP) — Something new in the animal kingdom: mice with question-mark tails and a cow that had delayed-action twins.

They were reported today by the American Genetic Association in its "Journal of Heredity."

The bossy having the delayed-action twin hails from Laurel, Md. — She gave birth to one calf on a fine day in May, 1948, and then 23 days later bore a second one.

"Twins!" ruled husbandrymen of the Maryland agricultural experiment station, though they said they were not identical.

The researchers concluded it was a fancy case of "delayed twinning."

There's a long-shot possibility, they added, that the cow might have been carrying two separately conceived calves—because she was known to have been artificially mated with the same Holstein bull on two occasions, just about three weeks apart.

The saga of the house mice sporting the "hooked tails" was reported by a Sarasota, Fla., geneticist.

They are laboratory characters whose tails are due to a genetic "mutation"—that is, an alteration in a cellular gene passed on to the first hooker from one of his parents.

Since then, mice having tails in many variations of a fishhook shape have popped up all around the lab.

Price of Beef Shows Decrease In Some Centres

(By The Canadian Press)

A juicy beek steak costs less than it did a couple of weeks ago. So does a pork chop.

In a coast-to-coast survey yesterday, the Canadian Press found that retail prices of beef in recent weeks have dropped in some centres by as much as 17 cents a pound for better grades and four cents for less expensive cuts.

The fear that pork may become too plentiful—with producers taking a loss—has caused the Ontario Hog Producers Association to ask the federal government for a floor price for producers of 28 cents a pound for dressed pork carcass, basis Winnipeg, with differentials between markets based on transportation and other costs.

At Ottawa and Toronto, housewives paid 87 cents for sirloin, 12 cents less than a month ago. Many of them still prefer the less expensive pork. Pork loin roast in both cities now is 45 cents a pound. In Ottawa a month ago it was worth 58 cents and at Toronto 47.

Will Stay High

Toronto—(CP)—W. P. Watson, Ontario Livestock Commissioner, said yesterday that beef prices are likely to stay fairly high this year.

He told the annual meeting of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies that sale of United States beef cattle in Canada during recent weeks likely will drive Canadian prices down to the pegged U.S. level. The Canadian price was likely to follow the U.S. trend in 1952.

BOARD BACKS MAYOR

Toronto, Feb. 9 — (CP) — The Toronto Board of Control yesterday backed up Mayor Allan Lamport when he told the executive of the Canadian National Exhibition that city council should have greater representation on the C. N. E. executive, there should be a greater Canadian emphasis in the grandstand show and a proper accounting system to show taxpayers whether the show is making or losing money.

Bd. of Health Notes

The first meeting of the 1952 Board of Health for the city was held in the city hall last Tuesday.

The members of the new board are: Mr. H. R. Varcoe, chairman, Mr. Urias Lummiss, Mr. Chas. Bishop, Mr. W. J. Countryman, representing the mayor, and Dr. A. M. Breuls, Medical Officer of Health.

In his report, the medical officer of health outlined the main activities of the Health Department for the month of January, as follows: 742 elementary school pupils were immunized, 387 tuberculin tests were carried out in the collegiate and St. Michael's Academy, 234 hours were spent in schools by the nurses; 102 families were visited, and a dental health education program was instituted in conjunction with the child health clinics at the Kiwanis Centre.

The following diseases were reported to the health department: German measles 58 cases, red measles, three cases, chicken pox 10 cases, whooping cough one case, mumps one case.

It is drawn to the attention of the public that it is the parents' responsibility to report diseases to the health department, unless they have consulted a physician, in which case, he is required to report the disease.

Y's Mens Club Pays Tribute To Jack Wilson

It was Jack Wilson night when the members of the Y's Men's Club met for their regular meeting at the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday night. The occasion was the last meeting at which Y'sman Wilson will be in attendance as a member. He leaves next week to take up responsible duties in his new position in New Hamburg. In over 20 years, Mr. Wilson has been a faithful member of the club and one of its most loyal supporters and faithful workers.

Honor was done the retiring Y'sman who was asked to chair the meeting. Poems and songs were presented to him in eulogy by various members including Bert Hiles, Bud Trill, Howard Coles and Scott Denton. A presentation was made on behalf of the club by President Bryson Leslie.

In response Y'sman Wilson became reminiscent on the early days of club meetings and conventions and stated that some of the happiest memories and finest experiences of his life were connected with the Y's Men's Club and the Y.M.C.A.

The members were unanimous in their decision to sponsor and support the Y.M.C.A. boys' choir feeling that the boys required the best in trained musical leadership as well as the most wholesome surroundings such as is provided in the Y.M.C.A.

Woman Holds Perfect Hand In Cribbage

Playing a game of cribbage with her husband, Max Wodzak, 20 Gordon Street at their home on Friday evening, Mrs. Selma Wodzak realized the card player's dream by holding the perfect hand a count of 29.

Mr. Wodzak needed 24 points to go out while her husband was dealing and needing only 14 points for game. Mrs. Wodzak picked up her hand which showed the jack of hearts the five of spades, diamonds and clubs. It was her cut and she turned up the five of hearts The holding of a perfect cribbage hand is a rarity although many 24 hands are counted.

Father and Son Forced To Jump from Upstairs Window to Escape Fire

Forced to jump out an upstairs window when fire early this morning swept through their frame home at 59 Hillcrest Ave., a father and his 21-year-old son are in Belleville General Hospital with serious burns about the wrists and hands as well as other injuries.

Gordon Barrie, Sr., age about 60, suffered burned hands and wrists and seriously injured his shoulder while his son, Gordon, also had burns about the wrists, and injured his legs in the jump from the window. Both had their hair singed. The men were taken to hospital in Bush's ambulance.

Mr. Barrie wakened about six o'clock this morning to find the upstairs filled with smoke. He wakened his son and, finding their way downstairs blocked by smoke and flames, jumped out an upstairs window. Both men were injured in the jump but were able to make their way to the home of a neighbor and spread the alarm. The ambulance was then called and the men taken to hospital.

Defective wiring or short circuiting of a lamp resting on an organ was believed responsible for starting the fire which caused about $1,800 damage to the house. The living room was gutted by the flames while the flash fire reached almost every other room in the house.

It was reported that the burns of Mr. Barrie Sr. were the more serious of the two and his condition was reported serious. As well as being burned he suffered a possible fracture of the shoulder, it was stated.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said only the one room in the house was badly damaged by the flames but the flash fire had scorched all the other rooms. Furniture was also damaged.

Obituary

MISS CLARE HAWLEY WALLBRIDGE

Although ill for a few days, death came suddenly to Miss Clare Hawley Wallbridge, at her home, 183 George Street, late Friday night and in her death a link with the past history of Belleville has been broken. Miss Wallbridge was born in the house in which she died. She was born, 83 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Wallbridge and had resided in this city her entire life.

She took an active part in the work of St. Thomas' parish, the Red Cross, the Humane Society and the Hospital Auxiliary. She was always willing to accept her responsibility of all projects of these organizations and truly she was a great worker. She made a wide circle of friends, who will sincerely regret her death.

Surviving are a number of nieces and nephews which include, Miss Mary Edith Caldwell of Belleville, Mrs. Richard Bingham of Winnipeg; L. W. Caldwell of Calgary; Francis Caldwell of Vancouver; Mrs. Fred M. Sprague of Belleville and Mrs. E. W. Strickland of Consecon.

Resting at the Pinkston Funeral Home, 60 Victoria Avenue at Church Street; the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Light Offerings Move Slowly On Local Market

Dressed chicken was quoted at 35 cents the pound in fair quantities while vendors asked 60 to 65 cents the pound for capons.

Beef fronts were offered at 50 the pound with pork hinds quoted at 35 cents and fronts 30 cents.

Frozen whitefish and smelts were available at 40 cents and 35 cents the pound respectively.

Eggs, Grade "A" were plentiful but moved sluggishly at 43 cents the dozen. Mediums were quoted at 40 cents.

Apples were offered in large variable quantities with number one Spies quoted at $2.50 the hamper. MacIntosh and Delicious were offered at the same price level and sold at 65 cents the basket.

Potatoes were scarce the few offered asking $4.50 the bag. Turnips were quoted at three for 25c.

Steaks for Breakfast

Head Cook on Work Trains Of 40 Years Ago Had No Easy Task, Ben Post Recalls

Imagine breakfasting on piping hot oatmeal porridge, a plate-sized juicy steak, two or three fried eggs, fried potatoes, and all the trimmings.

It could be imagination in these wacky days of inflation but when Ben Post, 65, who resides at the corner of Station Road and Herchimer Avenue was a railway construction cook, it was almost a common occurrence.

Well, almost, for on other days, too, the boys who built railroads in those boisterous times forty years ago, needed plenty of good substantial food, and got it.

Ben presided over a kitchen and dining room on wheels on a construction gang train, and looked after the inner needs of a gang of 150 huskies. And take it from Ben, those spike-driving, rail-laying hairy-chested he-men had the appetites of half-starved lions three times a day, and had to be fed.

BEN POST

Get The Best

They got the best. Steaks, roasts, chops, stews, a dash of hash occasionally, pies, bread, milk, porridge served on huge platters in the "cook-car" and everybody helped himself.

Ben's job was simple. With a second cook and one or two helpers all he had to do was prepare and serve the food for this one hundred and a half hungry track-laying buckaroos. There were no unions in those days so nobody cared if Ben and his men toiled from 4 a.m. to 10 p.m. with the "boss" drawing down $75 a month, "found".

It was good substantial food. Meats, "spuds", vegetables, energy-giving porridge, pies, cake, etc. None of your fancy chocolate eclairs lemon meringues, prune whips, or banana splits. Steaks, chops, eggs for breakfasts. Juicy roasts stews for dinner and slabs of cold cuts potato-garnished for supper.

Even with this kind of menu you'll always find a "griper" in every gang. Ben's boys were no different. He had a consistent "squawker" who would kick at a crepe suzette for dessert.

One morning he gave them broiled steak, fried eggs, (it took 15 dozen) and fried potatoes for the breakfast main course. Incidentally he had carved all the steaks from a half a beef carcass to accommodate the boys. He had settled down to his own breakfast when an excited helper dashed into the kitchen.

"Better come out Ben, so-and-so's kicking up again."

Ben went out where the griper, apparently not satisfied with the platter-size steak had speared it with his fork and neatly "nailed" it to the side of the wooden car-kitchen.

Now even in those days a steak that size and quality was not to be tossed away. It appears that the construction boss and his staff ate in another car and at a slightly later time than the gang. That morning the "boss" at the first and only "planked" steak Ben served during his career as a construction gang cook.

Did All The Cooking

He did all the cooking and baking with the exception of bread. He roasted meats in fifteen to twenty pound chunks. Fresh beef, pork, veal, mutton were furnished him in half carcasses. Bread was brought to him.

Refrigeration? Ben didn't need it. The meat didn't last that long. There were no electric stoves, potato peelers or dishwashers in Ben's kitchen. In fact there wasn't an electric light. He gained quite an experience as a stoker since he fed the stoves' hungry fires with soft coal hand-shovelled. Of course ashes had to be removed and grates cleaned. It was all in the day's work of a construction gang cook in those days.

Ben looked on the rugged side of life at an early age. He went to work for a farmer at the age of 14, but toiling 14 hours a day for ten dollars a month and board didn't appeal to him. He got a job in a city bakery at two dollars a week out of which he paid $1.50 for a room.

But a boss with the St. Vitus Dance and an irritable disposition didn't exactly appeal to him so he left and joined the staff of another bakery where he remained for six years.

Then Ben got a job as a cook on a small tug which was employed in harbor work. That was one of the best positions he had. Four men to look after, easy hours and good pay for those times. But that was a summer job and he had to live.

So he went to Toronto and secured a position as an "auctioneer" in a German-owned cafeteria restaurant. The restaurant had ten male and seven female "auctioneers" besides waiters, waitresses, etc. An auctioneer stood behind hot steam tables and warmish cookstoves. Each had three varieties of food to serve. As the customers entered these 'Simons' would call out their wares in loud voices. Ben's offerings were spaghetti, meatballs and pork and beans. He was kept busy since the cafe served 600 breakfasts, 1,600 noon dinners and 600 suppers, besides the night trade.

Music Provided

It was probably one of the first restaurants to adopt a night-club atmosphere since a small orchestra came in at night and played. When they rested, the head waiter would continue the music through the medium of a hand-operated phonograph.

Leaving the restaurant Ben returned to Belleville and remained here till the present. He has worked at many jobs, one of which was assistant bridgekeeper of the bay bridge when tolls were in effect.

Later he worked with Wallbridge and Clark, grocers.

Some time ago he met with a serious accident and suffered severe injuries. He was advised to move from the city and he acquired his present property on Station Road.

Student Councils Of Central Ontario To Hold Meeting

Projects to be taken up by student councils, the duties of members and their responsibilities, are up for discussion today at the Belleville collegiate where 75 delegates representing high schools and collegiates in Central Ontario are holding a student council conference.

Sponsor of the get-to-gether is the Keyette Club, service club of the Belleville Collegiate. Delegates from student councils at 13 schools at centres from Barrie to Kingston are attending.

The program got underway at 11.30 this morning with registration at the Collegiate. Chairman of the conference is Marilyn Andrews, director of the Keyette club. At noon a luncheon was held at the Kiwanis Centre with George Manjuris, former president of the local students council as speaker.

During the afternoon discussion groups were planned to consider such matters as organization, projects and member duties. A coffee party is scheduled for late afternoon with an evening party at the Kiwanis Centre.

John Hayes Honored By Toronto Club

Toronto, Feb. 9—For the 18th successive year, John D. Hayes, president of the Laura Secord Candy Shops, was yesterday elected Honorary President of the Kiwanis Club of Toronto. In an installation ceremony conducted by Keneth Loheed, who was Kiwanis president 18 years ago, Mr. Hayes was presented with a specially-made pin of office. Edwin Shipp is the present president of the club. Mr. Hayes was born in Belleville, and now lives in Toronto.

BABE SAVES 23

Toronto, Feb. 9 (CP)—Lynda Thompson, 18 months old, can only say "mamma" Last night she said it loudly enough to arouse 23 persons when fire broke out in a city tenement. All escaped.

"I know she cries loudly," said her mother, Mrs. Ruth Thompson. "But from now on I won't mind it so much."

IN MEMORIAM

COLDEN. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Ethel May Colden, who passed away February 9th, 1944.

As angels keep their watch up there,
Please God just let her know
That we down here could not forget
We love and miss her so.

—Ever remembered by Art and Doris. F9

RUSHLOW. — In loving memory of William Rushlow, who passed away three years ago, February 10th, 1949.

Three years have passed, how long it seems,
But in our hearts your face still beams.
We who loved you only know
How much we lost three years ago.

—Ever remembered by loving wife and family. F9

MACK. — In loving memory of a dear dad and grandfather, who passed away February 9, 1950.

Two years have passed, dear dad,
Since you were called away.
How well do we remember
That sad and weary day.
You suffered much, you murmured not,
We watched you day by day.
We cried and prayed that your dear life
Would not be taken away.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by his daughter Bertha, son-in-law Roy and his grandchildren. F9

MACK. — In loving memory of a dear dad who passed away February 9th, 1950.

We lost a dad with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than wealth untold.
Without a farewell he fell asleep
With only happy memories for us to keep.
We have lost, but God has gained

—Sadly missed by daughter Mildred and son-in-law Bill and family. F9

MACK. — In loving memory of Percy M. Mack, who passed away February 9th, 1950.

But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife
And clasp each other's hand once more
In heaven, that happy life.

—Sadly missed by wife Violet. F9

SILLS. — In loving memory of a dear father, Wallace L. Sills, who passed away February 9th, 1947.

Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear
Fond memories linger every day
Remembrance keeps him near.

—Ever remembered by the family F9

LOGUE. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, John Logue, who passed away on February 9th, 1949.

God called him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts we love him still.
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.
We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

—Sadly missed by wife and family F9

Europe as I See It

By Raymond R. Canon

Troublesome Time Crossing Border

(ARTICLE 56)

Germershein au Rhein (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) —Christmas is the time of year that we like to spend at home or among friends, and since the first alternative is out of the question for me, I was very happy to receive an invitation for Christmas from the Swiss family with whom I had lived during my stay in St. Gallen. I accepted this invitation with pleasure but little thought what amount of difficulties I would have to go through before I would be able to arrive there.

Perhaps I should explain that although I have lived most of my life in Canada, I was born in the United States, which results in my having a special Canadian passport. Although I served in the RCAF and have voting privileges, which makes me about as much a Canadian as one can be, some of the European embassies over here get it into their head from time to time that I must be stateless, a Communist no less, expelled from the United States. It never seems to occur to them to check all this with the nearest Canadian embassy, where I am registered. Instead they have to carry on a investigation or spy hunt all their own.

Visa Trouble

Having now given a bit of the background, I shall now give you a play-by-play description of what transpired between one Raymond R. Canon, a peace-loving Canadian and the Confederacy of Switzerland, a peace-loving country.

To begin with, I have a Swiss residence visa which means I can stay in the country, but I thought perhaps I might need an entrance visa, so forwarded my passport to the nearest Swiss consulate at Frankfurt. It seems one was necessary for in a few days a letter arrived saying, "Please fill out the inclosed application forms etc. However, by mistake they returned my passport and kept the application papers, so there was nothing to fill out. I wrote at once, explaining the oversight, and in about a week along came the forms with a little card, saying, "Please excuse the oversight." I filled out the papers, sent them back with my passport and then waited for a reply.

I waited a long, long time.

Came the Saturday before Christmas and still no passport. Being quite desperate by this time, I decided to phone the consulate. Following is the approximate conservation.

"Where is my passport?"

"We had to ask Berne for the permission and we haven't got it as yet. You see, you are stateless and we are making an investigation of your past."

"What??? Who said I was stateless?"

"Well, you're not a Canadian."

"What do you mean I'm not a Canadian." At this point I proceeded put them right on this point and ended up asking them? "You could have checked with the Canadian Embassy, did you?"

"No." (No reason given)

In Different Country

Then I continued, "Anyway Swiss Embassy at Toronto gave me a visa without any hesitation whatsoever. Why can't you?"

"You're not in Canada now. You're in Germany and we have other rules for Germany."

"Yes, but I'm the same person." That didn't seem to make any impression so I continued, "Well, I'm certainly not going to stay in Germersheim. You have my, passport and without it I cannot get any money from the German banks. All my money is in Switzerland, and anyway I want to spend Christmas there. Are you sure you can't help me in any way?"

"No, I'm sorry, we can't."

Well, God only helps those who help themselves so I told them I was going to set out for the Swiss border and would get across some way or other.

That ended the conversation, but I carried out my intention, and the next day set out for the Swiss border, armed with all the identification papers I could find, especially the one stating that I was residing in St. Gallen, although at present studying in Germany.

Explained Position

With all these papers in my hand I went to the first German customs official I met at the border and explained my case. I' listened and then said, "Ach so, follow me."

We went to the head official who shook his head and said, "No passport, no entry." So I started in again. I argued, pleaded, explained and scolded for about twenty minutes before he relented and said, "All right, you can leave the country but it is up to the Swiss to decide whether they will let you in."

He took me to the Swiss Customs office where I explained everything once more. They didn't say no right away but put me under a sort of third degree. About five of them stood round me and asked one question after another.

I had proof from the Fremdenpolizei (the organization that keeps track of all foreigners in Switzerland) that I was living in St. Gallen but the border officials didn't seem convinced of this so telephoned the St. Gallen office to check, but it was closed. They next phoned the family with whom I stayed and bombarded them with questions. After about an hour, when they had reduced me to a nervous wreck, they said, "All right, you can go through." Which I did, before they had a chance to change their minds.

Inspector Surprised

All this time the investigation in Switzerland was going on and so it was that in due time a police inspector called the family where I was staying and asked,

"There is a certain Mr. Canon, who is at present in Germany. You invited him for Christmas, is that right?"

"Yes, that's right. He's here now. Would you like to speak to him?"

So I had to go to the Fremdenpolizei and explain how and why I came across the border without my passport. They made notes of everything, checked with the bank to make sure my money was in Switzerland, and then finally said,

"Well, you're here now, so there is nothing we can do about it. Your passport is probably back at the consulate so we will give you a letter to get you back into Germany. But if this office had been open, you wouldn't have got across the border. You're stateless. I found ont then that the Swiss Consulate had crossed out by nationality and written the word 'stateless' beside it. All this, as I explained before, without checking with the Canadian embassy. So I started in again and for the xth time explained why I was not stateless.

Passport Still Missing

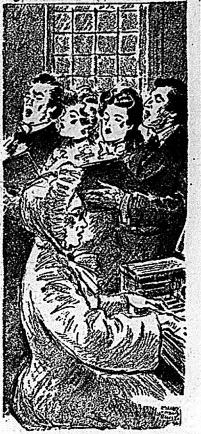
Well, I got my letter to get back into Germany, but I imagine the investigation must be still going on someplace, for I have not yet received my passport from the Swiss consulate, although I have Swiss consulate, although I have done just about everything short of declaring war.

This story has a happy ending, for in spite of all this I was able to be in St. Gallen for Christmas and a wonderful one it was too. Santa Claus was good to me, I was among friends, and Christmas dinner never tasted better. My only regret was that time passed so quickly that I hardly had a chance to see all by friends before it was time to leave. Certainly it was a Christmas that I shall never forget.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

"Depth of Mercy"



Depth of Mercy! Can there be
Mercy still reserved for me?
Can my God His wrath forbear,
Me, the chief of sinners, spare?

I have long withstood His grace;
Long provoked Him to His face;
Would not hearken to His calls;
Grieved Him by a thousand falls.

Now incline me to repent;
Let me now my sins lament;
Now my foul revolt deplore,
Weep, believe, and sin no more.

Kindled His relentings are;
Me He now delights to spare;
Cries, "How shall I give Thee up?"
Lets the lifted thunder drop.

There for me the Savior stands,
Shows His wounds and spreads His hands;
God is love! I know, I feel;
Jesus weeps and loves me still.

It is believed that the great Methodist poet, Charles Wesley, was confessing his own fall from grace in this grand old hymn, one of the best-loved in his list.

When it first appeared in 1740 in a volume of "Hymns and Sacred Songs" published by Charles and his brother, John, it carried the title, "After A Relapse Into Sin." In the original poem, the twelfth line read: "Let me now my fall lament." In more recent versions the word "sins" has been substituted for "fall."

The hymn tune was taken from the opera, "Oberon," written in 1826 by Baron Carl Maria von Weber, one of Germany's most distinguished composers of operas symphonies, and piano scores.

There is an interesting anecdote associated with "Depth of Mercy." An English actress, according to the story, was attracted by the hymn one day as she heard it being sung in a prayer-meeting in a cottage which she was passing. The words of the song caught and held her. She went inside the home and, before the evening was over, she was converted. A few days later she gave up her stage career to devote her life to Christian service.

Patient Survives Removal of Gland

Baltimore, Feb. 9 — (AP) — Scientists at John Hopkins Hospital have removed the vital pituitary gland from a 72-year-old patient and kept him in good health for nearly three months.

When treatment was started last November, the patient was bedridden and suffered pain from a tumor in the gland. Cancer developed and spread to other tissues.

But now the man walks around without any trouble. His appetite is good; he sleeps soundly and has put on 17 pounds.

The pituitary is a pea-sized gland at the base of the brain. It is one of the most important tissues in the system, and is frequently referred to as the master gland.

The operation on the pituitary gland was unique, doctors said, because similar attempts have been unsuccessful. Usually patients die on the operating table or a short time later.

LEAVE FOR TOUR

London, Feb. 9 — (Reuters) — The foreign office said yesterday a team of top British officials will leave Tuesday for a month - long fact-finding tour of the oil-producing areas of the Persian Gulf. Their main tasks will be to prepare a report for Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden on problems arising from increased oil production in the area.

"FREE SPEECH" RUNS WILD

An attempt to prevent Massey Hall from being used as a meeting place for Communists and fellow-travelling groups was defeated by the Toronto city council last Monday.

Although a municipal council probably lacks complete authority in such matters, the Toronto city council has such authority, indirectly, in the case of Massey Hall, because under the City of Toronto Act of 1909 Massey Hall was granted exemption from taxation. Apparently the city council has the authority to begin again levying taxation on the building if and when it decides to do so.

Remarks made by several of the Toronto aldermen indicated they believed Massey Hall should be given such tax exemption only so long as it was devoted entirely to the purposes for which it was built, "the promotion of music, temperance and patriotism." Mayor Lamport's contribution to the discussion was that he was opposed to the council interfering in the operation of the hall, on the ground that there were too few public halls and meeting places in Toronto now.

Thus we have the spectacle of the municipal council of Canada's second largest city approving, in principle at least, of the use of a large publicly-owned building for the holding of meetings by Communist and near-Communist organizations.

The government of Ontario could end this nonsense in short order if it wished to do so, by passing legislation similar to that which has been in effect in Quebec for years. Under this Quebec legislation, the attorney-general of Quebec has the authority to send the Quebec provincial police to "padlock and place under seizure" any premises which he believes to be used as a meeting place for Communists or fellow-travellers. Under this Quebec legislation, it is worth noting, the Communists and their friends cannot escape by adopting an innocent-sounding title for their subversive organization; the law authorizes the Quebec attorney-general (who at present is also the premier) to decide what constitutes a Communist organization.

Communists and fellow-travellers are not given to renting large public halls and holding big meetings in Quebec, because landlords who own such establishments display an understandable reluctance to seeing their halls padlocked and made liabilities instead of assets.

It may be debatable whether Ontario needs a "Padlock Law" on the Quebec model, but it is beyond dispute that the Communists do pretty well what they like in Toronto. It is also common knowledge that there are more Reds per acre in Toronto than anywhere else in Canada.

If the Toronto Communists were denied the use of Massey Hall, there would still be nothing to prevent them from renting another hall. They would then have all the free speech to which they believe they are entitled and would still not be perverting the purpose for which Massey Hall was intended. It certainly was never intended to provide a centre for the dissemination of Communism.

LE COMBAT HORS DE COMBAT

Montreal's Communists were thrown for another loss the other day. A squad of Quebec provincial police under Special Agent Paul Benoit raided the home of a gentleman named Goldberg and seized 1,800 copies of a French-language newspaper called Le Combat (The Struggle). Le Combat is printed in Toronto. Along with the 1,800 copies of it were seized, also at Mr. Goldberg's domicile, hundreds of books, pamphlets and reviews printed in Russia and other countries behind the Iron Curtain. Special Agent Benoit and his men apparently made quite a haul.

Until 1948, Le Combat was printed in Montreal. After its premises were padlocked, it set up shop in Toronto, where Communism, if not exactly encouraged, is at least allowed to flourish.

Ironically, the leading article in the edition of Le Combat which was seized was entitled "Quebec wants to get rid of its Duplessis chains." Maybe Le Combat has the right dope on what Quebec wants, but we are inclined to doubt it. The people of Quebec were so well pleased with the chains with which Mr. Duplessis binds them that, at the last provincial election, they elected 81 of his Union Nationale party out of a total of 92 members of the Quebec legislature. None of the other members of the Quebec legislature are Reds, or even Pinks.

Although the news item from which we draw our information did not specifically say so, we may assume that a large new padlock today adorns Mr. Goldberg's dwelling, and that he is looking for a new home while Le Combat is similarly seeking a new distributional centre in Montreal.

REASSURANCE

At times when I began to think
In chaos soon the world will sink,
When hope seems grayed with gloom,
As they have done from year to year,
The garden catalogues appear—
Aglow with bud and bloom.

When, as they've always been, I see
The blossoming plum and cherry tree;
I think, once more these lovely things
Which the returning springtime brings
In gardens small will grow.

No matter what man does in hate
To lay the good world desolate
And all that's fair destroy,
Nature will somehow still contrive
To keep things beautiful alive
For mortals to enjoy.

Running the pages through and through
All gay with blossoms pink and blue
In every booklet sent;
Heartened by every bloooom I see
And knowing it will always be,
I settle back content.

DISCIPLINE AND GROWTH

We are all working, to the limited extent we are able, to make the world a better place in which to live.

This is highly commendable. We ought to work ten times harder than we do. Yet the plain fact has to be faced that no matter how hard we work, the world will always be imperfect, and practically the same problems will be confronting the last man to stand upon the earth which confronted our first parents.

Does this mean that human effort has failed? Not at all. It means that life is a school, and being a school it will always be presenting problems to man's mind and spirit and demanding solutions. We think how wonderful it would be is everybody had every material advantage designed to make life significant and privileged, if sickness would only cease, if people would only stop being untruthful, and cruel. If life would only run along smoothly every day, how happy we would all be. Maybe. Of one thing we can be sure—we would never learn anything.

The problems of life arise out of the maladjustments of life. What would school be like in which children solved no problems? Because life is a school, it will always be characterized by discipline—discipline that hurts, but discipline that promotes growth.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

A MAN'S MUSING

Been musing about the people who are complaining that the new CBU wave-length interferes with that of KIRO, Seattle, and I must say I sympathize with them. If you get to enjoy the view of a garbage dump it naturally makes you mad when somebody puts a flower garden in the way. . . At that, the controversy does illustrate the thinking of a great many Canadians who are vastly suspicious that anything Canadian is inferior. We talk a great deal about artists (in every field) who leave this country for the United States "because they can make more money there." The real truth is that most of them leave because they'd be branded second-rate if they stay. . . The editorials of the Vancouver Sun on this radio matter—or, indeed, on any aspect of the CBC—are the most vicious, unreasonable, biased and ignorant of any newspaper in Canada. I wish the boys would occasionally glance up at the masthead where they devote themselves to "freedom of thought" and remember that commercial radio owned and controlled by advertisers, is the most dangerous denial of free speech today.

* * *

If I were a newspaper publisher I'd ban any comic strip about "Red" spies and thugs, as so many are today. The danger here, it seems to me, is in planting an idea in a child's impressionable mind that is extremely unbalanced. I want my own kids to grow up with the hope that we can do business with Russia in making the world a peaceful place, however slim a chance that may seem today. I do not want some half-wit comic artist, taking advantage of the emotions and hysteria of the moment, to educate my kids on world affairs. . .

They're ruining my old love, Giselle. Remember those pleasant ballads and folk songs she used to do on the CBC when she had a mind of her own? Now they've got her churning out "novelty" tunes and she's beginning to sound like every other female singer. . . The Weavers, too, are being "popularized" in a highly determined manner and losing all their individuality. The worst thing that ever happened to them was to be "discovered" by Gordon Jenkins who took their simple, charming music and "arranged" it into a hash. . . Haven't seen it yet, but several people whose judgment I trust tell me that Jean Renoir's production of "The River" is a beautiful thing.

* * *

It's a little late, but I must report Vic Waters' description of a Burns' Night supper. "The haggis is piped in," he noted, "and the guests are popped out." . . . There's a wonderful music in the names of Continental trains: The Golden Arrow, Blue Train, Simplon-Orient Express, Blue Bird, Nord Express, Sud Express, Orient Express. They all have the sound of adventure in them. . . I didn't know until today that there's actually a place in the old country called Bettws-Y-Coed. . . Add to your collection of weird and wonderful advertisements the newest of the Holeproof Hosiery Company which has gone to the Garden of Eden in the interests of their nylons. The two new shades are Golden Serpent ("a romantic copper, animated by vibrant undertone") and Enchanted Apple ("a clear, lively nude subtly sparked by a blush of apricot"). All of this "inspired by earth's first awaking." They do say there's a special wing in the asylum for advertising men. . . Make you feel older to hear that Bobby Green is now in his late 20's?

* * *

Doing some research for tomorrow's column and I came across some interesting stuff about the small feet of Chinese women. I knew, of course, that the girls undergo horrible torture to get 'em that small. What I didn't know is that it's a purely erotic style. A Chinese woman is considered immodest if she shows her artificially distorted foot to a man. It's even improper to speak of a woman's foot. . . How're you making both ends meet? Here's how one struggler put it: To figure how much it costs me to live is easy today, I'll admit; I merely put down the wages I've earned, add 20 percent—and that's it." . . . Did you see Tailor and Cutter's advice on how to keep a nightshirt from creeping up: "Put your garters on upside down and connect the fasteners with the hem." But who wears garters any more, or, for that matter, who wears a nightshirt?. . . Nothing's as thoroughly thirst-quenching as apple juice. . . What's your favorite sentimental line in literature or music? Nobody's topped "I wouldn't trade the silver in my mother's hair for all the gold in the world."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On some of these savagely cold February days that are familiar to most parts of Canada, it gives us almost a physical chill to see birds fluttering about the garden. We wonder that they do not drop stiff dead.

According to recent discoveries, using very fantastic apparatus the average temperature of birds is a fraction under 108 degrees, which is considerably higher than human temperature and that of most animals. Some birds are normally higher than that, and some lower, swallows and shore birds, like the plover, being these with the lowest temperatures.

But the interesting feature of these latest explorations into the strange field of the blood temperature of birds is that in all of them, from the swallow to the wild goose, it is ever-varying and unstable, and depends upon the metabolism of the bird and the temperature of the surrounding atmosphere. Birds have, apparently, a sort of thermostatic arrangement involving their food, digestion and glands, which automatically turns on the heat of their blood as it is required. Dr. Miklos Udvardy, a Hungarian biologist at present in Canada on his way to join the staff of Washington State University, has done a great deal of work on bird temperatures, and in lectures here has shown that most species of birds can, within a half an hour or less, effect a rise or a fall of the blood temperature of more than three degrees, in response to changes in the air temperature.

Mammals are supposed to have a fixed body temperature, while the lower animals, like reptiles or fish, adapt their blood temperature to the air or water around them. Birds now prove to be in a class by themselves, since they have, as it were, a hot-water heating system governed by a thermostat.

More than that, they long ago adopted the plinciple of insulation, by which they exercise delicate muscles in their hides to fluff out their feathers to create the smartest automatic insulation system engineers ever saw.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON SELLING

There is no more fascinating business in the world than that of selling. Without salesmen there would be little progress made. Selling is behind every successful enterprise of whatever character. Even a country has to have its salesmen.

Character is the salesman's stock in trade. It is he who must first sell himself. The product itself is secondary. Both happily combined furnish the triumph. A salesman does not sell every prospect. In most cases he has to fertilize the soil by leaving a trail of trust behind for the next visit. Then it is that he begins to build from there.

The same amount of effort is expended in getting a small order as a big one, so that it is wise to go after the big order! There is more incentive and inspiration to be gained by climbing the upper rungs of the success ladder.

When you sell a belief in yourself you sell a most valuable commodity! Every great enterprise rises from the seeds of selling. Advertising is silent selling. That is why it is so important that the truth is always stated. I refer of course to published advertising. The pages of this newspaper teem with silent salesmen for the products written about. Its editorials, its features, and its manner of presenting the news and its method of selling itself as a newspaper and servant of the people.

In our daily lives we are constantly enacting the role of salesman. We get our friends that way, and they in turn are drawn to us in the same manner. Books are salesman. They sell ideas, instruction entertainment. Many sell character as well.

Truthfulness, enthusiasm, and patience are great assets to every salesman. Without them he could not go far. Courage and courtesy are essential equipment. Leave your prospective customer with a smile and he will welcome you on your next visit. Bear in mind to always be a salesman!

CONGESTION OF THE LUNGS

Active congestion, a rush of blood to the lungs, occurs in the early stage of acute inflammation of the lungs, pneumonia.

So some charlatans in practice—and they are amazingly popular with their credulous customers—still get away with the shifty diagnosis of "congestion of the lungs" when they don't know whether the patient is coming down with bronchitis, measles, pleurisy, laryngitis, flu or pneumonia. If the patient or patient's family seem satisfied with the fake diagnosis, it is easy for the charlatan to control the situation from thereon in or out: if pneumonia develops, well, the doctor did his best but unfortunately the patient's "resistance" was down; if the illness doesn't prove very serious, the doctor has "broken it up."

In my one horse and buggy days there was a character with a tremendous "ride" — he kept two teams going "night and day" with drivers on day-shift and night-shift — and he kept the countryside well indoctrinated with the idea that he had never lost a "case" of pneumonia — meaning no one died of pneumonia under his care. If the family became alarmed and called in another doctor at the eleventh hour the old charlatan had a ready out: the patient succumbed to heart failure.

All of the foregoing comment applies only to active congestion, a rush of blood to the region or organ affected.

Passive congestion of the lungs is a different state, instead of a rush of blood to the lungs there is a stagnation of blood in the lungs — overfilling of the venules (smallest veins, incorrectly called "capillaries") with blood. As a general rule this passive congestion begins and is most pronounced in the posterior portion of the lung bases — and the medical term for it is — hold onto your hats kids — hypostatic passive pulmonary congestion. Hypostatic means stagnation or settling by gravity into the lowest or dependent region.

Passive congestion of the bases of the lungs is most likely to occur as a consequence of great postration, debility or weakness in patients who have been confined to bed for weeks or months. It develops insidiously or without outward change in the patient's symptoms except, perhaps, greater weakness. So if the attending physician is at all competent he or she looks carefully for signs of hypostatic congestion of the lungs at every visit — that is, percusses and auscults the bases of the lungs.

Among the precautions to prevent development of hypostatic passive pulmonary congestion are these:

(1) Frequent change of the position of the patient, from one side to the other, or if feasible, from supine(on the back) to prone (on the belly) or even to something like the knee-chest position for a few minutes three or four times a day.

(2) Belly breathing exercise two or three times a day if the patient is capable of doing it.

(3) Administration of 7% carbon dioxide and oxygen or air mixture by inhalation for a minute at regular intervals—this is a routine procedure in hospital practice, especially after operation. It hastens elimination of the anesthetic and prevents post-operative lung complications — hypostatic congestion, collapse of lung (atelectasis) pneumonia.

The belly breathing exercise is described in booklet How To Breathe. For copy send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope. This exercise of good for everyone whose mode of life is sedentary and therefore unnatural.

Dr. Lavoie Plans to End Far North Medical Practice After Many Arduous Years

Ile A La Crosse, Sask. (CP)—Dr. P. E. Lavoie, 66, has sent notice to the Saskatchewan Health Department that he is ending 17 years of emergency flights and trips by snowmobile, car, truck, motorboat, dog team and horseback to patients who live above the 55th parallel in Saskatchewan's northland.

On March 31, Dr. Lavoie will end his practice of medicine and surgery at Ile A La Crosse Hospital.

"Things are different now," he remarked recently. When he arrived at Ile A La Crosse, which is about 375 miles north of Regina, gas lanterns were a luxury.

Lacked Equipment

Then, the Ile A La Crosse Hospital had no X-ray equipment and was short of nearly everything that a surgical practitioner required.

Shortly after taking charge, the doctor had a patient who required a serious operation. He hadn't had time to gather surgical equipment and there wasn't enough light. But the resourceful Cree Indians rallied to contribute extra lamps and needed materials, enabling a successful operation.

Now, more than 5,000 babies later, Dr. Lavoie is going to retire and start mink ranching as a hobby. At Fort Black, four miles from Ile A La Crosse, the doctor has spent holidays and other spare days gathering a stock of mink.

Needed Advice

Dr. Lavoie says the thing he most missed in the north was another doctor. Many times, being isolated from civilization, he had been faced with a difficult problem and would have welcomed the viewpoint of another medical man.

Dr. Lavoie was graduated from Laval University in Quebec 38 years ago. For a time he practised medicine in Quebec province, then came west.

Through the years, Mrs. Lavoie has raised a family of three boys and one daughter, as well as a Cree boy, recently adopted. At the same time, she kept a light burning in the window for her doctor husband.

Even looking back on the long hard trips in 60-below-zero weather, Dr. Lavoie says: "I'd do it all over again. It's been a hard 17 years but a grand, worthwhile fight."

Spellbinder In Libya Seen Making Trouble

By STAN SWINTON

Tripoli (AP)—An Arab spellbinder named Beshir Bey Sadawi professes friendship for the west but harangues Libyans with bitter attacks on Britons, Americans and Frenchmen.

Sadawi believes his National Congress will sweep newly independent Libya's first national election Feb. 19 and take over the government.

His opposition comes from the non-party administration of pro-western Prime Minister Mahomoud Bey Muntasser, assailed by Sadawi as "a British puppet government."

The west has a major stake in the outcome.

Mushrooming Wheelus Field, U.S. air base outside Tripoli, is the biggest American installation in Africa. From its newly lengthened runways bombers could range over Russia.

Britain has land forces based here. France has a small base in Fezzan Oasis, gateway to equatorial Africa.

Sadawi sings one tune to western newspaper men and another to Arab audiences. The latter often have heard him demand that Libya sweep out western influence.

Foreign aid plays even a bigger role in Libya than did the foreign oil royalties in Iran. There Premier Mossadegh expelled Britain in the heat of nationalism although it brought virtual bankruptcy upon Iran.

Sadawi has shown strong signs that he wants to do the same thing here even if Libya reverts to a medieval land of hungry nomads.

Like Mossadegh, he fans the population—more than nine-tenths of the 1,340,000 people are illiterate—with violent verbal attacks on foreigners.

The best estimate here is that Sadawi will make a strong showing in the election, but probably will fall just short of a majority.

HOLD ELECTIONS

Pusan, Korea, Feb. 9—(AP)—The South Korean government announced tonight that local elections would be held April 25 to choose 19,768 city and country council representatives under the local autonomy law. Implementing this law, which has been on the books for some time, has been postponed previously because of the war.

A. Lawes Heads Frankford School Board for 1952

Chairman of the Frankford School Board for 1952 will be Mr. Allen Lawes, it was decided at the inaugural meeting held recently.

Standing committees for the board will be: management and finance—William Rose and Robert J. Donabie; supply, Grant Patrick and George Flindal; property, Roy Lockwood and Grant Patrick; Batawa committee, George Flindal and Roy Lockwood.

More Space Needed

Lack of classroom accommodation will be a big question for the Frankford School Board this year and this problem took up considerable of the time at both the inaugural meeting and a special meeting held later in the month. Information on pertinent points seemed lacking and the management committee with the board chairman were named to study the problem and present a recommended solution to the board.

It was the problem of accommodation with the possibility of dissolution of the section into two boards should a new school be built at Batawa, that resulted in considerable juggling before a board chairman was elected.

Refuses to Act

When nominations for chairman were called the names of both Mr. Lawes and Robert J. Donabie were submitted. Mr. Donabie requested his name be withdrawn stating he would not accept the position for 1952. Despite Mr. Donabie's statement that he would not act, the election proceeded and Mr. Donabie was elected. He refused to act, pointing out that if dissolution was decided upon it would mean his leaving as he represented Batawa.

Again nominations for chairman were called with Mr. Lawes and Grant Patrick being nominated. Mr. Lawes was the choice for chairman.

The school board will again take on the operation of the ball park on the school grounds, it was decided after some discussion. A nominal charge will be made to organizations using the ball park.

The matter of proper precautions and protections against fire will be taken up directly with companies holding insurance on the school.

Resignation Accepted

Mrs. Jensen, teaching staff member, asked to be released in order that she might accept a position nearer to her home. With the provision that the school board could secure a replacement to complete the school term, the resignation was accepted.

Detlor Woman Bruised, Shaken Up in Collision

Mrs. Elsie Esford of Detlor, Ont., miraculously escaped with bruises and a shaking up this morning when the car she was driving was in collision with an army truck at Foxboro.

Driving north toward Madoc Mrs. Esford was passing the Stirling road intersection at the northern end of the village when a southbound army truck driven by Cpl. Ross of Peterborough skidded on the curve and crashed into the Esford vehicle. The Esford vehicle was badly damaged by the impact.

Slippery road conditions were indirectly the cause of the accident, it was stated.

The injured woman was taken to hospital by Bush's Ambulance but after X-rays was allowed to go to a city home.

Police Report Dissension

Ajax, Ont., Feb. 9 — (CP)—Police today reported dissension and discontentment rife at the Ajax immigrants' camp where immigrants are maintained pending placement in jobs.

They said that discontent, prevailing for weeks, reached a 'boiling point' yesterday when blows were struck by a number of immigrants at the meal hour in the cafeteria. Officers stayed at the camp throughout the day but no further disorder was reported.

MAY CLOSE GARDENS

Toronto, Feb. 9 — (CP) — For want of a few preserving coats of paint and some new wooden sash-frames, the 42-year-old Palm House in city-owned Allan Gardens has been closed and may not reopen. A year ago the cost of repairs was estimated at $40,000. If the place closes, the giant palms, some of them over 30 feet in height, will have to be destroyed.

MARMORA

Vaughan Glover New Head Of Chamber of Commerce For Marmora and District

Marmora.—Vaughan Glover, as new president of the Marmora District Chamber of Commerce, was sworn in by John E. Buchan president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, Roger Young, vice-president, by H. W. Sabine, and Ralph Neal, secretary, and Floyd Loveless, treasurer, charged with their duties by John E. Buchan, at the monthly dinner meeting held in the Royal Hotel on Thursday evening.

The meeting opened with two minutes' silence in respect for the memory of King George VI and the toast to the Queen.

Alex. Fraser, retiring president, welcomed guests of the evening and mentioned for their benefit that it was the annual meeting and beefers' night. He congratulated the chamber on its recent election of the board of directors and the directors on their election of officers. At this point he called upon the Belleville president to carry out the installation. Mr. Buchan, following this, paid a tribute to the virility of the local body and said that the Belleville Chamber would be inviting the Marmora Chamber as a body to one of its meetings in the near future. He was of the opinion that each chamber had something to learn from the other. Fundamental aims were the same. They needed to get together and strengthen each other in the upholding of such. Past President Fraser, in a neat speech, tendered his thanks to officers and members for their co-operative support in the past year and made the presentation of a gift to W. J. Cottrell in appreciation of his work as editor of the chamber's bulletin for the past two years. The recipient made appreciative reply. President Glover thanked the directors for electing him and pledged himself to do all he could for the welfare of the organization in 1952.

Election Results

In giving the results of the election of directors, H. W. Sabine was happy to state that 65 out of 75 ballots sent out to members had been returned.

F. R. Loveless presented the financial report. Net receipts amounted to $744.71.

Three hundred dollars were voted to the recreation centre. There was a deficit of about $95 at the end of the year.

C. T. Nicholson gave the report of the planning and developing committee. He said the planning board was regularized. It had held several meetings. They had zoned and laid out a plan for the municipality but as yet it was not approved by the municipal board.

Chairmen Named

Chairmen of committees were then announced by the president as follows: membership and finance, R. Young; program and entertainment, Rev. G. D. Young; agriculture, Irwin McCoy; industrial and civic, A. J. Maynes; retail and merchandise, D. P. Marett; publicity and tourist development, T. J. Bateman; safety, C. T. Nicholson; planning and development, C. R. Whittemore; reception, A. F. Fraser.

James T. Davis, secretary manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, a guest of the evening, expressed pleasure at meeting the Marmora chamber. He said that much is heard about leadership in these times. He declared that leadership was not confined to the individual. The chamber is a representative body of the community it is in to give it leadership. He had observed that the Marmora chamber had accomplished much. Only one thing I can say is "keep it up."

George Hosang of Belleville presented a fine charcoal portrait of Reeve V. M. Lynch to the reeve in appreciation of his contribution to the radio program "Ontario Marches On," when the village of Marmora was featured.

No Beefing

No beefing occurred in the order of business thus described but some suggestions were advanced and considered.

As a result of the first, the night of monthly meeting was changed from second Thursday to first Thursday.

The next suggestion was that the Belleville Chamber use its influence in getting a curling rink in that city.

Also the surcharge on patients in Belleville Hospital, who come from outside the city was a subject receiving some discussion.

Another member considered the extension of No. 14 highway from Belleville beyond Marmora to north end of the county should be a project that the Belleville and Marmora chambers should unitedly have a voice upon and work for.

The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to A. F. Fraser, retiring president, by R. G. Walsh for his leadership and advancement of the chamber's activities during the four years it has been in existence.

Car Crash Hurts Two Women From Toronto

Two Toronto women, Mrs. Ross Rogers and Mrs. J. Salmers of 142 Dawes Road, are in Belleville General Hospital with injuries suffered in a motor accident on No. 2 highway at the Deseronto town limits early Friday evening.

Mrs. Salmers suffered a fractured cheek bone and bruises, while Mrs. Rogers has fractured ribs, a fractured collar bone and shock.

The two women were riding in a car driven by Jeroslaw Salmers, Toronto, when the vehicle skidded on the slippery pavement into the side of a vehicle proceeding in the opposite direction. Driver of the other car, Ray Walker, of Frankford, was not hurt, but a transport unable to stop in time skidded into his vehicle, adding further damage.

The accident was investigated by Chief of Police Bert Lounsberry of Deseronto, assisted by O.P.P. Ken Williamson. Bush's ambulance brought the injured to hospital.

EVERY AVAILABLE BED IN HOSPITAL NOW OCCUPIED

Every available room and bed in the Belleville General Hospital was taken this morning as emergency and other cases overflowed into corridors.

At nine o'clock this morning hospital officials reported there was not a single bed available in the institution. Several emergency cases were brought in during the morning and there were no beds in which to put them. In fact one accident case was brought in and after X-rays determined there were no broken bones, she was taken to a city home when no bed was available.

Theatre Guild Discusses Plans For Spring Season

The preview of a short play intended for presentation to home and school associations provided the main item of the Belleville Theatre Guild's meeting last Wednesday night. Entitled "Scattered Showers," the play illustrates three entirely different approaches to the problems of parenthood and is intended to form the basis of a discussion. Mrs. J. C. R. Punchard; Miss H. Burley and Mrs. G. B. Thompson took the parts of the mothers coping in their diverse ways with three imaginary little boys. The play was directed by Mrs. G. A. Bradford.

After members had expressed their appreciation of this presentation by a number of curtain calls, Mr. Murray Irwin led the audience in a 15-minute period of voice production exercises, which, he explained, might profitably be repeated daily to assist in the development of flexible voice control.

Trenton Presentation

Turning to business matters, Mrs. Doyle announced that the Guild's Festival entry, "The Voice of the People," was to be presented in Trenton on February 25th, together with "Marriage Proposal" and "Joint Owners in Spain," which would be performed by the Trenton Drama Group. She urged all who could to attend this performance, and said how much the Guild appreciated the invitation of the Trenton group to co-operate with them in this matter.

The opportunity offered by the Central Ontario Drama League to enter a play in their April Festival was discussed, but it was decided, in view of the Guild's other committments, not to do so this year.

Mrs. Doyle also announced that the presentation of "The Voice of the People" at the Eastern Ontario Festival in Peterborough was scheduled for March 1st, and the Guild had high hopes of this, their first venture into wider fields.

Three Plays

Plans for the Guild's spring production were then aired. After much thought and discussion, the executive committee felt that by presenting three one-act, rather than one three-act play, it would be possible to give experience to a greater number of members and for this reason the following program was proposed: "The Valiant" (directed by Miss Merry); "The Flattering Word" (Miss Burley) and "Overlaid" (Mrs. Darlington). Mrs. Doyle said that casting for the first two would take place next Wednesday at Queen Victoria School, while Mrs. Darlington would hold a casting session immediately the meeting adjourned. A motion that this presentation should take place in one of the public school auditoria rather than in the collegiate was passed.

BUILD LOOKOUT AREA

Callandar, Ont., Feb. 9 — (CP) —The Ontario Highways Department will build a lookout area 200 feet by 150 feet on a high hill near Highway 11 at the southern entrance to this Northern Ontario town. It will afford a view of Callandar, Callandar Bay and the Manitou Islands, 22 miles away in Lake Nipissing.

WALKERTON MAN RETIRES

Walkerton, Feb. 9 — (CP) — Dean of Walkerton business men, William H. McBurney has closed the doors of his dry goods store and will retire.

He came to Walkerton in 1901 from New York City and has been in business longer than any other Walkerton merchant.

Obituary

MRS. ELNORAH MARY ROWE
(Consecon Road)

Funeral services for the late Mrs. Elnorah Mary Rowe, R.R. 3, Carrying Place, were held this afternoon from her late residence with interment in White's Cemetery. Rev. W. Kingerley conducted the service at the home and at the graveside.

Bearers were Earl Rathbun, Howard Alyea, Stewart Chase, Harry Chase, Harvey Brown and Cecil Blakely.

The late Mrs. Rowe died at Trenton Memorial Hospital on Wednesday following an illness of three years. She was born at Trenton 67 years ago, daughter of James T. Watson, and the late Catherine Jane Dillenbeck. She had lived in Prince Edward county for the past 41 years and prior to that time at Trenton.

She was a member of Consecon United Church and was formerly active in the Woman's Association and in the Red Cross.

Besides her husband she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Cecil (Ethel) Andrews of Carrying Place and two sons, Donald of Trenton; and Earle at home. There is one brother, Floyd Watson of Belleville, and one sister Mrs. Harry (Ethel) Anger; also six grandchildren.

MRS. MARY CARR

Funeral services for the late Mrs. Mary Carr, widow of Francis William Carr, were held from the chapel of the York Burial Funeral Home, Toronto, this afternoon. She passed away on Thursday, Feb. 7.

The former Mary McFarland, she is survived by her husband and five daughters and four sons. They include Mrs. F. (Mabel) Garland, Mrs. H. (Ethel) Howard, Mrs. Sidney (Rena) Jones, Mrs. Fred (Jessie) Angel, Mrs. Lloyd (Ada) Ross, Thomas, Leonard, Edward and Harry.

Interment was in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Toronto.

Will Open New Office for High School Board

With renovations to the John Street property nearly completed, the secretary of the Bay of Quinte District High School district will move into his new office during the coming week. Offices for the district board will be the former Niblock residence which was purchased last year with the view of expansion.

Alterations to the dwelling consisted of removing one partition to make a larger room, and painting and papering.

At the regular meeting of the high school board held Friday evening, Mr. Roy Sills, transportation committee chairman, was authorized to have provincial police make a periodic inspection of all buses drawing students to school. The inspection will be made in the interests of safety.

In preparation for the installation of new auditorium curtains, the stage floor at the collegiate auditorium will be sanded. Installation of the new curtains is a student council project for the year and members expect to be able to pay a large percentage of the cost.

The maximum salaries paid to collegiate teachers was raised $200, this affecting about four members of the present teaching staff, who had already reached their maximum.

The city auditor, A. R. McFadden, was named auditor for the Bay of Quinte High School District.

The board changed its night of meeting from the second Friday of the month to the third Friday, the advisory vocational committee to meet the previous Friday.

Nurses, 'Girls' Win Court Games

Nurses and Business Girls continued undefeated in the Y.M.C.A. Ladies' Basketball House League in games played on Wednesday night. O.S.D. were the victims of the Business Girls the score being 24 to 15 while Nurses defeated the Northern Electric "B" team by a score of 30 to 8.

D. McLean was the leading scorer for Business Girls with 5 baskets. S. Culkin scored 3 baskets and M. Marinoff 2 baskets.

H. McCammon scored 8 points for O.S.D. D. Wiltse scored 5 points and M. Tobin scored 2 points. J. Crocker scored 6 baskets for Nurses, L. Fraser scored 5 baskets. I. Goodman scored 2 baskets and M. Clarke and H. Aston one basket each.

J. Yorke scored 2 baskets for Northern Electric while D. Dayman and B. McGovan scored one each.

Officials in the first game were Don Dolan and Ants Juurup with Ted Batchelor time keeper. In the second game Merle Massey and Ants Juurup officiated with Marg Cousins as time keeper.

Business Girls now have 5 wins and no defeats; Nurses 3 wins and one defeat; O.S.D. 2 victories and 3 defeats, while both Northern teams have suffered 3 defeats.

COUNTRY FOLK

Composed but misty-eyed, Elizabeth greeted her mother, her sister and her two children with embraces and kisses. Then she walked to the bedroom where lay her father.

Soon after, while a sharp wind whispered dismally from the east and the moon cast silver over the dark pines and yew trees, the body of the dead Sovereign was wheeled slowly to the little church, 250 yards away.

Behind the coffin walked the Queen and her mother, heavily veiled, arm-in-arm. Then came Princess Margaret and the Duke, followed by a few others of the Royal entourage.

Received Cortege

On the porch of the church, its rector, Rev. Hector Anderson, received the cortege.

The lament of the pipe wailed and was silent.

The coffin was borne in, and there was a short, private service. The mourners walked back to the house.

Queen Elizabeth has been under great strain — the shock of the news which reached her in Africa, the 4,000-mile journey home, the necessity to put duty ahead of sorrow before she could come to her family.

She was said to be bearing it with "great courage," but today and tomorrow she was expected to rest.

Her widowed mother, too, was said to be bearing up with the composure required of royalty.

Police and government officials were completing final arrangements for Monday's journey with the King's body from the church to London.

The cortege is expected to leave the church about 11 a.m. on a gun-carriage drawn by the horses and men of the Royal Horse Artillery. Straight-backed soldiers from the King's company of Grenadier Guards will escort it to the four-car funeral train.

Soon after noon the train is to draw away, passing slowly so those who wish may pay homage along the way.

In London, many craftsmen labored to complete the catafalque on which the King's body will lie in state next week.

There, Monday, in the hall which has cradled English history for nearly nine centuries, the Queen, her mother and others of the Royal Family will join members of both Houses of Parliament in a memorial service.

Five of Europe's kings and one queen will attend Friday's funeral service

A Short Service

Before the cortege arrives from Sandringham, at 4:15 p.m., the Dukes, Earls and other peers of the kingdom, led by the scarlet-robed Lord Chancellor, will file to places along one side of the catafalque. Members of the Commons will stand to the other side.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, and the Dean of Westminster, Dr. Alan C. Don, will meet the cortege with the Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal of England, and the Lord Great Chamberlain, Lord Cholmondeley.

The coffin will be carried into the hall through great, iron-studded doors, with Queen Elizabeth, her mother, and other members of the family following it. They will stand at the end of the coffin during the service to be conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

The short service will consist of the saying of the lesser litany, the Lord's prayer, and a memorial prayer. Then all will sing "Abide With Me." A benediction will end the service.

Catafalque Being Built

The catafalque on which the body will lie in state is being built in six tiers on a lozenge-shaped base 42 feet long and 17 feet wide.

Near the centre two steps lead to a four-foot wide platform where a guard of honor will be mounted day and night.

On a central plinth, two steps higher, the coffin will rest, draped still in the Royal Standard bearing only one wreath—that of the new Queen.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday more than 1,000,000 citizens are expected to file past the bier in the great stone-flagged hall, their footsteps muffled by a thick fawn carpet spread over the 16,000-square-foot floor.

Club Activities

TABERNACLE KEEN AGE CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of Tabernacle United Church Keen Age Club was held in the church parlors on Wednesday. In the absence of the president, the 1st vice-president, Shirley Kelleher, presided. There were 19 members and one visitor present.

Ruth Gariepy had charge of the devotional.

A short business period followed during which it was decided to hold a rummage sale early in March. Invitations to cater to a wedding in April and a dinner in May, were accepted.

An auction sale was held which provided a lot of fun and a good sum for the treasury. Marg. Stansfield was auctioneer and Shirley Kelleher collected the money.

Katherine Wardle and her committee served refreshments.

CHILDREN OF MARY

A financial report on the sleigh ride, held recently, was given by the treasurer, Joan McIntyre. The different committees were reorganized so as to distribute the work more evenly throughout the Sodality. Plans for the "Queen of Hearts' Ball", were reviewed and further preparations were made.

A discussion on the "Area of Apostolate" in Home and Neighborhood was given by Catherine Meagher, and the sodalists suggested various means by which they could set good example in the community.

Bernice Tobin gave an interesting talk on the value of "Spiritual Reading in the World Today". Several of the girls chose some religious books for reading.

The girls then retired to the assembly room for the social evening, consisting of a program and refreshments.

Fashion Flashes

COLORFUL dance dresses add gaiety to the evening scene here and at resorts. Chiffon, shaded from palest pink to deep fuchsia, makes a pretty, ankle-length dance dress. The bodice is strapless, with a slightly curved neckline, and there are tiny rosebuds appliqued on the skirt.

THE LINE for toppers, come Spring, is likely to be not more than hip-length for the smartest selections, especially for the junior sizes. Very novel is a short topper with a high, buttoned belt in back, above a very full, flared line. Low bodice, mandarin collar and buttoned pockets complete the details on this coat of novelty fleece in white, pale pink, yellow or blue.

Tale of a Book

Historical Atlas Gave Much Information on Hastings And Prince Edward Counties

By Anna Allison

This story is about a book whose worn brown covers, silvered with time and age, inadequately camouflage the torn and twisted pages. Despite the dangling threads from pages forever lost, and the musty odor, the tome impresses one by its truly great size, measuring approximately fourteen by eighteen inches.

This book, the "New Historical Atlas of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, Ontario," presents in an interesting fashion stories concerning the early days of these two counties as well as depicting numerous illustrations of men, houses and regions so important seventy-three years ago. The atlas was published in Toronto, in 1878, by H. Belden & Company.

To quote from the atlas we learn that "Prince Edward is one of the forty-two counties of Upper Canada and is comprised of an irregular-shaped peninsula lying to the south of the counties of Northumberland, Hastings, and Lennox on the mainland, connected with the former by a narrow isthmus called the Carrying Place; and separated from the two latter by the Bay of Quinte, which, with its numerous small bays and inlets, form its northern boundary; the waters of Lake Ontario, with its various bays which are a part thereof, surorunding the peninsula on the other three sides. Its area is 241,500 acres, valued at $6,855,000, and inhabited by 18,933 souls."

Consecon Indian Name

Continuing, the old atlas informs us that in the sixty-mile length of this peninsula its few lakes and rivers are of insignificant size with Consecon Lake being the largest in the county. Consecon is an Indian word meaning pickerel, such fish thickening its waters in the days when the first white settlers visited there. With no farm in Prince Edward County being more than eight miles from a wharf or storehouse the crops raised were chiefly the ones to find a market during the navigable season with Bay Barley the most highly quoted in the American barley centres.

The fact is stressed that although Prince Edward County was one of the first to be settled in Upper Canada and one which made the most rapid development in various ways, yet it did not have a railroad. However, Prince Edward was credited with possessing "a greater porportionate length of excellent carriage roads, and a smaller proportion of poor or indifferent ones than any other territory of similar extent in the Dominion."

Champlain, leading a band of French traders, was the first white man to set foot in the county. The political history of Prince Edward, according to this atlas, is thought to have commenced with the proclamation of Governor Simcoe, dated at Kingston, July 16th, 1792, which divided Province into nineteen counties for electoral purposes. In 1831, by Act of Parliament, the county was set off as "a separate district for the administration of justice." John P. Roblin, the writer's great grandfather, was the representative in parliament and introduced the bill which effected this popular change.

Early Trading Centre

Picton, named after Sir Thos. Picton, acquired its name when the two towns of Picton and Hallowell were incorporated into one town in 1845 or 1847, the atlas admitting that the exact date is indefinite. In 1878 Picton already had become a great trading centre listing 2 newspapers, 2 banks, 6 lawyers, 7 doctors, 4 drugstores, a bookstore, 3 jewellery stores, 2 photographers, 4 hardware stores, 12 dry goods stores, 5 merchant tailors, 7 boot and shoe stores, and one hat and fur store. Also 3 butcher stores, 4 bakeries, 34 groceries, 4 confectionaries, several fancy stores, 3 liquor stores, 7 hotels, 1 Temperance hotel, 2 canneries and one brewery. Also, several tobacconists, 3 barber shops, 3 livery stables, 4 carriage shops, 1 wagon shop and 7 blacksmith shops.

A generation back the low cost of construction allowed Picton to build its jail and courthouse in 1831 for about $24,000, the town hall, erected in 1866, cost $6,000 and $5,500 paid for a new high school. The county buildings erected in 1876, amounted to $9,000.

Seventy-three years ago the enterprising little town of Picton possessed five schools with a total of fourteen teachers, five churches and a public cemetery. The splendid navigation facilities available were well known and a leading produce dealer of that time estimated that about a quarter million bushels of grain were shipped out of Picton harbor annually with approximately 10,000 barrels of apples shipped to Montreal and the Maritime provinces.

Wealthy County

Briefly summing up Prince Edward County the atlas relates "we may truthfully say that as to varied and delightful scenery, magnificent roads, pleasant drives, interesting natural and historic landmarks, and an intelligent, refined and hospitable people, Prince Edward beyond question claims a foremost position; while in everything which tends to make a county prosperous, its people contented with their lot, and others contented with them, it occupies no second place."

Regarding the early history of the County of Hastings the atlas has this to say: "the county is rich in agricultural resources, prolific in the products of the mine, vast in its lumbering operations, and extensive in its manufacturers, the well-watered County of Hastings presents to the immigrant one of the finest tracts of territory to be found in the whole Province of Ontario."

The census for the then young County of Hastings claimed a population of 50,000 people with a great increase expected due to the fine natural resources of the county. Hastings was wealthy in water power, geological formation and in mineralogical treasures. There were 170 miles of good gravel roads; the fields were well cultivated and it had an excellent system of education.

Rich Supply of Forests

Numerous peat beds were found in Hastings, and regarding the forty species of forest trees found there the atlas states: "nearly all of which are used by our own mechanics for the manufacture of every article, and by the farmer—for all our conveyances—for nearly all our household furniture, in the building of the steamboats, and sailing vessels, and in the erection of our homes."

There were no finer roads in Canada than those of Hastings County. The atlas continued: "Indeed for many years the people have taken special pride in the character and condition of their thoroughfares. From Belleville admirable gravel and macadamized roads lead to all sections of the county, and not a toll-gate exists on any of them, every road being as free as the air we breathe."

Belleville, the county seat of Hastings, became a city on December 31, 1877, and was famous for its beauty, the industry, honesty and resourcefulness of its people and its fine schools. Albert College and the Alexandria College for young women were established in that city. The Ontario Institution for the Deaf was founded in 1870 with Dr. W. J. Palmer appointed its first principal. Also included among the schools were the Ontario Business School, a number of private schools as well as one high school, five public schools and one separate school.

First Church in 1810

In 1810 the first church to be erected in Belleville, a Methodist, was completed and the first Sunday School, connected with the Bridge Street Canada Methodist church, was begun in 1822. In their advertising the various churches informed the public that "seats were free; seats were free in the evening and strangers met at the door and escorted to seats."

In the early days Belleville was famous for the amount of food stuffs shipped from its wharfs. On one occasion the barley totaled 600,000 bushels. Another time dairy products netted the farmers of Hastings $600,000 with the butter and cheese being shipped to England bringing good prices "on account of their magnificent quality and character."

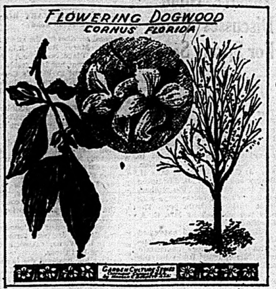
Incorporated as a village in 1853, Trenton originally formed part of Northumberland County. However, following incorporation it was connected with the County of Hastings for municipal and judicial purposes. Trenton, having a population of 2,522 possessed one high school, two common schools and one separate school. The average daily attendance at these schools was about 300 students.

Trenton's Advantages Listed

Regarding the numerous industries and manufacturing interests of the early days of Trenton the atlas historian wrote: "To the manufacturer and tradesman Trenton presents many natural and superior advantages, which but require proper development to place this beautiful and prosperous village in the front rank of manufacturing centres."

Included with the many historical facts the atlas presents a colorful display of the main towns and townships of both Prince Edward and Hastings Counties. Also shown are well preserved photographs of some of the more prominent citizens, and the better known homes, farms and stores of each of these counties of that earlier time.

Too, attractive maps of the 1800's are represented vividly. These comprise a railroad map of the United States and a map of Canada. The atlas maps of the Western Hemisphere and the Eastern Hemisphere, now so very old, form sharp contrast to the maps presently depicted of these hemispheres.



The Flowering Dogwood

This is one of the handsomest trees throughout the year. It has large spectacular flowers in early spring. In the fall the foliage is beautifully colored. The branches are attractive in the winter with red berries. It grows to a height of fifteen to twenty feet and is specially suited to shady and shrubbery effects.

Shalom From Israel

By Leo H. Marcus

(ARTICLE 20)

Beersheba, Israel — Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — Travelling southward into the Negev, the first place seen is the recently destroyed settlement of Bet Eshel. The settlement was founded in 1943 by young Palestinian pioneers who were convinced that growth could be founded there under natural conditions and without artificial irrigation.

These young people carried out agricultural experiments for about four and a half years which proved that many fruits and vegetables can be grown in the Negev desert without much difficulty.

In November, 1947, the general assembly of the United Nations passed its historic decision to partition Palestine into Jewish and Arab states. As soon as this decision had been made, the Arab inhabitants of Beersheba began to attack Bet Eshel and surrounded it. Being cut off from the rest of the Jewish settlements, the inhabitants of Bet Eshel dug tunnels underground where they lived with some protection.

Long Siege

Under siege for eight months, they received their food by parachute via the newly-formed Israeli air force but lived on small water rations. The continual pounding by the attackers reduced the settlement to rubble, and after liberation the survivors decided not to rebuild because of the memories of the previous eight months and the loved ones who had been killed.

Today one can view the settlement remains, destroyed buildings, tunnels, former agricultural areas now empty and cannot help but realize what a terrible thing that war can be.

During the ice-age era in European countries, the Middle East was getting huge amounts of rain. In the Negev, the rains caused much erosion which resulted in the creation of many fascinating formations.

There are three particular formations which look like huge craters, and in the Hebrew language are called "machteshim." The machteshim are ridges which have eroded in the centre with a resultant giant, cup-shaped feature.

Visits "Great Crater"

While travelling through the central regions of the Negev, I had the opportunity of visiting the "Machtesh Hagudol" — The Great Crater, which is almost ten miles long and presents a scene of many strange formations. Various mineral compositions in the ground have caused many colors in the formations, namely red, green, yellow and white with various shades of each.

Israel has few mineral resources but it is hoped that these three craters will be a new source. At the present time, the geology department of the Hebrew University is exploring this possibility and has made a few valuable discoveries. Kaolin used in making porcelain, and quartz sand, used in the manufacture of glass, are being mined now.

Oil May be Formed

Feldspar, used for fine porcelain and artificial teeth, mica, iron, copper, manganese, phosphates, gypsum, and rock suitable for cement manufacture have been found but the quantity of each is unknown. There is a strong possibility that deposits of oil lie in the machteshim. The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company did some exploring in the great crater during the time of the British mandate in Palestine but their findings still remain secret.

At present the craters present a magnificent sight for tourists and in the near future they may provide a rich source of mineral wealth for the state of Israel.

EVENING AUXILIARY

The February meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of St. Paul's United Church, Bancroft, was held on Tuesday evening in the church with Mrs. C. A. Eddy presiding.

The devotional period was led by Mrs. C. Bierworth, assisted by Mrs. G. Andrews. Mrs. C. F. Hibbard was organist for the hymns.

During the business session, the secretary, Mrs. A. W. Smith and the treasurer, Mrs. D. Grant, reported. Mrs. G. French reported for the visiting committee and Mrs. Hibbard for the talent money committee. Mrs. A. Hewitt brought in a list of final items to complete the furnishings of the new parsonage. An effort will be made to have these added before the dedication ceremony, which is planned tentatively for May.

Mrs. Duncan Grant was reappointed representative to the Red Cross Hospital Auxiliary.

A program, centering on the Valentine theme, was conducted by Mrs. Wallace Rutledge, assisted by Mrs. W. Hutton and Mrs. E. Mather. Selections of poetry and prose were read, concluding with Tolstoy's story, "Where Love is, God is."

Hostesses for the evening were, Mrs. A. Towle, Mrs. J. Young and Mrs. Harold Watson.

Women's Institute

CANNIFTON-CORBYVILLE W.I.

The January meeting of the Cannifton and Corbyville Women's Institute was held recently in the Cannifton Town Hall with Mrs. Florence Bleekman presiding.

A short business session followed. Several letters of thanks were read. Reports of standing committees were read, by Mrs. Ann Soble, for Currents Events; by Mrs. R. Post for "Economics and Health" and Mrs. H. Shorey, for "Public Relationship and Community Activities".

Mrs. I. Jarrell gave a report on cards and flowers sent out during the month.

The program was then turned over to Mrs. Ann Soble, who called on Mrs. Ewing for a recitation entitled "A Happy New Year".

Guest Speaker

Mrs. P. Ray, of Plainfield, as guest speaker, gave an interesting account of her trip to the convention at Guelph last year.

"Excuse It Please", was the title of an amusing sketch by Mrs. Bleekman, Mrs. Urch, Mrs. Calvert and Mrs. Ewing.

A reading from Mrs. I. Jarrell and two contests brought the meeting to a close.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. E. Stewart and her helpers and a social half hour was spent.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Raw onions and garlic are wonderful purifiers of the blood, according to the nutritionists, yet how seldom most women serve them. Why? Reason is, that both onions and garlic cause a strong breath which is offensive to others. Frequent radio commercials blare out remedies for bad breath. They claim to purify the mouth and throat and so counteract strong breath.

How many people know that the little green vegetable "parsley" is a natural breath purifier? It contains chlorophyll. If eaten green along with onions, garlic, old cheese or anything contributing to strong breath, the parsley will counteract the source of the offence which is not only in the mouth and throat, but in the stomach.

Green onions and garlic are often served at the most formal of dinners, but fresh parsley is always added to these salads, not so much as a decoration, as a breath deodorant.

Silver Paper

Difficult to obtain, but a saver of plenty of household labor, is white tissue paper which has been treated to protect silver. Most jewellers use it to line gift boxes containing silver articles. Some of the large departmental stores carry this special tissue, but stationers and five to a dollar stores haven't yet realized this this is a useful item they should stock.

Twenty-five cents worth of this special paper gives a person enough to wrap a large quantity of silver hollow-ware. They say too, that cleansing tissues are excellent to wrap small silver articles in to prevent tarnishing.

Ear Troubles

A friend was using a small, factory-made ear-pick tipped with absorbent cotton when a bit of the cotton unfurled and stuck inside the ear cavity. She was unable to get the cotton out. A doctor examining her ear said that the foreign body was so far inside, it was touching the delicate ear drum. He refused to tamper with the ear and sent her off to an ear specialist.

The specialist was able to syringe the ear and flush out the cotton plus a large wad of wax, both of which were irriating the ear leaving it open for infection. The ear specialist says that people should never use anything but their fingers to clean the ears.

"Your head is so built that the finger cannot go deeper into the ear than is safe." This friend of ours had been using the same factory-made ear-picks to cleanse her children's ears too. It is little wonder the whole family isn't stone deaf after this risky procedure.

Uncle Frontenac says it's just as well a person can't be jailed for his debts in these times. Uncle chuckles that if the old days of the debtors' prisons were back, everybody would be in jail.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Shadowed by her 'past'

"My past is hanging over my head, and I feel like a criminal forever conscious of his guilt."

So writes a young woman who, because of an unwise step she once took, now finds herself unable to let any new romance into her life lest she would have to reveal that "past".

Her story begins about three years ago when she became engaged.

"Our parents were planning a church wedding," she writes, "but about two weeks after we became engaged, my fiance suggested that we marry secretly immediately, still keeping on with our plans for the big formal wedding. I was willing to do this if he would agree that there would be no marital relations between us until the religious ceremony had taken place.

"He did agree, but after two weeks of our 'marriage,' he went back on his promise and tried to persuade me to leave home and live with him as man and wife. I refused to do this, since no one knew of our marriage, whereupon he threatened me with an annulment. Finally, he told me that if I would have marital relations with him at home, everything would be okay."

To this plan, the girl consented, because, she says, she thought "it might save our marriage." But the young man was satisfied with the arrangement for only a short time. Then he began again to urge his first idea upon her—that she leave home and set up housekeeping with him.

Gets Annulment

"Because of my respect for my family and my religion, I could not do this," the letter continues, "so then I consented to his original proposal to get an annulment, which I got I realize now that my feeling for him was merely one of adolescent infatuation, but ever since, my past has been continually hanging over my head and I feel as a criminal must feel in his guilt. I have a feeling that if my male friends knew the truth, they would never again show me the same respect."

And now, she goes on to say, "Whenever a new man shows any interest in me, I never know how or when to tell him about my past. Should I tell him after seeing him steadily for one or two months, or should I wait until he tells me that he loves me, or wait until I become engaged?"

As I see it, this girl has worked herself up to an emotional pitch over that early unfortunate experience out of all proportion to reason. Unless her story distorts the actual facts, and what she really did was to allow herself to be persuaded into a pre-marital affair, the tremendous weight of guilt with which she has burdened herself is completely needless. And even if such were the case, could she not have confessed the whole thing to her spiritual adviser, and in so doing rid herself of that sense of guilt and started out afresh?

Forget Past—Begin Anew

In any event, I advise her now, first of all, to clear her conscience with her church, if there was cause for it and if she has refrained from doing so to date. Having done this, she should then leave the experience in the past where it belongs and live life normally. If romance comes her way, and she wishes to clear the record before marrying, let her drop the story casually and unemotionally some time when the conversation between herself and the possible fiance makes it the right time to do so. If the facts of the story were as she has told them, and if she has developed the right attitude toward them, it should be just as natural to speak of her marriage and its annulment as for a widow or divorcee to speak of her previous marriage. And I think it would be wiser to let it come up early in the association, before any bond between them has grown so strong that it would be a cruel blow if it were broken.

Right now, this girl's attitude is a thoroughly morbid and unhealthy one. She had better take steps to give it a thorough renovating before she lets it needlessly ruin her life.

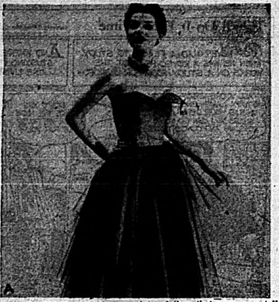
Long and Lovely



By ALICE ALDEN

WE know many a beautiful tall girl who gazes wistfully upon fluffy fashions and opines that these are not for the likes of her. But Peg Newton, who designs clothes for this type, has worked some French fashions into clothes that answer a tall woman's needs. Specially proportioned is this pale blue net over dark blue taffeta, the snug bodice darting out in wings over the bosom, to cut the long line from neck to waist. The skirt is made of a series of petal pointed tiers that are designed to minimize height.

Food for Thought

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION:

Some one asked in the column one night how to whiten white knitted baby garments that had turned yellow. If white woollens start to turn yellowish use 3 oz. peroxide to two gallons water in washing them, dry them in direct sunlight. Hope this may help someone. A Regular Reader (Mrs. J. McG.)

ANSWER:

Thank you so much. I hope the reader who was enquiring sees this tip. Let me help you some time.

QUESTION:

I have been reading your column for some time and have received your splendid ideas and recipes, and now wonder if you could help me, and considerably other women are in the same predicament as I am. My husband has had a duodenal ulcer for some years and as you know should be on a restricted diet. The dinners are not too bad, as we can always prepare roast beef, chicken, broiled steak or bacon, vegetables, milk or fruit (cooked) desserts, but the suppers are getting me down, as to know what to prepare for him.

We seem to have soup or cereal, sandwiches, so often and he is quite tired of eggs. Could you suggest some menus or recipes for supper dishes. If you could discuss this subject sometime in your column I know so many women would appreciate reading it.—Mrs. W. R. S.

ANSWER:

This is a touchy subject for me to answer, but I shall only tell you the kind of foods we were taught to serve in ulcer diets—when I was in school.

I have some close friends and relatives who are in the medical profession. I telephoned my favorite and read him your letter. Then I said "Why don't you fellows have mimeographed or printed sheets of recipes for these girls with ulcerated husbands?"

The answer was "Aren't they supposed to know how to cook before they get married? We don't have time to teach them. We tell them what not to eat, and to emphasize milk, eggs, meat and cereals—and no roughage."

So there you are—how is a gal to win or learn?

I have two or three ideas that I think will give your meals a lift. But I want to interject here that one of the smartest things you can do to relieve the monotony of an ulcer diet is to change dishes, rooms where you eat, manner of serving—in other words pack mealtime with surprises. For instance, since your husband can have soups, buy him a soup tureen—find those old-fashioned old-world individual soup dishes with lids on. Make the best Split Pea Soup, Mulligatawny, or French Onion Soup in the country. There is a cookbook that contains hundreds of different recipes for cooking eggs. Over a couple of years you could try all of them—of course, by that time, with all your thoughtful care, your husband's ulcer will be cured.

MACARONI RING

Boil in plenty of salted water one-half pound macaroni (or spaghetti or noodles), then drain. Add to it 2 cups hot milk, 1-2 lb. shredded or finely chopped cheese (mild or old), 4 tablespoons margarine or butter, 2 cups soft breadcrumbs 2 well-beaten eggs, 2 tablespoons each chopped onion, pimiento (if available) and parsley, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper Mix these gently together. Pour into buttered ring mold (or any baking dish). Stand in pan containing hot water. Bake until mixture is set at 350 deg. Fahr. —about 35 minutes. Fill centre with creamed fish or chicken or green vegetable in season.

BAKED FISH WITH LEMON BUTTER

Bake or broil any choice fish steak or fillet—halibut, salmon pickerel, sole are some of the favorites. They should be brushed with lemon juice, dotted with butter and sprinkled sparingly with salt (if this is allowed in the ulcer diet) and baked or broiled at high heat, turning once. (If fish is placed on sheets of aluminum foil to fit the pieces it is very easily turned over.) Serve very hot with

LEMON BUTTER

Cream 2 tablespoons butter until very light, then gradually beat into it 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1-4 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon paprika—and if allowed 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley.

If I neglect the ulcer patient recipes please write to me and jog my memory and I will give you some more.

Fashion Flashes

NEW FRONTIERS of style and beauty have been reached by fur designers, with much emphasis on the small fur, such as the short coat or jacket. Cut on lines of the old-fashioned spencer is a jacket of Russian broadtail, made with dolman sleeves that are worn pushed up. The dainty, petal-point collar fastens close to the throat. Looks lovely with narrow or wide lines.

A NICE SHOWING of novelties is shaping up for the Southern resort season. One designer shows a novel playsuit, which she fashions of lustrous cotton broadcloth in pastel, black or vivid shades. This consists of bloomers and a big V-neck poncho top which slips over the head and may be belted in or worn with flowing lines.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Today's courtesy hint

Here's an endearing person. . . one who rejoices in the good fortune and in the achievements of others. And who wholeheartedly and enthusiastically expresses that delight.

Two important gestures of courtesy

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please settle two questions which my husband and I are discussing? (1) Which is the correct form of salutation in a letter addressed to two people—"Dear Mary and John" or "Dear John and Mary?" (2) When signing any kind of greeting card (particularly Christmas and Easter cards, and cards sent when on a trip or vacation), which is the correct form, "Mary and John" or "John and Mary"? —A. V.

(1) "The lady first" is the proper idea here. . "Dear Mary and John." (2) "The other person first" is the proper idea here. . . that is, the one who is signing the cards, writes the other person's name first, his or her own name last. So Mary signs "John and Mary", and when John signs the cards he writes, "Mary and John". A nice gesture of courtesy to the other person!

Not printed thank-you cards for funeral flowers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband died two weeks ago, and I am planning to send my thanks to the several clubs and fraternal organizations to which he belonged. I have bought some printed thank-you cards. Is it correct for me to send these to the organizations, to thank for the flowers they sent, as well as to friends who sent flowers?—Katherine H.

No. Printed thank-you cards are not in good taste because they do not carry a personal expression of appreciation for such very special and generous kindness. No matter how short your thank-you notes, they should be hand-written. For example:

Dear Mr. Allen,

May I thank you, and through you the members of the ——— Organization, for the comforting message sent to me when my husband died. and for the beautiful roses sent to the funeral. I deeply appreciated this thoughtfulness and kindness.

Most sincerely,
Katherine Holcomb

Or, to a friend:

Dearest Alice,

You were so kind, as always, to send me such a sweet and understanding message, and to send the memorial flowers to Tom's funeral. I thank you, thank you, for the comfort of your good words, and for the beautiful roses.

Lovingly,

Give order to host. . . .not to waiter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know that when I am dining with a man in a restaurant, I should give my order directly to him, for him to give to the waiter, with his own order. But when, as quite often happens, the waiter asks me directly what I will have or for my choice of something on the menu (for example, what kind of ice cream), how can I 'get around' this?—Marie T.

You may either look at your host and tell him your choice. . . "I'd like the coffee ice cream, please" . . .or continue to look at the menu as you say your choice.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Good-looks problems of elderly women

There is no way of setting back the birthday clock. It goes a-tickin' along and nothing can be done about it. There's an old bromide to the effect that a woman is as old as she feels, but there is more to it than that; she is as old as she looks—in her own estimation anyway.

Beauty, like a flower, buds, then blooms, then its petals fall. Yet there is beauty in old age, if it is serene, kindly, sweet-natured. There are women of eighty whose eyes sparkle. whose spirits are as gay as when they were young. They have learned a lot about the art of living, and that is the secret. They respect the laws of health, know the folly of indulging in emotional sprees. So perennial youth is theirs, no matter if their hair is sparkling silver and their steps are no longer brisk.

The wise ones never harp on the good old times, knowing that such chatter bores people to tears. They are interested in everything that is going on in the world. They have learned that the mind, like the body, must have a certain amount of exercise if it is to be up to par.

Like the young and the middle-aged, the old girls have their beauty problems. Their objective is to win out in the battle against Time. Fastidious attention must be given to the hair. In youth, when tresses are abundant, they can be arranged in a casual manner, even be a bit scrambled. But when they are white and the growth has partially thinned, the coiffure must be arranged in a dignified manner. A few rag-tags and bob-tails here and there, and Grannie looks downright blowzy.

Complexions need frequent creaming. Sebaceous glands slow up as a woman gets older and the cutaneous surface is likely to be dry, though often it takes on an attractive transparent quality. Five minutes of light massages every night will condition the skin so that it is less likely to take on accordion pleates.

There is no longer any age limit to the use of make-up, but restraint is particularly necessary in the autumn of life. A touch of wild rose on the cheeks, ever so faint, and a bit of coloring on the lips not only make a woman look younger, but feel younger.

Hands are likely to take on yellow patches, and they make a woman as mad as all get out. Sometimes applications of a lotion made of peroxide and strained lemon juice will make them do a disappearing act.

Junior Hawks Triumph Over Kingston Vics By 5-2 Score—Seniors Lose

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

GOOD SHOW!

It was all that was expected — and more. Last night the Oldtimers staged a thrilling battle that more or less stole the thunder from the junior "B" squads albeit the Hawklets defeated Maxie Jackson's Vics by a 5-2 count.

Nearly two thousand fans gasped, smiled then cheered and wondered as the old warhorses of the ice-lanes of years ago swept up and down the ice in an exhibition that surprised even themselves.

Garbed in red sweaters the "Whiskers" battled their white-garbed "Wrinkles" to a three-all tie in a game that brought the curious yet highly enthusiastic crowd to its feet at times.

It was a grand show. Nobody was hurt. True this morning and perhaps tomorrow the old warhorses will pay the physical toll. But they went out there, the years dropping off them as they called back the good old days and came up with an outstanding exhibition of "hockey as she useter be played."

In the dressing room later the old boys, sweat-streaked, breathing heavily, some grunting, others groaning and the most of 'em creaking, offset the aging years with reminiscences of years ago. They played last night's gave over and over criticizing here and there and a pat on the back for everybody.

It was good to see. There were flashes of good hockey. True the boys were out there for short duration but after all aging bellows and muscles can stand so much. But they gave the best they had and it was good. There was no rough stuff and the boys played it hard but easy.

Two lines of years ago were reunited last night. Vern Weir, Stan Hagerman and Al. Wardhaugh which accounted for two goals were back in action again, Bill and Henry Canning and Bob Scott another trio of days gone by were in front line formation and came through with some dashing hockey. "Bouncer" and "Toots" Holway played a sturdy defence game as did Murney Green, Bill Cook. Gene Rosebush who scored unassisted while Hank Fenn was figuring his income tax and the rest of the crew came through with flying colors. Even Speedy St. Louis who was "itching" to toss a few of the old blokes in the hoosegow could find no breaches of the rules.

Chief of Police Walter Probert and his counterpart from Kingston, Jack Truaisch, a former Belleville boy faced the puck. "Yip" Radley, RMC coach, and who admits to being one of the best defencemen in the National Hockey League was there and gave periodic reminiscent speeches of how the game was played when he was rover for the Balaclava entry in the Crimean League.

Later the Oldtimers were the guests of the Belleville Hockey Association at a get-together where they dispensed past events, cheese, pickles, crackers, sandwiches, etc. They posed for their picture following the game.

And here's an aside to that certain member of the light-fingered fraternity. Listen chum, you may not know it, but you were seen coming from the press gondola with two sweaters, one white, one red. This column's advice to you is to return them to the Arena immediately. If they are not there by Monday they will be picked up by a gentleman in blue, and you will accompany them.

HAWKS SACKED!

The senior "B" race is getting tighter than a Glaswegian on New Year's Eve. While no details on the Hawks-Kingston Sacs game were available as this is being written (1:15 a.m.) it would seem that the honorable roof of the Community Centre fell in on our side in a wild and woolly third period. Red Doran's patched-up Hawks held a first period 4-2 lead, were out in front 7-6 at the end of the second and whoosh, those pesky Sacs roared back with seven goals in the third with nary a return from our buckaroos to win the pastime 13-6.

Meanwhile up in Peterborough Ned Vitarelli's Eagles were getting sweet revenge over their Petes rivals, whipping the group leaders 7-5 before 1,800 fans, the biggest crowd of the season. The defeat halted the Petes' upward march but it served to tighten the standing but plenty. As matters stand now the Petes are out in front with 28 points, the Hawks have 24 and the Kingston Sacs by virtue of their win last night share third spot with the Eagles with 21 points.

Scoring four times in the first period without a reply, the Belleville Junior Hawks won a 5-2 decision over the visiting Kingston Vics in the last encounter between these two squads during the regular schedule of the Junior B circuit.

Played at the Memorial Arena before 1,962 fans, the largest attendance at a Belleville game this year, the winning effort helped the locals keep pace with the loop-leading Lindsay Kinsmen who played host to Peterborough last night.

Listless Game

The game was a ragged affair and, aside from the fact that the home team won, produced little to please the crowd in the way of hockey. Although the goal-scoring plays were very neatly executed, the brand of hockey dished up was not especially good and at times threatened to turn into a shinny contest.

Jacklin, Lalande and Carey combined on a neat three-way passing play, the former on the finishing end, for the second counter just before the halfway mark in the period. Billy Strahan added a pair before the end of the chucker to give the Hawks a substantial lead.

The Vics outplayed the Hawks in the second period and were finally rewarded for their efforts with Montgomery taking the puck all the way from behind his own blueline to sink it in the webbing behind Bob Green.

Peter Clicks

Gerry Gerow of the Vics sustained an eye injury during the period and left the ice for repairs but returned at the resumption of play in the third frame.

Pete Green made a neat rushing play on a pass from Strahan and Jacklin to account for the only Hawks score in the last period.

Kingston matched that one at 17.35 when Chevrefils netted a penalty shot.

Billy Strahan once again proved the big gun for Belleville as he picked up two goals and a like number of assists. He, with Lalande who assisted on a trio, were the best two men on the ice on the night's play.

Johnny Munroe, top rearguard for the evening, tallied once and assisted on another. George Jacklin drew two assists with single points going to Carey and Pete Green.

The teams:

'No Politics' In Canadian Derby Say Officials

Ottawa, Feb. 9 (CP) —No matter what Lake Placid, N.Y., dog derby officials may think, those in charge of Canada's International Dog Derby "are not trying to scuttle anyone" a spokesman said last night.

He was commenting on criticism by officials of a dog derby to be run at Lake Placid next Monday and Tuesday that change of the Ottawa derby dates from this week to next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, was an attempt to "scuttle" revival of the sport in the United States.

The Canadian change was necessitated by the death of the King.

The Lake Placid report said telegrams had been sent to two U.S. senators criticizing as "disloyal and insulting" the decision of a U.S. air force entry to cancel from the Lake Placid event to stay in the Ottawa race. Of this the Ottawa race official said:

"If these people are such sportsmen that they have to appeal to their senators, we have no comment to make. Here in Canada we consider sled dog racing a sport that has nothing to do with politics."

He added that the new Canadian dates had been set after all drivers—including U.S. entries — had been consulted and were considered the best for all concerned.

Detroit Skater Favorite In Speed Contests

Alpena, Mich., Feb. 9 (AP) — Brunette Barbara Marchetti of Detroit set out today to complete a sweep of all the continent's major women speed skating titles as the North American outdoor championships began in 20-degree weather here.

Defending champion Ray Blum of Nutley, N.J., ranked as the senior men's favorite. His top challengers were Art Longjse, Pittsfield, Miss.; and Omer de Schepper and Mario Trafeli, both of Detroit.

Some 160 entrants started into qualifying heat and 16 final events scheduled for today. The meet ends with 22 finals tomorrow.

Armstrong, Red-Hot Rookie Gets N.H.L. Baptism of Fire

By CRAIG SWAYZE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto Maple Leafs don't often introduce a new face on the National Hockey League scene, but when they do you can be sure it's something special.

The name is George Armstrong. The height is six-foot, one-inch and the weight is 195 pounds. Add to that a bullet-like shot, plenty of speed and 30 goals this season in American Hockey League play and you have the most publicized rookie to come up the ladder in many a year.

The big right-winger arrived in Toronto Friday from Pittsburgh where he was leading the A. H. L. scoring parade. All ready for tonight's battle over second place with Montreal Canadiens and just in time to don a uniform for a workout with the Leafs, the former Toronto Marlboro junior looked plenty sharp in practice, working on a line centred by Max Bentley and balanced on the other wing by former teammate, Danny Lewicki.

Looks Good

Hap Day, the Toronto club's assistant general manager, watched closely yesterday, but would make no comment.

Joe Primeau, the Maple Leafs' coach, was more talkative. "He looked pretty good, didn't he?" said the former N. H. L. star. It was hardly a question.

However, even though Day was more reserved, he looked pleased as punch.

Armstrong is ready for tonight's big game, but whether the rest of the team is too remains a matter of question. Leading the third-place Montreal squad by only one point, the Leafs, are well aware the tussle is one of the most important of the season.

Minus the services of Maurice (Rocket) Richard once again, the Canadiens will nevertheless present a formidable array of talent to Toronto tonight. Their amazing rookie brigade will be bolstered by Lorne Davis, up from the A. H. L. Buffalo Bisons. He will fill in for the ailing Rocket.

A full slate is scheduled for Sunday. Montreal moves into Chicago for an afternoon tussle with the tail-end Black Hawks while Detroit Red Wings play at Boston in the evening and the Leafs meet the Rangers in New York.

Warwick Gets Three for Bisons

(By The Canadian Press)

Thanks to a pair of old hands, Grant Warwick and Ab Demarco, Buffalo Bisons are only three points out of second place in the American Hockey League's eastern division pennant race today

Warwick slammed home three goals and drew an assist last night while Demarco picked up a goal and two assists to lead the Bisons to a 4-2 triumph over the injury riddled St. Louis Flyers. The victory enabled the Bisons to pull to within three points of Providence.

The two veterans finished one-two in the individual scoring race last year to spark Buffalo to the eastern division flag. Demarco wound up with 113 points and Warwick with 99.

Kingston Sacs Score 7 in Third To Defeat Belleville 13-7; Hawks Ice Only Nine Players

Leading the Kingston Sacs for two periods the nine-man Belleville Hawks team collapsed in a wild woolly free-scoring third heat and went down to a 13-7 defeat in a senior "B" game played in Kingston last night.

The Sacs roaring from behind flung home seven goals in that hectic third while a tired Hawks crew battled gamely in an effort to stem the tide.

Over 1200 fans the largest crowd of the season to see a senior game in the new Community Memorial Centre saw the injury - riddled shorthanded Hawks blaze a furious first-period offensive that netted them four goals with the Sacs coming through with a pair. The second period saw the Hawks maintain their drive scoring three goals while the Sacs blasted through for four.

Roof Fell In

In the third heat the roof and the walls fell in on plucky Hawks. Paced by Larmer the Sacs rushed to the attack and maintained a terrific rate of speed to fire home seven markers.

Referee Pete Nigh of Peterborough handed out but seven penalties one a major to Doran but the officials decisions in handing out sentences by the pair did not sit too kindly with the Kingston fans. In fact Nigh had to have the protection of the local gendarmerie at the finish. Police escorted the official to the dressing room while angry fans milled about the ice.

The Hawks iced just nine men. These were Lefort, Semark, Reeves, Goyer, Doran, Wardhaugh, Barrett, Day and Houle. The Sacs were at full strength.

Larmer was the hero of the piece from a Kingston standpoint the fleet forward firing home five goals and being credited with two assists. Murray came through with a hat trick trio while Sammy Mulholland scored a pair and helped with another.

Coach "Red" Doran aided by Vern Goyer and Jackie Wardhaugh sparked the Hawks offensive with the sorrel-top getting two goals and three assists. Goyer came through with a pair of markers and as many helpers, while Wardhaugh also scored two and got one assist. "Knobber" Day got the other.

Vern Goyer put the Hawks in front in the first period on an assist from Doran and Semark after three minutes of play and the "Knobber" made it two a minute later when he drove home Barrett's goal-mouth pass. Murray whittled the lead to one when he slid Goodfellows pass by Lefort but Jackie Wardhaugh blazed through with a pair in sixty seconds to give the Hawks a 4-1 lead. Larmer scored his first goal of the night with seconds to go.

Hawks Tire

Murray reduced the Hawks lead to 4-3 early in the second but Doran got that back with a "golfer" two minutes later. Larmer whipped the rubber past Lefort and Goyer and Doran scored to make the score 7-4. MacGregor and Mulholland scored to bring the Sacs within striking distance as the period ended.

The tiring Hawks faded in the third before the furious onslaughts of the Sacs. Mulholland and Murray ripped home two in thirty seconds to give the homesters the lead and then Larmer took over. He scored three goals in four minutes and that was all for the Hawks. White and Lattimer added a couple for good measure as the game ended.

Peewee Hockey League Results

Elmer Alyea scored the only goal for the Bruins of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association pee-wee section as they defeated Red Wings 1-0 for the only win of the day.

Canadiens and Maple Leafs as well as Rangers and Black Hawks played to stalemates in their contests.

Ron Hull and Ken McLaren scored for Canadiens but equalizers were notched by Larry Potter and Laurie Davis of Maple Leafs in the first game and it ended in a 2-2 deadlock.

Rangers and Hawks also deadlocked, 3-3, with Earl MacDonald of the Hawks being the only two-goal scorer. Ivan Kvarda bagged the other Hawk counter while Gordon Fuller, Frank Howard and Allan Dever picked up singletons for Rangers.

The officiating was handled by Ray Hall and Walter Bent.

OHA Makes Move To Save Money

Toronto, Feb. 9 — (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association may be in for an economy move.

Jack Roxburgh, O.H.A. president, yesterday told the association's annual meeting it has lost money during the last two seasons. He felt some action should be taken to assure that the trend is halted.

Although the amounts weren't large — last year the O.H.A. lost $1,600 — President Roxburgh wasn't sure where the group should start economizing.

"It has become a serious situation," he said. "We'll have to have a special meeting soon to see what can be done about it."

As a start, the executive decided to discontinue the most-valuable-player trophies, presented to all O.H.A. teams applying. Of the 185 teams operating in 1951, 100 applied for and received the awards.

Ken McGregor Retains Title

The doubles title went to veterans Adrian Quist and Geoff Brown who beat Worthington and Jack May, 6-4, 6-1.

Worthington and May had surprised by beating McGregor and Mervyn Rose in the semi-finals, 16-14, 12-14, 9-7.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Wilkinson 23, former junior hockey player who is a paraplegic as the result of a highway accident two years ago, last night in Aurora was presented an automobile equipped with special hand controls. The ceremony took place at a benefit hockey game here.

Bill received his crippling injury when his motorcycle skidded and spun out of control, tossing him into the ditch. He lay for two hours alongside the highway with a broken back while companions sought assistance.

The money for the car was raised through public subscription. Some of the proceeds from the benefit game will be handed over to him in cash. He will continue to attend business college in Aurora. A job awaits him upon graduation.

J. Stafford Bec, Toronto, president of the Ontario Badminton Association, yesterday in Stratford asked all clubs, except Stratford, to close Friday, Feb. 15, date of the burial of the King.

The Stratford club will open at 6 p.m. Friday. Players from Sudbury, Toronto, Hamilton, Kingston and Windsor will compete in the O.B.A. tournament from Feb. 12-17 and it was felt necessary to open the club.

President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League announced last night in Montreal that the Feb. 6 postponed game between New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs will be played Tuesday, Feb. 19 in Toronto. The game was postponed because of the King's death.

Yank Sled Team Ready to Make Dangerous Test

Oslo, Norway, Feb. 9 —(AP) — Four huge men were ready to risk their lives today in a test to determine if the Olympic bobsled run is safe for a four-man crew.

The quartet comprises the United States' sled No. 1, one of the top favorites to bring the four-man title back to America from the 6th winter Olympics games which open here Thursday.

Stan Benham, Lake Placid, N.Y., 195 pound member of the American world champion teams of 1949 and 1950 is the driver of the sled. With him are Pat Martin, Massena, N.Y. 270 pounds; Jim Atkinson, Hamilton, N.Y., 242 pounds and Howard Crossett, Bradford, N.H., 260 pounds.

Benham said his team had agreed to a request from the International bobsled federation to test the run which was closed to four-man sleds yesterday after an American and Italian team shot oveh the ice-coated side of the third run.

CAMPBELLFORD

Midgets, Bantams Win Over Tweed

Campbellford Feb. 9—Campbellford's Bantam and Midget OMHA teams took both games in the first of the playoffs here on Wednesday evening when the Bantams downed the Tweed team by the score of 6 to 0 and the Midgets managed to win out over the Norwood puckists by the score of 12 to 9.

The Bantam game featured plenty of action, most of it around the Tweed net, as the local youngsters trounced the visitors 6 to 0. The game was clean and fast and Campbellford seemed intent on piling up goals in order to better their chances of a win on the round when they play in Tweed shortly.

The Midget game was said by the many fans to be the best hockey game seen in Campbellford this year. The local lads started out by piling up a good lead in the first period. They led 4 to 1 at the end of the first. Norwood came back strong in the second period and showed they were a team to be reckoned with, by flipping the rubber past West in the Campbellford nets on five occasions. The locals got four goals during this frame.

In the third period, Norwood netted three goals and the locals four. This left the final score 12 to 9 for Campbellford, with a three goal lead on the round.

Garvey and Wilson spearheaded the local team, and were in on most of the goals, while Ruttan of Norwood was the sparkplug of his team.

Referees watched the play very closely and handed out a number of penalties to both sides for rough play. They had the game under control at all times.

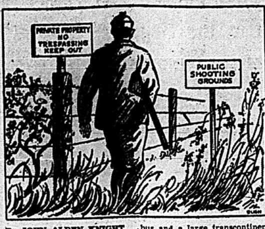
Public Shooting Grounds Shrink



By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

Noted sportsman, author and Creator of Solunar Tables

Time was, in the United States and Canada, when there were no such things as game wardens, conservation departments, and seasonal limits. There was plenty of outdoors in which to fish and hunt, the game and fish were there for the taking, and such a thing as posted property was unheard of.

The years passed and with them came new generations. Gradually the outdoor sports increased in popularity. No longer was a man considered shiftless and no-good because he spent much of his time fishing and shooting. These things, through the slow and gentle process of public education, became fashionable—the "things to do."

So long as the efficiency and the stocking and management capacities of the provincial, state and federal conservation agencies could keep pace with the road and gun pressure on our fish and game, things worked out quite well for everybody. A man paid down his money for his licence and that was that. There were fish to catch and game was in the covers. Moreover, there was plenty of cover available. Lakes and streams were open to all.

Not Equal to Demand

Today that is not at all true. Once again a transition is occurring in the outdoor sports. No longer is the supply of game and fish equal to the demand placed upon it. There simply are too many hunters, too many fishermen, for the available facilities.

Moreover, public fishing waters and public shooting grounds are shrinking in area. There are two obvious reasons for this shrinkage.

With the increase in the popularity of the outdoor sports, the handwriting on the wall became all too evident to many sportsmen. They considered the situation and decided to take steps.

Clubs were formed in the States and these either purchased or leased miles of streams, countless lakes, and literally millions of acres of good hunting lands. These areas were immediately posted against trespassing, actively patrolled, and thus removed from general public use.

To be sure, these areas are no longer stocked by the state and federal conservation agencies. This is conpensated for by private stocking in most of the closed areas.

However, fish and game will move about unless they are restricted by impassable barriers. Thus, club members, hunting or fishing in private areas, usually take a considerable quantity of fish and game which has been reared in hatcheries and game farms and stocked for the benefit of the general public.

Pestered by "Sportsmen"

The other cause of shrinkage of areas for public use is private posting on the part of land owners. These people have had their patience so sorely tried by "sportsmen" that they can stand it no longer. Up go the posting signs and again the public grounds shrink.

You can't in all fairness, blame these people. Their fences have been broken or chopped up for firewood, their crops (soy beans, particularly) have been trampled, their buildings and wood lots have been burned because of careless camp fires, their livestock has been killed and, in many instances, taken home in cars—in short, mometary loss alone (not to mention countless hours of extra, needless work) made it no longer possible for them to play hosts to the general public.

In 1942, I journeyed to South Dakota to see for myself the fabulous pheasant shooting to be found there. Although the farmers, even then, did not exactly coax you to come and shoot their pheasants, there were comparatively few trespass notices.

Last November I went once more to South Dakota. Believe me, unless you engage the services of one of the resident farmers to act as guide, you will be hard put to it to find shooting. Why? Consider this single instance.

On Sunday afternoon in early November, 1943, a Greyhound bus and a large transcontinental trailer truck were involved in an accident, blocking the highway from ditch to ditch. No car could pass, either way.

This highway is the main drag from Minneapolis to central South Dakota. Hundreds of cars, filled with "sportsmen" on the way home from pheasant shooting, were held up for an hour or so while the state police cleared the highway. I did not see this, but a friend of mine, who came along in a car, did see it and told me about it.

When traffic was moving once again it was quite dark. The police saw flash-lights moving about in the ditch where the "sportsmen's" cars had been held up, so they investigated.

Stolen Livestock

In the ditch they found three calves, about fifty sheep, hundreds of chickens, ducks, geese and turkeys, and at least a thousand hen pheasants, all jettisoned from the "sportsmen's" cars because they evidently feared a car search. No need to comment further on that one. And that was just for an hour or so of one day.

To offset the shrinkage of the areas that are available to the public, the States and Federal Government are setting aside, more and more each year, large parcels of acreage and fishing waters expressly for the public use. This practice will serve as a partial answer to the problem.

Maine already has a law to the effect that any lake or pond which has an area of a stipulated number of acres (I think the number is ten but it may be five) is automatically open to public fishing. Moreover, the public has an easement which grants access to that water, across the land of riparian owners.

A great many farmers will grant permission to fish or shoot on their lands if you will ask for that permsision and behave yourself. Of late years, however, I have noticed that these permissions are more grudingly given than they used to be.

In every group of "sportsmen" (how I have come to loathe the word!) you will find a sprinkling of hoodlums and fish-and game-hogs. That's the way some people are and nothing can be done to change human nature.

One, just one, of these fellows not only can but actually does undo the work of the entire group. So don't blame the farmer. Recognize the fact that people are people and make your plans accordingly.

Believe me, and I say this in all seriousness, if you expect to be using your fly rod and shotgun ten or fifteen years from now, you had best start making those plans without delay.

Tigers Defeat Stratford 5-4; Biltmores Win

(By The Canadian Press)

The top two teams of the Ontario Hockey Association's senior A loop lost their games last night to clubs making a strong bid for playoff positions.

Hamilton Tigers moved to within one point of fourth-place Owen Sound with a 5-4 win over the first-place Stratford Indians at Hamilton. Four Tiger goals in the last 12 minutes did the trick.

Brantford Redmen trounced second-place Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 7-0. in Brantford to break out of a fourth-place tie with Owen Sound, idle last night.

The O.H.A. Junior A League ran true to form, however, in its three games last night.

The second-place Guelph Biltmores trounced the ninth-place Windsor Spitfires 13-5 in Guelph to move within two games of the league-leading Toronto Marlboros.

Barrie Flyers gained their second straight victory at home with a 4-1 win over last-place Oshawa Generals, and Toronto St. Michael's moved into undisputed possession of fourth place in the 10-team loop with a 6-2 game over Kitchener Greenshirts.

BANCROFT

Pontiacs Tie Trenton Flyers

Bancroft— 1150 fans, an all-time record crowd, watched Trenton Flyers and Bancroft Pontiacs play a 5-5 game in Bancroft arena on Thursday night. By mutual consent no overtime was played.

For the first time since the arena was built the fans jam-packed the four sides and overflowed to the top of the lunch and dressing rooms. During the intermissions it was impossible to move more than a few feet and to get any place one had to weave, wiggle, push and push.

Originally the game had been scheduled for Jan. 30th but due to an unfortunate misunderstanding the visitors did not arrive and a near-record crowd just sat and waited for an hour. Tonight it was a conscience gate as those in attendance at the first game were allowed in free, without having to present ticket stubs or rain checks. Naturally, every boy in the village was present.

Group Captain C. G. McCall, C.O. No. 6 Repair Depot, Trenton arranged matters so that the Flyers donated their services and his team did not take one cent for expenses. As a result of this Branch No. 181, Canadian Legion, Bancroft, the sponsors of the exhibition game added $277 to their cenotaph fund. At the conclusion of the game Legion President Wm. Lavalley announced that his organization would donate $25 to the Bancroft hockey club in order to pay for any and all sticks that were broken or damaged.

Norman Brough, with four goals to his credit, was away ahead in the scoring race. The other Pontiac goal was by Doug Maxwell. For the Flyers Spence netted two and Schmidt, Hockley and Attrell each accounted for singles.

Lineups

The Old Master Musher from Quebec Hopes to Repeat Dog Derby Victory

By CECIL SMITH

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 9—(CP()—Emile Martel, the old master musher from Loretteville, Que., who grabbed off top money in the 1951 international dog derby, slyly expressed confidence today of a repeat victory this year.

The 39-year-old Martel said this after looking over the 20 other starters grooming their dogs for the big, three-day- 100-mile race. The derby gets under way next Monday with 33 1/3-mile legs will be run each day and with more than $5,000 in prizes and a gold challenge cup at stake.

Martel now holds the cup. If he can take this year's race—and next year's as well—he can keep it. And, he mused today as he groomed his cross-bred hounds for a practice run, it would look nice on his fireplace mantel up in Loretteville.

Good Chance to Win

"I've a good change to win again since I'm using four of the same dogs that I had last year," he said. "A good lead dog is worth a lot in a race like this. I'm counting on him to come through again."

For the last two years, the longer - legged hounds have mushed across the finish line ahead of the better-known racing teams of Siberian huskies. Wilf Lepine of Quebec won in 1950 with a hound team.

Probably the man who knows that best is Bill Shearer of East Jeffrey, N. H., who finished in runner-up spot last year with his 11 Siberian huskies. The furniture dealer won the derby in 1949—the first year the event was held here.

The United States Air Force hopes for victory centre on Lieut. Kent Lawrence, who has brought nine Siberian huskies here from the base at Goose Bay, Labrador. His home is in Tilton, N. H. The team is used for rescue work.

A small, dark-haired grandmother also will take the trail Monday. She is Marie Ouellette, of the Pas, Man., who will be out to capture the special "capital sweepstakes" for women entrans. It provides a $300 cash prize and a $500 gold cup.

She will be competing against her husband, Laird Ouellette, C. N. R. fireman from The Pas who finished in fourth place last year.

Mrs. Ouellette has been driving sled dogs for more than two years. She will run behind a team of seven huskies owned by Stan Stanyer, an Ottawa sportsman. Stanyer was going to enter his own team but became ill and was confined to bed.

One-Legged Entry

The gamest driver in the race again this year is Cecil McCooey of nearby Stittsville, Ont., a one-legged, ambitious dog-lover. He went the route last year and finished in 10th spot. He was awarded $200 as the "gamest driver in the race."

McCooey lost his right leg below the knee in an automobile accident at the age of seven. Because of his handicap, he is forced to rest his artificial leg on the runner of the sled and pedal with the other.

The race starts and finishes on the Rideau Canal in the heart of the city. It follows the canal to Dow's Lake, cuts through the experimental farm and across the country to Bell's Corners before looping back to the canal.

Eagles, Lindsay Win OHA Games

Peterborough Eagles defeated their intra-city rivals by a 7-5 score last night. The win draws the Eagles on even terms for third place in the group standing with the Kingston Sacs who defeated the Belleville Hawks 13-7 in Kingston.

In Lindsay the Kinsmen defeated the Peterborough Triple Links 9-4 in a junior 'B' tilt to retain their one point lead over the Belleville Hawks.

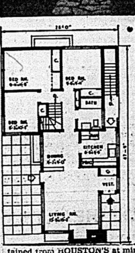
HOUSTON'S DESIGN-OF-THE-WEEK



This popular bungalow design has many features to attract a prospective house-builder who is interested in modern comfort, sleek lines and luxury touches in a three-bedroom house. It would be suitable in either a suburban setting or a narrow residential lot in the city.

The most interesting points of the living room are the large stone fireplace and the wide expanse of window overlooking the surrounding patio. The dining room and kitchen are well-planned and aimed towards convenience and efficiency in housekeeping.

Bedrooms are all equipped with sufficient closet space and located conveniently near the bathroom. The basement may be reached either directly from the back door, which is adjacent to the kitchen, or from the center of the house.

This comfortable home is 28 feet by 47 feet 9 inches and for estimating purposes has an area of 984 square feet. Cubic contents measure 19,735 cubic feet.

Working drawings for this plan, known as Design 50-14, may be obtained from HOUSTON'S at minimum cost.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 9 —(AP)— It doesn't seem possible in the second half of the 20th century—but beautiful starlet Debra Paget is 18 and has never had a date.

Yep, it sounded unlikely to me, too, since Debra is such a sharp-looking chick. But she doesn't think there's anything unusual about it.

"I don't know why people should be amazed," she remarked. "I have lots of girl friends who don't date until they are even older than I am."

I watched her doing a love scene with Cameron Mitchell for "Les Miserables" and she did a convincing job of it. But she assured me that her romance will be restricted to the movie sets.

"Right now the thing that interests me most is my career," she said. "I feel that I should devote all my time to it. If I had dates, they would interfere with my work, and they don't mean that much to me yet. Whenever I have some spare time, I like to spend it with my family. We have a very close family life, and we enjoy being together."

When will she find time for romance?

"When I find the man who will mean more to me than my career."

Dempsey on Celluloid

A notable social function was the luncheon given by Bob Hope for Jack Dempsey who is playing a fight referee in "Military Policeman."

Bob kept the sporing crowd in stitches telling about his brief boxing career under the name of Packy East. "I fought three bouts and would have won the third one" he remarked, "except that the referee stepped on my hand."

He added that Bing Crosby had been hurt by the slurs against his golf game by an English paper. "Bing couldn't be here today because he is consulting his financiers," Bob remarked. "He may not make the loan this year."

AT THE McCARTHY — James Cagney, Gig Young and Phyllis Thaxter listen, as Charlita does some fast talking in "Come Fill the Cup," the new action drama from Warner Bros. It opens at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre on Monday. Raymond Massey and James Gleason head the film's featured cast.

AT THE BELLE — Two astronomers make the terrifying discovery that a star headed for an inevitable collision with the earth in this scene from Paramount's much-discussed "When Worlds Collide," every thrill in color by Technicolor, showing at the Belle Theatre today and Monday, with a beautiful Technicolor musical revue, and a Colorfun Cartoon.

AT THE CAPITOL — Ray Milland and Gene Tierney share the romantic interest in "Close to My Heart," the Warner Bros. drama written by James R. Webb from his story in Good Housekeeping Magazine. The film opens Monday at the Capitol Theatre for its first Belleville showing. On the same program, color by Technicolor, "Lullaby of Broadway," starring Doris Day and Gene Nelson.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Take the marbles out of your mouth and say: In answer to an opening bid of one, a redouble of an opponent takeout double is an obligatory pass convention.

NORTH
♥J 9 8 5 2
♦None
♣K Q 9 2

WEST
♠K Q 7 4
♥10 6 3

♦8 7 6 5 3
♣10 7 6 5

SOUTH
♠J 8
♥A K Q 4
♣J 4 3

South opened with a bid of one heart. West doubled for takeout. North redoubled. What is the signal that north gives when he redoubled the west takeout double?

It says in part: "Partner, you need not be afraid of your one heart bid despite anything opponents say they have. Because, I am assuring you that we can make a contract of one heart with ease."

It also says: "So, if east passes, you can safely pass. Because at one heart doubled and redoubled we will make game at this cheap bid. Not only that, we will take overtricks."

It also says: "If west had not doubled, I would have jumped or otherwise encouraged you to keep bidding. Because, I have enough to help you make a game in your suit or one of mine."

It also says: "Since I have told you all this, do not have any fears that I will let the bidding die short of game. So, keep these buzzards in the lock until we decide how to make the most points."

It also says: "If east bids after this redouble of mine, double his bid for penalties if you can defeat it more than we can make at a game contract. But not if it is worth less than game."

It also says: "If east bids and you lack a profitable double, you are obliged to pass. And if I am unable to double a bid by east or west, I will keep the bidding open for you."

It seems a lot to be able to say with only one word; redouble. But it does all that to a player who knows the signal. It is a good weapon, this obligatory pass convention.

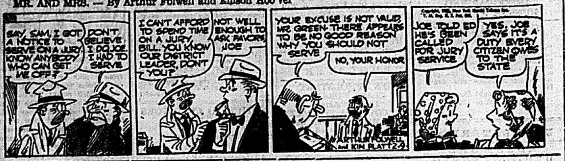
MR. AND MRS. — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoo ver



SAY, SAM, I GOT A NOTICE TO SERVE ON A JURY. KNOW ANYBODY WHO CAN GET ME OFF?
DON'T BELIEVE I DO JOE. I HAD TO SERVE
I CAN'T AFFORD TO SPEND TIME ON A JURY, BILL. YOU KNOW OUR DISTRICT LEADER, DON'T YOU?
NOT WELL ENOUGH TO ASK FAVORS, JOE
YOUR EXCUSE IS NOT VALID, MR. GREEN. THERE APPEARS TO BE NO GOOD REASON WHY YOU SHOULD NOT SERVE
NO, YOUR HONOR
JOE TOLD ED HE'S BEEN CALLED FOR JURY SERVICE
YES, JOE SAYS IT'S A DUTY EVERY CITIZEN OWES TO THE STATE

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to to the stars.

For Sunday, February 10

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Very unusual tendencies this day augur well for accomplishment in artistic matters, study, scientific research and other intricate issues. First, remember service to God. Enjoy free time wisely.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Favored interests for Aries obtain for you now. We are happier, more self-assured when we go to church. Pray God for lasting peace. Good day for essential tasks, artistry.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—The stimulating aspects now prevailing can be advantageously used, but don't seek unnecessary work or business transactions. Think of your soul's needs, of family's comfort, charity.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—A day to brighten the heart of any good-living citizen. Prayer and some kindly deeds will return great blessings to the door. Necessary duties can be done quickly, cheerfully.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—It should be a day for greater hope in the future, stronger faith in God and the right way. Spend considerable time dwelling on spiritual values, our many blessings. Have wholesome fun.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)— Put aside worry, any tendency to drive yourself over unnecessary hurdles of work, study or fatiguing activity. Today rightly belongs to God. Relaxation, rest in order.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Gentle, pleasant indications for a restful or productive period. Essential chores, domestic needs favored and should be attended to cheerfully. First of all, your church.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Artistic and religious interests, home and family affairs, government problems top day's honored list. No urgent matters need be neglected. Enjoy church services; healthy fun, too.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—"A little with contentment is great gain" is a sensible slogan for this generous Sunday. However, matters that call for vigor and determination also sponsored.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—The medical profession, nursing, caring for children especially favored. A friendly day generally and most invigorating for worthy undertakings; useful social pleasures, too.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — One can always make some time for interests other than the temporal and physical. Our minds and souls need encouragement, food for stronger character. Today stresses these; rest, too.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Excellent aspects prevail; you can have a pleasant day, be helpful to necessary activities and urgent work. Do go to your church. In free time enjoy family, good friends.

YOU BORN TODAY have many fine underlying traits and talents that should be developed to the fullest. May have to cultivate more firmness and determination to achieve as you so well can. Restlessnes and fondness for pleasures must be sensibly controlled; ambition for high achievement encouraged. Once your energies and initiative are aroused you strive admirably to succeed. Important you associate only with intelligent, spiritually-minded good people. Otherwise, you may be swayed by the unwise through your too generous nature. Be ever hopeful.

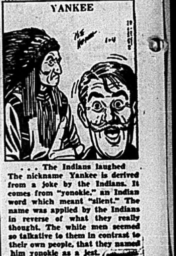
WHY WE SAY



. . . The Indians laughed
The nickname Yankee is derived from a joke by the Indians. It comes from "yonokie," an Indian word which meant "silent." The name was applied by the Indians in reverse of what they really thought. The white men seemed so talkative to them in contrast to their own people, that they named him yonokie as a jest.

Biggest Air Race Since '34 Renews Global Rivalries

By ERIC BENTON

Wellington, N. Z., Feb. 9 —(AP) — With the event still more than 18 months away, New Zealand is well pleased with the interest being shown in the biggest international air race since 1934.

Half-a-dozen countries already have indicated they will be out to win the England - Christchurch, N. Z., race, tentatively set for Oct. 10, 1953. There is speculation that the race — about 10,500 miles in a straight line — will be over in 24 hours if air refuelling can be arranged.

It will be the first big international air event since the MacRobertson air trophy race in 1934 from London to Melbourne. That race was won in 71 hours. Commercial planes have covered the distance hours faster since then.

The race will carry £30,000 prize money, but competitors will be out for more than straight cash. The real prizes are prestige and an idea of what planes can do. There will be speed and handicap sections. One-third of the total prize will go to competitors in each of these sections. The rest will go to the "also-flew."

Solid Entry

Countries that have indicated they will compete are the United States, Britain, France, Holland, Australia and New Zealand. Soviet Russia also may be a starter. Canada has been approached, but with the closing date for entries still a year away, has not yet made up its mind.

Already there are 15 probable starters. At least a dozen others are considering entering.

Those who have made provisional entries are: the Armstrong Whitworth Company of Britain (probably with an Apollo four-engined turbo-jet airliner); British European Airways; British Overseas Airways Corporation (probably with a Comet jet airliner); Jim Mollison, U. S. Air Force; U. S. Navy; Paul Mantz (Hollywood stunt pilot); George Schwimmer (of Continental Air Lines of America); Miss Jackie Cochrane and Mrs. Diana Bixby (both of the U. S.); and two aircraft from the Dutch Airline, K.L.M.

Other possible starters include Pan-American World Airways, already running a service to New Zealand, Trans-World Airways of the U.S., and a French company.

Hume Christie, one of the organizers of the race, said Britain is still toying with the idea of entering the giant Brabazon and the Princess flying boat, the largest in the world.

Soldier Models Are Hobby Of Winnipeger

Winnipeg (CP) — An international army stands in this prairie capital, ready to attack with artillery and fixed bayonets.

But there's no reason for Canadian defence officials to be alarmed. The army includes 38 regiments from eight countries but it takes up no more room than the tops of five card tables.

The "army" is nothing more than an extra large collection of metal soldiers. Commander-in-chief is 22-year-old Grant Hopkins with his father acting as second-in-command.

The collection was started by Grant's father while he served as an aeronautical engineer with the R.C.A.F. He picked up many of the pieces travelling throughout Canada and the United States.

The complete collection comprises 1,590 foot soldiers plus equipment of the modern-day army. One scaled-down field piece shoots small projectiles and emits a belch of smoke.

The army has in its ranks such colorful figures as the Bengal Lancers, Togoland warriors, Welsh Guards, French Legionnaires, United States Marines and many Scot regiments.

It probably is the only peacetime army which includes five Russian cavalrymen. The only country known to have an army and not represented in Czechoslovakia.

This can easily be changed by looking up the correct data on uniforms and doing a quick remodeling job with paint.

Grant says the collection requires a lot of leg work to libraries to find historical data. He has magazines listing 10.000 collectors with more than 1,000 pieces.

Ashton McDown of Pennsylvania is the largest collector in the United States with 10.000 pieces worth an estimated $20,000. Canada's largest collection is owned by Maj. W. J. MacDougald of Montreal and Winnipeg.

CHEESE FROM NORWAY

Oslo (CP)—Cheese production in Norway in 1951 reached 29,000 tons, or 4,000 more than the previous year. Before the second World War Norway produced about 16,500 tons annually.

New Lincoln for 1952

Advanced modern styling characterizes the exterior appearance of Lincoln for 1952. Straight-line fenders, recessed headlights, sloping hood and high bumpers distinguish the car which will soon be available in Canada through Mercury-Lincoln-Meteor dealers. Five body styles in two series, the Cosmopolitan and Capri, including coupes with "hardtop" design, are offered. A new 160-horsepower, overhead valve V-8 engine, a rugged "X" type frame, a unique front end suspension, and the suspended brake pedal, are among the outstanding features of the new Lincolns for 1952. Shown here is the Lincoln Capri special custom coupe

Rubber Roads Being Tested At Various Canadian Points, Said to Possess Advantages

Toronto — (CP) — Canadian motorists some day may drive on rubber roads.

In fact, some are already.

Eleven miles north of Montreal near St. Rose, a quarter-mile strip of rubberized asphalt paving has been in use since October, 1949. Recently, another test strip was built near Unionville, 13 miles northeast of Toronto.

Tests on some 40 stretches of road in Europe indicate that natural rubber mixed with the asphalt adds years to the life of the road, gives a better braking surface and tends to keep ice from forming.

In Use For Years

One stretch in The Netherlands has been in use for 13 years on the main highway between Amsterdam and The Hague. It was used by German military traffic and later by Allied tanks and trucks during the Second World War.

Other roads in The Netherlands were torn to pieces by heavy military traffic but the rubber-asphalt stretch still is in good condition and has needed no maintenance work.

The rubber—a creamy-colored powder in grains from half an inch in diameter to dust—is mixed with the asphalt just before the gravel is added.

Has Absorbent Qualities

Scientists say that the rubber absorbs the lighter hydro carbons in the bitumen but not the asphaltenes. To the layman, it looks as if the rubber swells to five or six times its original size.

First experiments with the rubber powder in a paving mixture took place in Malaya and England in the early 1930s. The strip near Ste. Rose was the first laid in Canada, but five now are in operation, two in Ontario, two in Quebec and one in St. John's, Nfld.

Conclusive results from the tests now under way may not be available for several years.

MARMORA

Marmora — Mr. A. J. Maynes was in Toronto on business for a couple of days, this week.

Marmora Women's Institute has decided to hold its February meeting which is Men's Night at the home of the secretary, Mrs. Eugene Brady, next Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Hogarth Sabine was in Belleville General Hospital for a couple of days last week following a minor operation. She is home and able to be around again.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Shannon are spending a few holidays at Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Miss Madeline Seeley returned to Montreal on Sunday after spending the past two weeks with her sister, Mrs. R. Frost and Mr. Frost.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Alex Vanvolkenburg in Marmora Township on Monday.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Monday Feb. 11

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Hold back rushing things; make requests rather than demands. Stars favor the diplomat. Have the urge to make a good showing and you will improve your position quickly.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Apprehension, distrust can do more harm than we suppose. Don't cross bridges till you get to them. Approach all problems with sincere confidence, you have ability to solve them.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Configurations are such that one who uses foresight and good common sense, of which you have plenty, should achieve. Be calm, don't rush, sometimes a habit with you folks.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Planetary aspects point to unusual rays that favor original and well planned ideas. Keep your agenda elastic, be ready for unexpected leads that taken up could prove very gainful.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—First make up your mind, then plan well, then step forward. And you should work toward your goal with intelligent effort. Handle home and domestic affairs with tact, kindliness.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Well conceived thought and endeavors have right of way. Current issues have first place and are as important to your general welfare as your personal business. Supplant gloom with cheer.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)— Some slightly adverse indications. Start early hours well. Mark time where you should. News of importance. Be on guard for any worthy advantages, take up quickly those that look promising.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio) — May be tempted to evade the irritable isues, pass up the "hard ones". Don't! Later such problems will annoy worse. You have a way of getting on, solving the difficult; pitch in, and win!

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—You will need to watch answers, and how you act under pressure. But the resourceful, keen and sensible you will easily pull through even under very aggravating circumstances.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Can be most benefic day if you divert the best into business or any other matter. Be informed in the course you take. Know the why before starting.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—The adequate, thinking one can turn in a good day's return. Be alert, eager; but employ evenness of effort. Seek rather than await opportunity. Be soundly definite in all purposes.

February 21 to March 20—Pisces—A day that needs shrewd re-appraisal in all money and business matters. Think well before acting. Constructive thinking achieves generous results. Romance, marriage highly favored.

YOU BORN TODAY are not innately aggressive, but are very able nonetheless. At times are changeable, then again progressive. Especial ability to make headway in science, art, languages, if you prod yourself to do. Fond of good things in life, travel, food. Watch diet, moderation your best motto in all. You could be easily led through your sympathy, even discouraged, but not if you make up your mind to do something about it. Take all philosophically, seek knowledge, and be staunch in your religion as you build a fine life.

30,000 Needed By British To Hunt Mines

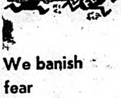
London (CP)—A force of 30,000 civilian volunteers is being recruited in Britain to guard the nation's coastal waters and inland waterways against mine-laying by enemy aircraft in time of war.

The new service, launched by J. P. L. Thomas, First Lord of the Admiralty, is open to men past the 45-year-mark and women aged 26 and over. Preference will be given volunteers living on the coast near major waterways.

Mine-watching posts will be established at strategic points along the country's coastline as well as principal ports and estauries. Efforts will also be made to enlist the support of owners of small craft to ensure speedy action in event of an emergency. The service will come under the direction of existing naval commands.

In opening the campaign for members, Mr. Thomas recalled that more than 22,500 mines had been laid by the Germans in British waters during the last war. It had been through alert spotting, he said, that the enemy's menacing magnetic mine had been discovered and an effective weapon found to combat it. The new force would operate under a slogan that every mine spotted meant a ship saved.

The drive for mine-watchers, however, conflicts with manpower appeals by several other branches of the country's defence forces. The home guard is after another 125,000 men. Civil defence recruiting officers report that only 167,000 have responded to a call for 460.000 volunteers.



We banish fear

Pardon us, but we think we help make this town and this world a better place for a lot of people, because we drive out fears.

The insurance policies we write enable people to forget fear of losses by fire, windstorm, burglary, theft, hold-up, personal accidents, and damage suits for accidental injuries to people or property.

We bring a definite factor of safety and security to life in this community. A lot of folks here will tell you we've added to the serenity of their lives.

We're fear fighters.

Wartime Army Officers Will Honor Gen. Crerar at Dinner

Toronto, Feb. 8 — (CP)—Seven years after VE-Day, 700 of Canada's wartime army officers will gather at Toronto May 8. A representative group of senior officers is working to make attendance cover all Canada at a dinner to honor Gen. H. D. G. Crerar who commanded the Canadian army on the western front.

Their advance "bumph" on the dinner resembles an operations order and comprises 13 single-spaced mimeographed pages. Three generals and 11 brigadiers — nothing under a lieutenant - colonel — are on the 22-man "steering committee."

Lt.-Col. E. W. (Ernie) Whelpton (Toronto greeting-card manufacturer) says the committee's two big jobs will be to reach all interested officers and then to hold down acceptances to capacity — 700.

"It was good fun getting the generals and brigadiers to work on the mailing lists," Col. Whelpton said. "Ham Roberts is working on the gunners, Eric Haldenby is responsible for infantry, Coley Campbell for the engineers, and so on." Maj.-Gen. Roberts (now retired at Clarkson, Ont.) was in command at Dieppe, Brig. Haldenby (Toronto architect) and Colin Campbell (Toronto mining consultant) served in Italy and on the western front.

"No matter how good our lists are, we'll miss some of the boys who want to come. Those living outside Ontario will get first preference, even ahead of unit commanders — we want this representative. I hear the Seaforths in Vancouver are pooling regimental donations to send a man—that's good. The way applications are piling in, maybe the affair should have been at the armories." The dinner is at the Royal York Hotel.

Seating by Groups

Seating at the dinner will be arranged in groups representing formations. Tables will be flagged with cards in proper colors with such wording as "1st Army BDE55 and "1 Ech 21 Arm GP." Representation will cover not only the European operation and defence of Britain but Hong Kong, Spitsbergen, Kiska, North Africa and officer-loans to allied nations.

The "bumph" (which shows the hand of Maj.-Gen. C. C. Mann of Toronto) even specifies preferred dress which ranges from No. 1 dress uniform, through serge, white tie, dinner jacket with or without miniatures, down to business suit. Female officers (coming from all parts of Canada) are given an option of evening dress with or without miniatures.

Speeches, including the guest of honor's 15-minute talk, will be brief and few. Gen. Crerar (who will wear white tie and tails) said: "I'll just give the boys some reminiscences — no policy address or anything like that — and then we can get back to talking about old times."

At the dinner, Gen. Crerar will be presented with a portrait of himself on behalf of those attending and hundreds unable to attend. It will be an oil painting, 22 by 28 inches, by Mrs. Lilias Torrance Newton, R. C. A. (which doesn't mean artillery), of Montreal, showing the general in uniform with two rows of medals. Mrs. Newton will work on the portrait in March.

Dr. Logan's Wife

By Diana Gaines

"A patient of his just committed suicide—or tried to, I can't get it straight—the nurse who called in is in a tizzy. Dr. Logan's wife."

"What?" And then before the operator could talk again, he shouted, "I'll get her—I'll bring her in right away. Get me an ambulance at the emergency entrance. Call emergency surgery and tell them to get set. Call the Mountainside Chapel at once. Dr. Pelletier's there. Tell him to get here at once —tell him it's Jennet Logan."

"Mountainside Chapel," the operator repeated as Peter slammed the phone and began to run.

In the hall, he ran full tilt into old Dick, the janitor, whom he caught and set aside like a bowling pin and ran on not hearing the shouted curses of old Dick any more than he heard the unremitting siren of the ambulance as it careened around the bends of Sunset.

"Somebody you know Doc?" questioned the driver who was not used to seeing white-coated figures show this degree of alarm.

"Say, you want me to wrap this bus right around your nose?"

"I'll be all right when we get there," Peter muttered and he took a deep breath and relaxed enough to swing with the swerving car, and to hear the siren. Then imperative sound was a relief to him.

"Look," said the driver. "I'll do the driving. Just keep your pants on, will you? It's only a few more blocks. Take it easy."

Despite his agitation, Peter noticed that the house had both dignity and beauty on a street that drowsed in a peace that only money can buy. He might have known she would be living in a place like this, but he hadn't thought of it and it seemed to set her out of his reach. That death might already have done so that this was calamity and not crisis, did not cross his mind, and he took a subconsciously sadistic pleasure in running heavily across the close-shaven lawn.

He banged on the door and it flew open as if from the pressure of his fist. The nurse must have been watching for them. He took the stairs two at a time, and the nurse ran up after him, crying out bits of information. "Left her just a few minutes to make an eggnog. Said she was sleepy. Answered the phone near her bed and noticed that her face was blue—hardly breathing—took her pulse—fast and thready—shook her—then I realized. Don't know where she got it."

Jennet lay straight and still in the enormous bed. He saw the fan of her hair and the grotesque redness of her lips in the ashen blue face. He swept her up in his arms, cover and sheet and nudged the nurse into forward motion with Jennet's hip. "Open the front door!" he yelled.

"Oh, doctor I. . ." The nurse was going to make more apologies.

He cut her short with "I'm not a doctor! Out of the way!"

"Not a—well, then, I better come along."

"Come on, then," he shouted over his shoulder.

But he never saw the woman again. The driver pulled away the instant the car doors closed.

They let Peter Surinov stay in the emergency room. At least they didn't say anything about his leaving and so he stayed. He stood, backed in a corner against the wall but the light found him out, felt heavy on him He would have liked to have slid down and sat on the floor.

He watched the resident inject her once in the arm and once in the hip. He saw the man's hands press and fly off her inert body, press and fly off, press and fly off.

"Better get set up for a stomach lavage," the resident told the nurse. "And put a call in for the anaesthetist. For oxygen. Dr. Pelletier will want to force her breathing."

"Is she going to make it? Is she going to be all right?" Peter asked himself over and over, but he made no sound.

Dr. Pelletier came in, slipping his coat off as he entered and he nodded to Peter, squeezing his face to one side in a grimace that was almost a wink. Then he forgot Peter altogether.

Nice work, Davies," Pelletier said, studying Jennet Logan's face. He picked up the limp hand. "Nailbeds blue," he said. "What about oxygen?"

"Good, good," said Dr. Pelletier. "Keep up the artificial respiration till the oxygen comes. Shots?"

"I gave her adrenilin and coramine and caffeine. Looks like she took enough stuff to be out for a week."

"The Levine tube, Nurse," Dr. Pelletier said.

The nurse came up to the table with a tube and a basin of water. Dr. Pelletier took the tube from her and inserted it into Jennet's nose. "Pull her tongue out nurse, Hold it out gently."

When the anaesthetist came in, he said hello to Dr. Pelletier in a voice so matter-of-fact that Peter could have smashed his jaw.

"Drug poisoning, eh?" chatted the anaesthetist, looking at Jennet as though she were someone he'd met but couldn't quite place. "Not a movie gal, by any chance?"

Peter marched out of the room.

They wheeled her out on the cart. They had a different blanket on her but she was still inert, neatly mummified, and her hair was tucked away under her head. He peered into her passing face. She was less blue and he saw her take a breath and he was sure he had not imagined it. The nurse wheeled her away to the elevator. Dr. Pelletier and the resident remained with him and Dr. Pelletier talked to the resident with his hand on Peter's arm.

"Keep giving her stimulants. Give her more coramine and even caffeine and strychnine if necessary. Blood transfusions every day—at least one pint a day — more if necessary. Let's give her a couple of liters of intravenous fluids, some glucose in saline for nourishment — with vitamins. You might get some coffee into her stomach through the tube. Oh, and penicillin shots to combat infection. Write all this down, Davies, before you forget it.

"I want you to put on three good private nurses with her. And call Dr. Warner from the medical department to look after her. This isn't my bailiwick—he may have some ideas that I don't know about. And if she shows any signs of coming out of this call in the psychiatrist."

"Dr. Pelletier," Peter said, "she is going to come out of it all right?

"I think so Peter, You know as well as I do you can't make promises. We'll do everything we can . . ."

"But she might slip back?"

"Well, it's hard to know how much the blood actually absorbed. All we can do is to keep giving stimulants to combat whatever's there. The worse danger, as you know, is pneumonia, but now with antibiotics, that's not as much of a hazard as it used to be."

"What about putting her in an iron lung if she gets more depressed?" Peter urged.

"Dr. Pelletier raised his eyebrows at the resident. "Not a bad idea, is it, Davies? I don't know that it's ever been done, but it's sound. Keep her breathing. Remember that—if she relapses."

When the resident moved off, Dr. Pelletier tightened his hold on Peter's arm. He said, "I think she'll be okay. May take a few days but we'll keep after her. But I don't think you ought to stick around here Peter, it isn't fair to her. I gave the committee this song and dance about there being nothing between you, and if you hang around her door looking like a sick calf. . .

"All right. I'll clear out." They walked slowly down the hall. "Why did she do it, Dr. Pelletier? She couldn't have loved him that much."

"No, I guess not, not from what loved you that much. People act loved you that much People act more rashly because of guilt than because of love."

"Is that psychiatrist any good?" Peter asked.

"Well, he's the staff man. There is only one. He's not an analyst though. He can see her when she comes out of this. Then he may feel she ought to have deep analysis."

"Thanks for everything, Dr. Pelletier."

"Walter," he said. "Not Dr. Pelletier I'm not your boss any more. Just your friend."

Every day since she had been released from the hospital five months ago, she had come to the psychiatrist's waiting room at this same late afternoon hour, and had sat in it, boxed like an animal with a price on its head, cushioned and provided with air holes (there was one window that faced a charmingly planted garden, and a ventilator in the ceiling), waiting for her turn. Every day except Saturdays and Sundays for five months she had waited in this room.

Jennet supposed that her own retreat from social intercourse worked the hardship or boredom on her mother, who had been staying with her since Gus's death. Her refusal of invitations which came in from those who managed to overcome their shyness of bereavement was not due to an observance of the amenities of the mourning period.

No, it was not Gus she mourned. It was herself, the self she had been able to esteem. The doctor promised it was a self well lost, that the emergent self would be a sounder, a happier one. This she believed— or make-believed, one had to cling to something — but meanwhile she mourned and mourning was a private affair.

She was glad that the hate was gone, and the guilt. She could see Gus more clearly now that he was dead than she had been able to see him when he was alive, because she was free of him. She could even love him at odd moments, not, perhaps, as husband, but as a person—a fine, well-meaning gentlemanly person with whom she had spent 10 pleasantly dignified if superficial years.

Meanwhile, the time passed quickly enough, however, joylessly. It passed. She was regaining the lost weight, eating well and enjoying her food. She slept a great deal —often 12 hours a night— but her need for sleep was tapering off and she had ceased cat-napping during the day. She shopped, she took long walks up Whiteoaks into the hills. And she continued to refuse to see Peter.

By her act of suicide, she had given vent at last to both the desire for crime and the egotistical demand for punishment. Afterwards, she had pronounced herself dishonorably discharged from the battle to be good, freed from the struggle by having lost it, and it was only recently, in the last month or so, that she was beginning, with the doctor's help, to redefine her "goods." She was beginning to unlearn the tenet that to be human was in itself a sin.

By the time the knob turned and the blurred head poked through the wedge of space and said, "come in" she was angry. But one couldn't stay angry at the psychiatrist long without feeling a fool. After all, he probably objected to be phoned during the hour as much as she did.

He was friendly and gracious and polite, and he remembered with a little "Oop!" that you were the one who liked a piece of tissue under your head and if he thought that was phobic, let him. At least, he wouldn't guess that it wasn't someone's germs you minded, it was just that you couldn't stand the faint warmth of the recently departed head.

"How are you today?" he asked.

"Oh—all right," she said, with her head down. Try as she would, she could not look him squarely in the eye. He had posited the explanation that she did not want him to look squarely at her, but she did not believe this. She thought she did not want to see him as he was because she knew only too well that she was going to see him that night in her dreams as he wasn't.

"I suppose you want my dream" she said with acid terseness. "Whip out the little pencil and paper."

Peter sat in his new car, parked in front of the Beverly Hills medical building. The sun had long since been blotted out by a rheumy fog. When the wind blew, the fog was a fine spray on the face, close to rain. The weather suited his purpose. "Jennet's gone to the doctor's" her mother had told him when he had phoned that afternoon. "She left early to take the bus because the car's in the shop being fixed." After he had hung up, Mrs. Lecky's polite explanation began to assume the significance of a hot tip He had left work early so that he could be on hand when Jennet emerged from the doctor's building at 5 o'clock. The door johnny tactic was no more prideless than that of telephone jockey.

He had heard that the patients routinely fell in love with these "psycho" doctors, that that was part of the treatment. The thought was raw ginger. He shifted his body on the seat. Maybe she was setting her cap for a more socially important guy than a struggling bio-physicist who's been canned from a first-class hospital. Well, he'd give it one more try. He had to see her. If she brushed him off today, he'd give up. Maybe. He didn't want to make a nuisance of himself, he had that much pride left, didn't he? Actually, he rationalized, it wasn't a lack of pride that kept him courting, it was the conviction that Jennet really wanted him and wouldn't admit it. She was he believed, the kind of girl who needed a firm hand.

Federal Govt., B.C. Conclude Tax Agreement

Ottawa, Feb. 9 — (CP) — British Columbia and the federal government have concluded a new taxation agreement, it was announced today.

The announcement was made by Finance Minister Abbott and Premier Johnson of British Columbia. They have been discussing the agreement here for several days. Full details were not announced.

The new agreement, subject to approval by the British Columbia legislature, will run for five years. It will replace a five-year agreement that expires next March 31.

Wellington on the Lake

WINTER IN WELLINGTON

Branch and twig are decked in ermine,
Summer paths are buried deep,
Winter clouds loom dark and sullen,
Nature takes her winter sleep;
But tho' winter wild is waging war against the earth below,
Safe from harm the flowers are sleeping,
Underneath the ice and snow.
H. B. A.

Winter is exerting his power over this locality, giving plenty of snow and zero temperature. But the school-boys tumbling and playing in the soft snow, do not mind, and the low temperature provides ice for skating and hockey at the rink. And the crowds that gather show the popularity of this winter sport.

The W. A. of the United Church held the January meeting at Grahamanor with Mrs. Lewis McFaul and Mrs. Arnold Vandewater, hostesses. There was an attendance of thirty-five with the president Mrs. Harold Nash in the chair.

The many friends of Mr. Craig Platt are pleased to know that he is recovering from his recent illness.

Florida continues to attract Canadians, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Boyce Wiltse, Mr. and Mrs. C. Raynor, Mr. and Mrs. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. H. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. L. N. McFaul, Mr. and Mrs. A. Weir and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Stoneburg.

Mr. Garrett Harris and bride (nee Miss Marjory Beal of Toronto,) have been honored by many gifts and fine addresses. At a recent meeting in the Town Hall, Mr. James Cleminson, Reeve of Wellington, read the address before the presentations. Mr. and Mrs. Harris have taken up residence in Mrs. C. H. Greer's cottage.

Mrs. Leona Whyte, Trenton, spent Saturday with friends in Wellington.

Mrs. John Dick has returned home after spending several weeks with her daughter Mrs. A. Cunningham, Picton.

County residents seeking warmer climate include: Mr. and Mrs. W. Wood (nee Freda Nease, Hillier) who are holidaying at Honolulu, and Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Bowerman, of Detroit, who are enjoying the winter in Florida.

Mrs. (Rev.) A. Poulter and Mrs. Frank Harris were recent callers at Mrs. H. B. Anderson's.

Dr. Sarles was taken suddenly ill and removed by ambulance to Toronto. His many friends are anxious for his recovery.

Thanks to the readers of this paper who kindly sent me cards and letters during my stay in Picton Hospital.

Body of The King Brought to London To Lie in State

Million or More Will Pay Homage at Westminster Hall

London, Feb. 11 — (AP) — King George VI came back to London for the last time today and three queens — his mother, his wife and his daughter — saw the body carried reverently into ages-old Westminster Hall for three days' homage from the nation.

The body came by train from Sandringham, where the King died, and was carried on a gun carriage three miles from King's Cross Station to Westminster. A cold rain beat upon the coffin, surmounted by the heavily-jeweled crown, as the horse-drawn gun carriage bearing it made its slow way along silent streets lined with sorrowing subjects.

His train, bearing Queen Elizabeth II and her family, edged noiselessly into King's Cross Station in a downpour of rain and sleet at 2:46 p. m. (9:46 a.m. EST) after a private funeral service at the Sandringham estate where he died Wednesday.

Despite a drenching, thousands lined the three-mile route to Westminster Hall where the body of the late Monarch will lie in state until the burial at Windsor Friday.

Windows all along the route, many engaged by enterprising rental agencies, were crowded. Many spectators on the streets held umbrellas.

The black-veiled young Queen, now head of the royal family at 25, stood by as Grenadier Guardsmen lifted the oak coffin from its black hearse coach.

Pale and Drawn

She was pale and drawn but hiding her grief. Queen Mother Elizabeth, Princess Margaret, The Duke of Edinburgh and the King's brother, the Duke of Gloucester, rode from London to Sandringham with the Queen in her coach just behind the car which bore the coffin.

Just before the royal party stepped from the train, a royal attendant in top hat climbed into the hearse coach and placed the Imperial Crown with its 3,094 jewels on the King's casket.

The Queen and women of her party did not wait to follow the procession in its slow progress to Westminster but left at once by limousine for Buckingham Palace.

Guards carried the casket across the scarlet carpeted platform to a horse-drawn gun carriage amid the hush. The silence was broken only by escaping steam from the royal engine and the commands of officers of army, navy and air force guards of honor standing by.

Marched Behind Carriage

The Dukes of Edinburgh and Gloucester, wearing long black coats and high silk hats, walked slowly across the platform and took up positions just behind the green-and-mahogany gun carriage.

FIRE ON BOATS

Tokyo, Feb. 11 — (AP)— The Japan maritime safety board today said 10 Japanese fishing boats were fired upon in the east China Sea yesterday and are missing. Radioed messages said the identity of the attackers was not known, but they were believed to be communist Chinese craft.

Eight Killed In East Canada During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

The mysterious death of a man in Windsor, Ont., six fatal traffic accidents and a woman who died from a fall, brought the total of persons killed in eastern Canada to eight during the weekend.

A Canadian Press survey early today showed that six persons were killed in Ontario, one in Quebec and one in New Brunswick.

Joseph Leboeuf, 32, of Sandwich township near Windsor, was found dead of a fractured skull caused by "external violence." Police are holding one man in connection with the death.

Near Chesley, Ont., 92 miles north of London, Mrs. Louis Unruh, 62, of Elmwood, died of a fractured skull after two automobiles crashed in a blinding snowstorm. Alice Pardiac, 43, of Cornwall was killed when her automobile struck a pole near Cobourg.

Leo Nadeau, 25, died in an automobile-train accident near Toronto.

Raymond Gray, 19, of Marmora was killed by an automobile near Peterborough and William E. Brown 45, met a similar death near Toronto while trying to hitch a ride.

In New Brunswick at Juniper, six-year-old Elizabeth Comeau was killed by an automobile which she failed to see because of snowdrifts.

James Kelsey Remanded Week On Murder Charge

Welland, Feb. 11 — (CP) James Kelsey, 29, was remanded a week on a charge of murder when he appeared before Justice of Peace J. D. Watt Saturday. Both he and his brother, Lloyd Frank Cross, are charged with the bludgeon slaying of Sam Delibasich, Welland taxi driver, in December, 1949.

Kelsey was arrested in Niagara Falls, N. Y., last week on a charge of illegal entry into the United States. He was deported Friday and Ontario Provincial Police took him into custody on the murder charge.

Cross was arrested in Brookville, N. B., Feb. 2, He had been living there since he left Welland.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 11 (CP)—Synopsis—Temperatures climbed overnight as a mass of mild air passed through Ontario travelling eastward. By morning northerly winds brought fresh cold air from the Arctic regions down over the province. A few snowflurries accompanied the advance of this new air mass, with heavier snowfalls just to the lee of the Great Lakes. In these regions snowflurries are expected to last throughout the day.

Clearing skies tonight will permit temperatures to fall 10-degrees or so below last night's recorded minimums. On Tuesday increasing cloudiness and moderating temperatures are expected over all of Ontario.

55 REPORTED KILLED IN IRAN STREET FIGHTING

Officials Say Governor, Three Others Beheaded

Tehran, Iran, Feb. 11—(AP)— Two newspapers reported today that 55 persons were killed and more than 300 injured in six hours of fierce street fighting Saturday in Zabol, a town along the Afghan frontier.

Official sources admitted that an angry mob had beheaded the provincial governor and three other officials, but there was no confirmation of the larger casualty toll, which the anti-government papers Attash and Dad published. They quoted "informed Tehran sources."

Rival tribesmen battled in the city's streets, the papers said, after an election dispute burst into warfare with firearms, knives and clubs. A wave of looting and burning spread through the town. Troops reinforcements rushed from nearby Kerman province.

Official sources said martial law is being enforced in Zabol, and that Premier Mohammed Mossadegh ordered local authorities to arrest and "punish severely" those responsible for the killings.

Armed Mob Raids Offices

Government-controlled radio Tehran reported an armed mob swept into the government offices at Zabol, where an election board was in session, and beheaded Governor Ali Nagi Kowsar, election board chairman Nazar Irani and two other officials.

The bloody outbreak was reported to have started as a protest against new election supervisors. The mob was said to oppose the Mossadegh government and was believed to have been non-communist.

Rival political groups also clashed Saturday at Damghan, northeast of Tehran. Two persons were killed and many injured, reports here said.

The national elections, being carried out on a piecemeal basis, are only one-sixth completed although they have been going on nearly two months. With at least 25 dead before the weekend's outbreaks, they have been the most violent in the country's history.

Mossadegh's nationalist party won all 22 of the seats thus far decided in the election of 136 deputies for the lower house of parliament.

Forced to Turn Back

New York, Feb. 11 — (AP)—A four-engined Pan American World Airways Constellation made a successful emergency landing at Idlewild airport today after being forced by engine trouble to turn back on a flight to Puerto Rico.

The plane, carrying 51 passengers and crew members, left Idlewild shortly after midnight EST. A short time later the pilot radioed he was returning with one engine having cylinder trouble.

A Pan American spokesman said the plane would take off after repairs were made.

U.S. Diplomat, Master of Vessel Held by Chinese Pirates for Ransom

Hong Kong, Feb. 11 — (CP) — Armed pirates attacked the 3,500-ton British steamer Wing Sang off the China coast today and held a United States diplomat and the British master for $10,000 ransom.

Messages received here by the British navy tonight said the ransom had been paid.

The Wing Sang was en route to Keelung, on the north tip of Formosa, from Hong Kong. The Keelung radio station said the vessel's position was near communist-held Amoy.

The U. S. diplomat was identified as Edward Stansbury of Waterbury, Conn., reported returning to Formosa from a vacation in Honk Kong. Stansbury is vice-director of the U. S. Information Service in Taipeh.

The steamer, carrying 75 passengers, radioed she had been attacked by an armed junk off the China coast between Swatow and Amoy. A royal navy destroyer was reported going to her aid.

The messages said the junk pirates lured Stansbury and the Wing Sang's master, Capt. H G. Hoddard, aboard their armed junk.

After they had paid the ransom the two men were allowed to return to the Wing Sang which continued her voyage to Keelung.

Navy authorities said the pirates fired on the ship in the Straits of Formosa, wounding one sailor.

The pirates asked to see Stansbury, who was returning with his wife to Taipeh from Hong Kong.

Stansbury went aboard the junk and the two men were told they were being held for ransom.

Some Top Officials Favor Direct Strikes Against Reds If Talks in Korea Fail

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Feb. 11. (CP)— Some United States policy-makers were reported authoritatively today to favor limited military action directly against communist China if the Korean truce talks collapse.

This course, however, has by no means won general acceptance at top levels. In fact, there is understood to be considerable difference of opinion as to what policy should be pursued.

Some officials are reported holding to the view that the United States should avoid any wider conflict with the reds in the Far East.

This is understood to be the policy favored by Britain and France and other United Nations Allies.

Consideration of what to do in event of a collapse of negotiations is going forward despite a moderate optimism here over the chances for getting an armistice. The optimism is based partly on a top-level military estimate that the communists want to get the war over with, and partly on evidence in recent days that they seem to be willing to let the negotiations make progress.

Three big issues must be resolved before a cease-fire can be agreed upon:

1. Whether the prisoners-of-war are to be exchanged forcibly or voluntarily. The reds have insisted on their forcible return. The U.N. has demanded a voluntary return system.

2. Whether some formula can be worked out to prevent a buildup of air power in North Korea after an armistice becomes effective.

3. Whether a post-armistice political conference on which both sides now agree should deal with broad far eastern issues such as the future of Formosa as the reds propose, or be limited to purely Korean question, as the U.S. wants.

Theoretically, any one of these issues could cause the talks to break down. Actually it is felt here that they will succeed or fail depending on whether the communists, like the U.N., are really trying to get peace in Korea or whether they have simply been buying time to mass strength for some new operation.

In any event it is felt here that a showdown may be reached in a few weeks.

Toronto, Feb. 11—(CP)— Canadians must produce more and spend less if they are to meet the threats of further inflation and higher prices, Hugh Crombie, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said today.

"The defence effort," he stated in an address to the annual conference of the Canadian Retail Federation, "has to be achieved in a time of relatively full employment.

"The normal average increase in man-hour productivity is not sufficient to take care of added production requirements. Either the working force or the hours worked per week must be increased, or there must be a reduction in the production of goods for civilian use and a lowering of the standard of living."

Employers, workers and government, said Mr. Crombie, should work in the closest co-operation, understanding and confidence.

"A manufacturer or a retailer is entitled to a profit, but it should be fair and reasonable. Wage earners are entitled to a fair wage, but it should be in return for a fair day's work. Governments are entitled to revenue, but to no more than is required to provide the services they are called upon to supply.

"When the country is obliged to spend huge sums on rearmament, it is essential, if inflation is to be kept within bounds, that everything possible be done to reduce expenditures on non-defence projects.

"It would appear to me that the huge rate of taxation is one of the principal reasons for the present high level of prices."

Mr. Crombie said the design of Canadian products should be improved.

"Generally design is good, but sometimes I see articles displayed on a shelf or counter that positively make me shudder. Yet they cost just as much to make as if they were of a pleasing design or color."

The national industrial design committee intimates, Mr. Crombie added, "that notwithstanding its efforts to interest the public in good design, the consumer's choice is still limited to what the retailer offers; and the committee suggests that the standards of the manufacturer and the retailer are being forced on the consumer because the latter has no power of individual choice."

ASK ARMY HELP

Oslo, Feb. 11—AP—Norwegian Olympic authorities today called on the army to get the ski slopes of Norefjell in shape for the opening of the winter games Thursday.

Unless there is a fresh fall, the only hope for good conditions for the skiers is to bring in snow by trucks. A gale whipped off most of the covering on the slalom and downhill courses 70 miles northwest of here.

One Communist Jet Shot Down, Four Damaged

Seoul, Korea, Feb. 11—(AP)— United States Sabre jets today shot down one communist jet and damaged four, boosting their two-day bag to four kills and nine MIGs damaged.

The U.S. Fifth Air Force, as is its policy, did not announce U.S. losses, if any.

Fifth air force headquarters said one enemy jet was shot down in a dogfight between 18 Sabres and 60 red jets high over North Korea.

Denmark Hit By Record Storm

All rail and bus connections were cut. Lights and telephones went out in most places. Snow lay 15 feet high in several towns.

In Aalborg, the district's biggest town, officials estimated it will take about a week to remove the huge masses of snow.

Runs into Red Ambush

British ground detachment moving in to help a paratroop force clean up a jungle communist centre near the Thai border ran into a red ambush yesterday. The ground unit reported itself held up by communist fire and a flood at a river crossing five miles from the paratroopers.

The communists fled from their isolated village when 57 paratroopers dropped from the skies Saturday. The paratroop force encountered no resistance at the village, the name of which was withheld for security reasons. Two other ground detachments are moving toward it also.

The main aim was to stave off a reported propaganda move by the reds—to declare a communist state of Malaya.

CHURCHILL SAYS TERM 'REALM' IS PREFERRED

Explains Reason For Change from Dominion

London, Feb. 11 (AP) —Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that Commonwealth countries prefer to be called realms, rather than Dominions.

He thus entered the controversy which has been raised since Elizabeth II was proclaimed "Queen of this realm and her other realms and territories" last Friday, instead of the traditional Queen of "Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the Seas."

The Capetown newspaper Die Burger, which usually reflects the views of the South African government, said it appeared the Queen's title had been altered without the prior approval of all Dominion parliaments.

Churchill said the word "Dominion" once was greatly esteemed, but now the many peoples in the Commonwealth found that "realm" is an expression of their sense of unity combined in most cases with deep allegiance to the crown or respectful association with it.

A spokesman for the Privy Council previously denied that the phraseology in the proclamation of Elizabeth as Queen had altered her legal title.

At Ottawa, Canadian government officials last week noted the new wording of the British proclamation with some satisfaction.

Prime Minister St. Laurent used the term "realm" in a speech introducing Mr. Churchill at a state dinner here last month and is known to favor it. Mr. St. Laurent later told reporters he likes the term because it puts members of the Commonwealth on an equal basis.

Constable Wounds Assailant in Head

Toronto, Feb. 11—(CP)—Robert Cosloff, 21, lies seriously wounded in hospital today from a bullet wound suffered when Constable George Mattison fired in an attempt to stop two men from fleeing arrest.

The policeman had surprised the two men in an alley behind a suburban Scarborough grocery store Saturday night.

Police said the constable had been kicked and beaten by the men with a lead pipe and a butt of a revolver and had fired at them as they fled over a fence.

Other policemen found Cosloff lying on the ground wounded. He will undergo an emergency operation to remove a piece of skull pressing on his brain.

Shortly after the shooting James Cuthbertson, 22, was arrested in a stolen car and was charged with Cosloff with attempted shopbreaking, car theft, assaulting a policeman, carrying offensive weapons, and having burglary tools.

Plunges Down Like Meteor from 1,000 Feet After Take-off

Crash Halts All Operations At Busy Newark Airport

Elizabeth, N.J., Feb. 11 — (AP) — A crippled airliner roared down into this frightened, crash-plagued city today, sliced into a big apartment house and blew up — the third major air disaster within the city in less than two months.

There were 29 known dead, and three persons unaccounted for, making a possible death toll of 32. At least 115 have perished in the three, successive residential-district crackups.

The National Airlines DC-6, disabled by engine trouble at 1,000 feet in a clear midnight sky, nosed over — and like two others before it — plunged down into the city, as residents cringed before the familiar, oncoming scream.

Twenty-eight of the 63 persons aboard the Miami-bound plane, including three of the four member crew, were dead or missing. At least four apartment-house residents were killed. Forty persons, most of them the plane's survivors, were injured—about one third of them seriously.

Two of the four engines of the DC-6 failed shortly after its take-off from the airport. The pilot radioed a final, terrified, "Can't make it back." Then his plane nosed over and roared to the earth.

It ripped into the top of the four-storey brick apartment house. Flames burst from the building as the plane caromed off, breaking into blazing wreckage int a tree-into blazing wreckage into a treeren's home.

36 Escape Injuries

Unlike the other two crashes, in which all plane passengers and crew were killed, 36 of those aboard the plane escaped with injuries. But like the second crash just 20 days ago, it wreaked death on the ground. At least three of the dead were residents of the apartment house.

Townspeople awakened in terror as they heard the oncoming roar from above— the air their mayor has called an "umbrella of death."

It was like a familiar signal in this industrial city of 110,000, about 10 miles south of New York City.

Dropped in Flames

Last Dec. 16, a non-scheduled C-46 dropped in flames into the Elizabeth River, killing all 56 aboard. Jan. 22, an American Airlines Convair hurtled into a residential district killing all 23 aboard and seven residents.

Egypt Situation Vastly Improved

Ismailia, Egypt, Feb. 11. (Reuters)— Restriction of movements in this once-terrorized zone were generally relaxed by Birtish army headquarters this week-end because the situation has "vastly improved", it was announced today.

Lt.-Gen. Sir George Erskine, after a secret conference Saturday with the Egyptian governor of the Suez Canal zone, Abdel Hady Ghazaly, armed 40 more Egyptian police and removed all military road blocks and check points on the main road from Port Said to Suez.

Strict British control is still in force over traffic on all other roads leading out of the zone into the delta. All vehicles still are subject to search.

The total of oil tankers and trainloads of fertilizer leaving the zone was also stepped up, a headquarters statement said.

The relaxations are considered necessary to aid the new Egyptian government in its declared task of restoring the country's disrupted economy.

Coronation Ceremony Will be Solemn, Religious and Triumphant Occassion

London, Feb. 11—(AP) — The coronation of 25-year-old Queen Elizabeth II in Westminster Abbey will be a most solemn religious ceremony as well as a triumphant state occasion.

The date for the coronation has not been announced.

The ceremony itself is an ordeal of strength, lasting several hours in its intricate ceremonial. Queen Elizabeth will be arrayed in three sets of robes: a crimson robe of state on entering Westminster Abbey, the coronation vestments with a dazzling Imperial mantle of gold cloth, and a robe of royal purple velvet worn in the procession from the Abbey.

The Archbishop of Canterbury will anoint the Queen on her head, chest, and the palms of her hands with oil from a golden spoon. He will say:

Before the Queen is crowned she will take her coronation oath to govern her people according to their laws and customs.

At the moment of the coronation, Queen Elizabeth will be seated. The dean of Westminster will carry the crown which the Archbishop will place on Her Majesty's head.

At that instant, the entire assembly will shout: "God save the Queen." The peers and heraldic kings of arms will don their coronets, trumpets will sound, and the great guns at the tower of London will boom.

After the crowning the Archbishop pronounces a benediction, the Sovereign takes her throne, and the Archbishop delivers an exhortation.

Another moment of drama follows this homage. Drums beat, trumpets sound, and the assembly shouts:

"God save the Queen. Long live the Queen! May the Queen live forever."

The young Queen's final solemn moment will be at the high altar of the Abbey where she will take communion. Then, amid a flash of naked swords she will join a triumphant procession from the Abbey.

S. R. McCrory Construction Company, Belleville, Ont., has been awarded the contract for the 15-inch sanitary sewers at Cobourg, Ont., and 200-foot tunnel under the C.N.R. and C.P.R. Railways' tracks. Work to commence immediately.

GUIDES TO WEAR ARMBANDS AT SERVICE

Mrs. R. Arnott, Division Commissioner for Hastings of the Canadian Girl Guides, received notice from Mrs. T. R. Traynor, public relations commissioner of the same organization, that the Guiders and Commissioners in the area are to wear three-inch black armbands when attending public memorial services in uniform.

All social functions are to be cancelled until after the funeral but regular meetings will continue.

Double Funeral For Victims Of Drowning

A double funeral for Jack Edwin Phillips, Glen Miller and his daughter, Hazel Mary Phillips, victims of a drowning accident in the Trent River Friday night was held this Monday afternoon at Trenton.

The funeral took place from the Weaver Funeral Home to Grace United Church, where service was conducted by Rev. G. A. Puttenham. Interment was in Woods Cemetery, Cramahe township.

The funeral was largely attended, attesting to the high esteem in which the two were held in the community.

The late Mr. Phillips was born 50 years ago in Murray township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John L. Phillips and had lived at Glen Miller for the past six years. Prior to that time he had lived in Murray township. He worked as security guard at the Bata Shoe plant at Batawa.

The family attended Grace United Church where Hazel was a Sunday School student. She was a pupil at Glen Miller public school. An only child, she was born at Campbellford 10 years ago.

Mr. Phillips is survived by his wife, the former Rosanna Vanslycke; four sisters, Mrs. Alton (Irene) Haynes of Colborne; Mrs. Roger (Pauline) Samis, Toronto; Mrs. Roy (Clara)Samis, Colborne, and Mrs. Louis (Jennie) Herrington of the United States; four brothers, Hermon of Cloyne; Herbert, Bowmanville; Orlaph of Brighton and Norman of Morganston. Two brothers and two sisters pre-deceased him.

Bearers for Mr. Phillips were Ed Mulligan, Ed McGeachie, Art Duncan, Basil Brooks, Harold Holmes and Curtiss Orr.

Slippery Roads Cause of Number Minor Accidents

Slippery highway conditions were responsible for a series of motor accidents Saturday afternoon which sent several persons to hospital for a check-up.

Two accidents occurred within minutes of each other on the Belleville-Trenton highway late Saturday afternoon near Thomas Tourist Camp.

A car driven by Ralph E. Maahs of No. 6 R.D., Trenton went out of control, crossed the highway and went end over end across the ditch and over the highway fence. A passenger in the car, AC 1 Gregory Warzin, of Trenton main station was thrown out of the car and suffered neck injuries. He was brought to Belleville hospital in Bush's ambulance and later transferred to the RCAF hospital at Trenton.

The car was badly damaged with the top being badly crushed down as the vehicle rolled over. O.P.P. Constable McBride investigated.

In a second accident occurring almost at the same time and place, a car driven by William Duncan, Toronto, went out of control and smashed into a hydro pole as it skidded off the highway. An airman passenger in the car, Jack Rose, suffered leg bruises. The accident was investigated by O.P.P. Robertson.

PROFIT PYRAMID

Blenheim, N.Z. (CP) — Cars are really scarce in New England. Way back in 1943 a Blenheim man bought an ancient vehicle for $18, repaired it and resold it for $37. Since then the auto has changed hands several times and it cost its present owner $660.

Over 130 members of the Belleville Shrine Club and their guests paid signal honor to Rameses Temple Divan, Toronto and special tribute to a newly-appointed member from their own ranks at an outstanding Shrine function held in the club on Saturday night.

President D. L. Storey, of the Belleville Shrine Club, recently elected Oriental Guide and member of the Divan was honored by his fellow shriners with handsome gifts, albeit one was in absentia Shriner Lionel Crawford in paying verbal tribute to President Storey reviewed the progress and forward march of the club since President Storey has held the reins of president. "The gift of a handsome fez," he said, would be made later since it had not arrived in time for presentation. He then presented the new Oriental Guide with a be-ribboned walking stick.

Presented with Gifts

Special guests of the club and recipients of handsome gifts were members of the Divan headed by Illustrious Potentate W. Reg. Shaw. With Potentate Shaw were assistants to the potentate Fred Midgeley; High Priest and Prophet, Arnold Taylor; treasurer Bill Massey; Henry Tough, recorder; Jim Bartlet, personal aids to the potentate. Bill Corman, another member of the Divan was unable to be present.

Special Guests

Other guests included past-potentate Dr. Grant Fraser, Madoc, Past Potentate Harold McConnell; His Worship Mayor McLean Haig, Belleville, Mayor Harvey McFarland, Picton; Warden Lee Grills, Hastings County; Frank S. Follwell, M. P. Hastings South, George S. White M.P. Hastings - Peterborbugh, Elmer Sandercock, M. P. P., Hastings East and Fred Ward, Picton.

Outstanding vocal entertainment was provided by the Rameses Temple Chanters, a six - man group of singers led by Shriner Tom Rogers. The sextet, aided by Potentate Shaw offered several selections and were given a splendid ovation. They were presented with gifts.

Shriner Orliff Lloyd formally welcomed the Divan in a brief lighter-vein address. He presented each member with a cigarette lighter. Official welcome to the city was given by Mayor Haig who paid tribute to the Shrine Club for the excellent work they are doing for the crippled children of the city and district.

Mayor Harvey McFarland of Picton also spoke briefly as did Messrs. Follwell, Sandercock, Lee Grills and Fred Ward. Tribute was also paid to Shriner Ed Cherry who is celebrating his 46th year as a member of the Shrine.

Shriner Charles Cawker acted as master-of-ceremonies for the dinner party. He assured the Divan of the sincerity of welcome of the Belleville club, paying tribute to the work it has done and is doing for crippled children. "It is a credit to the entire community," he said. He congratulated the new Oriental guide on his attainment to high office. He hoped, he added, that the reception to the Divan would become an annual event, as an expression of appreciation of the work the Divan is doing.

First Official Visit

Illustrious Potentate Shaw remarking on the fact it was the first official visit of the Divan to Belleville expressed its appreciation of the warm reception. He welcomed President Storey to Divan membership saying it would bring renown to his club. For his work, the potentate said "I say, well done."

Former chairman of the board Lionel Crawford in a brief presentation address to the new Oriental guide outlined the work the Belleville club has done and is doing. "With regard to crippled children the Belleville club can hold its head high in this respect," he said. Also it has done a wonderful job with regard to Christmas seals.

Oriental Guide Storey spoke very briefly. He expressed his appreciation of the honor bestowed on him and the tangible tributes paid him by fellow shriners. "I'll start pitching right away," he smiled.

Later he expressed the club's appreciation to Stewardess Mrs. Woodhouse for the excellency of the dinner, presenting her with a special gift from the club.

The club through chairman Cawker announced it would sponsor the annual Police-Firemen's hockey game. Representatives of the departments were present and offered the sponsorship to the club with all proceeds going to the Crippled Children's Fund.

Major Goforth Given High Post In Chaplain Corps

Major, the Rev. J. F. Goforth, beloved padre of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and Army Protestant chaplain for the New Brunswick and Eastern Ontario areas, has been appointed to the newly-created post of director of moral and religious education for the Royal Canadian Army Chaplain Corps. He will leave Kingston soon for his new headquarters in Ottawa.

In 1940 Major Goforth became chaplain of the Hasty Pees and went overseas in 1941. He saw service with the regiment in Italy and northwest Europe being awarded the Military Cross for his work near Ortona.

Since 1946 he has been chaplain at the Royal Military College and the Kingston area.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE LAID

Bowmanville, Feb. 11 (CP)—Provincial Constable Lorne Galbraith said last night that a manslaughter charge has been laid against James Holtby, 41, of nearby Maple Grove.

Holtby is accused of being the driver of a truck involved in an accident that took the life of George Oulds, 37, of Bewdley, Ont., two weeks ago. Oulds was a passenger in an automobile in collision with the truck.

Church Leader Says King George Was Overworked

London, Feb. 11—(AP)—A high Anglican Church leader said last night that Britain overworked King George VI. He asked his fellow countrymen to spare their new Queen from so much pressure.

Dr. A. C. Don, Dean of Westminster Abbey, in a sermon at the Abbey praised the late King's devotion to duty, adding that "the public have taken advantage of these qualities."

The Dean's statement emphasized suggestions in some sections of the British press that overwork had hastened the King's death.

Last September the King underwent an operation for removal of a cancerous lung. Prior to that he had suffered from a circulatory ailment.

FOR SIMPLE ENGLISH

London (CP) — An article in a local magazine says council agendas and committee reports need purging of "lazy, sloppy, circumlocutory and obscure English." Sometimes, the article said, official reports are guilty of "downright poor grammar".

Obituary

ISAIAH BOYD
(Campbellford)

Campbellford—Isaiah Boyd, a well known resident of this community, died suddenly at his Bridge Street west residence on Friday following a heart seizure at his work. He was 76.

Mr. Boyd was born at Blairton, the son of the late George M. Boyd and Matilda Finkle. He married Alda Little at the turn of the century, and the couple would have celebrated their fifty-first wedding anniversary on Feb. 12. Mrs. Boyd survives.

Isaiah, or "Ike" as he was known to his friends, was a familiar figure in the town and was an operator of the town power house for 32 years. He walked the three miles to and from the power house each day, and residents could almost set their watches by his regular trips to and from work. On leaving the power house, three years ago, Mr. Boyd became the night watchman at the fire hall, and was at his job there when he suffered an attack on Thursday night. He was a member of the Orange Order and attended St. John's United Church. He had lived in Campbellford for 44 years.

Surviving are also two sons, George D. Boyd, Toronto, and Harry I. Boyd, Tavistock, and one daughter, Mrs. Bert Adams (Ina), of Belleville. One son, Jack, predeceased his father about four years ago. There are also two sisters, Mrs. Charles Duncalf, of Campbellford, and Mrs. Ellen Wood, Belleville.

The Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith, of St. John's United Church, conducted funeral services on Monday from the family residence. Interment was made in Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

VERNON WOODBECK
(Belleville.)

Ill for the past six years, Vernon Woodbeck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Woodbeck, died in Ongwanada Hospital, Kingston, on Saturday. He was 25.

Born at Stirling, Mr. Woodbeck was a veteran of the Second World War and has been hospitalized since his return from overseas in 1945.

He is survived by his wife, the former Janet Kuluk: his parents; one sister, Mrs. Malcolm (June) Carruthers, Belleville, and one brother, Clinton Woodbeck, of this city.

The funeral is being held Tuesday from the Jamieson Reid Funeral Home, Kingston, with interment at Cataraqui Cemetery.

DR. ROY M. SARLES
(Wellington)

Dr. Roy M. Sarles, well known Prince Edward county physician at Wellington, died at Sunnybrook Hospital in Toronto on Saturday. He had been ill two weeks.

Born at Frankford, Dr. Sarles was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sarles. He was a 1928 graduate of the University of Toronto Medical School and had practised in Wellington for 17 years. Prior to that time he had practised medicine in the state of Michigan.

He was a member of St. Andrew's Anglican Church at Wellington, and was also a member of the Masonic Lodge, A.F. & A.M. No. 164 at Wellington and of the Prince Edward Chapter R.A.M., Picton. He was a veteran of the First World War.

Surviving besides his wife, the former A. Fern Ford, are two daughters, Miss Fern Sarles and Miss Sally Sarles, both of Toronto, and one son Jon Sarles, at home. One brother, Francis Sarles, lives at Minneapolis, Minnesota.

News of Trenton

Harry Dunk New Manager Of Theatre

Trenton (Special) —Trenton has a new theatre manager in Harry Dunk, who has replaced Gibb Martin, nearly 15 years manager of the Trent Theatre here. Mr. Martin is retiring from show business after a long and successful career, mostly in Trenton. Mr. Martin started here as an operator of the old Weller's theatre on King Street, which was torn down to make way for parking space in the downtown section.

His successor is a westerner who claims Deloraine, Man. as his place of birth. He was assistant manager of the Odeon Theatre in Peterborough before coming here.

Mr. Dunk first tried radio and worked at radio stations in Timmins, Kingston and Peterborough.

Mr. Dunk's wife and three children will be taking up residence here as soon as they locate housing.

Cash and Empty Safe Taken In Break-in

Trenton (Special)— Thieves over the weekend broke into Thompson's Wholesale office on the Carrying Place road and carted away a 500-pound empty safe. From $50 to $60 in cash was reported stolen from a cabinet file as well as a small amount of cash in a Coca-Cola machine.

Trenton police alerted other police departments in the district as well as provincial police.

Gould's Jewelers Hockey Victors

Trenton (Special) —Scoring two goals in overtime, Gould's Jewelers of Trenton defeated Norwood 8-6 in a southern division Trent Valley League game in Norwood Saturday night.

Points have not been computed but the win brought the Trenton team close on the heels of the second place Belleville Glen Roys. Trenton Flyers led the league by a comfortable margin.

Trenton Firemen Kept Busy By Three Fires

Trenton — (Special) — Since Friday three alarms kept Trenton firemen on their toes but in each incident damage was negligible.

A blow-torch caught on fire and threatened to blow up in Lou Turgeon's garage on Leopold Street. The handler realized the danger and threw it out in the snow where it burned itself out by the time firemen arrived.

Summoned to the town sheds on Meyer's Street on Saturday, firemen found sparks pouring out of the chimney on the building and quickly attended to the overheated condition.

A false alarm yesterday gave the new pumper a long run to the Trenton Air Station. According to Fire Chief Harry Fillion, the signal at the base was set-off by accident.

W.H. Ireland Seriously Ill Leg Amputated

Trenton — (Special)— William H. Ireland, former M.P.P., who underwent a serious operation in Toronto last Thursday was reported today to have shown marked improvement. One of Mr. Ireland's legs was amputated when complications from an earlier seizure threatened his life.

Active in business until stricken around the middle of last month, Mr. Ireland had given freely of his time to the betterment of Trenton and district. His latest activities as chairman of the Trenton Memorial Hospital Board took a heavy toll of his waning strength.

SEVENTEEN CARS DERAILED

Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 11 — (CP) — Seventeen cars of an eastbound Canadian Pacific Railway freight train were derailed early today near Eley, about 70 miles east of here. No one was injured.

A railway official said it was expected to have the tracks cleared by 7 p.m. today. Meanwhile, passengers aboard a train from Toronto, due here at 1.30 p.m., will be rerouted by bus.

IN MEMORIAM

MORGAN. — In loving memory of a dear son, Roy McMurray Morgan, who died February 11th, 1951.

He bade no one a last farewell
He said goodbye to none,
The heavenly gates were opened wide
A loving voice said "Come."
We often sit and think of you
The things you used to say and do;
We wonder why you had to die
Without a chance to say goodbye.
—Too dearly loved to be forgotten.
Mother and Dad. F11

MORGAN. — In loving memory of a dear brother, Roy McMurray Morgan, who died February 11th, 1951.

The midnight stars are shining
Upon your silent grave.
Beneath it sleeps the one we loved,
The one we could not save.
—Lovingly remembered by sisters Aileen and Ruth, and brothers Elmer, Roscoe, Harry and sister-in-law Lois.
F11

BEST. — In loving memory of a dear wife, Mildred Grace Best, who passed away February 10th, 1948.

The rolling stream of life goes on
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the time, the voice, the smile
Of her who once sat there.
—Sadly missed by husband Jack.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 11 (CP)—Industrial and western oil prices dipped sharply today in early afternoon dealings. Golds and base metals weakened slowly.

Trading was active as western oils and lower-priced base metal speculation again dominated exchange activity. It was a secondary gold, however—American Yellowknife — that attracted most interest as it added pennies in a turnover of more than 200,000 shares.

Utilities, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous issues led industrials lower while papers, agricultures, foods, banks and textiles weakened steadily. Steels, liquors and refining oils drew firm support while retail stores edged upward.

Western oil losses ranged from pennies to abouet 25 cents. Calgary and Edmonton, Canadian Atlantic, New British Dominions, Pacific Petroleum and Scurry traded lower.

Base metal leaders were mixed. International Nickel, Noranda, Normetal and Waite Amulet strengthened while Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge and Labrador weakened.

Norwegian King Now in London For Funeral

London, Feb. 11. —(Reuters)— King Haakon of Norway arrived here today as the first of a long list of monarchs and state representatives coming to attend the funeral Friday of King George VI

From Moscow came the announcement that the Russian representative will be Georgi Zarubin, Soviet Ambassador in London. The British Embassy formally informed the Soviet Foreign Minister, Andrei Vishinsky, of the King's funeral and invited a Russian delegation to attend.

The Netherlands will be represented by Foreign Minister Dirk U. Stikker as well as Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard.

Grand Duchess Charlotte, sovereign of Luxembourg, will also attend the funeral, accompanied by her consort, Prince Flix, it was announced today. They will be accompanied by Foreign Minister Joseph Bech.

Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett of Israel will leave Paris for London, Thursday. to attend.

L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister, will attend the funeral.

19 Skiers Killed In Avalanche

Vienna, Feb. 11 (AP)—Nineteen skiers were killed and 10 injured early today when an avalanche buried an Alpine hut near the Aalberg Pass, the Austrian News Agency said.

Twenty other persons in the hut were dug out by rescue squads.

Most of the dead and injured were German skiers.

The avalanche occurred on the slopes of Hohe Ifen Mountain, which marks the border between Austria and Germany southwest of the German town of Oberstdorf.

An Austrian policeman reported:

"Everything is smashed to pieces. The avalanche must have come down about 1.30 a.m. and caught all the skiers fast asleep. They said they heard only a sudden terrible noise and then the roof cracked like cardboard."

Heavy snow plagued several sections of Austria today after the deepest fall in many years.

Avalanches cut several railway lines.

Reports from Linz said an avalanche in Upper Austria toppled a freight train from the line. Two workers were injured.

In the Tyrol, avalanches destroyed two houses but no loss of life was reported.

Four Spent Night On Drifting Floe

The Indians, returning to their homes on Christian Island after a shopping trip to Penetanguishene, were trapped on the floe when a gale broke up the ice.

They are Clarenne Essen, Eldie Sylvester, Wilmer Mecue and Horace Sandy.

Truck Hits Gas Car

Pembroke, Ont., Feb. 11—(CP) —One man was killed and two others injured today when a heavily-loaded transport truck crashed into a railway gasoline car at a level crossing eight miles east of here.

Killed was Sam Garretto of Pembroke, Canadian National Railways section man in charge of the gas car.

Taken to hospital were two other Pembroke men, Ernie Stencill, who suffered severe head lacerations and possible fractured ribs and internal injuries, and Mike Furgock, with a broken leg.

Queen Dedicates Life to State In Message

London, Feb. 11 (Reuters)— Queen Elizabeth today pledged herself in a message to parliament to follow the example of "selfless dedication" set by her father.

Prime Minister Churchill brought the message to the House of Commons to be read by the Speaker, William Morrison.

The message said:

"I know the House of Commons mourns with me the untimely death of my dear father.

"In spite of failing health he upheld to the end the ideal to which he pledged himself of service to his peoples and the preservation of constitutional government.

"He has set before me an example of selfless dedication which I am resolved with God's help faithfully to follow."

A similar message was read in the House of Lords.

Churchill then moved an address be presented to the Queen conveying the deep sympathy of the House.

The motion assured the Queen that the late King's "inspiring devotion and service to his peoples and his inspiring example in the time of their greatest peril" would always be held in affection and grateful remembrance by them.

Churchill also moved that messages of condolence be sent to the Queen Mother and Queen Mary.

Queen Proclaimed As 'Elizabeth' In Scottish Towns

Barrhead, Scotland, Feb. 11—(Reuters)— Queen Elizabeth II was proclaimed in at least two Scottish towns merely as "Elizabeth" and not "Elizabeth II" —because she is the first Elizabeth to become Queen of Scotland.

Provost R. L. Hutchison of Barrhead said yesterday that he omitted the number when reading the proclamation of the Queen's accession Friday.

"There was no political significance in it," he said "and no disrespect was intended in any way. It was just a mild reminder of Scottish history."

"Provost C. Stewart Black, of Paisley, who is a notable Scottish historian, proclaimed the new Queen in the same way," Hutchison said.

England and Scotland were separate kingdoms until the death of England's Queen Elizabeth I, April 10, 1603.

Obituary

MARINUS S. WHITTEN

In failing health for some time, Marinus S. Whitten, prominent stockman and farmer of Prince Edward County near Bloomfield, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Sunday, following a stroke on Thursday of last week.

Mr. Whitten has resided in Prince Edward County for the past 41 years and was well known and highly respected in the community. He took an active interest in his adopted county, and was a successful farmer and had a wide circle of friends, who will sincerely regret his death. He was fond of sports and was a regular attendant at the wrestling matches held weekly at the Memorial Arena.

He was born in the United States 61 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Whitten. He was a member of the United Church and surviving are his wife, the former Lena Echart, one son Robert, at home, a daughter, Ruth, and one brother Austin H. Whitten of Almonte.

Resting at the Hicks Funeral Home in Picton the funeral will be held on Tuesday with entombment in Glenwood Cemetery vault.

Committed for Trial

Sweetsburg, Que., Feb. 11 (CP) —George A. Dubois, 27-year-old "Granby millionaire" today was committed for trial at the next term of the Court of Queen's bench on five counts of obtaining money under false pretences.

Dubois is accused of having fleeced Adeodat Marquette, Granby restaurateur, of more than $80,000 during a two year period. He was allowed $10,000 bail.

Drunken Brawl Brings About Death of Man

Windsor, Feb. 11 (CP) —A drunken brawl brought about the death of Earl Joseph Leboeuf, 32, whose body was found in a downtown apartment building, police said today.

They said they were summoned early Sunday to the Fielding apartments in east-central Windsor where Leboeuf's body was found in the room of Thornton Prest, 42. Prest is being held in connection with the death.

Detective Inspector James Campbell said that Prest will be charged with manslaughter.

The dead man's uncle, Samuel J. Leboeuf, 52, said he met his nephew Saturday in a downtown beer parlor where they had a "few beers." Later they met Prest and the three left to go to Prest's room at the Fielding Apartments.

When they were in the alleyway leading to the rear apartment where Prest lives, an argument started, Samuel said.

"There was only one blow struck that I know of. Earl was hit on the jaw as he stood against the brick wall. He fell to the ground unconscious. Prest and myself lifted him up and carried him to the apartment and put him on the bed. Then we poured cold water on his face and when he appeared to be coming round I left.

Sameul Leboeuf could not say who struck the blow that felled Earl in the alleyway.

Dr. C. V. Mills, coroner, said death was due to a "brain hemorrhage as the result of external violence of some sort."

Earl Leboeuf, a Chrysler Corporation employee, was a veteran of the Second World War. Captured at Dieppe, he was a prisoner of war in Germany for two years and nine months.

He is survived by his widow, Doris, and two daughters, Jennifer 6 and Carol Ann, 3.

Province-Wide Strike Threatened By Latest Action

Halifax, Feb. 11—(CP)— Nova Scotia teachers' demands for higher wages have threatened to mushroom into the first province-wide strike of its kind in Canadian history.

The Nova Scotia Teachers' Union voted Saturday in favor of strike action on a provincial basis to enforce demands for better pay.

The announcement was made by Union President Gerald Tingley of Amherst. A total of 1,658 voted for strike action, 952 against.

"The executive," Mr. Tingley said, "is not recommending strike action at the present time since the 'yes' vote for the provincial strike represents only 63.5 per cent of those voting."

Memebrs also voted to establish a fund to support the 243 Cape Breton rural and village teachers now on strike. Their walkout, which began 11 days ago, was against wishes of the union executive, and marked the first teachers' strike in Nova Scotia's history.

They left their classrooms when the municipality turned down their request for a $300 yearly salary increase on the grounds that the responsibility for teachers' salaries fell on the province.

Premier Macdonald's government says that it is already paying more than its share of education costs.

County Council, meanwhile, will consider a proposal later this week that the teachers be given a $300 interim bonus pending the clarification on the matter.

About 5,000 children are affected by the strike. The teachers declare they would not return until their wage demands were met.

The Nova Scotia union said there will be another meeting of the parent body in Halifax Feb. 23. It also asked locals to continue negotiations on a local level and warned that it would not support further independent strike action.

Salaries paid to teachers are set by the individual school sections except that they must not fall below minimum set by the provincial government.

These floor salaries range upward from $650 yearly for permissive teachers—those with no formal training—to a starting salary of $1,920 for those with an academic licence—which req six or more years training a Garde 11.

There is also a provincial based on type of licence and y of service.

Royal Sidelights

London, Feb. 11 (AP) — More than 1,000,000 soccer and rugby football fans throughout Britain paid a last tribute Saturday to King George VI.

At every field spectators and players stood for a moment of silence before the games began and then joined in singing "Abide With Me," one of the late Monarch's favorite hymns.

London, Feb. 11 (AP) —Vantage points along the funeral procession route for King George VI next Friday were selling as high as £105 in London last night.

Householders on the way were doing a land office business in window space. A theatre ticket agency was getting £50 a person for space at second floor windows in the Paddington Hotel.

London, Feb. 11 (AP) — The Empire-minded Sunday Express suggests yesterday that Queen Elizabeth II give up permanent residence in London and live a year at a time in each Dominion.

"All over the Empire," the newspaper says editorially, "our peoples are beginning to say that the monarch who is the constitutional ruler of all of them should consider dwelling among each of them in turn."

The paper says the "idea has been mooted in Australia" of buying the Queen a house there.

London, Feb. 11 (Reuters) —The BBC has arranged to televise parts of the funeral processions of King George VI in London and Windsor next Friday, it was announced Saturday.

The funeral service itself, in St. George's Chapel, Windsor, will be broadcast but not televised.

ENOUGH TROUBLE HERE NOW

Down at a place called St. Paul l'Ermite in Quebec, e the federal government's immigration branch main- s a hostel for the immigrants which it is importing n Europe, they have just finished another strike. Like one at the same place about a month ago, this latest ke was a hunger strike, staged by two hundred newly- ved Europeans.

There was a good deal of disorder, it seems, while the ke lasted. The Union Jack was hauled down and re- ced by a black flag, the traditional symbol of piracy. hether this black flag bore the skull and crossbones, our ormant did not make clear.) Large placards, in Eng- , French and Yugoslav, informed anyone interested as the nature of the strikers' grievances. Some of these cards said: "We want jobs." Others said: "We want wives." At least one of them said: "Long live Stalin."

It is worthy of note that, before this strike was staged, strikers had received a telegram from Labor Minister egg stating that he would fly his immigration director Geneva, Switzerland, to speed the movement of the kers' families to Canada. It is also worthy of note that G. Andrews, the director of the hostel, produced a ter, written to one of the strikers by his wife from Camp sum, Germany, announcing that the wives of these Dis- ced Persons had also staged a strike in protest against ng separated from their mates. The wives of these placed Persons, it seems, are as capable of staging ikes as their husbands.

Cabinet ministers and other responsible spokesmen the government have made it plain that it is Ottawa's tled policy to continue bringing these Displaced Per- ns from Europe to this country. Statements to the effect at there is need for increasing Canada's labor force have en repeated so often and so emphatically that a good ny people have ceased to question the veracity of such tements. (Didn't some politician or other once declare at, if you shout something loudly enough, and repeat it en enough, everyone will finally believe it?

Whether this country needs immigration or not is a estion to which it is easy to get an answer, but the ture of the answer will depend on the economic status the individual asked. If the person asked is an ployer or labor, particularly a large employer of labor, e answer will be: "Certainly we need immigration, if we e ever going to achieve our destiny, develop our natural sources - - -" If the person asked is someone who works wages, the answer is much more likely to be something e this: "Need immigration? Of course not. We have ound 100,000 unemployed in Ontario alone, right now. hy bring immigrants, when there is not enough work our own people?"

But even those who are the most ardent advocates of migration must admit that there is something wrong out the methods by which these immigrants are chosen. ories about these newly-arrived Displaced Persons get- g into mischief of one kind or another — some of it o serious to be called mischief — are cropping up alto- ther too frequently. A good many of them are obviously need of discipline.

Even if there are temporary difficulties about finding rk for them without displacing the natives, it is admit- d that immigrants of the right type will become, in the nal analysis, an asset to the country which admits them. ut it is extremely doubtful if some of these people who ave been arriving at St. Paul l'Ermite lately are the best at could be found. It may be the meshes in the screen sed by the immigration officers in Europe are a little too rge.

TOBACCO CROPS TO BE REDUCED

Among those who are taking a beating these days are e tobacco farmers of southewestern Ontario. Due to lling markets, the growers of flue-cured tobacco have greed, reluctantly, to reduce their acreage from 120,000 78,000 for the 1952 growing seasons.

The reasons given for this unpleasant state of affairs ere: (1) announcement by the government of Great ritain that there would be a sharp decrease in purchases tobacco in Canada and (2) falling domestic consump- ion duto to heavy taxation.

The tobacco farmers realize that the British are re- ucing their purchases of Canadian tobacco through nec- ssity, not through choice, but they also realize that the eavy taxation to which their product is being subjected Canada is being done through choice and not through ecessity.

UP HILL ROAD

The road to fame runs all up hill
And none can climb beyond his will.
Along the way, from base to top,
Is many a place where youth can stop,
And very sad it is, and true,
That lacking courage many do.

One danger is the first success
That lurks a lad to doing less
And thinking higher goals are won
With what some yesterday was done.
The urge to climb sets no man free.
What once was best, must bettered be.

Pleasure will tempt a few to stray.
Fatigue will whisper: "Rest today."
Failures and blows that seem unfair
Will cause the timid to despair.
But if the dream be right, don't stop.
Follow the few who reach the top.

Dr. Ed. Pope left today for New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thrasher have returned home after a trip to the west.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SELF-DISCIPLINE

There is no encouragement quite so heartening as the encouragement that comes to us from our own selves for having done what we could in the best possible manner. Encouragement from others, however, in the form of appreciation, helps us to do even better.

I have in mind a beautiful story by John Muir, told in his delightful little dog book, "Stickeen." He told of a long day in the mountains and glaciers and being caught in a snow storm. They came to a dangerous crossing, which the great naturalist made carefully and successfully, but the little dog hesitated. Finally the little fellow made it and was so overjoyed that he bounced up and down before his friend, inviting appreciation for his feat!

It is not enough to have achieved a triumph. We like to be told about it by others to help make us do better things. Primarily, however, we must always look to ourselves for applause, as Burton has so well written in his great poem 'Kasidah." It is self-discipline that carries us to high ground.

No book I have ever read tells about the self-discipline of a man as does the Autobiography of Montaigne, which was so skillfully woven together many years ago from Montaigne's own essays by Marvin Lowenthal. As the author said: "It was a dramatic labor—a man painting himself while the heavens fell, painting in order to master himself and, so he hoped, offer amid the fall mastery to others."

It was self-discipline that enabled W. E. Henley to write that inspiring poem "Invictus," in which he stated: "I am the master of my fate. I am the captain of my soul!" He wrote these famous line when he was threatened with the loss of his leg and was in a hospital for months. His faith and courage triumphed.

So long as we live we shall remain our best friends and our worst enemies. We must look to ourselves for the salvation which we so much desire. No one else can master us without our own consent.

Found Meters Worked Fine

West Warwick, R.I., Feb. 11 (AP)—William Gildea, the salesman who sold West Warwick its new parking meters last September, dropped in at the police station last night to see how his meters were running and promptly found out they are in A-1 working condition.

Patrolman Frederick Rzemien slapped a tag on Gildea's car for overtime parking outside the police station.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

THE STYLE SHOP

My wife, who's as much the Eternal Female as the next party, has got herself a "poodle" hair cut and looks, as one would naturally expect, like the wrath of God. (This is between you and me.)

A younger or more newly-married man would be unable to resist the temptation for some sort of wry comment on her appearance or some little joke.

There's a carton of Dr. Ballard's dog biscuits in the cupboard, for example, and it's all I can do to resist the obvious prank. But the years have brought me wisdom. I am a coward, but a wise coward. I say nothing.

Anyway, it isn't that I mind her looking like a new rag doll. That will pass with time. In a month or two, with luck, I'll be able to see her again without this sneaky urge to pat her on the head. Once more we'll take our Sunday walks without me holding the leash.

What does concern me is the reminder that, like all women, my wife is a jellyfish in the tide of fashion. It frightens me just a little, as it must have frightened man since the beginning of time.

I can still recall the look of horror in the eyes of my own dear father when Mama came home under that Eugenie hat (this will be before your time) and doubtless the male Ubangi has the same feeling when the female Ubangi returns to the hut with her new lip.

* * *

My wife would laugh at this, and a nasty laugh at that, but I know how this "poodle" hair-do began.

Two men named Pete and Joe got together in a New York office. In public life they would be known as Phillipe or Henri or Gaston or something similar. (A woman will pay $42 to have her hair styled by a refugee from County Cork named Gaston, but wouldn't let a man named Joe put a comb to her Airedale.)

Pete, as chairman of the American Hair Stylists' Institute, is speaking:

"We've finished working out this poodle cut idea, Joe." (Falls down laughing.) It's the craziest one yet! There's not a woman alive who will look like anything but a terrified Hottentot. It'll do wonders for business. Get busy on the usual gimmicks, boy."

Joe: "Right, boss. I thought we'd try for a spread in Life first. They'll put bamboo rings in their silly noses if it's in Life. Then we'll get some of the Hollywood gals—you know, the ones on the down grade who'll do anything to get publicity—and then. . . ."

So is a style born and some weeks later my wife and millions of other outwardly sane women go obediently through the motions, just as if Joe and Pete had wound them up with a magic key.

* * *

The cause for alarm here (and thank God the style-setters have not realized it) is that there's no limit to what women will do if they think it's "being done." Some of you older men will remember the cloche hat. Or, more recently, the ballet slipper fad which made the average woman look like a bowing pin.

I have been wondering what might happen if any of these dictators of styles were to fall by chance on a copy of Edward Westermarck's "History of Human Marriage," a sort of pre-Kinsey Report published in 1891. In this time, under the heading "Means of Attraction" there are dozens and dozens of potential fashions.

Supposing, by way of example, that the jewelry trade discovers that matrons of the Santal race wear two anklets, 12 bracelets and four necklaces, amounting to 34 pounds of bell metal.

The formula would go into operation. Life's cover would show one of those honed, undernourished models in the "new Santal jewelry." The stampede would be on.

Or what if somebody decides that the new fashion should be after the style of the East African Wa-taita, who wears her ear-lobes pulled down almost to the shoulder? You say that women would never go to such extremes? Well the Wa-taita woman did, and for pretty much the same reason that women have gone for the "poodle" hair-do.

* * *

Westermarck made it pretty clear, if it wasn't already, that women do these things—consciously or unconsiciously—as a method of attracting or holding a mate.

What bangles cut from the chank shell are to the Veddah women the falsie is to the North American. The Shulis cutie and her lip-ring is sister under the skin to the Moose Jaw babe and her platform soles.

The pattern is rigid and it is obeyed. In Brazil the ladies of the Mucura tribe wear absolutely nothing but a string around their middle with a single twig hanging down behind. This is their high fashion and a twig that's too long or too short is just the same as a dress that's too long or too short.

All through Brazil you can hear the native women saying, "I do hope next year's twigs are longer."

I suppose that's why I can't get angry about this canine cut my wifes' pretending to like. After all, she did it for me and while I run giggling from the room whenever I look up, I admire her spunk.

RECTOR RETIRES

Toronto, Feb. 11 (CP)— Canon H. A. Bracken retired this week as head of St. David's Anglican Church where he served for 45 years. He watched the parish grow from a small mission lit by oil lamps into a church of 800 families and encouraged a number of men, including his son, to enter the ministry.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Margarine is spelled like Margaret, but is pronounced like Marjorie. The word comes from the same Greek word as Margaret, meaning a pearl. The inventors of the substance thought it had a beautiful pearly whiteness, and doubtless went to a lot of trouble thinking up a pretty and imposing name for it. Possibly the inventor of margarine had a son or daughter who had gone to college. Now the makers of margarine are spending far more time and a great deal more money to persuade the public that it has not a pearly whiteness, but a perfect and wholly indistinguishable resemblance to butter.

The pronunciation of margarine defies all the laws of spelling. Ga is ga, as in gaga. But even the dictionaries declare that despite the Greek derivation of the word, and despite dear Margaret, margarine is marjerine. That is what they call it in England, placing the accent on the first syllable, mar. Over here, a great many people put the accent on the first syllable, calling it marjereen.

Slowly and surely the American style of speech is taking possession of us. A generation is now full grown to adult estate what has been fed on movies and radio since early childhood. Some of them, a fairly large section of them, have spent at least half and maybe more than half as much time listening to radio and attending movies as they spent at school. Five hours a day is school time. How many children run up an average over the week of at least three hours a day of radio and movies?

In a grocery store yesterday I heard a couple of young women asking for mojjerun. And the heck of it is, the young fellow behind the counter knew what they meant.

They were all Canadians.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LIKE A STAINED GLASS WINDOW

We never understand a religious truth until we first accept it. It was the great Anselm, born shortly after A. D. 100, who said this. Few people in human history have ever made a more penetrating observation on religious truth than this.

Religion deals with the unseen world. We have no possible way of getting in touch with that unseen world save through the exercise of faith. None of these five senses enables us to apprehend spiritual truth. The doctrines of religion have to be accepted on faith. If we cannot accept them on faith, then we have sealed unto ourselves the disappointing experience of never being able to understand these truths. But once accepted by faith, religious truths show themselves to be consistent with the best of human reasoning.

Nathaniel Howthorne said that Christianity is like a great cathedral with beautiful stained glass windows. Viewed from outside, these windows are dull and lacking in both beauty and significance. But viewed from within, with the light shining through, the beautiful forms and radiant colors of the windows are vividly apparent.

We have to get on the inside of Christianity and look out, we have to allow its doctrines to embrace us before we know their warmth and vitality.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

THE MEANING OF SYMPATHY

Sometimes I wonder what has happened to the dear old souls who used to chide me for my lack of sympathy, that is, my refusal to go along with their morbid obsessions. Many of them expressed the ironic hope that I might never have a nervous breakdown from the strain of business, social and domestic cares and responsibilities or get chronic rheumatism from undue exposure to the bad climate and weather we have around here. I gave up trying to field that one. It was like jousting with a windmill.

Seriously, it is my observation that sympathy in small doses may be good medicine in selected cases but generally the only sympathy that does any good is expressed in deeds and not by words.

I am as confident as ever, or call it cocksure if you wish, that I'll never have a nervous breakdown or chronic rheumatism from any of the causes the unteachable ones mentioned. Not because I am any less susceptible to environment than any one else, but because I know such causes do not account for any serious impairment of health.

Whether I'm hard-boiled or unsympathetic about it, always in the back of my mind is the thought that such knowledge (or call it just belief if you wish) as I have about the harmlessness of the factors mentioned in comforting in time of difficulty or exposure.

In other words it is good to know that aside from temporary discomfort ordinary "exposure" to cold, wet, sudden change of weather and the like is as harmless to health as a shower bath or, for a child, playing in the snow.

Paradoxically I do feel sorry for any stupe who worries about the likelihood of pneumonia developing in consequence of some extraordinary "exposure" to cold or wet. No, wiseacre, sit down, your out of order.

It is good to know also, or call it believe if you wish, that a job which involves constant "exposure" to cold or dampness may be less comfortable than other jobs but certainly does not impair health or contribute to pneumonia, rheumatiz or other disease.

From a correspondent who identified herself only as "A Surgeon's Wife" I received a furious scolding for my unprofessional conduct and particularly for calling people who suffer from piles stupid . . .

Ah, ah! Not so, lady. I merely offer to send any one who provides a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for it in writing (a clipping will not suffice) a pamphlet titled It Is Stupid to Suffer From Piles. It remains for the reader to decide for himself whether he is stupid. This statement in the pamphlet may account for the lady's anonymity:

> Internal piles, the presence of which can be determined only by visual examination through the speculum—and don't let any trick doctor pretend he can tell whether you have piles without such examination—

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Make Up Your Mind

According to old cadgers (they are excessively fond of my tobacco) it is the Hyde part of me that bowls, and according to many readers I'm certainly not Dr. Jekyll when at work. Some one has said that if you want to make people hate you do them favors. When you ask for my opinion or advice make up your mind and be one or the other but for goodness sake don't be coy about it. If your signature (I always read the signatures first) disguises or conceals your sex your letter goes into the chucker unread.

Pills To Fill Cavities

The only thing that is wrong with me is that I have a lot of cavities. What pills should I take? (K. F.)

Answer—Are you kidding? If not, you may learn something of value to your health by studying the vest-pocket monograph (am I kidding?) Save Your Teeth, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Tonsil Diathermy

I had diathermy (electro-coagulation) treatment of infected tonsils as an alternative for tonsillectomy, which was too great a risk because of my heart trouble. The treatments hurt very little and I had no loss of time from my regular job, nor did I miss a meal. Two other doctors who have examined my throat since—neither knowing about the method used — remarked that whoever removed my tonsils did a good job! (E. D. H.)

Answer—Well, continue. You didn't let it lie there, did you? When you told 'em you had news for them did they froth at the mouth and cuss me out or did they behave like intelligent men?

Hedy Loses One Of Nine Lives

Heardt lit some papers. Out came Hedy, all aglow. She rolled on the floor, setting the rug afire. Then she headed for the attic.

There she extinguished her own blaze. Firemen put out the other.

A veterinarian said Hedy will grow a new coat. Heardt said he'd buy a new rug.

POPULATION DECREASING

Guelph, Feb. 11 (CP) —City assessor Robert W. Brydon reports that the city's dog population is decreasing. A decrease of 59 dogs was recorded between 1950 and 1951—the population dropped from 1,631 to 1,572.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Elliott Hosts To Employees at Annual Dinner

Stirling.—The annual get-together for the employees of Stirling Motors Limited, Elliott's Farm Equipment, both of Stirling, and Elliott Motors Limited, of Belleville, together with their wives and friends was held in the Stirling Community Hall, Wednesday night, with some ninety-seven in attendance.

Mr. W. T. Elliott, the proprietor, and Mrs. Elliott, welcomed the guests, after which all partook of a delicious turkey dinner, served by the ladies of St. Paul's W.A. The tables were adorned with attractive Valentine place cards and red roses, which were later given the ladies. Community singing was led by R. A. Patterson, with Mrs. A. E. Baker, who acted as accompanist throughout the evening, at the piano. Mr. Elliott welcomed the members of his "family" of employees which had grown considerably with his recent purchase of Gourley Motors, Belleville, and called upon Rev. A. E. Baker to act as Master of Ceremonies for a program of musical selections and readings.

The opening number was a banjo selection by Maurice Bell followed by a reading by Miss Roberta Allan, of Marysville, and a cornet solo by Wm. Aylsworth, of Madoc.

Guests Introduced

At this point Mrs. Elliott extended her welcome and introduced those sitting at the head table. A male quartet consisting of Messrs. Jack Bush, Harry Brown, William Aylsworth and Bob Patterson, favored with two numbers, followed by a banjo selection by Maurice Bell.

Birthday and wedding anniversary gifts were presented with Mrs. Bernice Day, and Ross Boyce, both of Belleville winning the birthday awards, and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bell, of Stirling, the latter. Miss Roberta Allan gave a reading and W. Aylsworth a cornet solo.

Presentation Made

A feature of the program was a presentation to a number of employees of Stirling Motors Limited for years of faithful service. Those honored by Mr. Elliott were Messrs. J. E. Sallsbury, Earle Green, Fred Donohoe, Carman Bruce and Howard Juby.

Rev. A. M. Laverty Speaker

The guest speaker, Rev. A. M. Laverty, chaplain of Queen's University, was introduced by Bob Patterson ,and delivered a humorous address on "Keeping People Straight" or "The Art of Remembering Names."

"There is no surer way of influencing people than by knowing them," stated Mr. Laverty. "Our social life is becoming increasingly impersonal and anything that you can do to make people think that they mean something as individuals is good for them and good for you. If people can't count for you as persons, trying to remember names will be difficult."

"First get the name straight, weave an association of facts around it, and use it while talking to the person, and you will have less difficulty in remembering names," stated the speaker. "When you next meet the person try to hit him with his name as quickly as possible and there may grow between you and him a relationship that can be rewarding and satisfying. The world can do with much more kindly personal concern," concluded the speaker.

The program concluded with the quartet singing "I Want My Car To Be A Buick", and all joining in "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

The thanks of the employees to Mr. and Mrs. Elliott for a splendid evening was ably voiced by Russell Pyear, of Elliott's Farm Equipment.

Plaque Presented To Walter Elliott At Case Co. Dinner

Walter T. Elliott

Stirling.—A milestone of interest to many engaged in agriculture in this district was marked at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, on February 1st. During the day the advance showing of the new models of Case tractors and equipment took place, followed by a banquet when some 600 dealers, their wives and salesmen were entertained by the company.

Following the banquet Walter T. Elliott, the local representative of the J. I. Case Co., was honored by the presentation of a bronze plaque, suitably engraved for over 15 years of valued service with the company.

It is 17 years since Mr. Elliott first contracted with the company. At that time, he was living in Murray township and carried on his business from his farm on the 8th line. Fifteen years ago he moved to Stirling and for that period has served the farmers of Hastings, East Northumberland and part of Prince Edward Counties. His business has grown steadily and for 12 years he has been recognized by his company as its highest volume dealer in Ontario.

Although deeply touched by the kind words spoken on his behalf, Mr. Elliott made a fitting reply, confirming his former statements of finding his first joys of salesmanship as the representative of J. I. Case Co., in his section of Eastern Ontario.

EXCELLENT MINK

Churchill, Man. (CP) — Mink from this district are considered of such excellent quality that they are being taken to the experimental fur farm at Fort Garry, Man., for use as breeding stock.

BODY OF KING

At the command of the honor guard officer, the cortege moved out past the thousands, many of whom had waited in the chill drizzle for hours, some all through the night.

Six bay horses of the King's troop of Royal Horse Artillery pulled the caisson past the silent throngs.

The body of the 56-year-old Monarch lay in state amid the simple surroundings of the country church of St. Mary Magdalene at Sandringham until this morning to enable the neighbors and workers to pay their tribute.

All Stations Closed

Skirling bagpipes mournfully bade him farewell there as a gun carriage took the body two miles over country roads to nearby Wolferton Station for the last journey to London. Every station along the 103-mile route to London was closed.

Heedless of wind and rain, the Duke of Edinburgh doffed his hat and walked bareheaded behind the gun carriage in the procession as it moved toward Westminster. The Duke of Gloucester was bareheaded, too. Behind them trudged the black-coated officials of the royal household.

The coffin was draped with the scarlet-and-gold royal standard. The crown rested on a purple cushion, it jewels glistening dully in the sleety rain. Also on the coffin lay a single wreath of white flowers from the Queen Grandmother, Mary.

Remained at Palace

The Queen, with her mother and sister, remained at Buckingham Palace only a few minutes Then the Queen, now accompanied by her 84-year-old grandmother, as well as by her mother and sister, left the great stone palace to attend the short service at Westminster Hall.

The flags of all the Commonwealth made a blaze of color in the great grey hall beneath a window overlooking sombre London. No other banners, wreaths or emblems decorated the walls.

The centuries blended in the scarlet tudor uniforms of Yeomen of the Guard and the dark suits of Winston Churchill and Clement Attlee, present and former prime ministers.

The Speaker of the House, wearing his ceremonial robes of black and gold brocade, followed a sergeant at arms carrying the mace, the emblem of his authority, into the hall. Churchill and Attlee walked behind the speaker at the head of the members of parliament who filed in by pairs.

The six-tiered catafalque, 42 feet long and 17 feet wide, covered with the purple of Royalty, stood in the centre. A tall candle glowed at each corner.

The three Queens stepped from the main entrance of the hall and stood slightly to one side as the cortege came to a halt in front of the hall. The wind lashed at their black veils. All were erect and unbowed, their sorrow screened from onlookers.

Presented Arms

The commander of the honor guard called out, "Royal salute," and the khaki clad troops present- Reuters—Wrestler Achille Amadio and lowered their crepe-draped colors.

A minute later, guardsmen removed their big bearskin hats and marched to the coffin. They carried it slowly toward the grey canopy leading to the hall.

Crowds were packed thick around the courtyard but there was no sound except for the tolling of bells from the tower of nearby Westminster Abbey.

As the casket was carried inside, the Queen Mother stood back and allowed the new Queen to enter first in order of precedence. imitate Daniel in the Lion's Den Norfolk, in scarlet and gold tunic, carried the ceremonial staff of office in his hand and ushered the pallbrearers into the hall.

The services were short. The Queen and other members of the Royal Family appeared again at the door of Westminster and drove off in a limousine.

A simple, poignant procession accompanied the coffin as it left the Sandringham church just at 11 a. m. (6 a. m. EST) today for the two-mile trip to Wolverton railway station and the 110-mile train journey to London.

Family Mourns in Private

For three days the three women had mourned in private, just as any British family. Today they returned to their people and took up their regal missions as Queen Elizabeth II, Britain's 25-year-old Sovereign, the Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

But at Sandringham there were no muffled drums, no bands playing a funeral march, none of the panoply that goes with majesty. Almost the only spot of color in the whole sombre cortege was the gold-and-red quartered Royal standard covering the coffin.

A mournful skirl of bagpipes signalled the departure of the sad procession down the winding country road.

That was the lesson at the brief service in St. Mary Magdalene before the procession set out. Gamekeepers, farmers and woodsmen who had worked for the King joined the Royal Family in mourning.

Foresters Carry Coffin

Eight of the King's foresters carried the coffin on their shoulders to the waiting gun carriage. The King's piper pierced the still air with the notes of "The Flowers of the Forest" and "The Land of the Leal" as the procession moved off.

Just behind the coffin walked the young Queen's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, and the King's brother, the Duke of Gloucester.

Queen Elizabeth, her mother and her sister rode behind them, in a closed black limousine. All three were in black, with heavy veils almost to their shoulders. The young Queen looked strained but composed.

Hundreds of estate workers, villagers and others fell in behind as the procession moved out of the estate.

Thousands Line Road

At Wolferton the coffin was transferred to the same hearse car which had carried the body of the King's father, George V, on the same sad journey from Sandringham to London.

The 10-car funeral train pulled out for the 110-mile trip to London at 12:08 p.m.

At King's Cross, central London rail station, eight pillars forming an archway were draped in black and purple for the arrival of the body at (at 9.45 a.m. EST).

A gun carriage was prepared to receive the coffin for its three-mile, hour-long procession from the station to Westminster Hall. The jewelled Imperial State crown was brought from the Tower of London to be placed on the coffin.

Archbishop to Receive Coffin

In the absence of the ailing Archbishop of Canterbury, the Archbishop of York, Dr. Cyril Garbett, was to receive the coffin at Westminster Hall. Members of the Houses of Lords and Commons also were to be present.

After the coffin is placed atop the purple-draped, diamond-shaped catafalque, a short service will be held. Then the hall will be closed and officers who will form the Guard of Honor during the lying-in-state will take their places, one at each corner of the coffin, facing outward with the points of their swords resting on the ground.

The hall will be open for the homage of the people Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. The coffin will remain closed.

Funeral on Friday

The state funeral procession Friday through the streets of London will begin at 9:30 a.m. be taken to Paddington station bze taken to Paddington station and placed aboard a train to be taken to Windsor Castle. Final rites there before burial in historic St. George's chapel are expected to start at 2 p.m. (9 am. EST).

Built as a roistering place in 1097 by Rufus the Red, son of William the Conqueror, it has survived to absorb history and glory into every stone and beam of its structure.

A purple carpet was spread over the entire floor of the hall to muffle the steps of the mourners. A four-foot-high gold cross was brought from Westminster Abbey for the front of the six-tiered catafalque.

PLUNGES DOWN

Today's plane was two minutes off the ground when its pilot Capt. W. G. Foster, radioed that an engine had failed. The field told him to come back.

Foster started dumping fuel to lighten his load, then another of the four engines went out.

"We were about 1,000 feet up when the motors conked out and made a terrible rumbling noise," said stewardess Nancy Taylor of Coral Gables, Fla., a survivor. "It was the most terrible noise I ever heard.

"As the plane fell, I could hear screams and yells. All the passengers still had their straps around their waists I didn't know whether I was alive or not. My body had been twisted upside down.

In the city below, dwellers leaped from their beds.

"The house shook," said Herman S. Goldford, occupant of the building at the intersection of Salem and Westminster Avenue where the plane struck. "My wife and I got up and grabbed the children and ran, trying to get away. We kept running, trying to get away from the searing heat."

Plane Seats Scattered

The plane broke apart as it tore through the top of the apartment building, leaving fire and explosions in its wake. The rear of the plane landed in a tree, then dropped to the street. The front section shot on into a yard and burst into fire.

Plane seats were scatered along the way. Most of the surviving passengers were reported sitting in the rear of the plane.

"There were pieces of plane all over the place," said Louis Ehrenberg, 45, a nearby resident. "I saw a man and pulled him out. He was dead. We pulled out more people—most of them dying. I picked up one man's arm and it came away from his body. My son picked up a baby. It was dead too."

Explosions rocked the area at intervals.

Elizabeth residents for months have been protesting the planes roaring low over the city as they approached or left the field. Citizen groups had threatened to block the runways with their bodies.

As the plane came down today, it barely missed the Janet Memorial Home, an institution for children of broken homes. Inside 48 children and 12 adults were sleeping.

GOOD NEIGHBOUR POLICY

Hanging out my laundry I noticed that Mrs. Layton's, next door, was whiter. I couldn't help asking her why. 'Reckitt's Blue keeps out that yellow tinge', she said. 'Just swish it through the final rinse. You can only obtain pure white with blue, and you don't take chances with anything that may damage fabric.' That's what I call good neighbourliness and good advice. It's Reckitt's Blue for me from now on, particularly as it costs so little.

Wallbridge W.I. Meets at Home Of Mrs. Nicolson

The January meeting of the Wallbridge Women's Institute was held in the evening at the home of Mrs. S. Nicolson in the form of a social evening with an attendance of 39.

The meeting opened with the Institute ode and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. In the absence of the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Frank Tucker took charge of the minutes. Letter were read from the sick also replies for plants and cards.

An invitation from River Valley Women's Institute to a social evening was accepted. An announcement of the Achievement Day at Madoc was made and arrangements made for as many to attend as possible.

Mrs. Hudson Ketcheson reported on her year's work with the girls' club on the working with woollens for skirts, with two of the girls demonstrating their skirts.

The course this year is called "The Milky Way", with Mrs. Vera Lough appointed leader, and Mrs. H. Ketcheson, assistant.

Mrs. Charles Fair gave a paper on Canadian Industries. A donation of $10 to the March of Dimes was granted.

Business being dealt with, the meeting was turned over to the men, who provided the entertainment with Hudson Ketcheson as convener. Hugh Gray sang a solo with Mrs. Gray at the piano. Shirley Chisholm played a piano solo; Everett Phillips gave a number with guitar and mouth organ; Sam Nicolson gave a reading; Omar Chisholm, a piano solo; Farley Vermilyea, a vocal solo, accompanied by Mrs. Vermilyea.

L. J. Ketcheson spoke on Co-operatives.

All joined in thinking the men were first class entertainers.

Prince of Wales H. & S. Assoc. Holds Meeting

The February meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association was held in the school auditorium, on Tuesday last. Following the business session Mr. Martin took the chair. He introduced the Grant family who favored the audience with selections on the xylophone. Two numbers were played, Humpty Dumpty and Song of Love (waltz). These were enjoyed by all.

Mr. Bird introduced Mrs. W. H. Finkle, the speaker for the evening. Mrs. W. H. Finkle gave an interesting talk on "Founders Night". In 1916, Mrs. Finkle stated, Mrs. Courtice of Toronto, wife of a Methodist minister, became interested in bringing teachers, parents and children together. She called a meeting of a Women's Council to see what could be done. From this meeting arose what is now known as a Home and School Association. Nine schools took part the first year.

By 1920 the Home and School Association had grown to such a degree that the provincial government recognizing the value of H. & S. organizations made a grant of $2,000 a year for use in defraying travelling expenses of national officers.

In 1923, Mrs. Courtice died. Her death was felt keenly by many and letters and money were sent to the Federation with a demand for a memorial in honor of Mrs. Courtice. Today we have the Courtice Memorial Library in honor of Mrs. Courtice founder of our Home and School Association. In closing Mrs. Finkle stated that most important to the success of our H. and S. Associations is a feeling of loyality that we might all work together for success.

Mr. H. Burley thanked Mrs. Finkle for her interesting address.

Miss Grant at this time, gave us two more selections on the xylophone, "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise" and "Mother McCree". Mr. Martin thanked the Grant family.

The evening closed with refreshments.

Helen Kinnear, Woman Judge, One of Few

Hamilton — (CP) Judge Helen Kinnear of Cayuga, who has been presiding over Haldimand county court for nine years, feels it's high time other Canadian women were given a chance to sit on the bench.

Judge Kinnear, who believes she is the only woman judge in the Commonwealth, said in an interview here while attending the Ontario Bar Association meeting that despite tradition, there is no reason why there should not be more women judges.

So far as she can tell, neither lawyers nor accused persons in her court try to play upon a woman's supposedly forgiving nature. "They know better than to try," she remarked.

A few months ago in Welland, she was part of an all-woman court. The judge, the deputy sheriff, the deputy registrar and the stenographer were all women.

Judge Kinnear is a pleasant-looking woman who wears quiet shades and uses just a trace of make-up. Her wavy brown hair is streaked with grey.

For the last two years she has been a member of the Ontario Bar's Council, the elected governing body of the profession.

She says it made her happy last year when the Ontario Legislature granted women the right to serve on juries.

"Why not? I had to pick out the names of men for jury duty for nine years. I got a bit tired of it."

Guild of Albert College Meets in Ladies' Parlor At Bridge Street Church

The regular meeting of the Albert College Women's Guild was held in the ladies' parlors of Bridge Street Church Feb. 8th, with the president, Mrs. May, presiding. At the opening of the meeting, two minutes' silence was observed in memory of our late King.

In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. S. Hibbard, the treasurer's report was read by Mrs. A. H. Fisher.

A program for the afternoon had geen arranged by the program convener, Mrs. T. K. Franklin and her committee. It consisted of facts concerning the early history of Albert College, its conception, origin and the difficulties which had to be surmounted before it came into being, its history during its early years and the service rendered to its students by the principals. There were many pictures of graduating classes and these attracted a great deal of attention.

Mrs. Finkle in Charge

Mrs. W. H. Finkle, who was in charge of the devotional period, spoke of the many graduates of Albert College who had become well known not only in Canada and the United States, but as missionaries in foreign countries. They were honored both for their academic standards and for their integrity. Mrs. Finkle quoted from a poem which had been broadcast from St. John's, Newfoundland, when Princess, now Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh had been there. It was called, "Song of the Fathers" and it extolled the memory of their men of character, stability, mercy and righteousness who had handed down their attributes to their progeny. Their bodies were buried in peace, but their spirit would never die. Then the hymn "O God of Bethel" was sung.

Miss Sulman Reads

Mrs. H. McCabe introduced the speaker, T. K. Franklin, registrar of Albert College, who spoke on the history of the college. In 1847 the Methodist Episcopal Conference decided that there should be a school in which boys and girls could be educated. Two years later the general conference appointed a committee of three to discuss who could be done. The Bay of Quinte Conference also appointed a committee of three for the same purpose and it was resolved that the Methodist Episcopal Church was most solemnly responsible to provide for mental as well as moral education. In 1853, it was decided that the school should be built either in Brockville or in Belleville. In 1854 Belleville was chosen as its site.

Century Old

The building was under construction during the years 1854-55-56. In 1854 Sir John A. Macdonald sponsored a bill in the legislature to incorporate Belleville Seminary. However it was not until 1857 that the school was granted a royal charter and incorporated under that name. There were eleven chartered trustees and the bishop of the conference was chairman of the board of management.

The building of the school was at first made possible, by the generosity and sacrifices of the ministers and laymen of the church. It was financed by subscription and Mr. Franklin had with him, the first subscription list. Later the school received a grant from the legislature.

Name Changed

In 1867, an act of parliament changed the name of the school from Belleville Seminary to Albert College, after Prince Albert, husband of Queen Victoria. The girls' school was called Alexandra College, after Princess Alexandra, wife of Edward, Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII.

Albert College was then a university and could confer degrees on its graduates.

In 1884, Albert lost its university powers, which were removed to Victoria College in Cobourg and later to Toronto.

In Belleville, Albert College continued to function as a secondary school and a commercial course was added to its curriculum. The name of Alexandra College was dropped.

Dr. Carmen was principal of Albert College from 1858 to 1874. Dr. Dyer was principal from 1886 to 1913. He was a graduate of Albert College, as was also Dr. Baker, who was principal from 1913 to 1926. Ella Gardiner was preceptress of women from 1885 to 1926. She was one of the early graduates of Victoria College in Cobourg and was only 23 years old, when she came to Albert.

312 Give Lives

Mr. Franklin had with him many valuable documents relating to the early history of the college.

Mrs. May thanked Mr. Franklin for his address.

Pageant Held

There was a short pageant in which Mrs. C. Hyde acted as hostess to several graduates of the college, Mrs. A. Schryver, Mrs. A. H. Maguire, C. Anderson and H. Hillis. They exchanged reminiscences of their student days. Mrs. W. Northcott also added recollections. Mrs. W. J. Morrison said that, as a small girl in Hamilton she remembered a group of young men from Zion Tabernacle having been sent to Albert College to study for the ministry. Their fees were raised by subscriptions from the members of the church. In their vacations they helped with the activities of the church.

After this, the members were given an opportunity to examine the pictures and documents which were displayed on a table.

Tea was served by the social committee under the direction of the convener, Mrs. T. C. McMullen.

TRYING TO TRACE OWNER

London, Feb. 11—(Reuters) — Construction worker Bill Game unearthed 82 American $20 gold pieces — all dated about 1890 — while digging on a bomb site during the weekend at suburban Stoke Newington. Game turned them over to police who are trying to trace the coins owner.

Men Learning Home-Cooking

Vancouver — (CP)—Marriageable young women conscious this is leap year are eyeing a special extension course at the University of British Columbia. The course is producing a self-sufficient male who can whip up an appetizing meal over a hotplate without batting an eye.

The university's home economics department started the course so that students could learn to make themselves a low-cost, nutritious meal. More than half the students are men who don't like to pay restaurant prices.

Dr. Charlotte Black, head of the home economics department, already visualizes a wife telephoning from her bridge game and telling hubby to get busy and whip up a good meal.

Women's Activities

TRINITY UNITED W.M.S.

Madoc — The members of Trinity United W.M.S. held their February meeting at the home of Mrs. S. S. Ashley with 24 present. The president, Miss Holmes, opened with a minute's silence in memory of the late King, and silent prayer for the family and Queen Elizabeth II.

The treasurer reported for the month of January $18.75 received. Mrs. Fleming received reports of sick calls and read 'thank-you' cards from members. Mrs. W. McCoy read a letter from an associate member shut in.

Several items of business were discussed and plans made to have a play presented shortly. Mrs. Carmen reported on supplies and the allocation given to Madoc branch. Mrs. Empey gave a talk on Stewardship and mentioned that Miss Nancy Edwards of Newfoundland, would be the missionary for prayer during the year.

Worship Service

Mrs. L. Bennett had charge of the worship service and program for the remainder of the meeting, with the theme "If We Believe in Brotherhood." Assisting in the program were: Mrs. Lane, Mrs. J. Rollins, who read the Bible story; Mrs. Carmen, a reading, "Enjoying the Bible"; Mrs. Nayler, who read "The Isle of Prayer." Mrs. Perry Bronson gave a review of the Study Book, "From Lakes to Northern Lights," dealing with home missions from coast to coast.

A shower of gifts for the port workers at Halifax was liberally responded to. A poem, "Paddle Your Own Canoe," by Mrs. Frank Phillips and a prayer by Mrs. Bennett concluded a worthwhile meeting.

A social half hour followed with Mrs. Ashley being assisted by Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Nayler, Mrs. Gawley and Mrs. Rollins in serving bountiful refreshments.

Good Companions' Club Welcomes New Minister

Despite a broken ankle, a souvenir of the skating party the week previous, president, Lou Andrews presided at the regular meeting of the Good Companions' Club on Tuesday evening last in the Tabernacle United Church parlors.

The Rev. and Mrs. R. A. Rowley were officially welcomed to the club and the president called on Mr. Rowley to lead in a short devotional period. Mr. Rowley suggested to the club that he conduct a study of the background of the Bible during devotional periods throughout the coming months. He mentioned different approaches to the study of the Bible, stating that we are far too illiterate in our knowledge of the Bible. The members of the club are looking forward to this study.

The president conducted the business meeting, during which there were reports on the progress of the talent money; also a complete report covering magazine sales during the past year. Prior to the adjournment of the business session, the president read a snappy account of the skating party, which had been held at the Quinte Skating Club on the preceding Tuesday. On that cold, cold evening some forty members of the club courageourly struck out on the silver blades to display their prowess—this despite the fact that for the majority it was the first time their feet had known the touch of skates in many long years. It was regrettable that two accidents, resulting in a broken ankle and a sprained wrist, marred the enjoyment of the evening. Otherwise, everyone reported a grand time.

Following the business meeting, a short session of games was held and the evening closed with refreshments.

Florida Orchid Flourishing At Winnipeg

In her living room she has carefully nursed a Florida orchid into bloom despite cold prairie climate and the scoffing of friends.

"They were sure it couldn't be done up here," she says, "In Boston it was successful but never as far north as Winnipeg."

The plant, a gift from her son, was raised by Mrs. Aitken by following the directions he forwarded. They called for a brick laid in a bowl and surrounded by gravel. The pot, with slits in the bottom, was placed on the brick and the moss-covered plant set inside.

There is no earth. A slight amount of water is poured on the brick and the air is kept as humid as possible.

She says a magazine article she read started the whole thing. The article said if you can grow African violets and geraniums, you can grow orchids.

Mrs. Aitken had already grown both, so she tried her hand at the orchid. The result: one beautiful mauve flower.

Christmas cactus, hyacinths and numerous vines give her home an air of perpetual summer.

"I follow my own rules," she says. "My garden in the summer is confusing, but lovely. I don't believe in the park-like effect, rows and rows of all the same flowers."

DID NOT MOVE

Ascoli Piceno, Italy, Feb. 11—Reuters—Wrestler Acille Amadie yesterday won a bet that he could imitate Daniel in the Lions Den and get away with it. He entered a cage of six circus lions and drank a glass of champagne in their midst. They looked annoyed at the intrusion but did not move a muscle.

CRANBERRY-ORANGE RELISH

(For Miss J K.)

Put 2 cups washed cranberries through medium blade of food chopper. Cut an orange in quarters lengthwise, remove seeds and centre pithy portion and put it through chopper too. Mix these with 3-4 cup sugar. Store in covered jar in refrigerator. Serve with fowl, fish or meat.

UNBAKED FRUIT CAKE

(For Miss J. K.)

One lb. graham crackers rolled very fine and sifted, 1 lb. seedless raisins, 1 lb. dried figs, 1-2 cup maraschino cherries, 1 cup nut meats, 1 pound marshmallows, 1 pint whipping cream. Chop the cherries, figs, nuts and marshmallows. Leave raisins whole. Mix these ingredients with the sifted cracker crumbs. Whip the cream and fold into the mixture. Pour into oblong loaf pan 5x9x4". Pack it down well. Cover and chill overnight in refrigerator. This keeps well. When ready to serve slice with sharp knife, dredge with powdered sugar. A delicious confection.

TO DEODORIZE FAT FOR MAKING PERFUMED SOAP

(Mrs. Carl F.)

Boil 20 lbs. fat with 7 lbs. water containing 1 1-4 ounces common salt and 1-2 oz. powdered alum. Boil for 10 minutes. Strain off water. Let fat remain several hours before using for soap.

HOMEMADE SOAP

Two quarts melted grease, 3 pints cold water, 1 can of lye, 2 tablespoons boxed borax, 1-2 cup ammonia, oil of bergamot.

Very carefully empty lye into cold water, let stand until lukewarm (the lye has a heating action on the water). Pour slowly into lukewarm fat, stirring all the time until it is the consistency of heavy thick cream. Add the borax dissolved in 1-3 cup water, and the ammonia and about 1 or 2 drams oil of bergamot (or lemon). Stir for at least 10 minutes, then let stand until it sets, in a wooden box lined with paper. Cut into bars and let stand 2 months before using. Always use granite or stainless steel pans for soapmaking.

MEAT FOR GALL BLADDER DIET

(For Mrs. A. G.)

As you know the meat in a gall bladder diet should be lean and cooked without fat. This means, baking, broiling, steaming or boiling. Your husband could have fillet mignon, or ground lean round steak cakes and liver of any kind broiled—also the lean centre of lamb chops. You may prepare breasts of chicken in any of the above ways. If you want to make sauces to make them interesting and varied make them of milk, thickened with flour and flavor with skim milk cheese which you may now buy grated in 1-4 lb. packages—a great boon for those on fatless diets. Buy lean fish fillets and broil them and serve with lemon and plenty of parsley chopped. His meals need never be monotonous if you make your garnishes and sauces colorful and different every time. Fish fillets may be sprinkled with grated skim milk cheese after they are turned over when being broiled. It bubbles and browns and gives the fish a delicious flavor.

MELTING DREAMS

(For Mrs. R. G. Van E.)

(My recipe is called "Melting" not Meltaway. I hope this is right.)

Beat together until very creamy 1-3 cup each best shortening and icing sugar, then add 1-2 teaspoon vanilla and 1 egg yolk and beat well. Gradually stir in 1 cup flour (sifted); press this dough into a pan 9x9x2". Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 10 min. Remove from oven. Reduce heat to 350 deg. Mix together 1-2 cup brown sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Beat into them 2 eggs, then and 1-2 cup each corn syrup, and cocoanut and 1 cup chopped walnuts, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Spread over baked crust. Bake at 350 for 20 to 25 minutes. Cool in pan and cut in squares.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She's the "Patsy" in Her Family — What's Wrong

When young people find themselves at odds with their parents on something that seems important, it calls for some very careful thinking on the part of the young person to decide whether to stand pat or to give ground.

Of course there is the alternative of following the line of least resistance and letting matters drift, but this is only putting off the day when the situation must be faced directly.

I have a letter from a girl who tells me that she "has a terrible time at home concerning money and friends."

In regard to the first problem she says: "Mother takes my pay and gives me ten dollars out of it which is supposed to take care of my carfares, recreation, doctor and dentist bills and every other kind of expense I might have at any time. If my mother needed all the rest of my money I wouldn't fuss, but it isn't necessary at all. I have two older brothers and two older sisters who just pay my mother board, and if they need anything my mother either gets it for them or helps them get it. I have tried to get her to just let me pay board, but I couldn't get away with it. My parents won't even listen to my side of anything but always fight with me. I have a younger sister who graduated from school last June, but she doesn't have to work, although she is perfectly healthy. She bets anything she wants, and does anything she wants, and because she is the youngest, Mom and my brothers and sisters give her the best of everything.

I can't figure it out at all. Do you think it is fair, and what can I do about it?"

The second problem this girl, who is 20 years old, is that she has no friends any more because, she says, they have been driven away by her parents.

Friends Drifted Away

"Every time my girl friends would call me," she says, "they would get an answer that I couldn't go out with them for some reason or other, so gradually they drifted away. I had a boy friend, and any time he called up they would tell him I wasn't in, even when I was. I had to sneak out to meet him, but he was always very nice about it all and understood. He was in the service, and I went with him for two years. We had planned to be married last Christmas, but he got shot down on one of his missions, so now I have nothing. You won't believe it, but my family actually had smiles all over their faces when I told them about Joe being shot down.

"There are no girls of my age around where I live, and all the boys are in service. I have threatened to leave home, but my parents told me if I did they would bring me back as a stubborn child. Can they do this to a girl of 20, and can you imagine how lonely I am?"

This is a letter that puzzles me. If this girl is the only one in the family who is treated as she described, what can be the reason? It seems as though there must be some piece missing that leaves the family picture incomplete.

What this girl needs most, and first of all I think, is to go to someone, with whom she can talk and who could help her analyze her problem. In a person-to-person discussion, it is possible to fill in gaps in a situation until the whole thing is completed and the wise course of action stands out clearly.

With only the factors at hand that are mentioned in the letter, I would say that this girl should leave home and strike out for herself, go where she would be able to make new friends and live a normal social life. She is of legal age in her state and can do as she pleases. There may, however, be a better way to adjust things which could be figured out in a personal talk.

This girl's letter was mailed from a large city. Whether she lives there, or only goes there to work, I have no way of knowing. In either case, however, she could certainly make an opportunity to go to some place such as the YWCA and ask to talk to someone who could advise her on a difficult family problem. This organization has much to offer in the way of opportunities to make friends and have good times, so that it would be worth her while to visit it in any event. I hope she will do this and then let me know how she makes out.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Kind Hearts and Valentines

"Have a heart" is a wonderful ideal to have for this Day-of-Hearts! So...how would you like to be a nice, nice person with a kind, kind heart, and buy some charming valentines to send to less fortunate people you know who need a bit of cheer or the encouragement of some bright and heart-warming words?

There is that brave, lonely mother you know whose son is so far away in the service. There is the shy girl in the next block, so pathetically self-conscious because she is getting deaf. There is that dear little old lady, your mother's friend, whose arthritis keeps her confined to the house most of the time. There is that diffident little girl in your Sunday School class, whom you're pretty sure never did receive a real valentine. There is... but give yourself the joyous lift of making your own list of special-ones-to-be-remembered with pretty valentines containing appealing words that go all out for good, old-fashioned sentiment. This battered old world needs all the kindness it can get...and no better day than Valentine's Day to give it!

Choose Your Partners...By Matching Valentine-Pieces

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I are giving a Valentine party in our basement game-room, and we have practically all our arrangements for games, menu, etc., completed. But to get the party started, we'd like to have a suggestion as to choosing partners. Not all of our guests know one another, and this is our difficulty. However, there will be an equal number of girls and boys. Have you a suggestion? — Ruth M.

For your first game do feature one that calls for the pairing-off of the girls and boys...no better way has ever been devised, I think, for a party "ice-breaker." And for this finding-your-partner idea for this romantic occasion it would be a natural to cut valentines (the fancier, the better) into two pieces, hide the pieces around the room, and, when the signal is given, all begin to search for the matching piece of the Valentine he or she holds. Then these partners merrily set forth together on the first game you and your sister have planned.

The Bridesmaid's Present

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter has been asked by her cousin's fiancee to be one of her bridesmaids. Should she give them a separate wedding present from the one we, his aunt and uncle, will be giving them? — L. E.

This is just as she wishes. She may wish to give the bride a present she knows she particularly wants...or she may prefer to join you and the family in giving a joint present.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

MARMORA

High School Team Loses to Norwood

Marmora — Norwood high school hockey team played Marmora high school team on the Marmora rink on Friday evening in an exhibition game winning decisively by 9-2.

The winners brought off a series of good rushes in which neat combination was seen at times. Their outstanding players were Newman who netted three and furnished one assist.

Scott with two goals and two assists; Laing who netted twice, Post with one goal and two assists and Smith who registered one and got an assist.

Marmora's goals were secured in the second period when Brooks outwitted Stackhouse on Shannon's pass and Will O'Neill the smallest player in the game got through on Maloney's assist.

Sabine, M. Walker and W. Drummond turned in good efforts. Lynch in the Marmora goal had more shots to contend with than his rival and also lacked the good defence that the Norwood team had. The Norwood team brought a good contingent of fans to swell what would have been a slim attendance.

Teams:

Marmora: Goal D. Lynch; defence M. Walker, Bell; centre Paranuik; wings Sabine, Hickey; Alts. J. O'Neill, Shannon, Brooks, Maloney, Leonard, P. O'Neill, R. Walker, W. Drummond, Brownlie, R. Drummond.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

EUCHRE PARTY

Mountain View — A community euchre party was held recently with approximately fifty in attendance with Mrs. Will Burkitt and Miss Lillian Sprague acting as sponsors. At the conclusion of game prizes were awarded as follows: Ladies' high, Mrs. W. Stanton; men's high, Mr. Clarence Sprague; lone hands, Mr. Charles Watering; consolation, Mrs. Alfred Poste and Mr. Clarke Sprung. The collection amounted to $12.26.

The party was concluded by the ladies serving refreshments. The next party will be held on February 14th., with Mrs. Douglas Black and Mrs. Reg. Barber acting as sponsors.

W. I.

The February meeting of the Mountain View Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Jay Sprague with 25 members present. The first vice-president, Mrs. Willet Barber, presided.

After the business was concluded, Mrs. Ernest Wallbridge, who is convener for Home Economics and Health, took charge, and with the help of Mrs. A. Wallbridge, gave interesting papers on these subjects.

Mrs. Clarence Sprague gave "Current Events" and Mrs. Alfred Poste gave a reading on the "Life of Margaret Truman." After the meeting closed the hostess, assisted by several ladies, served delicious refreshments and a social half hour was spent.

Mrs. Alfred Poste moved a vote of thanks to the hostess for her hospitality.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Barber on March 5th.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Alder, of Bethel, were recent callers of Mrs. J. G. Sprague and Miss Elizabeth Jordan.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Weaver and family, of Westbrook, were Sunday guests of Mrs. G. Neal and daughter.

Many friends and neighbors attended the funeral of the late Mr. Ed. Christy, which was held in Belleville on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Doxsee, of Doxsee's, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Sprung.

Miss Elizabeth Jordan spent Thursday with her sister, Mrs. L. Goodwin, at Cherry Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Sprague, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Allen Weese left on Saturday to spend several weeks in Florida.

Mr. Glen Sprague spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sprague.

Number Purged By Chinese Reds Still Mystery

By FRED HAMPSON

Hong Kong, Feb. 11 (AP) — How many persons have the Communists killed in their 18-month purge of party enemies in Red China?

The question is asked frequently in the far east. In the opinion of Hong Kong observers at least, even Peiping itself doesn't know the full score.

Estimates run from 250,000 to more than 5,000,000 purge victims.

Shen said during the first half of 1951 the Reds brought 820,285 cases to trial. At the end of that period "there still was an accumulation of untried cases."

There was no official hint what number was shot, how many were sent to labor camps or prisons, or how many were released.

If the 820,285 can be taken as an average number of Chinese brought to trial during each six months, about 2,500,000 to 3,280,000 have faced purge courts in the last 18 months to two years.

Hong Kong observers do not think Peiping knows the full toll because there seems to be little doubt that many county and township commissars or courts did a lot of purging on their own, without reference to the Communist capital.

MARMORA

Ladies' Guild Presents Rector With Surplice

Marmora—The February meeting of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. H. R. Pearce with a good attendance of members. The rector, Canon J. M. Brownlie, called the meeting to order and opened it with prayer in which special mention was made of the royal family and Queen Elizabeth.

Several 'thank you' cards were reported by the secretary, following adoption of minutes. The treasurer's report, presented by Mrs. D. McInroy, revealed finances to be in a satisfactory condition. One hundred dollars was voted to the building fund.

Purchasing Committee

Mesdames W. D. Lavender and T. Pearce were appointed a purchasing committee in connection with the play which will be presented by a cast under direction of Mrs. J. W. Hickey. It was decided to devote proceeds of the same to the building fund.

On behalf of the Guild, Mrs. R. G. Winters presented a new surplice to Canon J. M. Brownlie, the rector, who thanked the ladies for the treasured gift.

Weekly fish suppers during Lent to be served by the groups in the Parish Hall were discussed; the venture to be initiated by Group 2.

The March meeting will be held in the parish hall. The rector closed the meeting, after which refreshments were served.

Mrs. Harry Parsons, of Smith's Falls, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Wells and other relatives here.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. D. Killian, at Mrs. E. Lawler's nursing home on Thursday.

Mrs. Ed. O'Brien has returned home from Belleville General Hospital where she recently underwent an operation.

SAVED CHILD'S LIFE

Toronto, Feb. 11 (CP) — Jake Breslove literally breathed life into his three-months-old granddaughter after she was found nearly suffocated in her crib. Breslove said Paula Susan Breslove was not breathing when picked up by her mother. The grandfather grabbed the child and ran for help, breathing into her mouth as he ran. Firemen applied inhalator treatment for 20 minutes before the child was taken to a hospital where she is reported in good condition.

Peterborough Music Competition Festival

Music festival adjudicators for the 1952 Peterborough Music Competition Festival to be held in the Liftlock City, May 14-21, shown above are: Alex Redshaw and Ronald Biggs, both well-known English musicians and Miss Irene Fairclough, LRCT, of the Hamilton Conservatory. The festival is sponsored by the Peterborough Kiwanis Club and this year has an expanded program which is to include the Central Ontario area, west to Toronto and east to Kingston.

Belleville and all of central Ontario is being included in a greatly expanded Peterborough Music Competition Festival this year.

Sponsored by the Liftlock city's Kiwanis Club the festival is growing to be one of the top five festivals in Canada. It will now take in all communities east to Kingston and west to Toronto.

In announcing these new plans, Wilson Gemmell, Peterborough bank manager and chairman of the festival committee said that the club believes this expansion program will fill a definite need in the musical life of the greater area.

Already speakers from the city are visiting groups of music teachers, home and school organizations and service clubs asking for more than their aid in encouraging entries in the festival. They are asking for suggestions that will make the Liftlock city festival an important and successful one for all of the Central Ontario area.

Already entry forms are coming in and the number already received from other communities has convinced the festival committee that the idea of expansion was a long needed one now that smaller festivals in the area have been forced to close down because of financial difficulties.

Closing date for entries is March 31. Syllabuses and entry forms may be obtained by writing Mrs. A. D. Vaisey, 392 Brock St., Peterborough.

One Frenchman in Five Wants to Leave Country

The three main reasons for wanting to leave, on order of importance, are:

1. The housing shortage.
2. Desire for better living standards and chances for advancement.
3. Desire for a salary high enough to permit marriage.

French possessions overseas draw the largest number of emigrants, with Canada second and the rest of North and South America third.

The Canadian government immigration office, crowded daily with prospective emigrants, recently moved to more spacious quarters and now is seeking even larger ones.

In the first five years after the liberation, 4,500 Frenchmen went to Canada. In 1951 6,000 went. Some 10,000 have been selected to leave for Canada during the next few months.

Skilled Technicians

A majority of would-be emigrant are skilled technicians, experienced farmers, aeronautical engineers, mining experts and others with a solid trade or profession.

In 1946, a French poll discovered that 30 per cent of Frenchmen wanted to leave France. Approximately 26 per cent were prepared to change their nationality at once. Only five per cent wanted to go to French colonies; and 21 per cent were prepared to go anywhere as long as it was outside France.

Today, French possessions overseas are far more popular. But the number of persons prepared to go anywhere has greatly increased.

Peasants, who constitute 40 per cent of the population, are least willing to budge. Only 17 per cent of them are potential emigrants. In small towns, the percentage is 25, in towns of between 20,000 and 120,000 people, 32 per cent and in Paris and the large cities, 25 per cent.

Those who leave have no illusions about "streets paved with gold." What they ask about are union wage scales, cost of living and the availability of apartments. Few dream of becoming the "rich uncle in America."

Never Seen Such Exodus

French newspapers have urged the French government to take an interest in its departing citizens by seeing that the French colonists are backed by long-term investments. They particularly recommend that investments are made in the province of Quebec, where French is the general language, visas are unnecessary for French settlers, and French farmers and farmworkers are guaranteed a job before leaving France.

Except for the mass emigration of protestants after the revocation of the edict of Nantes, and the departure of thousands of Alsatians and Lorrainers after the France-Prussian war, France has never seen such an exodus as today.

A French reporter covering the departure of a boat-train crowded with Parisians setting off for a new life in Canada wrote:

COX ACCEPTS CHALLENGE

Port Arthur, Feb. 11 (CP) — Mayor Charles M. Cox Friday wagered "100 to one" that he can beat Ottawa's mayor Charlotte Whitton in a plowing match. He said he is willing to meet Miss Whitton in a match "any time." She said Wednesday she would compete against any Canadian mayor "male or female" after she opens the international plowing competition at Carp next fall. With mock modesty, Mayor Cox said, "I'm almost as good a plowman as I am a politician."

WHAT A DAY!

What a misery it can be on those days when you are feeling way below par. How slowly the hours drag by when you feel seedy and sluggish and seem to ache all over.

And how unnecessary it all is, very often Most times that dull, logy feeling is the direct result of constipation and kidneys not working properly. You need something more than a simple laxative these times. You need Kruschen Salts. Millions the world over have learned the benefits of Kruschen . . . the salts that are like those in the waters of famous Mineral Springs. Acting in two ways at once, laxative and diuretic (for sluggish kidneys), Kruschen helps rid the body of waste matter. It goes right to the cause of that miserable, sickish feeling that constipation brings about.

Get some Kruschen today. Less than half a teaspoonful can make you feel better all day long.

Congregational Meetings

ST. JOHN'S ANGLICAN

Madoc — The annual vestry meeting of St. John's Anglican Parish was held on Tuesday evening in the parish hall with a fine attendance of members of the congregation present, as well as a large percentage of young people, who were taking an active interest in the work and administration of church affairs, and who were not shy in coming forward to nominate the officers of their choice.

The meeting was one of vigor and life, auguring well for the future of the church.

1952 Officers

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Treasurer and rector's warden, E. T. Nayler; people's warden, Harry Tufts; Synod: Messrs J. Miles and E. T. Nayler; president of W.A., Mrs. E. T. Nayler; president Ladies' Guild, Mrs. Bigelow; president A.Y.P.A., Miss Ruth Danford; president Choir, Miss Shirley Edwards; Sunday School superintendent, Miss E. Waring.

The treasurer, in a brief review, said he was proud to submit such a good report on the year's work, that there were quite a few new subscribers, and that at the end of the year the parish was in a remarkably sound financial position. He also expressed the wish that each member of the congregation would continue to 'pull his weight' as had been done during the past year.

Year Reviewed

The rector, Rev. T. H. Good, said in his review, that it had delighted him to hear such excellent reports from the various organizations and also to hear that the parish stood in such a sound position financially. "But," he added, "if only financial progress has been made it might have been as well if we had been idle." However he felt that it was obvious that the parish had made great strides, spiritually; that the congregation was growing each month and that their influence is also steadily growing in the life of community more and more.

All the organizations were functioning at a high level and from the oldest to the youngest there was a sense of enthusiasm in the work each had to do, and a reverence in their worship that was wonderful to see.

Mr. Good thanked his people for their great loyalty and help in the past year. "We undertook great things and we have achieved great things," he stated.

The rectory has been renovated from top to bottom; an oil furnace installed; the building insulated, and the house rewired for heavy power; alterations were carried out to the altar in the church, and the church painted in memory of the late Mr. Frank Smith, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Barton. The parish hall will soon be completed in its renovations and an opening ceremony held in the early spring.

Presentation Made

Following the close of the meeting, Mrs. Aylesworth, retiring organist, was presented with a fine laz-y-boy chair, a gift from the parish and the Woman's Auxiliary in appreciation for her unstinted assistance as organist. Mr. Good spoke in glowing terms of Mrs. Aylesworth's services to her church. For 15 years she had played at practically every service, and he wished for her, as did all the parish, many years of restful health.

Mr. E. T. Nayler also complimented Mrs. Aylesworth on the great work she had done for the church and joined with Mr. Good and the other parishioners in wishing her many years of health and happiness.

In reply, Mrs. Aylesworth thanked both Mr. Good and the congregation for their kindness to her and congratulated the parish on their new organist, Miss Marion Robertson, stating that Miss Robertson was a personal friend of hers, whom she was sure would acquit herself well in the important post she had accepted.

Early sow
Early mow

"Now I've caught up with Grandma!"

Grandma was one of those unforgettable characters you read about. And every time I think of her, I remember one of her favourite sayings: "Early sow — Early mow".

Many years have passed since Grandma died. But just the other day something happened to remind me of that old motto of hers.

I was working over my budget, trying not to admit what the figures told me: My savings had slipped. At this rate, it was a cinch that some of the things I'd started to save for would have to wait. Suddenly I remembered "Early sow . . ."

"Old-fashioned stuff!" I told myself. Then I got to thinking. "Maybe it is tough to save today. But it's still important . . . still my only hope of getting some of the things I want most.

"Well, at least I'm keeping up my life insurance payments," I thought. "That's a way of saving which combines protection for my family as well. And maybe if I make an extra effort to put more money aside I'll reach my goals sooner.

"So here goes! I'll try again. I'll find some new ways to economize. Somehow I'm sure I can manage to be more thrifty."

And you know — it's a funny thing! The moment I made that decision, I realized that Grandma's idea was not old-fashioned. I've just caught up with her now!

LIFE INSURANCE works for you these other ways:

Every dollar you set aside in life insurance — or in savings of any kind — works to check inflation, thus protecting the value of all your money.

Your life insurance helps to improve your living standards too! A large part of each dollar you pay in premiums is invested for you in ways that help provide new homes, schools, highways, power plants, oil pipelines and other vital projects throughout the nation.

Today nearly five million thrifty Canadians are providing security for their families — and promoting progress in their own and other communities — by their ownership of life insurance!

PLAYOFFS AHEAD!

Lorne Cook, Kingston, member of the Ontario Hockey Association executive announced today that all four teams in the district senior "B" group will participate in the playoffs. This was decided at the Friday night meeting of the OHA executive. Dates will be announced as soon as team managements are contacted. While it was not decided, it is expected the semi-finals series will be the best-of-five with the finals ditto or possible four-of-seven.

Mr. Cook also announced that all OHA games have been cancelled for next Friday, the national day of mourning. The Belleville Hawks-Kingston Sacs game scheduled for that date has been moved to Saturday night in Kingston.

Meanwhile tonight the third-place squads Kingston Sacs and Peterborough Eagles battle it out in Peterborough tonight. The winner will take over undisputed possession of the slot and move to within three points of the second-place Hawks. Then on Wednesday the Eagles and Hawks clash in Peterborough and an Eagle victory will put them breathing down the injury-riddled Hawks necks.

The Hawks apart from these games have four more to play, two of them with the Petes away and at home and another pair with the Kingston Sacs here and away. It's a dogfight from here in with the Hawks facing terrific adds what with players sick or injured and tough games ahead.

The junior Hawklets have but one game left and that with Lindsay which was scheduled for Friday night, but since the game is cancelled due to the funeral of His Majesty King George V the game has been moved forward to Wednesday, or at least efforts have been made to move it to that date.

BUT NOT DISGRACED!

Bill Spafford's Glen Roys went down fighting to defeat in the second game of the Bay of Quinte Basketball League playoffs in Peterborough Saturday night. The Marines of that city copped the series in two straight games and will now meet the eastern section winners, either Brockville or Queen's University. The Glens put up a gallant fight but could not cope with the smart Marines on their own floor. The Glens came through with a fine effort and were a credit to their sponsor, their city and themselves. They either led the loop or shared it with the Marines during the schedule but fell short in the all-important playoffs. Better luck next year.

GLENS TOP SECTION!

The Glens hockey counterparts are now leading their section of the Trent Valley League according to statistics released today by Secretary Dick Bridgman. The Glens have 16 points, two more than the Trenton Flyers and four ahead of the Trenton Jewellers. Havelock leads the northern divisions with 16 points with Lakefield in second place two points away while Marmora top the Central Division with 16 points just one in front of the second-place Wellington crew.

Brian Mulvihill tops the league scorers with 20 goals and 32 assists for 52 points with Earl Cousins in second place with 23 goals and 16 assists for 39 points. Payne of Norwood holds down third slot with 33 points with Reid of Havelock next with 29. Ken Trumble, Marmora leads the Central Division and is tied with Reid with 30 points.

The Glens do not play until Wednesday night when they meet Hastings on the latter's ice, weather permitting.

THE END OF THE TRAIL!

It looks as though the end of the road is in sight for glamorless Jersey Joe Walcott, who has been nursing the heavyweight title, with no golden strings attached, since he snatched it from the moustached Ezzard Charles last July. The New York Boxing Commission boss-man Bob Christenberry, who is doing a grand job trying to clean up the box-fight game, issued Walcott an ultimatum to defend the bauble—or else. Felix Bocchicchio (You sneeze that one), Walcott's manager, said Walcott would sign within the prescribed fifteen days for probably three bouts — one likely with Harry (Kid) Matthews in March and a title defence in June.

Walcott's dream of a golden harvest that other heavyweights rainbowed between title defence bouts has been a bitter disappointment. The golden shekels from commercial sponsors, exhibition bouts and referee jobs fell far short of expectations. The "boys" didn't go for it, for Walcott has none of the glamor and color of a Louis or a Dempsey or even a Sharkey. Perhaps the fact that he was a back-door champion had something to do with it and the boys that foot the bills were not even impressed with the dramatic tub-thumping of the Walcott press agents anent his five failures and a championship.

Bocchicchio says he "looks with favor in signing for a title bout with either Rocky Marciano or Ezzard Charles following the tune-up bout with Kid Matthews. He did not explain how Walcott as heavyweight champion could engage in any tune-up bout since every time a heavyweight kind steps into the ring his title is at stake.

"Bocchy" appears to be quite cocky about the affair. He intimates by what he terms a "tune-up" fight with Matthews that that worthy young gentleman is but a stepping stone to a title bout. Matthews if our memory serves us correctly has been kept outside the perimeter of his own class championship grounds and for a very obvious reason. What could be more ironic than having Matthews knock the slats from unl der the aging Walcott, in the "tune-up" fight. Even if he does get past the "Kid" we doubt very much if he can whip the boy that sent Joe Louis crashing to the canvas in a pathetic finale to a great champion's career, if he meets him. On the other hand in this corner's hunmble opinion, Mr. Charles stands an excellent chance of regaining the bauble he lost to Walcott last summer.

HIGH TAG PLACED

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 11 (CP) — Police Friday placed a $1,180 price tag on a black and white cocker spaniel. They said the spaniel, a puppy caused a "chain reaction" smashup which damaged four cars when the dog darted across a line of traffic and a car stopped suddenly to avoid hitting it.

Defeat Canadiens, Rangers To Strengthen 2nd Place Hold; Slowinski Gets 3 for Blues

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Maple Leafs came through a tough National Hockey League weekend with flying colors, picking up two important wins at the expense of Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers.

Edging the Canadiens 3-2 Saturday night in Toronto, the Leafs continued their winning ways with a 4-3 Sunday victory over the Rangers at New York.

The double win moved the runner-up Maple Leafs a game closer to the league-leading Detroit Red Wings and three points out in front of third-place Montreal.

The win clinched a 2-0 victory over the fourth-place Bruins Sunday night at Boston, but it was their only game of the weekend. The Canadiens, after bowing at Toronto Saturday, managed to edge the tailend Black Hawks 3-2 in a Sunday matinee at Chicago.

Armstrong Gets Winner

Saturday night's other game saw fifth-place New York pull to within two points of the Bruins with a 4-2 tussle played in Boston. Both clubs, fighting fiercely over the fourth and last playoff spot, dropped their Sunday tilts.

Billy Reay gave Montreal a first-period lead when his team had a two-man edge. Then Howie Meeker put the Leafs out in front with two second-period goals.

Elmer Lach of Montreal, tallied the game's only other goal midway through the final session.

In the other Saturday clash, New York Rangers exploded for three goals within 64 seconds midway through the first period to clinch their 4-2 victory over the Bruins at Boston.

Eddie Kullman, Ed Slowinski and Sinclair banged in the big three while Jim Ross added the other late in the opening session. The goals nipped goalie Jim Henry's string of 150 minutes and 36 seconds of scoreless play.

Rookies Pave Way

At the Chicago matinee, Montreal's rookies again led the way with Dickie Moore, Paul Meger and Bernie Geoffrion scoring the Habs' three goals. Bill Mosienko and Sid Finney saved the Hawks from a shutout with third-period markers.

Terry Sawchuk chalked up his 11th shutout of the season last night at Boston when the Red Wings blanked the Bruins 2-0. Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay were the Detroit marksmen.

No games are scheduled tonight or Tuesday in the N. H. L. but two are on slate Wednesday. Detroit is at Toronto while Boston plays in New York.

Frank Stack Starts Training After Accident

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Oslo, Norway, Feb. 11—(CP)—Speed-skater Frank Stack of Winnipeg put on his skates yesterday and resumed training after a torn cartilage in his left knee put him out of action for two weeks.

The 46-year-old veteran reported his knee was "not bad" and he hoped it would stand up for the winter Olympics starting Thursday.

That was the best news for the Canadian team. Last week a doctor examined the injured knee and said it was extremely doubtful Stack would be able to compete in the Olympic 500 and 1,500 metre races in which he is entered.

The four-time Canadian champion and one of Canada's greatest skaters resumed his practice at Lillehammer, about 70 miles north of Oslo. He is due in Oslo today and will have his knee examined by a doctor.

Conditions Tough

Meanwhile the Alpine skiers at Norejfell, about 130 miles west of Oslo, reported conditions "really tough" with no snow on the course and rocks jutting up from the ground, making the going dangerous.

The Norwegians are packing snow on the giant slalom and downhill courses but Franz Gabl, coach of the Canadian women's team, said it is almost impossible to put the courses in shape before the opening of the games.

The figure-skaters are out early and practising more than five hours daily at Bislett and Jordal Amfi Stadiums in the central section of the city and also on the rink near Sogn, the Olympic headquarters in suburban Oslo.

The Canadian figure-skating team was complete with the arrival of Toronto's Suzanne Morrow from a five-week tour of Germany and Austria.

Marines Defeat Glen Roys 67-45 To Win Title

A final-quarter scoring splurge turned the tide of victory and the Peterborough Marines went on to win the Bay of Quinte Basketball League championship with a 67-45 victory over Belleville's Glen Roys in Peterborough Saturday night.

The win was the second in a row for the Marines in the best-of-three playoff series they having edged the Glens here earlier in the week in the series opener. They now meet the eastern section winners in the first round of the playdowns.

The game Saturday night was much closer than the score indicates with the lead changing hands several times before the Marines took over late in the game to run up an imposing margin for the laurel wreath.

There was only five points difference between the squads at the half-time mark with Marines leading 32-27. They nearly doubled the count in the second half with a furious late-period offensive that saw the Glens practically fall apart. The Marines experience finally told and they proved worthy winners of the league title.

E. Stewart, Payne, Dibben and S. Stewart stood out for the Marines with Kip Summers, not fully recovered from a previous-game injury, and John Batchelor leading the Glens' offensive.

Sixth Winter Olympic Games Open Thursday With 30 Nations Entered

Oslo, Feb. 11 (AP)—The sixth winter Olympic games, biggest and best ever, open Thursday in an atmosphere remarkably free from international bickering except for a dispute over the bobsled run.

Thirty nations have entered 1,187 competitors including 39 from Canada. Japan and Germany return to Olympic competition for the first time since the Second World War, both with good teams. The weather is favorable and Norway is bubbling with enthusiasm.

These are the first winter games ever held in a world capital, the rest taking place at winter resorts. So the small wealthy crowds of the past will be replaced by vast throngs of sports-loving Norwegians, plus some 10,000 tourists.

150 Spectators

When the special ski jump takes place Sunday, Feb. 24, at Holmenkollen, high over Oslo, at least 150,000 spectators are expected. It's the only ski jump in the world with great grandstands encircling it.

The argument over the safety of the bobsled run—first ever built in Norway—arose when the four-man United States No. 2 sled and an Italian sled went off the course on the third turn. Demands were voiced to rebuild the curve but the Norwegians turned a deaf ear.

The only shadow over the games has been caused by the sore throat of speed skater Hjalmar Andersen. Better known as "Yallis," he is Norway's athletic demigod—particularly to the young girls.

Northerners Dominant

As usual the northern countries will be dominant. There is but on an unofficial basis Sweden won the 1948 games at St. Moritz, followed by Switzerland, the United States, Norway and Austria. The same "big five" will be favored here, possibly with Norway on top. Other potent teams are from Finland, Germany, Italy, France, The Netherlands and Japan.

The games run from Feb. 14 through the 25th, with competition starting Thursday in the bobsled and the giant slalom for ladies. The opening ceremony takes place Friday in Bislett Stadium before 28,000, but because of the death of King George VI, neither King Haakon nor Crown Prince Olav will be on hand.

This is a $3,500,000 show. The athletes are housed in modern dormitories. A modernistic stadium called Jordal Amfi, seating 10,000 has been built for hockey, and the city is decked with flags. At the opposite end of Karl Johans Street from the yellow, plain royal palace is the Olympic flame, a big circle of fire irreverently called "The Grill" by Oslo.

The Russians will observe but not compete in the winter games. A delegation of Soviet experts is en route here.

Many Sports Notables Will Attend Sportswriters $25-a-Plate Dinner

Toronto, Feb. 11—(CP) — The four living members of the National Hockey League's first All-Star team of 1931 will get together in Toronto Thursday, Mar. 13, for the first time since their playing days.

The Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association announced tonight that Eddie Shore, King Clancy, Bill Cook and Aurel Joliat will be among a dozen or so notables to attend its first annual sports celebrity dinner in aid of crippled children.

The event marks the opening of the annual Easter seals campaign of the Ontario Society for crippled children. Proceeds of the $25-a-plate dinner — possibly $8,000 or more — will go to the society.

Among Those Present

Other celebrities who have accepted invitations are:

Boxing — Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney.

Golf — Sandy Somerville of London, Ont., Canada's golfer of the half century and only Canadian to win the United States amateur; Francis Ouimet, first U. S. golfer to captain the Royal and Ancient at St. Andrew's, a post he holds this year;

The association said it is awaiting replies from invitations to other sports notables including Percy Williams of Vancouver, Canada's 1928 Olympic hero.

The dinner also will honor Marlene Stewart, the 17 - year - old golfing star from Fonthill, Ont., selected by association members as Ontario's outstanding athlete of 1951

The announcement emphasized that none of the proceeds of the dinner will be used to pay expenses of celebrities. Some are paying their own way. Others are being brought by sponsors.

The NHL is sponsoring the appearance of the four men who made the first all-star team in 1931, first year of the annual selections. Shore, with Boston Bruins, and Clancy, with Toronto Maple Leafs, were the defencemen. Cook, with New York Rangers, was right wing, and Joliat, with Montreal Canadiens, was left wing. Two members of the team are dead — goalie Chuck Gardiner of Chicago Black Hawks and centre Howie Morenz of the Canadiens.

Three are still active in hockey — Shore as manager of Syracuse in the American Hockey League, Clancy as coach of Pittsburgh Hornets, Toronto's AHL farm team, and Cook as coach of the Rangers in the NHL. Joliat now lives in Montreal.

Detroit Skater Shares Title With Canadian

Alpena, Mich. Feb. 11 (AP)—Barbara Marchetti, a beautiful speed skating queen, is North American outdoor co-champion—thanks to a last day finish that dazed fans here yesterday.

And as if one pair of co-champions weren't enough, the senior men's competition ended in a three-way championship tie. Defending titlist Ray Blum of Nutley, N.J., Terry Browne, of Detroit, and Art Longjso, of Pittsfield, Mass., share the crown.

Barbara had to share her senior women's title with Doreen McLeod, of Edmonton. But only a few had expected Barbara to gain even a tie after she lost to Doreen in both of Saturday's events.

The attractive brunette streaked home first and Doreen second in the 220 and 880-yard dashes. She trailed Doreen, 100 points to 90, going into the last event, the one mile. (Each first place counted 30, second, 20, third 10).

Barbara came from behind on the last lap of the mile, moving up on the outside from fourth place to pass leading Doreen. Barbara, a jubilant smile on her face, won by fifteen feet in 3:33 minutes.

Only one national record fell. Alan Olsen of Chicago, breezed in first in the juvenile boys' (under 14 years) 220-yard dash in 19.7 seconds. The old record was 20.3, held jointly by Paul Vrudney and James Radis, both of Minneapolis.

Bantam Hockey League Results

The Black Hawks and Red Wings pulled out wins over the Rangers and Bruins in the bantam section of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association on Saturday morning. Canadiens and Maple Leafs played to a draw.

Hagerman tallied for the Leafs and Cruji for the Canadiens in the first game which ended in a 1-1 deadlock.

The Hawks - Ranger fray was the roughest game of the season with no less than eight penalties being issued. Hawks shutout their rivals, 2-0, on tallies by Culloden and Gill.

Red Wings ran rampant over the Bruins, defeating them by a 5-1 score. St. Louis and Musgrove each scored twice with singletons going to Durno and Meagher. Ab Wright tried a penalty shot for the Wings but was unable to score.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, Feb. 11—(AP)—To understand why the Australians see nothing wrong in giving Frank Sedgman, the amateur tennis player a wedding gift of $12,600, it is necessary to know a little more about the people of that young and virile nation than is taught in the schools.

The Aussies are a robust cheerful lot who take down large quantities of the world's strongest beer and who can take their amateur athletics or leave them strictly alone. They are betting fools, and at their race tracks they reserve a large stand for men only. If a wife, thus separated from her spouce, runs out of betting money after the fourth race, she's on her own.

The Aussies prefer professional foot racing to the so-called amateur variety prevalent in the rest of the world. Their sprint heroes get paid off in money, not in watches which can be traded for money, and some of them are said to be mighty men.

"Racing Binge"

Once a year, we believe it is, Australia's greatest money runners and visiting swifts from other countries gather at Bendigo, near Melbourne, for a racing binge without parallel in the world. For days on end they are at it for prizes running into thousands of dollars a race. The crowds are large and sweating and bookmakers do a landoffice business. Naturally, a Bendigo sport finds an amateur track meet pretty depressing.

One of the more interesting momentos of the land down under is a handbill, picked up in the village of Gundagai, about midway between Melbourne and Sidney.

The handbill leaves no doubt how the good citizens of Gundagai planned to spend last New Year's Day. They were going to be out at Anzac Park from noon until late at night watching foot racing, with a "publican's booth" (saloon) on the grounds.

"See the state's best sprinters in action," the come-on said, and went on to list the events for a total of £400 ($896) in prizes.

All in all, it sounded like a fine, exhiliarating day for a sturdy band of people who don't spend their time worrying about a man's amateur standing.

Canada's International Dog Derby Starts Today With Twenty Mushers

Ottawa, Feb. 11—(CP)— Canada's big International Dog Sled Derby started today with the field scaled to 20 mushers and a couple of miles sliced off the 100-mile course because of lack of snow.

The course alteration was made at a meeting of the junior board race committee last night because of lack of snow on suburban roads used in the last half of the course. And the field was cut by one when Mrs. Lorna Demidoff of Fitzwilliam, N.H., withdrew to compete instead in a derby starting today at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Course Cut

At noon Walter E. Scott, president of the Ottawa Board of Trade was slated to fire the gun that started the three-day race on the Rideau Canal in the heart of the city. First in the slading order was Ted Lemieux of Maniwaki, Que., whose team of Siberian huskies failed to go the route last year. Other teams followed at three-minute intervals.

The second 33 1-3 mile lap gets off tomorrow and the third Wednesday.

The musher who turns in the best combined time for the course on each of the three days gets $1,000 first prize and a gold challenge trophy. In addition two women drivers in the field, Mrs. Marie Ouelette of The Pas, Man., and Mrs. Bunty Dunlop of Bronte, Ont., will be fighting it out for a $300 prize and a special gold cup.

Mrs. Elizabeth Nansen, chief judge, in a last briefing to the drivers, stressed safeguards against dogs running loose and against any possible abuse of the animals. Race officials will be posted along the course to watch.

Gunning for permanent possession of the derby's challenge cup is 39-year-old Emile Martel of Loretteville, Que. His team of crossbred hounds won the race last year and he is confident they can do it again.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

The inter-city lacrosse league in Vancouver is still trying to woo Ontario teams from the Canadian Lacrosse Association.

The British Columbia League proposal that Ontario and B. C. teams conduct their own Mann Cup playoffs without the C. L. A. was rejected last weekend at the annual meeting of the Ontario Association.

At an Inter-city League meeting in Vancouver during the weekend, the eastern teams did not have enough time to consider the proposal before their meeting.

The executive was instructed to write each team individually and repeat the proposal. If the mail query is successful, a member may be sent east to speak to the teams personally.

Brockville Magedomas bounced back from a 7-5 Saturday night defeat in Clinton, N.Y., by downing Clinton Comets 8-4 yesterday in the third game of a best-of-seven New York - Ontario Hockey League semi-final. Clinton leads the series 2-1. The fourth game is scheduled for Brockville Thursday night.

The federal government has been asked for a grant of $750,000 for the 1954 British Empire Games in Vancouver. Stan Smith, chairman of the games committee, said yesterday the $2,000,000 budget for the games has been forwarded to Ottawa and the government has been asked to contribute toward it.

Henri Salaun of Hartford, Conn. successfully defended his Canadian squash singles crown in Toronto yesterday, defeating Jack Shusterman of the Toronto Hart House Grads 15-8, 15-5 and 15-4.

Douglas G. Smith, president of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, has been appointed softball commissioner for the metropolitan Toronto area. In his added capacity, he will be Canadian representative in charge of the world's softball championships this year at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Five straight victories by Don Holden's rink at the fourth annual Brampton Curling Club bonspiel which ended Saturday brought him the Laddie Wilson championship trophy. The Holden quartet won the final 9-4 from Brampton's Jack MacArthur. The W. E. Calvert trophy was won by 80-year-old J. W. Webster of Galt with a 10-6 victory over Brampton's Jim Mulliss.

Dutchies Clinch Playoff Berth; Marlies Nip Galt

(By The Canadian Press)

Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen clinched a playoff berth in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League Saturday by downing Brantford Redmen 7-2 while Owen Sound Mercurys were gaining a 6-4 decision from Sarnia Sailors.

Sunday afternoon Junior A play saw Toronto St. Michael's retain a fourth-place deadlock with the surging St. Catharines Teepees by edging Waterloo Hurricanes 4-3 at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto. In the other half of the twin bill, Marlboros blasted third-place Galt Black Hawks 9-4 to strengthen their hold on the 10-team league leadership.

In Saturday's Junior action Galt Black Hawks swamped Barrie Flyers 8-1 while Kitchener Greenshirts clipped Oshawa Generals 6-3 and St. Catharines drubbed Waterloo 10-5.

Biggest blow of the weekend befell third-place Galt. They lost the services of Ken Wharram, third in the league scoring race. He broke his collar-bone in a collision with Wally Maxwell of the Marlboros in Sunday afternoon's opener at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Hornets, Bears Maintain Leads In American Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets and Hershey Bears continue to maintain wide leads atop the western and eastern divisions of the American Hockey League.

Pittsburgh blanked Indianapolis Capitals 2-0 Saturday and was inactive Sunday while Hershey split a weekend doubleheader, dropping a 7-3 decision to Providence Reds Saturday and winning 4-2 against the same team Sunday.

In other Sunday games, Syracuse shaded Buffalo 5-4, Indianapolis outscored St. Louis 6-3 and Cleveland and Cincinnati played to a 1-1 deadlock.

Jerry Brown's goal at 14:11 in the final period while defenceman Pat Egan of the Reds was in the penalty box broke a 2-2 deadlock. Lorne Ferguson added another for good measure.

At Indianapolis, a third-period burst, led by the last two of Earl (Dutch) Reibel's goals, gave Indianapolis a 6-3 victory over St. Louis.

Ironmen Blank Flyers 4-0

(By The Canadian Press)

It took them 51 games to do it, but Seattle Ironmen finally scored a shutout last night. They blanked the visiting Edmonton Flyers 4-0 in the only Sunday Paficic Coast Hockey League clash.

Saturday Calgary's stumbling Stampeders picked up their feet and whipped Saskatoon Quakers 9-1 in Calgary, Tacoma Rockets stayed home to ear na 9-2 victory over Flyers and in New Westminster, the Royals increased their league lead to eight points with a 7-3 win over Victoria Cougars.

Selke Opposes Age Limit Hoist

Kitchener, Feb. 11 (CP)—Frank Selke, general manager of the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens, Saturday came out in opposition to any raising of the age limit for junior hockey.

He said any boosting of the age to 21 years would be "a sad mistake." The Montreal mentor said the extra year would only provide the "duds" on the rosters with another season of hockey.

Olympic Notes

Oslo, Feb. 11 (AP) —Hockey players are not fragile things, but the Norwegian Hockey Association has done everything in its power to make it comfortable for offenders in the Olympic penalty box.

At the Jordal ice rink where most of the matches will be played, four glamorous Oslo girls will be in charge of a players' refreshment box. During the intervals between periods, they will serve hot tea to the players.

The hockey players are expected to gulp down 3,000 cups of tea during the tournament.

The first aid corps at the rink will be doubled and a doctor will be at hand if the going gets rough.

Schools in Oslo realize they cannot fight against the Olympic interest and have announced that they will be closed for 10 days from Feb. 16.

The hockey games are expected to draw the largest over-all gates for the games.

Some 150,000 hockey fans will probably fill the galleries during the 10 Olympic nights in the stadium.

Norway was struck a hard blow when factories announced that skis will become more expensive.

Prices for skis are already high but the Norwegians don't worry too much if they only manage to do their daily skiing exercises.

Now the prices for skis are expected to increase by 40 percent as an addition to the general inflation trend. Ski factory owners say the increase has nothing to do with Olympic games, but is due to the lack of hickory wood in Norway.

The city of Oslo has decided to give winter sports enthusiasts a chance to celebrate late. The night traffic on the street-cars will continue until 2.15 a.m. During the games and the restaurants will be kept open until 2 a.m. instead of 11.30 p.m. Cigaret and chocolate shops will be kept open until 9 p.m. They normally close at 6 p.m.

Hershock Signs As Manager St. Thomas Club

St. Thomas, Feb. 11 (CP) — Andy Hershock of Philadelphia, Pa., a scout for the St. Louis Cardinals and former manager of the travelling House of David baseball team, was signed Saturday to manage the St. Thomas entry in 1952 Intercounty Senior Baseball League play.

Hershock impressed the local executive with his work with Brockville Memos of the Central Ontario Baseball League last season. While there he brought the eastern Ontario city its first C.O.B.L. championship and set up the groundwork for a boys' Little League.

Several promising prospects will join him when he opens the St. Thomas club's training camp next month. Some of these boys played under him last year.

The St. Thomas team executive has already signed several players for the 1952 season.

Men's Commercial

Moose Lodge maintained their four point edge in the Men's Commercial Bowling League on Friday night as they blanked O'Neil Sales and rolled high triple for the evening with a 3,544 pinfall.

Bosiaks held firm in second place with a shutout over Rockets while Gourley Motors and Alemite also won all three games over Balyx Brothers and Mead Johnson, the latter team defaulting.

Star Welding and Welding Gases won the odd game and point from Stephens-Adamson and Legionnaires in the other two encounters.

Henry Ryan of Moose Lodge turned in another sterling performance as he topped the men's high triple scores with 817, and paced his team to their seven point win.

Many Sports Notables Will Attend Sportswriters $25-a-Plate Dinner

Toronto, Feb. 11—(CP) — The four living members of the National Hockey League's first All-Star team of 1931 will get together in Toronto Thursday, Mar. 13, for the first time since their playing days.

The Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association announced tonight that Eddie Shore, King Clancy, Bill Cook and Aurel Joliat will be among a dozen or so notables to attend its first annual sports celebrity dinner in aid of crippled children.

The event marks the opening of the annual Easter seals campaign of the Ontario Society for crippled children. Proceeds of the $25-a-plate dinner — possibly $8,000 or more — will go to the society.

Detroit Skater Shares Title With Canadian

The attractive brunette streaked home first and Doreen second in the 220 and 880-yard dashes. She trailed Doreen, 100 points to 90, going into the last event, the one mile. (Each first place counted 30, second, 20, third 10).

Barbara came from behind on the last lap of the mile, moving up on the outside from fourth place to pass leading Doreen. Barbara, a jubilant smile on her face, won by fifteen feet in 3:33 minutes.

Only one national record fell. Alan Olsen of Chicago, breezed in first in the juvenile boys' (under 14 years) 220-yard dash in 19.7 seconds. The old record was 20.3, held jointly by Paul Vrudney and James Radis, both of Minneapolis.

Bantam Hockey League Results

The Black Hawks and Red Wings pulled out wins over the Rangers and Bruins in the bantam section of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association on Saturday morning. Canadiens and Maple Leafs played to a draw.

Hagerman tallied for the Leafs and Cruji for the Canadiens in the first game which ended in a 1-1 deadlock.

The Hawks - Ranger fray was the roughest game of the season with no less than eight penalties being issued. Hawks shutout their rivals, 2-0, on tallies by Culloden and Gill.

Red Wings ran rampant over the Bruins, defeating them by a 5-1 score. St. Louis and Musgrove each scored twice with singletons going to Durno and Meagher. Ab Wright tried a penalty shot for the Wings but was unable to score.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, Feb. 11—(AP)—To understand why the Australians see nothing wrong in giving Frank Sedgman, the amateur tennis player a wedding gift of $12,600, it is necessary to know a little more about the people of that young and virile nation than is taught in the schools.

The Aussies are a robust cheerful lot who take down large quantities of the world's strongest beer and who can take their amateur athletics or leave them strictly alone. They are betting fools, and at their race tracks they reserve a large stand for men only. If a wife, thus separated from her spouce, runs out of betting money after the fourth race, she's on her own.

The Aussies prefer professional foot racing to the so-called amateur variety prevalent in the rest of the world. Their sprint heroes get paid off in money, not in watches which can be traded for money, and some of them are said to be mighty men.

"Racing Binge"

Once a year, we believe it is, Australia's greatest money runners and visiting swifts from other countries gather at Bendigo, near Melbourne, for a racing binge without parallel in the world. For days on end they are at it for prizes running into thousands of dollars a race. The crowds are large and sweating and bookmakers do a landoffice business. Naturally, a Bendigo sport finds an amateur track meet pretty depressing.

One of the more interesting momentos of the land down under is a handbill, picked up in the village of Gundagai, about midway between Melbourne and Sidney.

The handbill leaves no doubt how the good citizens of Gundagai planned to spend last New Year's Day. They were going to be out at Anzac Park from noon until late at night watching foot racing, with a "publican's booth" (saloon) on the grounds.

"See the state's best sprinters in action," the come-on said, and went on to list the events for a total of £400 ($896) in prizes.

All in all, it sounded like a fine, exhilarating day for a sturdy band of people who don't spend their time worrying about a man's amateur standing.

Ottawa, Feb. 11—(CP)— Canada's big International Dog Sled Derby started today with the field scaled to 20 mushers and a couple of miles sliced off the 100-mile course because of lack of snow.

The course alteration was made at a meeting of the junior board race committee last night because of lack of snow on suburban roads used in the last half of the course. And the field was cut by one when Mrs. Lorna Demidoff of Fitzwilliam, N.H., withdrew to compete instead in a derby starting today at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Course Cut

At noon Walter E. Scott, president of the Ottawa Board of Trade was slated to fire the gun that started the three-day race on the Rideau Canal in the heart of the city. First in the slading order was Ted Lemieux of Maniwaki, Que., whose team of Siberian huskies failed to go the route last year. Other teams followed at three-minute intervals.

The second 33 1-3 mile lap gets off tomorrow and the third Wednesday.

The musher who turns in the best combined time for the course on each of the three days gets $1,000 first prize and a gold challenge trophy. In addition two women drivers in the field, Mrs. Marie Ouelette of The Pas, Man., and Mrs. Bunty Dunlop of Bronte, Ont., will be fighting it out for a $300 prize and a special gold cup.

Mrs. Elizabeth Nansen, chief judge, in a last briefing to the drivers, stressed safeguards against dogs running loose and against any possible abuse of the animals. Race officials will be posted along the course to watch.

Gunning for permanent possession of the derby's challenge cup is 39-year-old Emile Martel of Loretteville, Que. His team of cross-bred hounds won the race last year and he is confident they can do it again.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

The inter-city lacrosse league in Vancouver is still trying to woo Ontario teams from the Canadian Lacrosse Association.

The British Columbia League proposal that Ontario and B. C. teams conduct their own Mann Cup playoffs without the C. L. A. was rejected last weekend at the annual meeting of the Ontario Association.

At an Inter-city League meeting in Vancouver during the weekend, the eastern teams did not have enough time to consider the proposal before their meeting.

The executive was instructed to write each team individually and repeat the proposal. If the mail query is successful, a member may be sent east to speak to the teams personally.

Brockville Magedomas bounced back from a 7-5 Saturday night defeat in Clinton, N.Y., by downing Clinton Comets 8-4 yesterday in the third game of a best-of-seven New York - Ontario Hockey League semi-final. Clinton leads the series 2-1. The fourth game is scheduled for Brockville Thursday night.

The federal government has been asked for a grant of $750,000 for the 1954 British Empire Games in Vancouver. Stan Smith, chairman of the games committee, said yesterday the $2,000,000 budget for the games has been forwarded to Ottawa and the government has been asked to contribute toward it.

Henri Salaun of Hartford, Conn. successfully defended his Canadian squash singles crown in Toronto yesterday, defeating Jack Shusterman of the Toronto Hart House Grads 15-8, 15-5 and 15-4.

Douglas G. Smith, president of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, has been appointed softball commissioner for the metropolitan Toronto area. In his added capacity, he will be Canadian representative in charge of the world's softball championships this year at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Five straight victories by Don Holden's rink at the fourth annual Brampton Curling Club bonspiel which ended Saturday, brought him the Laddie Wilson championship trophy. The Holden quartet won the final 9-4 from Brampton's Jack MacArthur. The W. E. Calvert trophy was won by 80-year-old J. W. Webster of Galt with a 10-6 victory over Brampton's Jim Mulliss.

Dutchies Clinch Playoff Berth; Marlies Nip Galt

(By The Canadian Press)

Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen clinched a playoff berth in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League Saturday by downing Brantford Redmen 7-2 while Owen Sound Mercurys were gaining a 6-4 decision from Sarnia Sailors.

Sunday afternoon Junior A play saw Toronto St. Michael's retain a fourth-place deadlock with the surging St. Catharines Teepees by edging Waterloo Hurricanes 4-3 at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto. In the other half of the twin bill, Marlboros blasted third-place Galt Black Hawks 9-4 to strengthen their hold on the 10-team league leadership.

In Saturday's Junior action Galt Black Hawks swamped Barrie Flyers 8-1 while Kitchener Greenshirts clipped Oshawa Generals 6-3 and St. Catharines drubbed Waterloo 10-5.

Biggest blow of the weekend befell third-place Galt. They lost the services of Ken Wharram, third in the league scoring race. He broke his collar-bone in a collision with Wally Maxwell of the Marlboros in Sunday afternoon's opener at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Hornets, Bears Maintain Leads In American Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets and Hershey Bears continue to maintain wide leads atop the western and eastern divisions of the American Hockey League.

Pittsburgh blanked Indianapolis Capitals 2-0 Saturday and was inactive Sunday while Hershey split a weekend doubleheader, dropping a 7-3 decision to Providence Reds Saturday and winning 4-2 against the same team Sunday.

In other Sunday games, Syracuse shaded Buffalo 5-4, Indianapolis outscored St. Louis 6-3 and Cleveland and Cincinnati played to a 1-1 deadlock.

Jerry Brown's goal at 14:11 in the final period while defenceman Pat Egan of the Reds was in the penalty box broke a 2-2 deadlock. Lorne Ferguson added another for good measure.

At Indianapolis, a third-period burst, led by the last two of Earl (Dutch) Reibel's goals, gave Indianapolis a 6-3 victory over St. Louis.

Ironmen Blank Flyers 4-0

(By The Canadian Press)

It took them 51 games to do it, but Seattle Ironmen finally scored a shutout last night. They blanked the visiting Edmonton Flyers 4-0 in the only Sunday Pafiic Coast Hockey League clash.

Saturday Calgary's stumbling Stampeders picked up their feet and whipped Saskatoon Quakers 9-1 in Calgary, Tacoma Rockets stayed home to ear na 9-2 victory over Flyers and in New Westminster, the Royals increased their league lead to eight points with a 7-3 win over Victoria Cougars.

Selke Opposes Age Limit Hoist

Kitchener, Feb. 11 (CP)—Frank Selke, general manager of the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens, Saturday came out in opposition to any raising of the age limit for junior hockey.

He said any boosting of the age to 21 years would be "a sad mistake." The Montreal mentor said the extra year would only provide the "duds" on the rosters with another season of hockey.

Olympic Notes

Oslo, Feb. 11 (AP) —Hockey players are not fragile things, but the Norwegian Hockey Association has done everything in its power to make it comfortable for offenders in the Olympic penalty box.

At the Jordal ice rink where most of the matches will be played, four glamorous Oslo girls will be in charge of a players' refreshment box. During the intervals between periods, they will serve hot tea to the players.

The hockey players are expected to gulp down 3,000 cups of tea during the tournament.

The first aid corps at the rink will be doubled and a doctor will be at hand if the going gets rough.

Schools in Oslo realize they cannot fight against the Olympic interest and have announced that they will be closed for 10 days from Feb. 16.

The hockey games are expected to draw the largest over-all gates for the games.

Some 150,000 hockey fans will probably fill the galleries during the 10 Olympic nights in the stadium.

Norway was struck a hard blow when factories announced that skis will become more expensive.

Prices for skis are already high but the Norwegians don't worry too much if they only manage to do their daily skiing exercises.

Now the prices for skis are expected to increase by 40 percent as an addition to the general inflation trend. Ski factory owners say the increase has nothing to do with Olympic games, but is due to the lack of hickory wood in Norway.

The city of Oslo has decided to give winter sports enthusiasts a chance to celebrate late. The night traffic on the street-cars will continue until 2.15 a.m. During the games and the restaurants will be kept open until 2 a.m. instead of 11.30 p.m. Cigaret and chocolate shops will be kept open until 9 p.m. They normally close at 6 p.m.

Hershock Signs As Manager St. Thomas Club

St. Thomas, Feb. 11 (CP) — Andy Hershock of Philadelphia, Pa., a scout for the St. Louis Cardinals and former manager of the travelling House of David baseball team, was signed Saturday to manage the St. Thomas entry in 1952 Intercounty Senior Baseball League play.

Hershock impressed the local executive with his work with Brockville Memos of the Central Ontario Baseball League last season. While there he brought the eastern Ontario city its first C.O.B.L. championship and set up the groundwork for a boys' Little League.

Several promising prospects will join him when he opens the St. Thomas club's training camp next month. Some of these boys played under him last year.

The St. Thomas team executive has already signed several players for the 1952 season.

Men's Commercial

Moose Lodge maintained their four point edge in the Men's Commercial Bowling League on Friday night as they blanked O'Neil Sales and rolled high triple for the evening with a 3,544 pinfall.

Bosiaks held firm in second place with a shutout over Rockets while Gourley Motors and Alemite also won all three games over Balyx Brothers and Mead Johnson, the latter team defaulting.

Star Welding and Welding Gases won the odd game and point from Stephens-Adamson and Legionnaires in the other two encounters.

Henry Ryan of Moose Lodge turned in another sterling performance as he topped the men's high triple scores with 817, and paced his team to their seven point win.

Resolve not to pass a redouble of your partner's takeout double. Such a pass is bad for your partnership constitution. It can kill off a good partnership fast.

♥J 9 8 5 2
♦None
♣K Q 9 2

WEST
♠K Q 7 4
♥10 6 3
♦A J 10 9
♣A 8

EAST
♠6 5 2
♥7
♦8 7 6 5 3
♣10 7 6 5

SOUTH
♠J 8
♥A K Q 4
♦K Q 4 2
♣J 4 3

South started with an opening bid of one heart. West doubled for takeout. North redoubled. East should now bid something even if it hurts. Even if it kills him.

A takeout double orders partner to bid if no bid intervenes. The aim is for partner to show his best suit, preferably an unbid major. The doubler says he will protect the answer.

If the intervening player redoubles it shows a hand as good as a jump response with extra trimmings. It also admits that the doubled bid will easily make.

So, the doubler is certainly not going to let opponents play at a safe redoubled contract of one. The cost may be too heavy. Almost any takeout would cost less.

Partner of doubler should show his best suit fast. Else the doubler must guess what suit to bid. If he guesses wrong and is doubled, the side may take a bad beating.

But if partner of doubler has shown his best suit, doubler has something to work with. If he does not like that suit, he can always bid his own if it seems best for his side.

In the case shown here, east should bid two diamonds over the north redouble. Even if doubled, west will like it. Because, the loss would be less than opponents could make.

If opponents do not double two diamonds they will go on to a game in something. Even this would be less than letting them play at one heart redoubled. Don't take the worst of it.

Ken Wharram Snaps Collar-bone

Toronto, Feb. 11—(CP)— Ken Wharram, high-scoring forward with Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League, broke his collar-bone in yesterday's game here with Toronto Marlboros.

The Galt ace, who had only last Sunday been given a trial with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, suffered his injury in a collision with the Dukes' Wally Maxwell. Third highest scorer in the 10-team circuit, he may be lost to his club for the rest of the season.

Galt, in third place, lost the game to Marlies 9-4.

Montreal Rink Wins Shield

Members of the winning four were H. G. Clark, P. Millar, A. R. Tinker and Skip Gallagher. Bradley's rink included Ed Crain as lead, Lorne Armstrong second and Ossie O'Brien third.

This was the third occasion that the shield has gone to the Montreal West Club.

NEXT AT THE BELLE — Bette Davis enacts an intense dramatic role in "Payment on Demand", as a woman whose well-meant domination drives her husband to rebel. As her co-stars are Barry Sullivan, and the other woman, Frances Dee. "Payment on Demand" opens at the Belle Theatre tomorrow.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 11 (AP) —One Hollywood is Elsa Lanchester. The reason: She is always working.

The professional life of an actress is rather short, compared with most occupations. But in her almost two decades in Hollywood, Miss Lanchester has been flitting from picture to picture and is currently finishing a string of four in a row.

This week she plans to take off for another phase of her career. She will sing her puckish songs at the New York night club, The Blue Angel. And soon she will embark on a career on the concert stage.

"I'm a very serious worker," she disclosed in an interview. "I don't strain to be funny. I think the comedy comes from the fact that I am so intent. For instance, in 'Dream Boat," I played a college professor who chases Clifton Webb. I'm very serious about it, and that's why I think it will be funny. As a matter of fact, I think it is only logical that Webb should marry me in the script. Unfortunately that does not occur."

Miss Lanchester has amazed Hollywood by her long engagement at the Turnabout Theatre where she performs nightly for no pay.

"The engagement is not without compensation," she remarked. "I am not paid in money for two reasons: Since Charles (Laughton, her husband) and I file joint income tax returns in California, the added income would mean nothing and merely complicate matters; also, the theatre could not afford it.

"But in return for my services, I am given the rights to the special songs which the producer, Foreman Brown, has written for me. These have proven very valuable in providing material for me in night clubs, and will later in concerts.

AT THE McCARTHY — James Cagney gets ready to "let 'em have it," in "Come Fill the Cup," Warner Bros.' dynamic newspaper drama which opens today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Phyllis Thaxter is the girl.

AT THE CAPITOL — Doris Day and Gene Nelson in "Lullaby of Broadway," Warner Bros.' Technicolor gay comedy which begins Monday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program, "Close to My Heart," starring Ray Milland and Gene Tierney, a grand first run hit.

WHOLESALE INDEX DOWN

Washington, Feb. 11 (AP) — Price declines in grain, livestock, eggs, fresh vegetables, meats and other items shoved the government's wholesale price index down 3/10 of one per cen during the week ending Februar 5, the Bureau of Labor statistic reported yesterday. The bureaux index of 175.8 per cent o the 1926 average was 4.1 per cent below a year ago.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Tuesday, February 12

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Get yourself in line, ready to make quicker effort and contacts this stimulating day. Vibrations favor the alert and willing; good new ideas, improvements, remodeling. Act with tact, too.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Mixed tendenceis that may or may not tend to hinder your progress, depending a deal upon how awake, eager you are. Day offers advantages, at least some achievement, and with little strain. Try!

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Generous on whole. New projects and processes, expansive measures, finance, contacts under fresh stimulus. But take wise care. Personal affairs rightly handled can bring pleasure.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Most sound investments, business and household affairs in favorable position for gains. Unexpected success and satisfying events likely during p.m. Look bright, be bright!

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—There is stronger indication of fine ways to attain credits and profits now. Tune up your ambitions to reach goals quicker. Look for help from unexpected sources, loved ones.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Both business and personal matters share a goodly slice of day's healthy prospects. Romance offers good clean pleasure. Be worthy, give your best.

September 24 to October 23—Beneficial honorable compromise, (Libra) — Opportunity knocks better feeling between loved ones, friends, work relationships, follow sincere, careful procedures. Don't delay urgent matters.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—This day might be misconstrued as easy-going. Be careful, there may be pitfalls in unexpected places. Count ten before acting and don't be carried away by rumors. Use common sense!

November 23 to December 22—Sagittarius)— Be s:• cious, diplomatic dealing with all, especially agreeable at home where your real friends are. Likely tendency to intollerance, irritability, quick temper: dispel it promptly.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Headway possible in business, building, product distribution. Good period for useful innovations, efforts to bolster security, professional, artistic endeavors. Follow up good ideas.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—You may not be able to fulfill all personal desires, but you can be generally successful in activities that are soundly advanced. Be your true cheerful self.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces) — Go along with the smart trend, but never forsake good principles. Solve matters amicably. Look for unusual gains. Real estate, other sound investments sponsored.

YOU BORN TODAY are under the Sign of Aquarius the Humanitarian. Seldom worry about things generally and take happenings in a matter-of-foct way. When you do worry it can affect your whole outlook. That is not good. Take the philosophic course. Compensation may sometimes come unexpectedly. You can make rapid headway in medicine, social service, inventing, managing concerns. You direct others ably when living on the higher plane. Be informed, seek religion and education, choose good clean companions.

Birthdate: Abraham Lincoln, great U.S. Pres.; George Meredith, novelist, poet; Wallace Ford, actor.

James Ervin Lloyd of Carleton Place, Ont., was the first recruit enlisted by the army at the recruiting depot in Ottawa to take the oath of allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II following the death of King George VI. Pte. Lloyd, seen here taking the oath as Capt. Bob Stewart of Ottawa swears him in, has volunteered for the 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricias' Canadian Light Infantry and hopes to go to Korea. His brother who is a paratrooper in the Canadian army has only recently returned from the Far East where he served with the 2nd Battalion of PPCLI in Korea. — Central Press Canadian.

STRANGE BUT GENEROUS

Pietermaritzburg, South Africa (CP) — "Don't say I never give you anything," said a complete stranger to an elderly woman in her home here as he threw two five-pound and some one-pound notes in her lap. He left the house immediately and the woman handed the money to the police.

STIRLING

Dr. Richard Jones Speaks to Rotary Club on 'Brotherhood'

Stirling — The annual "Ladies' Night" of the Stirling Rotary Club was held in the Community Hall on Tuesday night when the Rotary Anns, club members and several guests enjoyed a delicious turkey dinner. Each lady was presented with a rose as a favor.

The musical background for the gathering was provided by a male quartet, Messrs. A. C. Bates, A. Southward, E. Wallace and H. Slingerland, and accompanist Mrs. S. Martin, of Frankford, who rendered several selections during the evening. Community singing, led by R. A. Patterson, was also enjoyed.

Guest Speaker

Dr. Richard Jones, executive director of the Canadian Conference of Christians and Jews, was the guest speaker and delivered a most humorous, timely and thought-provoking address on behalf of Brotherhood Week, which is being observed February 17th. to 24th.

"The miracle of Canada," stated Mr. Jones, "is the fact that Canadians, who are a part of the British commonwealth and live alongside of the United States are not absorbed by the cultural ways of either. Let us develop our own way of life and stand up for our country.

Ability, The Criterion

"In Canada," the speaker said, "we have all kinds of cultural pluralisms, all races, all religions and all colors represented, but still work in harmonious accord. No man is judged on the pigmentation of his skin or his religious beliefs, but on his ability to contribute to the well-being of the business and nation.

Mr. Jones spoke of the grandeur of the country and said that in his travels from Niagara Falls to Moose Factory, from Halifax to Victoria, there was nothing in any other country which was superior to Canadian mountain scenery.

"Canada's natural resources are only now coming to light, while its government on all levels — administered by cultured, refined and intelligent gentlemen is something of which everyone in the country should be proud," said Mr. Jones.

"We all have a job to do in building the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God and in order to do so we should learn the facts about the other people and groups. We cannot hold ourselves aloof but must work together," concluded the speaker.

Mr. Jones was introduced by Dr. William Cornett and thanks of the club extended by J. L. Good.

Mr. Jones has an appealing and ready flow of language at his command and the Rotarians are hopeful they may be honored by his presence at some future date.

We banish fear

Pardon us, but we think we help make this town and this world a better place for a lot of people, because we drive out fears.

The insurance policies we write enable people to forget fear of losses by fire, windstorm, burglary, theft, holdup, personal accidents, and damage suits for accidental injuries to people or property.

We bring a definite factor of safety and security to life in this community. A lot of folks here will tell you we've added to the serenity of their lives.

We're fear fighters.

Dr. Logan's Wife

By Diana Gaines

Peter Surinov was glad when Jennet Logan got in that he had a new automobile. The red leather upholstery, too, had seemed an extravagance at the time, but now he felt like patting it. Her eyes were on the gleaming dashboard. Even the clock worked.

Jennet had not seen him since that day on the hilltop when she had given him the check that had brought so much trouble. She knew Peter had seen her— blue-white, stiff, cold from her meal of death (had her mouth hung slack?). But at any rate his last glimpse of her however corpse-like she may have looked had not dampened his ardor. He had phoned. He had pleaded. And she had put him off with so many excuses that she was not sure where inclination ended and fear began. But now she was in his car.

"How do you like my new car?" he asked, as it purred away from the curb. "The windows work by push-button. Look." he demonstrated the one on her side.

"Oh wonderful," she said vaguely, backing away from his arm.

Spoiled. She was used to luxury cars. "You're looking very well," he said.

"Thank you. I'm fine now. Practically sane."

Jennet opened her purse, took out a cigarette. There was a packet of matches too, but her hands were trembling. She preferred to let Peter hold the car lighter to the cigarette which she braced like a flute against all four fingers.

"How's your work at Starr's coming? Do you like it any better?

"Not much," he said. "But I like the salary. First time I've had a car that wasn't second-hand."

They passed Chagiantz's jewelry shop, and glanced at and away from each other. A few doors down was the rush hut which fronted the fashionable Trade inds Restaurant. Peter slowed down.

"How about a drink?"

"Really, Peter, I can't. I'd love to—some other time. I have to get home. Mother is leaving for Chicago tonight. We're having an early supper so that she can make her train."

The validity of the excuse angered him. "All right, I'll take you straight home." He stepped on the accelerator, drove in second gear all the way to Sunset because its crescent growl was the nearest he could come to emitting one. He remembered the day the ambulance siren had screamed for him, and he loved her the more because she caused him pain.

They drove in silence fraught with tension. The physical current that ran between them now, as before, overflowed the shores of their social knowledge of each other, inundated each of them, and each, flailing in the current while pretending to stroll the banks, became too preoccupied for speech. Peter indulged in fantasies of abduction, while Jennet with the practicality of the female speculated nervously as to whether he was "red", supposed her rich, would some day think her old as she had thought Gus old.

"Was this your day off?" she asked finally.

"No, I just left early. I phoned your home this afternoon. Your mother told me you didn't have your car."

"Won't they care—your employers, I mean?"

"I don't think so. I'm in the executive bracket now. No clock-punching for the fallen. I just told Mr. Starr my girl was in a jam."

"I'm not your girl."

"You will be."

"You're awfully sure of yourself, aren't you?"

"One of us has to be."

Jennet had to laugh. "Peter you're impossible."

"That's better. I like you when you laugh. It's a good sound. Jennet, when are you going to stop fighting us?"

Jennet looked out of the window. She dragged on her cigarette, blew smoke.

"Peter if you must know, I don't think it's right for me to be seen with you. People have done enough talking about us. Thank goodness it doesn't reach my ears, but I can imagine the gossip. I'm not going to feed the kitty."

"You don't mean that seriously, Jennet. You can't. You have more integrity than to be intimidated by gossip. Besides, you're overrating your news value. We're yesterday's headlines at the hospital."

"We could be tomorrow's."

"So what?"

Jennet sighed. "I was beginning to feel almost quiet inside. I don't want to get all stirred up again."

Peter's jaw set. "I don't know why I broke my neck getting you to the emergency room that day. If you're going to live as if you were dead. . . "

"I didn't ask you to do me any favors!"

He pulled up to the curb in front of her home, stopping so suddenly that they jerked back hard against the seat.

It was odd how often she flared up at Peter, "I'll live as I please" she added somewhat shamefacedly.

He grabbed her wrist, tightened his figers around it. "No, as I please. Because you don't know how to live. You never have or you couldn't have tried to die. Let me teach you, Jennet. It could be so wonderful."

His face was close to hers, the scent of his skin pin-pricked her remembering heart. His body blocked out light, crouched over her, and a shaft of desire plummeted down through her body like a sword swallowed. Jennet Logan took his hand from her wrist, played for a moment with his fingers, admiring the size and shape of his hand, feeling the smoothness of his broad palm with her own. She looked up at him and her hand went to the dark hank of hair that lay on his forehead. His hair was springy to the touch, resisted the combing of her fingers. "Peter, I"—she cleared her melting throat—"what do you want of me?"

"Only everything," Peter Surinov said, grinning down at her.

Ever since high school there had been girls for him. He often got their names mixed, they were so alike. He could have married any one of them, he supposed, and led a pleasant family life, but somehow he always fought shy of the the finality of marriage. There was always the next one. Now, he knew there was no next one. He thought constantly and only of Jennet.

But the moment was solemn for her. "Are you asking to marry me?" she said earnestly, punishing the grin.

It was a shaft that struck unexpected at his Adams apple which he swallowed twice. "Yes, I guess so," he said slowly as if the words were sacred. "I guess I am"

Jennet thought she had seen him scared, and wanting him made her humble, made her change her terms so quickly that she believed they were her own. "I don't think I want marriage Peter. I don't want to belong to anyone but myself. When you come right down to it, we don't have much in common except—well, I think it's been a physical attraction between us from the start. And," her voice furled to a whisper, "that is no longer possible."

It took him a few seconds to realize that his proposal of marriage, hoarded through the years, delivered in joyous shock, had been turned down. Yet it was she who had asked it of him. The pride stuck now like a gaff in his throat. "Just a physical attraction?" he quoted on a harsh breath that gave out too soon. "Nothing in common? Why, you cold hearted little snob, do you think I can't get a woman without all this pleading and begging? Do you think I've been crowding phone booths for five months just because I wanted . . ."

She slapped him across the jaw, grunting with the effort of it. She leaned with all her weight on the door handle, jumped out and ran across the lawn.

"I'm glad you're here, Jenny. It's 5.30. We'll eat as soon as you wash up. I ordered the taxi for 6.30."

"It's not late!" Jennet cried, holding her hot cheeks.

"I know, dear, I'm not scolding," Mrs. Lecky said. "There's plenty of time. I don't know why I'm so silly about trains. I've never missed one in my life. Say, don't let me forget to phone Mrs. Pelletier. I want to be sure to say good-bye to her. They've been so kind. They. . ."

The doorbell interrupted. Jennet whispered. "You get it, Mother, I've got to go up!" She raced up the stairs, and at the landing stopped and took shallow breaths so that she could hear more acutely. She heard him say that she had left her purse in his car, heard their self-introductions, heard him wish her mother a pleasant journey and her mother repeat her thanks for the purse, heard the door close. Jennet ran to the bedroom window watched him shag the grass to his car.

The car disappeared into the trees.

Dry-eyed she rocked back and forth on the window seat chanting her hate of him into her hands.

Jennet woke at nine the next morning, having first wished away and finally slept away the night. She reached for the telephone book, ran the point of her fingernail down the clumn Starr Labratories. When she gave the number to the operator her voice was still scratchy from sleep. It had an intimate sound, seductive, and she hoped the beating of her heart wouldn't send it into the higher registers. With her free hand, she lit a cigarette to abet the husky tenor. But when she reached his department at the factory, she was told he was in conference. She left her name.

She lay back on the pillow, smoking, practising the call again.

"Peter," she said humbly, but with an edge of gaiety. "I called to tell you I'll never slug you again. Because I love you. Terribly darling And I want to marry you more than anything."

He sulked, still hurt. "Why the sudden change of heart?"

Or, he, having come to the same pass by the same night-travelled road, matched her mood. "I have the jaw-bone of an ass, my darling. Chalk it up as a lover's quarrel. What time shall we have dinner tonight?"

Or, he spoke stiltedly to make clear to her that there were people within earshot. "Good. I do too. Very much. . ." and she had to talk for both of them.

She went on rehearsing all the possibilities but one—that Peter would not return the call.

Crown Attorney Terms Incident 'Honest Error'

Detroit, Feb. 11—A Detroit man has complained that he was 'kidnapped' by Detroit detectives and, without extradition proceedings, turned over to Ontario Provincial Police.

In Windsor, Ont., Crown Attorney Bruce J. S. Macdonald Saturday termed the incident an "honest error."

Lester M. Ingles, 45, told a federal district attorney that two Detroit detectives arrested him in his hotel room and placed him in custody of two Windsor area policemen. He was then taken to Amherstburg, Ont., and questioned in connection with a robbery with violence charge.

Ingles said he was kept in an unheated cell for two days before being released.

Jack Harvill, chief of detectives, said that his men had misunderstood an order to hold Ingles in Detroit.

Ontario Provincial Police spokesmen have been asked to appear here today to explain why extradition proceedings were not employed.

Imperial Crown Will be Taken From Tower

London, Feb. 11 (AP) — Britain's imperial state crown, worth an estimated £300,000 will be taken from the Tower of London for King George's funeral procession and service.

The crown, studded with 2,783 diamonds and 277 pearls, will be cleaned by royal jewellers, then turned over to the Lord Chamberlain to be placed on the king's casket from the time it leaves Sandringham until it reaches Windsor next Friday.

The crown was made 114 years ago for Queen Victoria. It has been adjusted for each new monarch since then. After the funeral next Friday it will be adjusted again for Queen Elizabeth II.

½ cup Jewel Shortening	3 tsps. baking powder
1½ cups sugar	1 cup milk
1 tsp. salt	1 cup finely-chopped apricots
1 tsp. vanilla	¼ cup finely-chopped nuts
3 cups sifted cake flour	3 egg whites

Cream Jewel Shortening. Add sugar, salt, vanilla. Cream till fluffy. Sift together flour, baking powder. Add alternately with milk. Add nuts, apricots, steamed if needed. Fold in egg whites, beaten stiff but not dry. Blend lightly. Line bottom of 8" angel cake pan with brown paper, flour. Rub tube with Jewel. Bake at 325°F., one hour. Cool.

FILLING

1 cup finely-chopped apricots	½ cup sugar
2 cups water	1 tbsp. corn starch
	1 tbsp. lemon juice

Cook everything in double boiler till soft enough to spread.

FROSTING

2 egg whites	¼ tsp. cream of tartar
1½ cups sugar	¼ tsp. salt
½ cup strong coffee	1 tsp. rum extract

Mix everything except extract in double boiler. Place over boiling water. Beat thoroughly about 5 minutes. Remove from heat, stir well. Add extract. Beat one extra minute, till frosting stands in peaks.

DECORATION: Save ¼ cup filling to tint the swirls of frosting. Make three apricot flowers with scissors—cut apricots to the centre, petal-fashion. Use green cherry pieces for flower centres.

Names of winners will be published in this paper. SWIFT CANADIAN CO., LIMITED.

Sorrowing Britons File Past Coffin To Pay Respects

2,000 Waiting in Line For Doors of Hall to Open

London, Feb. 12 — (AP) — Through the hushed dignity of great Westminster Hall, the somberly clad people of Britain shuffled softly in reverent homage today past the body of King George VI.

Silent men bowed before the coffin and passed on. Silent women curtsied to the Sovereign in death as they would in life.

As 8 a. m. tolled, the heavy iron-studded doors of the hammer-beamed hall swung slowly open.

The first to bare his head beneath the freezing wind and walk solemnly into the big stone hall was A. A. Pugh of Liverpool. He had waited on the steps for 13 hours to lead the mourning procession.

By the time the doors opened, more than 2,000 were waiting in patient line to pay respect to the king who walked among them in wartime and encouraged them to stand fast against the troubles of uneasy peace.

The throng that stood for hours was a mixture of the common folk of England. There were early workmen wrapped in trench coats against London's ever-present damp. There were professional men in bowler hats, carrying umbrellas and brief cases. Here and there stood a woman in mink. Most others, including charwomen who stayed their home-going from nightly cleaning work in offices, were dressed in the threadbare coats that mark Britain's austere life.

There 16 Years Ago

Mrs. Charlotte Threlfall, a telephone operator, joined the patient line at 6 a.m., as she did 16 years ago when George V lay in state in the same old hall.

"I would have stayed all night if it had been necessary," she said.

One of the quiet London bobbies, on duty at the door, said the mourning subjects were being admitted at the rate of 1,200 every 15 minutes.

The coffined body they came to bow to lay on a purple covered catafalque reached by four scarlet-carpeted steps. At each corner and at the head and foot a tall candle in a golden holder flickered at the movements of passing mourners.

Meeting Will Determine Future Of Newark Field

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 12 — (AP) — Nerve - shattered Elizabeth residents — numbed and bewildered after three major air catastrophes here — riveted their attention today on a meeting to determine Newark airport's future.

The sprawling and once-bustling airport, shuttered since yesterday's crash of a National Airlines plane with loss of 31 lives, now is the scene of ghost-like silence.

It's future hangs in the balance and will be discussed in New York today at a meeting between the port of New York Authority and officials of 17 airlines. Governor Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey and Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York have been advised of the session. The port authority has operated the $53,000,000 field since 1947.

Wary local residents, terrified and furious because of the three crashes within less than two months, wondered whether the close-down order would last.

The death toll from the crash yesterday of the four - engined DC-6 stands at 31. The craft plunged out of control into this crowded city and tore into the top of a 52-family apartment house, setting it ablaze. Twenty-seven of the 63 aboard perished and four persons trapped in the inferno-like apartment building lost their lives. Forty persons — mostly plane passengers — were injured, many of them seriously.

Harold Fiore of Lynbrook, N. Y., a passenger on the plane, died last night. He was on a honeymoon with his bride, who was reported in good condition.

This brought the combined death toll of the three tragedies to 117.

The port authority operates 3 other major airports in the New York - New Jersey metropolitan area. These are Teterboro in New Jersey, and LaGuardia and Idlewild in New York.

Flights scheduled for Newark airport were shunted to New York, Philadelphia and Teterboro.

The Allied supreme commander accused the reds of grabbing some 178 fishing craft in violation of the occupation agreement, and "contrary to all principles of international law and custom."

Ridgway charged the reds confiscated 29 of the boats and wrecked one. He said 33 disappeared without a trace; one escaped and the other 114 eventually were released.

He also accused the Russians of holding many of the fishermen captive, subjecting them to "prolonged interrogations, most of which have had nothing to do with the alleged violations of the fishing area but on the contrary have been solely for the purpose of securing political, economic and military information concerning conditions in Japan."

He also said the Russians tried to levy fines in U.S. dollars against some captains "on the totally unsupported grounds of their having 'plundered' fish in Soviet 'territorial' waters."

The seizures were on the high seas, the Allied statement said, in the northern waters off Hokkaido —the northernmost Japanese island near Russian held Sakhalin.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 12 (CP)—Synopsis: Cold air from the Arctic has again swept southward, giving Ontario a night of crisp weather. Temperatures will rise a little today. However, they are not expected to go above freezing, despite periods of sunshine which are forecast for most regions.

Milder weather is in store Wednesday. This will be accompanied by cloudy skies with some rain expected by evening.

HARD TO DEFINE

Manila, Feb. 12. (AP)—Birthplace? Antonio Marie Barakat always will have trouble answering that one. Antonio was born Sunday in a Royal Dutch Airlines plane over the China sea. His Labanese parents were en route from Bangkok to Australia via Manila. Antonio and his mother were rushed to a hospital on arrival here. The Barakat family will resume the trip to Sydney Sunday.

CANADIANS, EACH IN HIS OWN WAY, WILL PAY TRIBUTE

Courts, Banks, Govt. Offices Asked to Close

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadians, each in his own way, will pay tribute to the King Friday when funeral services are held in London.

The federal government proclaimed the day "as a public holiday to be observed as a day of general mourning" for the Monarch who died Feb. 6. But only the courts, banks and federal offices are required to close.

The provinces were left free to issue their own proclamations and only in British Columbia and Newfoundland will the day be observed as if it were a statutory holiday with all non-essential industries closing. Provincial Secretary W. T. Straith said of British Columbia's plans: "Everything will be closed—just like a Sunday."

A Canadian Press survey yesterday found:

Schools in all provinces will be closed.

Leading department stores in most cities will not open.

The motion pictures industry council requested its 2,000 member theatres across Canada to remain closed until 6 p.m.

The Montreal and Toronto Stock exchanges, the Winnipeg Grain exchange and commodity markets will suspend operations for the day.

The CBC will observe long periods of silence during the day, confining broadcasts to funeral events.

Wage Contract Seniority Clause May Cause Strike

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 12. (CP)—Rhys Sale, Ford of Canada president, said today that if a strike is called at the Ford plant here, a wage contract seniority clause will be the sole reason for it.

He said in a statement he did not think that seniority changes proposed by the union "would be vital enough to warrant throwing 9,000 men into idleness for an indefinite period."

The company, he said, is ready to reopen talks "whenever the union wishes to go ahead." If talks were resumed, the company would be represented, as before, by Wallace Clark, vice-president, industrial relations.

Two weeks of wage contract conferences between the company and officials of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) ended yesterday in Labor Minister Daley's Toronto office on the question of the seniority clause.

George Burt, U.A.W. Canadian director, told a press conference yesterday that there is a "distinct possibility" of a Ford strike.

Meetings were scheduled for this afternoon and evening by the union executive committee and steward body. If strike action is to come, these meetings will decide the date it will be effective.

Political Activities of Postmaster Said Cause of Partisanship Charge

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 12 (CP) — The Kingston Whig-Standard in a newspage story today quotes "an Ottawa source" as saying that a charge of partisanship laid against Robert S. Wise, postmaster at Cloyne is based on the allegation that he is a member of the Progressive Conservative party executive for the federal riding of Frontenac-Addington.

The appointment of Hugh Gibson, city solicitor, as commissioner to investigate the charge is announced in the current issue of the Canada Gazette.

Mr. Wise, appointed in June 10, 1948, as postmaster at Cloyne, 50 miles northwest of here, has denied he is a member of the party executive.

Civil service regulations ban federal employees from participating actively in politics.

W. R. Aylesworth, federal Progressive Conservative member for Frontenac-Addington, said today in an interview that "petty jealousy" may be behind the partisanship charge.

Similar charges, Mr. Aylesworth said, could be laid against other postmasters, supporters of the present Liberal administration, "some of them not far from Kingston."

He said he had never known Mr. Wise to utter a word of politics during an election campaign or at any other time since he took over the postmasters' job.

Mr. Aylesworth said he understood Mr. Wise and his mother were known as Conservatives, but added: "Has it got to the time when you can't be a P.C.?"

Mr. Gibson said yesterday he had not been informed of his appointment as commissioner to investigate the charge. The Gazette said the appointment was effective Jan. 29.

Trend of Prices Will Depend On Savings, International Situation, Defence Spending

--- TOWERS

Ottawa, Feb. 12 (CP) —The trend of the cost of living in Canada in 1952 will largely be determined by three factors—the extent of personal savings, the international situation and the effect of defence expenditures on North America.

Graham F. Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, told a press conference yesterday that he could not predict what is likely to happen to prices this year.

It all depends, he said, on how much individuals save, on whether there are "frightening" developments in the international situation and on the effect of defence expenditures in North America.

He made the statements in answering questions on his annual report on operations of the publicly-owned bank.

Mr. Towers said the "wild buying spree" set off by the outbreak of the war in Korea had tapered off in March 1951 when no shortages of goods had appeared. With the outbreak of the war in Korea there was a feeling that shortages of many goods would develop. Heavy buying and higher production of some goods had resulted.

When the buying wave slowed down, some industries found the going hard. This was due, he said, largely to the fact that the post-war buying backlog had been considerably worn down.

Savings Increase

Personal savings increased sharply in the last six months of 1951, and that was an encouraging thing as far as inflation was concerned. Another encouraging factor was that there was no increase in the wholesale price index in the [illegible] six months of the year despite [illegible] capital investment and substantial defence expenditures.

During the year, manufacturers and merchandisers began to reduce the rate at which they accumulated inventories.

The capital investment program resulted in the volume of government bonds being offered for sale exceeding demand. Prices for the bonds fell. Mr. Towers said that at times the Bank of Canada had retreated in the face of selling pressures.

The bank showed a profit of $24,243,017 on 1951 operations, compared with $19,887,548. Mr. Towers said the profit resulted mainly from the interest on government bonds held by the bank.

Military Plans for Funeral Of King George Completed

London, Feb. 12 (AP) —Military plans with the detail and precision of a wartime operation were made today for the funeral and burial of the King.

Most of the military roles in the state ceremony Friday are being rehearsed over and over by the men who will perform them in London at Windsor, where the Monarch is to be buried.

Sailors from the Royal Navy Gunnery School, HMS Excellent, had a dress rehearsal in pulling by hand the gun carriage which will carry the body part of the way from Windsor Station to St. George's Chapel inside Windsor Castle.

This tradition began at Queen Victoria's funeral in 1901. On that occasion six big gray horses hitched to the gun carriage commanded to "walk, march" but the two lead horses reared up and all six fell down. In the emergency a naval guard of honor was ordered to pull the carriage to the castle, and the custom has been followed since.

The gun carriage to be used Friday is the same green-grey one used to carry the coffin of Queen Victoria.

The War Office announced in a special order of the day that Maj.-Gen. J. A. Gascoigne, commander of the London military district and of the brigade of Household Guards will be chief of all land, sea and air units assigned to the funeral procession.

The cortege will move slowly out of Westminster Hall where the body now is lying in state, at 9.30 a.m. (4.30 a.m. EST) to Paddington Station.

Troops will be stationed almost shoulder to shoulder along the three mile route, resting on their reversed rifles as the procession passes.

Military officers used measuring sticks to plan the departure at Paddington Station's platform No. 8, where the King's coffin will be placed in the same teakwood funeral coach that brought the body from Sandringham yesterday.

Railway workers, volunteering for the task, placed drapes of black and royal purple in the station. Wooden stands to hold several hundred people are being erected along the platform.

Fifty-six artillery salvoes, one for each year of the King's life, will be fired at one-minute intervals during the procession. Big Ben, the famous clock on Westminster Hall, will start tolling as the procession starts and will not resume its regular striking of the hours until noon.

More than 150,000 people are expected to jam Windsor for a last look at the coffin of their Sovereign before it is entombed behind the gray walls of the castle.

The procession will enter the castle walls at Sovereign's Gate, cross Windsor's grand quadrangle and approach the entrance to St. George's Chapel through the "Horseshoe Cloisters," where officials and caretakers of the church live.

Chinese Pirates Let Ship Go After Ransom Paid

Taipeh, Formosa, Feb. 12 (AP)—Chinese pirates with a lust for gold bars halted the little British steamer Wing Sang last night but let it go for a ransom of $4,500 in cash and four wrist watches.

Three were Americans—Edward Stansbury of Coldbrook, Mass., attache of the U.S. embassy at Taipeh; his wife; and Frank A. Peters of Paterson, N.J., an American Oil Company representative at Hong Kong.

The ship was in Formosa Strait, about 15 miles off the communist China coast, when pirates opened fire with anti-aircraft guns, a bazooka and machine guns. One Chinese crew member was shot in the leg.

After much shouting back and forth through megaphones, Capt. Ronald G. G. Stanton of Liverpool went over to the freebooter ship with several of his officers to begin negotiations.

Farmers Worry About Prices Of Cattle, Hogs

Toronto, Feb. 12—(CP)—Ontario farmers are concerned about beef, hog, egg and poultry prices, the Department of Agriculture said today in its weekly crop report.

Farmers in Dufferin, Middlesex, Durham, Glengarry, Lanark and Timiskaming counties are worried by the steady decreases in beef prices, the report said.

Brant County farmers were reported not placing orders for baby chicks because of low egg prices.

In southern Ontario, fruit growers say apples are moving steadily and pruning of trees is progressing. Throughout the province, feed supplies remain satisfactory.

$250 Increase Given

Kingston, Feb. 12 — (CP) — City council last night authorized across-the-board pay increases of $250, retroactive to Jan. 1, for most civic employees.

The increases, approved without discussion, excluded department heads. They will be dealt with individually.

Hourly paid workers will receive an increase of 11 cents. Individual adjustments included a $400 annual boost for the deputy welfare officer, in addition to the overall adjustment. The fire chief received a $175 increase.

CANADA MAKES RECORD STRIDE IN POPULATION

Hits 14,000,000 Mark, Big Rise in 10 Years

Ottawa, Feb. 12—(CP)—Canada's population jumped more than 2,500,000 in the 10 years between 1941 and last year and hit the 14,000,000-mark with Ontario Quebec and British Columbia contributing most to the increase.

It was the biggest jump in any 10 years in the country's history.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported the 21.8 per cent national increase yesterday in releasing final tabulations of the 1951 decennial census. It placed the population at 14,009,429 as of June last year, including 361,416 new Canadians gained when Newfoundland joined confederation. The Newfoundland population was 321,819 in 1941.

British Columbia topped all provinces in the percentage column. It added 42.47 per cent to its 1941 population of 817,861 and became the third province to top the million-mark with 1,165,210 people.

Numerically Ontario was the largest province. She added 809,887 people to her 1941 population of 3,787,655 for a 21.38 per cent increase to hit 4,597,452.

Quebec had 723,799 or 21.72 per cent more people, with a total of 4,055,611 as of June last year compared with 3,331,882 in 1941.

Sask. Shows Decrease

The three biggest provinces accounted for roughly three-quarters of the over-all national increase, adding between them about 1,880,000 people.

Saskatchewan was the only province to show a population decrease. It dropped 7.17 per cent to 831,728 from 895,992 in the 10-year period. Manitoba increased by only 6.41 per cent to 776,541 from 729,744.

Despite her oil boom, Alberta was well down the list with an increase of 18 per cent which sent her population to 939,501 from 796,169. Indications are, however, that Alberta will become the fourth 1,000,000-population province and probably within a few years.

Nova Scotia's population was up 11.18 per cent to 642,584, New Brunswick by 12.75 to 515,697, Prince Edward Island by 3.56 per cent to 98,429.

Biggest jump of all on a percentage basis came in the Yukon. It was up 8.10 per cent to 9,096 from 4,914. And the Northwest Territories were up 33.06 per cent to 16,004 from 12,028.

Closing in Kingston

Kingston, Feb. 12—(CP)—Friday, the day of King George's funeral, will be a civic holiday in Kingston.

Proclamation of the holiday was authorized at last night's city council meeting. It is expected that all business concerns in the city will shut down.

It was pointed out, however, that there is no compulsion. If any merchant desires to remain open he may do so.

Gold Precipitates Worth $25,000 Stolen from Mine

Two or Three Hooded Men Bind Three Workers

Timmins, Feb. 12—(CP)—The Aunor Gold Mines near here was robbed today of $25,000 worth of gold precipitates by two or three hooded men and mine manager R. E. Findlay said it was "an inside job."

He said the bandits, who waylaid and bound three workmen one at a time, "had an intimate knowledge of the property" and knew that the gold was to have been refined today or tomorrow.

Fourth Large Robbery

It was the fourth large robbery in the Porcupine area, which includes Timmins, Schumacher and South Porcupine, since June 2, 1950. Then, robbers took three gold bars valued at $75,000 from the Delnite mine but the gold was recovered later.

Two months later, bandits took $96,000 in gold bricks from Coniarum Mines. The loot was recovered in the rear seat of a car on the highway. A faulty brake-drum had apparently set the car on fire forcing the bandits to leave the gold, weighing 216 pounds.

Police were not certain of the exact number of bandits involved in today's robbery. Cracik said he saw three men, one more than the number noticed by the other workmen.

The bandits were armed with a rifle.

Precipitates are a gold solution being treated with metallic zinc. The zinc is placed in the solution and liquid runs through canvas socks. The resulting process allows the water to escape through the socks and the gold precipitate is left behind.

The precipitate has to be smelted to produce finished gold. The $25,000 worth stolen today would weigh almost 500 pounds.

The bandits after binding the three men must have spent about half an hour smashing the locks on the press. They passed the 50-pound socks through a second-floor window to a man on a ladder. It was then transferred to the toboggan and dragged to the getaway car.

An estimated $75,000 worth of precipitates was in the mine's presses at the time, ready for refining today.

They seized Yvon Guillemette, a flotations operator, when he was outside checking solution levels on tanks. After tying him up in a valve house—where the temperature was almost as cold as the 18 below zero outside—they smashed a lock and entered the mill where they bound two other workers, C. Craik and Antony Ferri.

The first alarm was given at 4 a.m. by security guard Mike Yasinchuk who notified provincial police and mine officials.

Officials estimated the time of the robbery was 3:15 a.m. and the robbers were frightened off when the time for the regular four o'clock rounds drew near. The robbers carried the precipitate one-quarter mile to a getaway car.

The robbers carried the gold precipitate to the car on a toboggan.

U.S. Air Force Defends Policy Of Keeping Jet Aces in Korea

U. S. Air Force Headquarters, Korea, Feb. 12—(AP)—United States Air Force spokesman today defended the policy of keeping all jet pilots—including aces —in Korea until they have finished their normal tour of 100 combat missions.

That was the air force stand on the controversy that has raged since Maj. George A. Davis, Jr., was shot down Sunday. Davis had destroyed 11 MIGs and three red bombers in 59 missions.

The spokesman said Davis was a hero, but the statements that he should have been sent home were likely to make him a figure of controversy instead.

The first three American jet pilots to become aces in the Korean war were returned to the U. S. after their fifth kill. Five kills make a pilot an ace.

In Lubbock, Tex., Mrs. Davis, expecting her third child in May, said her husband should have been sent home the same as the first three.

She said Davis recently wrote her, "things can't go on like they are. We lost so many planes and so many men. The MIGs are so much better than the Sabres that something must be done."

In Washington, Representative George Mahon (Dem. Tex.) asked the air force to investigate thoroughly and report to him on circumstances surrounding Davis' death.

The Fifth Air Force spokesman said policy requires the completion of 100 missions in Korea, but that the first three aces were sent home to instruct other airmen being prepared for Korean combat.

He added that fighter-bomber pilots and Sabre jet pilots who do not become aces face the same dangers as aces.

In his 59 combat missions over North Korea, Davis grabbed every jet record in the book. In the Second World War he bagged seven Japanese planes.

Hospital Fund Oversubscribed By $2,000,000

Toronto, Feb. 12 — (CP) — Toronto's General Hospital set out a month ago to raise $14,000,000. The campaign closed last night with the fund oversubscribed by more than $2,000,000.

E. P. Taylor, general chairman of the fund, said $16,128,134 in pledges and gifts were collected for a hospital re-building and modernization plan. It was believed the largest sum ever raised for a single hospital. Two years ago $8,000,000 was raised for the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children's new building.

Expenses connected with the campaign total less than $125,000, a saving of $25,000 on the $150,360 budget.

The federal government granted $1,000,000 for new beds and equipment. This would bring the total government grants to $7,500,000 — $3,000,000 from the province, $3,000,000 from the city and $500,000 from York County.

Mr. Taylor said $2,365,791 in public subscriptions was raised from men and women throughout the province and $5,957,744 in corporate gifts and pledges.

Unassigned gifts, including contributions from more than 5,000 school children, totalled $304,599.

Six Led to Safety

Brantford, Feb. 12 (CP) —Mrs. Elias Patterson yesterday led her six children to safety when fire destroyed their home on the Six Nations reservation near here.

After herding her four children outside, the 33-year-old Mohawk mother snatched her two-year-old twins from their crib and ran outside.

Mrs. Patterson, whose husband was working in the steel plant at Hamilton, fought a futile 15-minute battle against the flames which started in the chimney. Neighbors and RCMP officers stationed at the Ohsweken reserve formed a bucket brigade but were unable to halt the fire.

Salvation Army Work Outlined To Kinsmen Club

The work of the Salvation Army in all walks of life and its special service to the people "from the other side of the tracks" was told to members of the local Kinsmen Club at their dinner meeting Monday evening.

Speaker was Lieut. P. Gardiner of the Salvation Army Corps at Trenton, who told of the work of S.A., dwelling particularly on its social service work. The motto of the Salvation Army, he said was "Serving with heart to God and hand to man."

He summed up the social service work of the Corps by stating that it helped people to keep their self respect and for those who had lost it, to regain it. It was not sufficient to raise man from the quagmire but efforts must me made to keep him from sliding back.

He spoke briefly of his own experiences in social service work, speaking specifically of visitations to two men in Napanee jail—one a young English service man and the other a mere youth—both of whom were charged with murder. Without taking credit for himself, Lieut Gardiner said these two men had been instilled with a sense of responsibility to God and to their fellowmen.

Accepted in All Walks

Passing on to the material things of life the speaker declared there are things in life, which mean much more than money, home and the circle within which we live. One of these was a craving for satisfaction.

"I have found my satisfaction in God," he said.

He said that many people associate the Salvation Army with its work among people "on the other side of the track."

"I thank the Salvation Army for that," he said, "but the S.A. is accepted in all walks of life."

Formerly associated with the H. J. Heinz Company, Lieut. Gardiner had foresaken the business world for a fuller life with the Salvation Army. "I do not feel that I have missed my calling," he assured.

The speaker was introduced by Kin Bill Bell and thanked by Kin Harold Meyers.

Six Inducted

Six new Kinsmen were inducted into the club during the meeting with District Governor Murray Davis presenting them with their pins and charging them with their duties and responsibilities as Kinsmen.

Field Secretary Tells Meeting Of Campaign

Mr. B. L. Baulch, field secretary of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, met with delegates from various organizations on Monday afternoon, and told them what other parts of the province were doing in the drive to raise funds to help young cripples. He also explained the best way in which to conduct a campaign.

The meeting was held in conjunction with the forthcoming Easter Seal campaign, in its sixth year in Ontario, and which was developed as an annual recurring method of fund raising for crippled children.

"The Ontario happenings", Mr. Baulch said, "have become a pattern for other provinces and last year, the campaign was stepped up to a national basis." This year eight provinces are distributing Easter seals.

Mr. Baulch outlined the various methods for fund raising such as display cars, overpass streamers, movie trailers, blotters, billboard advertising, postage meters and through press and radio.

This year the campaign will be inaugurated in Ottawa on March 3, and will coincide with the campaign in the United States. Beginning in 1947 with an objective of $50,000, the Society's objective has steadily risen until this year it will be aiming at $450,000. Last year's program called for $375,000 which was exceeded by $25,000. The campaign has never fallen short of its aim.

All City Schools Will be Closed On Friday

All schools in the city will close on Friday as a measure of respect and affection for our late King, His Majesty King George VI.

Announcement that schools would be closed on the day of the King's funeral was received in the city this morning from W. J. Dunlop, Minister of Education.

In directing that schools be closed for the day, the Minister of Education suggested that a memorial service be held in all schools on Thursday with principals and teachers emphasizing the great service rendered to the people of the British Commonwealth by the King who is gone.

"He was a great and a good man, and a Christian gentleman. He served his God and his countrymen with remarkable distinction," Mr. Dunlop said.

Also during the memorial service at schools, Mr. Dunlop said that principals and teachers as well as pupils might well join in pledging loyalty to Queen Elizabeth II who has now assumed the great task passed on to her by her late father.

Mr. L. A. Kells, superintendent of public schools, said that arrangements were being made to hold memorial services in all local public schools on Thursday.

Sidney Liberals Welcome Member, Wife to Twp.

Many friends and neighbors, together with the Sidney Liberal Ladies' Association, gathered at the new residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Follwell on Saturday evening to welcome them into the community.

Ben Bleecker, who acted as chairman, conveyed the kind thoughts and good wishes of all present as well as the many citizens of the township to Mr. and Mrs. Follwell.

A musical program followed and included Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Duncan of Batawa, Bob and Jack McPartlin of Trenton, and Mrs. T. A. Tucker.

Mrs. Morris Stickle, president of the Sidney Liberal Ladies' Association, read a very fitting address, following which Harold Wilkinson and Sam Nicolson presented the honored couple with a beautiful oil painting and door plate, on behalf of all present.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Follwell expressed their thanks and extended an invitation to everyone to visit them at their home.

Refreshments were served and a pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

City Stores Will Close Until One on Friday, Plants Remain Open, Two Memorial Services

Belleville industrial plants will not halt production on Friday, February 15th, the day of the funeral of His Majesty King George VI.

Members of the Retail Division of the Chamber of Commerce will close their shops until one p. m. Friday. It is expected that other stores and shops will fall in line.

Today Mayor A. McLean Haig issued a proclamation urging all residents of the city to observe a period of mourning to one p. m. Friday.

The Retail Division at a special meeting held in Lattimer's Towne Room this morning "unanimously decided to concur with the proclamation issued by Mayor Haig and city council."

The manufacturers division of the Chamber of Commerce at a special meeting held yesterday passed a resolution to the effect that industry would operate as usual. A two-minute silence will be observed a 11 o'clock.

The decision to operate on Friday, Mr. G. T. Lanning, chairman of the division, said today, was influenced by the directive of Queen Elizabeth that all industries in Britain "operate as usual."

Received No Word

It was reported that the Canadian Manufacturers Association is making a dominion survey and on the result of this survey hinges the possibility of a complete shut-down. Mr. James Davis, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce here said today that he had received no word from the CMA to this effect.

Last Friday the Canadian government issued a proclamation declaring February 15th a public holiday "as a day of mourning." That decision was reached before Queen Elizabeth II requested that the funeral of the late Monarch should be observed with two minutes silence and there should be no general suspension of work and closing of schools.

Under the federal proclamation all banks, government offices and courts will be closed.

All sports events in the city have been cancelled.

The liquor store, brewers' retail warehouses and beverage rooms will be closed all day.

The Motion Picture Council of Canada has requested that all motion picture theatres remain closed until six p.m. All three theatres will be open Friday evening.

Two Memorial Services

Two memorial services will be held on Friday morning at 11 o'clock, one at Christ Church, the other at Bridge Street United Church. Canon J. B. Creeggan will conduct the service at Christ Church, where Archdeacon Arthur Smith will deliver the sermon, while the Rev. Duncan McTavish assisted by the Rev. S. E. Larman will conduct the service at Bridge Street. Other members of the Ministerial Association will assist at both services.

Belleville and district Jewry will attend special memorial services in the Pinnacle Street synagogue at 7.30 Friday evening. Rabbi A. M. Babb will be in charge.

St. Michael's Church will hold a Libera service at three p.m. Friday afternoon with the Very Rev. Dean L. B. Garvin, in charge.

Mayor Haig said today that thus far no plans have been made for a civic memorial service.

Members of the city's reserve army units will parade and attend memorial services at one or both of the churches. Movements are under way whereby the 9th Anti Tank Regiment, RCA (ALI) under Lieut. Col. G. W. MacGregor, M.C., and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, under Lieut. Col. Max Porritt, M.C., will merge into a single parading unit. Decision will be made later.

Officers Swear Allegiance To Queen Elizabeth

In simple yet impressive ceremony, officers of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment swore allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II in the regimental officers' mess, Church Street armories last night.

Last evening, Major William Graydon, MC, second-in-command of the regiment was sworn by Col. Porritt.

Later 25 officers of the unit stepped solemnly to the small table draped with the battle colors of the regiment and swore their allegiance to the new sovereign.

Major A. Pope, of the Eastern Area Command, Kingston, was in attendance at the ceremonies.

Plastics Here To Stay Rotary Club Told

"Contrary to public opinion in some areas, plastics are definitely here to stay", stated W. A. Campbell, sales development manager of the Bakelite Company of Canada, in explaining some of the new developments in plastic to the Rotary Club on Monday.

Mr. Campbell used polyethylene, phenolic foam and phenolic resin as three examples of the newer developments in that field.

Polyethylene, one of the newest plastics is a substance unaffected by water or atmosphere and is used to a large extent in the covering of telephone wires, particularly under water. "It is possible to put approximately five times the number of wires inside a polyethylene covering as inside a rubber conduit," said Mr. Campbell, "and it will withstand temperatures as low as 45 below zero, centigrade."

"Phenolic foam is an insulator which is 50 per cent better than the previous standard," stated the speaker, and he illustrated the substance and its use. The weight is approximately five ounces per cubic foot and is used extensively for shipping objects to cut postal expenses and breakage.

Phenolic resin, a binder for sand molds, was explained in detail by Mr. Campbell who stated that with its use, when an object is removed from the mold, no finishing is needed nor is the sand burned.

"Rejects in this particular class have been reduced from 62 per cent to 6 per cent in one year's time", he added.

23 Being Made

To substantiate his opening remarks, Mr. Campbell said that 23 commercial plastics are being used in Canada today and that 20 more are in the development stage, as well as countless others in the research stage.

"We have in Canada", he concluded, "a development of new resources that will make us one of the largest, wealthiest and most prosperous countries in the world."

The speaker was introduced by John Buchan and the club's expression of appreciation was extended by George Lanning.

Visiting Rotarians and guests present included John Gilbert of Gananoque, Harry Van Luven and E. L. Zeran of Napanee, V. J. Van Dusen of Picton, and Bert Baulch of Brantford.

A birthday rose was presented to Donald I. MacKinnon by Harold Parker on behalf of the club.

No Lack of Foxes In Rawdon Twp., Seven Trapped

There is no lack of foxes in Rawdon township it appears.

At the February session of township council councillors passed recommendation to pay fox bounty to seven different farmers who in the past month had trapped foxes.

Gary Colden was paid $22 for 11 foxes trapped, while Thomas Hinds was paid $8; Burton Morton and William Johnson $4 each, and Arnold Ray and Lindsay Tanner, $2 each.

The January road voucher amounting to $1217.97 was ordered paid as were certain relief accounts, and other bills for small amounts. Mrs. Flossie Laycock was refunded $4 on her 1951 taxes and William Stapley was allowed a refund of $4 for dog tax. Both refunds were necessary because of assessment errors.

Council will meet again on Mar. 3rd.

REV. GEORGE S. EASTON

Brantford, Feb. 12—(CP)—Rev. George Stewart Easton, M.A., D.D., 63, former head of the Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church and minister of Trinity United Church at Peterborough, died yesterday.

Born in Ailsa Craig, Ont., Mr. Easton was educated at Lucan.

In 1915 he joined the Canadian forces as a chaplain, going to France in 1916 and returning in 1919. He served at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Brantford; St. Andrew's in Sault Ste. Marie; St. Andrew's United Church in North Bay, coming to Peterborough in 1935.

His widow and three sisters survive, including Mrs. A. Herd, Brantford.

LATE GEORGE WAGGOTT
(Picton)

Picton — On Friday, George Waggott marked his 92nd birthday. On the following day, he passed away in Prince Edward County hospital where he had been a patient only a few days. The funeral was held in the church of St. Mary Magdalene this Tuesday afternoon with entombment in Cherry Valley vault. Rev. H. Swayne officiated.

Born in Monmouthshire, England, Mr. Waggott came to Canada at an early age. After attending school at Milford, he attended Ontario Business College. Going to the Canadian west, Mr. Waggott located in Edmonton which was then in the throes of a boom. He entered the hotel business and during his career owned twelve different hotels, including the Royal in Picton. Making frequent trips overseas, he collected many valuable paintings and other articles, which were sold recently when he disposed of his home. He returned to Picton ten years ago. In 1948, Mr. and Mrs. Waggott marked their golden wedding anniversary. His wife survives.

LATE RAYMOND EARL GRAY

Marmora—The funeral of Raymond Earl Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gray, who was fatally injured at Havelock on Friday evening by being struck by a car, while crossing No. 7 Highway, will take place on Wednesday afternoon leaving his late residence for service at St. Andrew's United Church to be followed by interment in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

Deceased, who had almost reached his 19th birthday, passed away in Civic Hospital, Peterborough on Sunday morning. The police findings attached no blame to the driver of the car.

He was born in Marmora and attended Marmora Public School. He was employed at Deloro by Deloro Smelting & Refining Co., for about one year, previous to which he worked for the G. B. Airhart Lumber Co. Surviving are his parents; one brother Joseph and two sisters Olive and Betty all at home. His grandfather, Fred Gray, also resides there.

Fourteen Drivers Receive Awards For Safe Driving

A successful evening was held recently at Corby's recreation hall, when the Corby's drivers, under the direction of Mr. Roy Topping, garage foreman, were presented with their safe-driving awards.

Mr. G. MacDonald, Assistant Distillery Manager, made the presentations and expressed the company's pride and pleasure in the fine record built up by the drivers.

Following this, films on all aspects of safe driving, taken by the Los Angeles Police Department, were shown.

R. Plumpton expressed the thanks of all to Bill Parm for his co-operation in showing the films.

W. McCaffery, 11 years; P. Mossman, 10 years; W. McKay, P. Mayhew, 7 years; R. Muirhead, T. Lyons, K. Lyons, 5 years; W. Mondeville, J. Stone, A. Fraser, 3 years; J. Latchford, J. Archer, 2 years; E. Barker, C. Tilbrook, 1 year.

PICTON

Mayor McFarland Declares Friday Public Holiday

Picton—The town of Picton and the villages of Wellington and Bloomfield will observe Friday's day of mourning as a public holiday. Proclamations to this effect were issued yesterday by Mayor Harvey McFarland, Reeves James Cleminson and H. R. MacDonald.

In Picton a memorial service in honor of His Majesty King George VI will be held at the cenotaph, commencing at five o'clock in the afternoon. The parade, from the Legion Hall, will include war veterans RCSA Cadet Corps, RCSA Trumpet band, RCSA Ack-Ack, 127 A.A. Battery, RCA, 128 A.A. Battery, RCA; 210 WKS, RCEME, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, members of county and town councils and officials, members of Sir Thomas Picton Chapter IODE and St. John Ambulance Brigade..

The memorial service will be conducted by Capt. the Rev. Hatten, RCSA padre.

Memorial services will be held the same day at 11 in the morning, in Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Picton, and St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Wellington.

Hydro Customers Will be Getting Cheaper Power

Bancroft—Village hydro customers will not receive hydro bills in February and they will receive good news, when they get their statement in March.

The old rate for residences was six cents for the first 60 kwh and two cents per hour for the remainder, with meters read monthly. The new rate will be the same but meters will be read bi-monthly.

According to our reckoning J. Doe will pay $6.60 gross or $5.96 net if he uses 100 kwh per month for the next two months. Under the old system the same amount of power would have cost him $9.60 gross or $8.64 net.

The official announcement regarding the above changes read as follows— "There has been a motion governing the hydro rates, whereby the meters will be read every two months, with one service charge being applicable, so there will be no billing until March. This is a trial reduction in rates, and if feasible will be continued in effect, otherwise there may have to be minor adjustments."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 12 — (CP) Golds bucked a generally declining stock market with a slim majority of gains today in early afternoon dealings. Other sections weakened steadily.

Trading was active as a wide list of western oils, lower - priced base metals and penny golds attracted speculative interest. Industrial dealings were mostly in leading issues. Volume for the first 2 hours was 1,615,000 shares.

Manufacturing companies and foods led industrials lower with a scattered list of fractional declines. Agricultures and miscellaneous issues slipped but papers and banks edged upward.

Western oil losses ranged from pennies to about 20 cents. Anglo-Canadian, Canadian Atlantic, Model Oil, Pacific Petroleum, Security Free and Trans Empire traded lower. Scurry and High Crest, however, climbed strongly.

Base metal leaders eased. Labrador and Waite Amulet strengthened but Consolidated Smelters, Golden Manitou, Noranda and United Keno Hill weakened. Sherritt - Gordon and United Asbestos dipped pennies.

Obituary

LATE THOMAS WILLMAN (Trenton)

Funeral services for the late Thomas Willman, 97 Byron Street, Trenton, were held Monday afternoon at Trinity United Church, Madoc, where service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Lawson of the Lutheran Church at Kingston, assisted by Rev. F. Lane, Trinity United Church. The funeral was largely attended. Interment was in Lakeview Cemetery.

The late Mr. Willman was born 80 years ago in Marmora township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Willman. During his active years he was a farmer but had been retired and for the past three years was living in Trenton. He died Saturday at the home of his son Sidney Willman, Trenton. He had been in failing health for several years.

His first wife, the former Annie Spry, predeceased him in 1917.

He is survived by his second wife, the former Emma Young, five daughters, Mrs. George (Flossie) Gordon, Queensboro; Mrs. Harry (Blanche) Way, Trenton; Mrs. Earl (Norena) Currie, of Toronto, Mrs. Sam (Reta) Kirkey, Belleville, and Mrs. Roy (Ruth) Dunley, Trenton and six sons, Thomas of St. Louis, M.; Henry and Carl of Madoc; Wilfred and Sidney of Trenton, and Keith, a member of the armed forces stationed at Picton.

There is one sister, Mrs. Alex (Emma) Reid, of Oshawa, and one brother John of Madoc. There are 21 grandchildren.

LATE CLARA WALLBRIDGE

The funeral of Miss Clara Wallbridge, of 183 George Street, was held from her residence Monday afternoon. The officiating clergyman was Archdeacon F. A. Smith, of St. Thomas' Church of England.

Burial was in Belleville cemetery.

King Sidelights

London, Feb. 12 — (Reuters)— Prime Minister Winston Churchill called a cabinet meeting this morning to consider various constitutional details connected with the death of King George VI. Plans for the royal funeral on Friday were also discussed and the cabinet dealt with items of domestic business.

London, Feb. 12 — (Reuters) — The Danish foreign minister, Ole Kraft, will attend the funeral of King George VI, Friday, in addition to King Frederick IX and Queen Ingrid, the Danish embassy announced today. This brings to 14 the number of foreign ministers so far announced as attending the royal funeral.

Boston, Feb. 12 — (AP) — A memorial service for the late King George VI will be held at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul at 3 p. m. Friday, the British and Canadian Consulates General in Boston announced today.

London, Feb. 12 — (AP) — All Britons were urged today, almost with the urgency of an order, to go into mourning until after the funeral of King George VI Friday.

The admonition came from the Duke of Norfolk, the Earl Marshal who arranges major court ceremonials.

No specific directions were laid down, one informal comment being that "individuals will know best how they can pay their tribute to His Late Majesty by some little outward sign of mourning."

Canberra, Feb. 12 — (Reuters) — Australian senators travelled to Canberra today from all parts of Australia, for a 15-minute sitting to express grief at King George's death. The senate passed a resolution expressing "our gratitude for the devoted life of our late Sovereign," and extending "our profound and most loving sympathy to the Queen."

COMIC FILES SUIT

Los Angeles, Feb. 12. (AP)— Film comic Harold Lloyd has filed suit for $300,000 damages because his old film, "Safety Last", was shown on television. He asked for $250,000 damages from the National Broadcasting Company and $50,000 from Los Angeles television station KTTV. He claimed unauthorized telecast of the picture he made in 1929 constituted copyright infringement.

WEEKLIES HELPED

Washington, Feb. 12 —(AP)— More than 800 weekly newspapers in the United States were kept alive last year — and will survive in 1952 — only because 15 large dailies diverted to them part of their own newsprint supplies. The National Production Authority, reporting on the almost unique paper-sharing program of the newspaper industry, said no publication so far has had to shut down for lack of newsprint.

Mossadegh May Be Willing To Talk Business

Tehran, Iran, Feb. 12—(AP)— An International Bank mission began on-the-spot negotiations at the bedside of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh today in an effort to get the $1,500,000,000 Iranian oil industry going again.

The five-man mission, headed by the bank's vice-president, Robert L. Garner, has a new twist to this old problem — a plan for the bank to manage Iran's nationalized oil industry temporarily until Iran and Britain settle their long-standing dispute.

There are some indications Mossadegh may now be more willing to talk business. With the oil industry's exports cut off, external revenues no longer are coming in and the government is fast running out of money.

PROCLAMATION

To the Citizens of Belleville,
GREETINGS,

WHEREAS it hath pleased Almighty God to call to His mercy our late Sovereign Lord King George the Sixth of blessed and glorious memory by whose decease the High and Mighty Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary becomes Queen of This Realm and of Her Other Realms and Territories, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith, and

WHEREAS it has been decreed that the funeral of His Late Majesty will be held on Friday the Fifteenth day of February in the year of Our Lord, Nineteen Hundred and Fifty-two, and

WHEREAS the Government of Canada has requested the co-operation of all to properly observe a period of mourning on the said day;

THEREFORE, I, the Mayor of the City of Belleville, do hereby earnestly urge the people of Belleville to observe the period until one o'clock in the afternoon of Friday, the said Fifteenth Day of February as a period of mourning and at the same time to commend to your attention the various Divine Services being held to appropriately honor the memory of His Late Majesty.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN.

McLEAN HAIG, Mayor

FILM BOARD BECOMING BIG BUSINESS

Latest advices from Ottawa say that the National Film Board has acquired a large tract of land at a place called St. Laurent, near Montreal, for the purpose of erecting an "installation," whatever that is. This "installation," we are told, is going to cost "millions of dollars." One estimate is that the "installation" is going to cost "up to $6,000,000."

Until now, the National Film Board has operated from Ottawa. The National Film Board's present plan, it seems, is to pull its freight out of Ottawa and set up shop at St. Laurent. One of the reasons given for the change is that the Ottawa quarters of the National Film Board are "cramped, scattered, inconvenient and hazardous." It is possible that this description is accurate.

The move into new quarters on the part of the board was recommended by the report of the Massey Commission. But not all the members of the Massey Commission saw need for the new "installation." One of the commissioners, Dr. Arthur Surveyer, an engineer, has been quoted as saying, in a minority report: "The National Film Board, as presently constituted, lacks sufficient checks and counter-checks." Dr. Surveyer added: "The natural tendency of all heads of government agencies is to try to expand the scope of their departments." At another point in his minority report, he said: "Moderators are needed, with the duty of examining objectively all plans for expansion, thus protecting the ratepayers against the enthusiasm of the more artistic members of the board."

Dr. Surveyer also pointed out that nobody really knew whether the present operations of the National Film Board were efficiently conducted. He said also he did not believe that the whole answer to the board's problems lay in new quarters. He concluded with the remark: "Personally, I believe that, even after the board has moved into a suitable building, its real costs will exceed those of private producers."

It may be that the majority of the Massey commission was right when it advocated that the National Film Board be given the right to proceed with the spending of more money even than it has spent in the past. But it seems to be worthy of note that even Dr. Surveyer, a member of the commission himself, seemed dubious about the value of the entire enterprise.

Another public man who has been even more outspoken in his criticisms of the National Film Board than Dr. Surveyer is George S. White, member of the House of Commons for Hastings-Peterborough. On several occasions, in the House of Commons and outside it, Mr. White has denounced the National Film Board as a downright and unqualified waste of public funds.

In discussing the "installation" at St. Laurent and in dealing with the ambitions of the National Film Board in general, the Montreal Gazette says, in part: "Many observers for some time have had a questioning eye directed toward the National Film Board. There has been a tendency of the board to assert its position and to try to become a bigger and bigger body, with some of the sweep and power and finance that have been gained by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"No doubt the people of Canada need services such as those which the film board can perform," the Gazette argues mildly, "but in their own interests, the people of Canada need to be sure that the film board does not do work that could be more economically commissioned to private companies, that the board does not seek to expand its own scope without the discipline of caution, and that a 'suitable building' does not represent the ambitions of the board rather than the plain needs of the public."

Whatever may be said about the National Film Board and its "installation," one thing is certain. That is that the construction of this installation does not seem to fit in with the government's avowed intention of effecting economics in non-defence spending and of conserving scarce materials, such as steel. Perhaps it is not too late yet to call a halt to this "installation," at least until such time as responsible spokesmen for the government are ready to assure us there is no further need for a multi-million dollar defence program.

WOLFHOUNDS WON'T ANSWER

According to the Sudbury Daily Star, the wildlife division of the department of lands and forests is considering the use of wolfhounds to reduce the number of wolves in northern Ontario. These wolves, it seems, are killing far too many deer, moose and other animals highly valued by both hunters and trappers.

The Star says that trappers, professional guides and other bush dwellers who know the wolf's ways do not think that wolfhounds, or any other kind of hounds, would be of much use in killing wolves; at least, not in northern Ontario.

Unlike the wolves in southern Ontario and the Ottawa Valley, says the Star, the northern wolves travel in packs. A pack of a dozen or more wolves, the newspaper says its experts inform it, would make short work of a wolfhound and even of three or four wolfhounds.

HOSPITAL INCIDENT

He didn't seem excited when I met him at the door
Of the hospital that morning; didn't stay to walk the floor,
He was smiling, eyes a-twinkle, and to lunch was on his way.
"We are going to have a baby!" with delight I heard him say.

I confess, that I was startled when the joyful news I learnedd,
For it seemed to me no father would appear so unconcerned.
Were I he I should have fretted 'til the travail time was through,
But he showed no sign of worry as expectant fathers do.

He reached into his pocket and he gave me a cigar
With: "To share the celebration soon to be, the first you are."
"Well, good luck," said at I parting, and he smiled at me once more,
And I understood his calmness when he said: "This one makes four."

At a meeting of the city council the recommendation was passed that the Central Relief Committee be allowed to draw on the Bank of Montreal for sums not to exceed $6000. until the returns from the government are received. This will allow the city to carry on the necessary relief work while waiting for the returns of aid from the Government.

No ice has yet been cut and stored for next summer's use. As a result of the mild winter the ice in the bay is only about nine inches in thickness. The ice dealers are undecided whether to take the ice as it is or wait and see if the latter part of this month and the early part of March will bring colder weather. The city requires about 10,000 tons of ice for summer use. One ice dealer says that in his 34 years in the ice business he never encountered conditions as they now exist.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

A LITTLE MISCHIEF

I guess I just feel mischievous today, but I want to add a couple of mild post scripts to the Paul Robeson story.

It was the president of the Standard Oil Company of British Columbia who suggested that it would be "mischievous" for Canadians to express an opinion on the United States' refusal to let Robeson enter our country.

Among the others who thought we should elevate our eyes, oh, so delicately, were the president of Vancouver Board of Trade, the secretary of the Vancouver Bar Association, the editorial trumpet players of the Vancouver Sun and even a couple of union leaders who really ought to know better.

This seems to me a dangerous and rabbitty attitude. Surely there never was a time before when it was more important to stand up like big boys and speak firmly against any abuse of freedom wherever it takes place.

We ought to know by now that once we let freedom die by inches, without protest, it is ready to die at the full gallop.

Here, then, one tiny squeak of protest.

* * *

No comment on this case was as curious or as myopic as that of the Sun's muted brass section.

Robeson was born 30 years too soon, they suggested, the status of the Negro has changed in most of the States, they said, and Robeson, living in the embittered past, ignores this.

What absolute all-wool poppycock!

The blast of the dynamite explosion that killed Harry Moore, an executive of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was still echoing when the Sun's editorialist sat down to knit his devious pattern.

In a United States hall Marian Anderson was singing to an audience that included 60 plainclothesmen sprinkled about strategically to put down any violence that might flare in a mixed audience.

That was in the south. How was it in the north?

Well, I suggest that the Sun's editorialists spend an hour reading A. J. Liebling's series of articles on the city of Chicago where the Negroes are confined into stinking, rotting slums and where, if they seek to better themselves, they face the kind of mob violence that flared in nearby Cicero last summer.

If it was the Negro's plight that gave Robeson his present outlook (and that seems a fair assumption) there's been precious little in the last decade that would cause him to change.

* * *

The Robeson case is more than a mere border episode. It dramatizes how far American business and its corrupt political hirelings have gone in denying the rights of citizenship.

For that reason we in Canada, cozying up to the States, have a right and a duty to examine it carefully.

There's not a scrap of evidence that Robeson has gone beyond his rights, whatever you or I may think of his methods.

We like to think that it's a democratic privilege and its noblest tradition to get up on our hind legs and say what we feel. That is, if you'll pardon my sardonic laughter, "the American way."

Now we know that there's a new and unwritten law that limits that privilege. Attack too hard and they'll slap a gag in your mouth—in this case Robeson's democratic right to a world passport. Speak up, by all means, but not too sharply. That's the new rule. And it's put a governor on freedom of speech.

It it 'mischievous" for a Canadian to say this? I don't think so.

All over the world Canadian democracy is lumped in with the American brand, both of them under the watchful eyes of friends and enemies, and when we see America foul its own nest, and discreetly turn away, we are the losers.

* * *

Much has been written of Robeson's "patriotism."

Again I find myself turning to Liebling's articles on Chicago. He documents the case of Chicago's politicians who sabotaged desperately-needed housing projects because it would upset the "political balance" of the wards and loosen the landlords' grip on their established constituents.

There's a great flood of that kind of evidence, of business and political control in big city and hamlet alike, everybody chasing a buck in a system which rules that the greatest crime is to be found out.

I happen to believe that Robeson is on the wrong track, but if I had to choose between his kind of patriotism and the kind that has made American democracy a dirty joke I'll take Robeson's every time.

What America needs most today is a few more Robesons who might scare some of its bandits into salvaging a few old and tarnished principles.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THESE SUPREMELY IMPORTANT

Xenophon in his writings tells how the Persian princes of antiquity were trained. They had four teachers—the wisest man to teach them wisdom; the bravest to teach them courage; the most just to train their moral natures; and the most temperate to teach them self-control.

Wisdom cannot be taught by a person whose only distinction is that he possesses a vast amount of information. Wisdom is information plus. Courage cannot be absorbed from text books. We have to see it in action before we understand its true qualities. Justice is the foundation of morality, and self-control the thing that raises man above the other creatures.

Some of the factors of education on which the ancients laid great emphasis are almost forgotten today. We may well ask ourselves whether our professional educators are really educators or not. Furthermore, we may well inquire whether we ourselves are educated—or just literate.

Wouldn't you like to see an institution of higher learning founded for the sole purpose of inculcating in youth these virtues — wisdom, courage, justice and self-control? Maybe all are striving toward this. But how many put them to the fore? You answer that one.

Giving the Home-Town Newspaper a Break

(An Article by R. Elizabeth Reynolds in The Christian Science Monitor)

"There isn't a thing in the paper today," you say, as you lay your home-town newspaper on the floor.

You wonder why there is nothing in it about your friend's son, who day before yesterday was made vice-president of a bank in a metropolis miles away, or about the party the people up the street gave last night. In fact, you tell yourself that you can think of a half-dozen local stories the people down at the newspaper office passed up.

How right you are. They surely passed up a number of good stories. But the fault was not altogether theirs. You as a member of the community have a responsibility to your newspaper.

It can serve local needs only in proportion to the co-operation it gets from the members of the community. National, international and most of the state news comes in over leased wires. Local news is a diffeernt matter. Part of the responsibility for it is yours.

• • •

Never get the idea that the editor of your newspaper is interested only in certain people in your town. On the contrary, he is interested in everyone who subscribes to his paper. Both the wealthiest woman in town, who lives in the largest house in the swank residential district, and the poorest man, who lives in the smallest house on a side street, subscribe for the paper, and pay the same price for it. In the eyes of the editor both subscribers are important.

Getting back to those stories the newspaper passed up—just how did you expect the folks at the office to know about your friend's son? The father was justifiably proud of his son, but did he or any of his friends think to tell a reporter so that even acquaintances could share the new vice-president's pleasure in his good fortune? No, they fed the grapevine and probably criticized the newspaper, too.

Now about that party of your neighbor's. How do you know that the society editor didn't call the lady? "Please don't put our party in the paper," perhaps she begged when she was asked about it. "We didn't ask three couples we're indebted to, and—well, you will understand." You, too, realize the importance of self-preservation, socially speaking, as well as otherwise.

Maybe you think to yourself, "I don't like the editor and his policies." What if you don't always agree with him? Have you ever thought how little you really agree with your best friends? Yet, you don't ignore or criticize them constantly just because you fail to see eye to eye with them, do you? Give the editor a break.

In many cases the newspaper editor is far more conscientious in promoting the interests of his home town than he is given credit for being. If he weren't public-spirited he wouldn't be in the newspaper business.

• • •

"He's running the paper for the money he can make," you say. Of course he wants to make money. Who doesn't? But he chose the newspaper business because he likes it. And any man or woman who can make money in the newspaper business can make money in some other line of work in which he would not have to deal with so many different personalities, many of them sensitive folks. Yet the editor of a newspaper chose this particular means of making a living, for in his way he wants to help the town in which he lives.

"I don't like the way he goes about helping the town," you continue. Maybe you do object to his way. But his way may be nearer right than you think. He knows a great deal about your town. He knows much of the inside workings of its big and little businesses, of its clubs and lodges, of its churches and amusement places and of its people.

Have you ever considered the services the newspaper renders you, the reader? For one thing, it helps you save money. When you read the ads, you learn where you can find bargains without wearing out shoe leather or using up tires and gasoline.

Then in the classified ads you find an abundance of help and sometimes even a laugh. Remember the time you needed someone to do chores around the house and found just the right man through the classified ads? Have you forgotten the time someone advertised a room for rent to a business girl with kitchen privileges?

Your newspaper also keeps you informed concerning happenings in your town, even if the news is not so complete as you'd like it. Your learn about projects of civic clubs. You find out how the schools are progressing. You read news of the courthouse. In fact, you know many things because of your local newspaper.

In the society section you are told something of what goes on among the people who entertain in your town. Remember how you had a pleasant chat with friends from out of town because of a little item which stated that they were the guests of some people you know? The hosts couldn't call every one of the visitors' friends, but the newspaper cheerfully spread the word around for them.

THE ITIS OBSESSION

Scores of medical names or nouns have itis ending. This suffix means inflammation. Tonsillitis, gastritis, colitis, neuritis, sinusitis, endocarditis, conjunctivitis, otitis, dermatitis, gingivitis, arthritis and bronchitis are familiar examples, meaning, respectively, inflammation of tonsils, stomach, colon, appendix, nerve, sinus, heart lining, eyelid lining, ear cavity, skin, gum, joint and bronchial tubes.

Even though some of these medical words are now in general use it is regrettable that they have become popular parlance, for too often the victim assumes that once one of these labels is attached to his ailment, it remains only to seek a diet, medicine or other cure.

Take real or supposititious inflammation of the large intestine (colitis), for instance. Thousands of Yankee Wisecres, who suffer (in mind) from so-called "mucous colitis" have no inflammation at all. They have only a derangement of the bowel function which is caused and protracted by morbid monkeying with diet, and by unnatural interference with the bowel function. The poor geeks who keep their mind always on their bowel might see the light if they could be persuaded to study physiology—as in authoritative textbooks such as Howell's or Starling's, available in any library, instead of reading quack doctor bait. The first thing one with the "mucous colitis" obsession must get out of his head is the notion that he knows as much about such things as an ordinary doctor does.

As such a doctor I included in the Little Lessons series the booklet The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene. For a copy send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The joint disability formerly called rheumatiz but these days chronic arthritis is in most instances not inflammation at all. I can't tell you here what the joint disability is, but I feel quite confident that no medical authority will contradict my statement that as a rule inflammation does not occur in the joint involved in chronic rheumatism or so-called chronic arthritis or chronic osteo-arthritis or arthritis deformans or whatever imposing name you prefer to give the pathological process most people call rheumatiz.

As nearly as I can determine, medicines, diets, baths, physicotherapy, any and every kind of treatment for the rheumatiz in use today or in the past has proved of questionable value.. And as I see it, that is to be expected.

It might be a boon for the millions now training for rheumatiz if the doctors would forget the arthritis obsession and recognize the joint disability for what it is, physical degeneration.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Ulcer Should Close in a Month

Tried your suggestion of Chamomile tea as a wet dressing for varicose ulcer. It proved fine — gave me a lot of comfort, and the ulcer has been healing now for a year. (Mrs. N. R. K.)

Answer — Gauze (washed cheesecloth) dressing kept wet for a day or night with Chamomile tea—steep a good pinch or two of dried chamomile flowers in pint of water as you would make tea, cover dressing with oiled paper or other protection to keep clothing or bed covers dry—usually gives comfort and favors healing. But even a large ulcer should heal completely in a month. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet Varicose Veins and Varicose Ulcer.

Bootstrap Chowder

It would seem that I am destined to serve time in boarding houses. Can you not say something about the proper way to make coffee? Maybe the landlady who makes a bitter brew will learn how to keep boarders content. (Miss C. H.)

Answer—Snatch the pot off the fire the instant it reaches boiling point. Boiling extracts more tannin from the grounds and that makes the brew bitter. Chapter on how to make coffee and win friends in the red book What to Eat and Why, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the interesting features of the recent controversy over the appointment of a Canadian to the office of governor - general was the great diversity of opinion as to when Canadian history began. In almost every viewpoint aired, in editorials, letters and speeches, was to be detected a curious assumption that Canada's history really began on such-and-such an occasion. The French - Canadians naturally supposed that it began with the arrival of Jacques Cartier. Many of the British-Canadians frankly assumed that it began with Wolfe climbing the cliff; though some of them offered the bland proposition that, for all practical purposes. Canada's history really began in 1867, with confederation. Worse than that, a few of the controversialists appeared to hold the view that Canada's history began when they, or their parents, arrived in this country.

Nobody, so far as I have seen held the view that Canada's history began ages ago, when this vast and mighty land first was thrust up from the sea; when her shape was designed, her mountain ranges fixed; her timeless rivers, running east, north and west, were established in their courses; her immeasurable riches of gold, silver, nickel, oil, iron, were pushed from within the earth to await our finding; her prairies spread across half a continent, and the ancient forests, in east and west, patiently built their own rich soil, for little men one day to feed off.

To confine our conception of history to the comparatively short period in which we few white men have been skirmishing around Canada is certain to distract our minds and hearts from a decent appreciation of the sublime gift that is ours.

We do not possess Canada. Canada possesses us. That is the gift.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DOES PRAYER PAY?

Our better nature is forever making its appeal to us. We are forever shadowed by this invisible other self. It is what tells us to go on, to walk past failure and discouragement, and to keep to the straight road ahead, no matter how rugged at times.

Each one of us is beset by problems. At times it gets very dark about us, and there is a sense of lostness to us. But this is never anything but temporary. Never a time to give up, never a time to lose heart or courage. Prayer will help. It always has. The greatest men and women of all time have prayed. It pays in the light that blots out the darkness, and in creating within us new hope and healthy resolves.

Robert Louis Stevenson once wrote: "A generous prayer is never presented in vain; the petition may be refused, but the petitioner is always, I believe, rewarded by some gracious visitation." You see, it is to our better self that we pray, as well as to the God who created us.

People who have never prayed in their lives will pray when dire disaster arrives, and they do. It is all that they feel they can do at such a time. And it is well that they do, for it has meant the salvation of many a one in distress. Prayer always brings peace and solace to one's spirit, and the body becomes wrapped anew in the garment of faith.

The late Dr. Alexis Carrel, author of "Man, the Unknown," was a fervent believer in prayer. Among his papers, after his death, was found a brief manuscript, published for the first time in America in 1950 under the title of "The Voyage to Lourdes," in which is beautifully portrayed the power of prayer and how it has so many times healed the body as well as the soul.

Prayer cleanses the mind and the heart. It relaxes tense nerves, helps one to lose one's sense of self, transferring it to a higher power, ever ready and willing to accept any petition that comes from the sincerity of the heart. Yes, prayer pays and always will, as millions upon millions have testified over the ages.

Kiwanis Club Show Packed With Music, Melody, Comedy

A rehearsal-packed week greets the big cast of the Kiwanis Club's sixth edition of "Pack Up Your Troubles" and Messrs Harold Carruthers and Charles Cawker expect next Monday's opening night will produce the best production yet of this popular musical revue.

With individual numbers rounding into shape, rehearsals will stress the production of the show as a whole with special attention paid to sequence and balance of the score.

Ethel Smith Lawrenson heads the cast of vocal artists and that in itself is a decided "plug" for the show. Then there's Arthur Duby, Ron Elmy, Sylvia Motley, Betty Domosly, and not forgetting Harold Carruthers himself in the cast of vocal artists.

Larry Brown has his Commodores orchestra at a near-peak of musical perfection. The band will be augmented by Dean Whalen at the Hammond electric organ, while other musical scores will feature Charlie Cawker and Phil Huddlestone's individual piano roles.

Excerpts From Gershwin

One of the musical highlights that brings in vocal as well as orchestral and piano artistry is the number "Excerpts from Gershwin." Several of the famous composer's most popular numbers will be featured in a musical melange, that should delight every music lover. The humorous adaptation of the opera "Carmen" with Ethel Lawrenson in the title role is just about tops in comedy, while several skits featuring Ed Waterhouse and Bill Salter take care of the comedy phase of the show.

The chorus under the direction of the Morrison School of Dancing will offer outstanding choreographical numbers that are cleverly done.

Messrs Carruthers and Cawker producer-directors of the show said today that the 1952 edition of "Pack Up Your Troubles" is one of the best since the inception of the series.

Tickets are now on sale at Bill Cook's Cigar Store as well as that of Fred Symons. Potential patrons are reminded that only 200 reserved seat tickets will be placed on sale for each night of the four-day run which starts February 18th through Thursday.

Tyendinaga Twp. Council

The inaugural meeting of the Tyendinaga municipal council was held in the township hall at Melrose with all council members present. Filing declaration and qualification for office were Reeve Percy Moore, Deputy Reeve Leslie McLaren and councillors Chas. Long, W. J. Walsh and M. Doyle.

Reeve Moore commended councillors for their co-operation during the past year and asked that serious consideration be given to business of the coming year.

Deputy Reeve McLaren was appointed as the township representative on the Moira River Conservation Authority and Mrs. Arthur English was appointed school attendance officer. Bruce Reid and J. P. Farrell were appointed to investigate complaints regarding dogs running loose about the township without the required dog tags. Such dogs will be impounded and if no owner can be found they will be destroyed.

Thomas Driver was appointed a member to the local board of health and also to the office of sanitary inspector.

The department of highways will be petitioned for the statutory grant on roads and bridges and machinery expenditures in the township for 1951. The above expenditure was $28,300.

Fox bounties amounting to $27 were ordered paid to successful trappers and hunters.

Vote to Accept Offer

Toronto, Feb. 12 — (CP)—The Toronto Printing Pressmen's Union (A. F. L.) yesterday voted to accept an offer of a wage increase of 23½ cents an hour that will bring the basic hourly rate to $1.91. The union has about 900 members.

But members of the Toronto local of the International Bookbinders' Union (A.F.L.) rejected an offered increase of 20½ cents for men and approximately 10 cents an hour for women and authorized its executive to call a strike if necessary. Present contracts cover 1,300 persons.

Printers employed by newspapers are not involved.

Fate of 5 Nuns Sentenced to Jail Remains Unknown

Hong Kong, Feb. 12 (Reuters)—Six Canadian nuns who left China voluntarily said today they knew nothing of the fate of five sisters sentenced by mob trial to jail and expulsion.

The nuns, who arrived here yesterday, said the trial took place in Canton last December. They had not seen the five other nuns from Quebec since then and did not know where they were. The six said they themselves were not expelled but were allowed to leave voluntarily.

Two of the nuns were of the congregation of the Immaculate Conception, the same order as the five who faced the mob trial. They were stationed in a different part of Canton. They were Sister Ste. Lazar De Bethanie (Josephine Couturie), 52, of Propolis, Que., and Sister Ste. Jean Baptiste (Irene Pelland) 53 of St. Helene De Bagot, Que.

These two sisters, who had been in China 16 and 23 years respectively, operated a Roman Catholic school in Shameen, former foreign section of Canton.

Detained by Reds

The communists had "detained" the Canadian Mother Superior of St. Peter's Hospital, Sister Ste. Tharcisius (Adrienne Gosseling) 40, of Granby, Que.

The nuns said she applied for an exit visa with the others b it was not granted. She hope to get permission to leave withi a month, the sisters said.

The four sisters from the hos pital said they applied to leav Canton on advice from thei superiors after police began t call at the hospital and hara them by asking endless question

The day they left, last Satur day, they interrupted their trave preparations to bind the wound and wash the sores of 100 pa tients. They said the detaine mother superior was doing he best to carry on the hospita operation with the aid of tw Chinese sisters.

Smart Tailoring Places Penalty on Extra Inches

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 12. (CP)—It's woe to those extra inches for those who would wear the slickest of London's tailored spring styles.

Lachasse, a British designing firm which specializes in tailored styles to the extent that evening dresses are not included in its collection, offers a silhouette as slim as the slender rolled umbrellas that are part of the fashion picture.

Skirts have more freedom of movement in back panel pleating or side slits, but in front they are reed slim without even a tuck at the waistline.

So, ladies, turn down that chocolate eclair. The jackets on these suits are as rigidly slender as the skirts.

An innovation is the cabochon shoulder, so-called by designer Michael of Lachasse. This is softly padded in a downward slant and is so long that the sleeves start two or three inches below the normal shoulder line. These are so slender they look like jumper sleeves and merely continue the feminine roundness of the slooping line, broken only by the tiny winged cuffs.

Waist Emphasized

Most of the jackets have hip padding, but this lends no bulkiness to the reed-slim line. Instead, it emphasis the tightness of small waists and the smooth line of the peplum. An exaggerated roll to waist-deep revers and a neat cut-away to jacket fronts adds to the perpendicular trend of the design.

Michael also introduces the "masher jacket", a feminine interpretation reminiscent of Edwardian days. The unwaisted, blazer-length jacket has rounded shoulders and cuffed sleeves that don't quite reach bottom. Pockets are low, revers are high and of the three buttons only the top one is used. This gives the jacket a cut-away line, and a slim neatness at hem emphasizes the fact that the bottom buttons were not designed for fastening.

In both types of suit, the designer prefers silk and organza cravats with matching cuffs rather than blouses. There are also waistcoats in crisp striped poplins and spotted taffetas.

rs.S.Saywell Speaks n 'Building a Church'

The regular meeting of the oman's Missionary Society of idge Street United Church, took ace on Thursday afternoon with e president, Mrs. Houston, pre- ding.

At the opening of the meeting tribute to the late King was id by Mrs. Houston and silent ayers were said for the new een, the Queen Mother, the wager Queen and members of e Royal Family.

After the monthly reports, Mrs. dgins, Christian Stewardship cretary, spoke briefly on the bject "Our Possessions," and id that Miss Bevan, the mission- y for prayer, had worked for 20 ars for the Methodist Church of gland. In 1948, she was trans- red and is now in the hospital Indore, India.

rs. Campbell, Literature secretary, distributed typed sheets of reading suggestions and noted that all books could be found in the Public Library.

Mrs. Houston introduced Mrs. W. B. May, Presbyterial Mission Band secretary, who spent a few minutes inviting the members to attend the rallies in Grace Church, Trenton. As members of the Missionary Society, she thought that the securing of new members, becoming informed co-workers with God and offering acceptable gifts to God were most important.

Mrs. J. C. Anderson and Mrs. C. Hyde, with their group, had charge of the meeting. Mrs. Proctor and Mrs. Hyde led in the devotional on the theme "Brotherly love". Mrs. Cameron McDonald, Mrs. Little and Mrs. Anderson followed speaking on brotherly deeds, institutional brotherly love, non-discrimination law and the courts.

Mrs. Clinton McDonald rendered a beautiful solo "Leave it With Him."

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker, Mrs. Stephen Saywell, of Oshawa, was introduced by Mrs. Anderson. She described the building of a church in North Oshawa, starting as a Sunday School Mission in 1910 and reaching the status of a church in 1950, complete with organ, chimes, 156 children, in Sunday school, three Association groups; Explorers; Woman's Missionary Society and an effective organization throughout. She also dwelt at some length and with fascinating interest on the problems which confronted the workers through the entire growing period.

Mrs. Houston thanked Mrs. Saywell and invited all to stay for tea. A box of biscuits sent to Miss Clazie from Japan was passed and sampled.

Soroptimist Club Visits County Home

Through the kindness of Mrs. Muriel York, the members of the Soroptimist Club of Belleville were guests at the County Home one Sunday afternoon recently.

A tour was made of the home and even those of the club who had kept abreast of the progress in social welfare and service were indeed most agreeably surprised and astonished to see what the County of Hastings had provided for its citizens of the twilight years. The thoughtfulness and vision in the planning for the comfort and convenience of both residents and staff would be hard to excel any where in this country. The Soroptimists were also elated to think that they had added, in a small way, to the excellence of this undertaking and viewed the results of their efforts in the form of a television set, installed in the women's sitting room, easy chair, and two trilling canaries in handsome cages.

Outlines Program

Mrs. York, during the tour outlined the program that was followed at the home in the admittance and maintenance of her guests. She thanked her sister Soroptimists for their interest in her work and spoke of the enjoyment the women were getting from their television set and also their care and delight in the canaries. Those of the male population, who were able to do so, enjoyed the fight and hockey broadcasts.

The club witnessed a religious service that was in progress in the large dining room, under the auspices of a Belleville religious group

Tea was served to the club by the hostess in her modern apartment. Everyone present felt that until science has overcome the deterioration of body and brain cells, advancing years with all its attendant handicaps did not present such a problem when a place of retirement such as this is provided.

Mrs. Sally Catlon of the Belleville Soroptimist club, attended the charter dinner of the Verdun Soroptimist Club in Verdun, Que. She carried greetings from the local club and had the pleasure of meeting again, Miss Grace Nicholls, of Toronto, who is the first Canadian to be president of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs.

Bedtime Snack
solves laxative problem

"Constipation made me sullen all day. What a change since I started to use ALL-BRAN regularly! Even my wife notices it!" writes man from Ville Montmorency, Que. If you suffer from irregularity due to lack of bulk, try a bowlful of this toast cereal every night before bed. It may bring back the youthful regularity you thought long lost. ALL-BRAN is the only type ready-to-eat cereal that supplies all the bulk you may need. It's high in protein and iron. Not habit-forming. Kellogg's is so sure you'll like ALL-BRAN that if you're not completely satisfied after 10 days, send empty carton to Kellogg's, London, Ont., and get DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

Mrs. Garn Dobbs Tells of W.A. Work

The annual W.A. membership tea of the Tabernacle United Church was held in the church parlors with a good attendance of members and friends.

The ladies were welcomed at the door by the president, Mrs. Burgess, who later opened the meeting with a hymn and prayer.

The devotional period was in charge of group No 1 and Mrs. R. Lockyer, the convener, took for the Scripture reading, the story of the rich young man who came to Jesus asking what he must do to inherit eternal life, and followed with a meditation on this passage of Scripture.

After the business part of the meeting, two delightful spiritual solos by the Rev. Keith Daniel of the Baptist Church, accompanied by Mrs. M. P. Duff, were much appreciated.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker for the day, Mrs. Dobbs, of Holloway Street United Church, who has the honor of being on the Dominion Council of the W.A., presented many interesting facts about the W.A. work. She said, in part, "The W.A. is considered as the home-maker of the church, but it is about time the women took off their aprons, come out of the kitchen and took an interest in outside affairs.

"For instance, if eight more Christian women from each church in Toronto, had gone out and voted Toronto would not have an "Open Sunday" Then again if every woman of the United Church had been interested in the Temperance question, our country would not be in such a deplorable condition, resulting from the beer parlors. There is a Temperance secretary in connection with the Dominion Council of the W.A., and it might be a good idea if each local society followed this example.

"In the Sunday School lessons, there is a golden text sometimes used in which Jesus says, "She has done what she could". A little girl asked by her mother to repeat the text before leaving for Sunday School said "She has done what she wanted to do." How true that is about some of our Christian women.

Training Schools

"At present, there is in Toronto, a training school of the United Church, but this school has become inadequate to accommodate the present number of girls, so a new building has become necessary. A location has been found, and, if each of the W.A. and W.M.S. members of the United Church, 400,000, gave $1.50 this building could be completed this year.

"Another particular work of the women of the United Church is among the foreigners coming to Canada. At the Dominion Council of the W.A., held in Toronto, last year, a woman from Toronto, told of a particular case where the interest of the W.A., in connection with a foreign family who could not speak a word of English, resulted not only in this family becoming United Church members, but to several of their friends being brought into the church as well."

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Dobbs for her informative remarks, by Mrs. A. H. Fisher, and the benediction pronounced, refreshments were served and a social time spent by the ladies.

Elma Morrow Pays Official Visit

At the Masonic Temple, Foster Avenue, on Friday evening, the Minerva Chapter, No. 138, O.E.S., had as guest speaker, Sister Elma Morrow, D.D.G.M., who paid her official visit. Those present included visitors from the district chapters, all of whom were graciously welcomed by Sister Hilda Mathews W.M., and Bro. Ralph Knowlton, W.P.

Reverence-Sympathy

A deep feeling of reverence and sympathy for the Royal family in this, their hour of bereavement, was in evidence as Sister Mathews conducted a short memorial service for the late King, followed by the reverential singing of "God Save the Queen."

The officers were most proficient in their work and were highly complimented by the inspecting officer, Sister Morrow, who also gave an inspiring address to the officers, members and visitors.

Sister Wonnacott, P.D.D.G.M., on behalf of the officers and members of the Minerva Chapter, presented Sister Morrow with a small gift as a remembrance of her visit to the city.

A social hour with refreshments followed the meeting.

SHANNONVILLE UNITED CHURCH W.M.S.

Shannonville — The monthly meeting of the United Church W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Kierl on Thursday afternoon, with 22 members in attendance, Mrs. L. W. Scott, president, presided.

Earnest prayer for the bereaved Royal Family and for the young Queen as she assumes the heavy duties and responsibilities as sovereign of so large an Empire.

Business included the reading of a letter of thanks from Mrs. Russell Wescott for cards and calls from members during the time of a sprained ankle. A card of thanks from the Rev. L. W. Scott was also read expressing thanks for card of sympathy at the time of his mother's death, as well as for personal cards for which Mrs. Scott thanked all for these remembrances which had helped so much in their time of sorrow.

Thanks Expressed

A note of thanks was read from Miss Mariel Eammons, of Belleville, for the card received when she was ill, and one from Mrs. Damon Hinchey during her illness.

Plans were made for the observance of the World's Day of Prayer to be held on February 29th in the church hall, at which time the ladies of the Anglican Guild will be invited to join with the W.M.S. for this service.

Mrs. C. Wood, group leader, was in charge of the program, the theme of which was "Love One Another," reading the Scripture lesson from 1st John 7. Deeds not words are needed in the world today. Helpful deeds are carried on by the Home Mission workers.

In 1951 two and one half million non Anglo-Saxons came to Canada. A deaconess meets the new comers at Halifax and a practical welcome in the form of assistance is given them.

At Hamilton a class of 50 Italians are learning to speak English; new Canadian mothers and babies are given holidays at fresh air camps, and assistance in finding employment.

Home Missions' Work

Mrs. D. Hinchey presided at the piano for the hymns used. Readings were given by Mrs. Arthur Houston, Mrs. Everett Stratton and Mrs. Stanley MacDonald, all of which showed the work of the United Church Home Missions across Canada.

The president tendered appreciative thanks to the hostess for her hospitality and to the group leader. Mrs. Wood expressed appreciation to the group members for their assistance in the programs and with the lunches.

After Mrs. Wood dismissed the meeting, Mr. Churchill's speech was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Kierl and her assistants, concluding an interesting meeting.

BAYSIDE W.M.S.

Mrs. Clifton Rush was hostess to the ladies of the Bayside Woman's Missionary Society on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance of members and one visitor.

The president, Mrs. Glen Meyers, presided. Dues were paid by two members and a $1 donation was received from Mrs. William Rutter. It was decided to have World Day of Prayer at White's Church on Friday afternoon, February 29. One dollar was voted to be paid to the card secretary, Mrs. Jeffery.

The Christian Stewardship secretary, Mrs. Young, reported that stewardship is one of the major points of emphasis in the 1952 programs. Stewardship is the basis of Christian living. It applies to time, talents, possessions as well as money. One must study, pray, give and work. It was decided to send for membership cards and systematic giving envelopes.

Mrs. W. Jones, as leader, opened with the hymn "O Brother Man", in keeping with the theme, "We Believe in Brotherhood". Responsive reading followed, then the Scripture readings.

Mrs. Lorne Hunt took charge of the study book, "From Lakes to Northern Lights", under the heading "Our Fellow Canadians". She said "The United Church is making an effort to provide these new Canadians with a truly spiritual home in their new community and to surround them with helpful Christian influences. Many of the new Canadians have become ministers of Canadian churches." This chapter was based on Genesis 12:1-2.

The hostess served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

ROSLIN W.A.

The February meeting of Roslin Woman's Auxiliary was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. William Gillespie. Mrs. H. Sills, president presided.

The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. W. Slingerland.

It was planned to hold the service for the World Day of Prayer, which will be on Friday, February 29, in St. Paul's Anglican church. All women of the community are invited to attend this service. The theme this year is "Christ Our Hope".

All joined in singing the National Anthem, followed by readings "Christ of the Andes", given by Miss Alice Wilson, and "An Introductory Outline of What the W.A. Is", by Miss Hazel Wilson.

After the meeting was closed and during the social hour, the hostess served refreshments.

Charles Lundy Speaks To Phiat Sorority

On Thursday evening, the Phiat Sorority held their regular meeting at the home of Miss Betty Mitchell, George Street, with a fair attendance of members present.

Following the business portion of the evening, the president, Lorraine Gladwell, introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Charles Lundy, C.L.U., who spoke on the topic, "Your Plan for Future Security" outlining the need of serious thinking and planning for the future.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Black tendered a vote of thanks to the speaker for his fine address.

Refreshments were served.

KIWANIS LADIES' AUXILIARY

The monthly meeting of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary was held at the Kiwanis Centre, last Thursday evening. The meeting opened with a moment of silent prayer in respect to the late beloved King George VI, which was immediately followed by the national anthem in honor of the newly proclaimed Queen Elizabeth II.

The president, Mrs. V. White, welcomed two new members, Mrs. R. Slavin and Mrs. N. Gateson.

Mrs. H. Murray reported that plans for the annual Valentine bridge and tea, to be held this week, were completed. She also reported that plans are under way for a Kiwanis Ball to be held at Club Commodore, the date to be announced later. The Kiwanis presentation of "Pack Up Your Troubles", was favorably discussed and the auxiliary is providing women to assist with the make-up of the cast.

Mrs. H. C. Argue made an appeal for assistance on behalf of the sewing class for girls, which is conducted by Mrs. A. Duffy and Mrs. E. Finkle as part of the Kiwanis hobby craft work.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. H. Bateman and her committee.

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

The Tyendinaga East W.I. branch met at the home of Mrs. C. Marisette, Marysville, recently with an excellent attendance. The meeting was opened by the president in the usual way.

During business, it was decided to donate $5 to the "March of Dimes". Letters of thanks were read by the secretary. Miss L. Powers gave an excellent demonstration on basket weaving and several members are to attend a class by Miss Powers, in the near future, to learn more of this work.

Mrs. Bruce Kimmerley was in charge of the program and readings were given by Mrs. Grant Kimmerley, Mrs. Bruce Kimmerley and Mrs. C. Akey.

Mrs. W. Hunter gave a splendid talk on "Content and Discontent", and brought out the difference in one's attitude towards life.

Mrs. C. Russell prepared and read the topic, "On Being a Family", and gave some excellent advice on this subject. The members all took part in two contests prepared by Mrs. Bruce Kimmerley; the first being won by Mrs. H. Sweetnam and Mrs. G. Kimmerley and the second by Miss G. Mowers.

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Marisette and all those taking part in this fine program.

The meeting was brought to a close with the singing of "God Save the Queen", after which refreshments were served.

"Difficult Day?.. Take a Disprin"

Why DISPRIN? Because DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief.

DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

Science Progresses

For 50 years we have used little white tablets—acetylsalicylic acid—for relief of pain. Today this familiar pain-killer is available in a new form without the disadvantages of acidity, insolubility and bitter taste. It is called 'DISPRIN' and is sold at druggists everywhere.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She "kept him guessing"—it was a mistake

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About four months ago, I met a man who appealed to me a great deal, and we started going out together. He is 23 and I am 21.

As I am rather a shy type, I thought the thing to do was to keep him guessing by pretending not to be interested in him, and the first thing I knew, he accepted the impression I was giving him and started ignoring me.

Since I do care, and have found out through mutual friends that he does, too, could you tell me how to go about patching this thing up?—R. P. S.

Dear R. P. S.:

You were a bit too smart for your own good, weren't you? Or, rather, not smart enough. The only sensible way for a girl to act toward any man is to be perfectly natural and friendly instead of either making an obvious play for him or acting coy and hard to get.

Since you think this man is really interested in you—and I hope you're right, but men don't usually ignore girls they're interested in—why not drop him a note and invite him over to your house, say for Sunday supper or some other informal occasion? Or get up a little evening party and say you would like to have him join in. Another opening would be to invite him to go with you to a show or a concert, or some other event which you "just happen to have tickets for." His response to your invitation should furnish a good clue as to his real feelings for you.

His girls wants to push him into marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a fellow of 18, and have been going out with a girl of the same age whom I have known ever since grammar school days. She wants us to get married right away, but I have no money, and besides I will probably have to go into service any time now, but every time I try to explain all this to her she starts a big argument. My family are the type who are always quarrelling, too, and I am sick of arguments and quarrels every way I turn.

Every night I see her she finds fault with something I've done. She won't make any attempt to see things my way nor to help save money for our marriage. I want to have a home built before I get married. She says no; we should build it afterwards. I think of our security, but she always wants to rush into everything without thinking.

I have got so disgusted that I feel like going away and enlisting without waiting for Uncle Sam to call me, just to get away from both her and my family, but yet I love her so much I can't bear the thought of leaving her or of losing her. Please tell me what you think I should do.—D. H.

Dear D. H.:

I'm not at all sure that it wouldn't be a very smart move for you to go into service without waiting any longer. It might give both you and your girl an opportunity to get a little perspective on your relationship. Certainly at this time your girl friend seems far from being mature enough to make anybody a very good wife, and I'm inclined to believe that if you were to marry soon, you'd be in trouble of one kind or another before very long.

My advice to you is to make it clear to her that you're not going to be pushed into marriage against your better judgment. If you can not bring her around to your way of thinking, then let her find some other chap with less responsible ideas and you find another girl with sounder and more co-operative ones.

CONGRATULATE ORGANIST

Gold Coast Special

GOLDEN DAYS are here again in a beautiful white and gold scarf which is worn as a halter top. The print features sparkling white daisies on a many-hued golden sunburst background. Bright white blossom beads, earrings with golden stems and gleaming cuff and bangle bracelets are additional Mides touches.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Here Comes The Bride!

Considering all the fuss and flutter about weddings--the parties, the fitting of the gown, the general confusion and excitement--it is a wonder that any bride can propel herself to the altar under her own steam. She may be worn to a frazzle, but she will look lovely because she carries the radiance of happiness.

If you, my friend, expect to be a bride in the near future, do take plenty of time to prepare for this momentous occasion. Make plans carefully. Have a schedule; write it out, so nothing will be overlooked. Don't rush to appointments or gallop through your shopping pilgrimages. By all means attend to your beauty duties before the last minute.

A few facial treatments will condition your complexion and, what is more important, will give you an opportunity to relax. While at the beauty parlor you can stock up on toiletries that you will need on your honeymoon trip. Get the tabloid items for easy packing--one ounce jars of cream, purse-size bottle of perfume, miniature versions of other beauty aids.

Have your permanent wave at least two weeks before the Big Day. The hair takes a little while to settle down into a soft, relaxed pattern. Give the silky halo time to unstretch itself from the tight coils. It takes two wave sets to make tresses behave nicely. Don't take a chance and get a different hairdo. The bridegroom may want you to look as he has been accustomed to seeing you. A different arrangement may not meet his approval though, of course, he will say that it does and claim that he adores it.

Your hands should have special care. All eyes will be upon them when they cut the wedding cake. At the last minute, rub a little vanishing cream over them. Better soft pedal on nail polish; a faint red rose shade will be more harmonious with the white gown than any of the darker tones.

Go easy on make-up. The excitement of the great event will bring enough coloring to the cheeks without rouge. Select a lipstick of natural tone. If you must use mascara or eyebrow crayon, be a slicker with it. This is not a time to look lithographic.

Give your wedding slippers a workout for several days, so you will be sure that your feet are comfortable.

Plant for Beauty

However beautiful the lawns and flowers, the general effect of a property as a whole depends much upon the boundary and foundation planting. They serve as a frame for the overall picture.

While most home grounds are left open at the front, hedges, fences of shrubs are generally desirable down the sides and at the back. They make for privacy and give a background against which flowers will show to best advantage.

Cedar or spruce make good evergreen hedges if Japanese yew is considered too expensive. On light soils in sun or shade Chinese elm is the cheapest, fastest growing hedge but there is lots of work trimming it two or three times a year. Eventually, suggests R. W. Oliver, Division of Horticulture, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, more pleasure with less work may be obtained from alpine current, if a four foot deciduous hedge or less will be satisfactory. Plant in single line 15 to 18 inches apart and trim back heavily at the start to insure lots of branches near the ground. Put good earth in the trench rather than manure or fertilizer.

If the house is attractive, keep the foundation planting at the front simple; just enough evergreens or shrubs to soften the corners, frame the front steps and break up large wall spaces. It is only ugly foundations, Mr. Oliver points out, that need hiding by a full bank of green. Evergreens are very good against a light background but they don't soften ugly lines as well as loose growing deciduous shrubs, and they won't grow where floods of water and snow fall from the roof. Use ash-leaf spirea or early-flowering hydrangea for such conditions.

Tall shrubs suitable for corners of large wall spaces are lilac, tartarian honeysuckle, mock-orange, or in shade, highbush cranberry. Medium shrubs for framing steps are van Houtte spirea, Bouquet or Dame Blanc mock-orange, or golden leaf mock-orange. Low shrubs to plant beneath windows or in front of others are weigelia. Thunbergi barberry, Oregon grape, or in shade, snowberry and early hydrangea. Plant all shrubs at least three feet from the wall and five feet apart or away from a walk or step.

Evergreens have definite shapes. Do not use large growing native trees like cedar, spruce or pine for foundation planting unless you know how to clip them and are prepared to do so regularly. If pyramidal forms are wanted, use pyramid cedar, Dundee Juniper or clipped Japanese yew. Round forms are mugho pine and globe cedar. Spreading form are Savins, andorra or Pfitzer's golden juniper, or Japanese yew. The last named is the best for shade.

February 12. . .the birthday of a great gentleman

"A nature modeled on a higher plan,
Lord of himself, an inborn gentleman."
Lincoln, by George Baker.

And these memorable lines:

"The simple, kindly man, Lincoln, American."
Lincoln, by John Vance Cheney.

And these:

'Lincoln's heart was as great as the world, but there was no room in it to hold the memory of a wrong."
Greatness, by Emerson.

And:

"A blend of mirth and sadness, smiles and tears:
A quaint knight-errant of the pioneers;
A homely hero, born of star and sod;
A Peasant-Prince, a Masterpiece of God."
Abraham Lincoln, by Walter Malone.

And of himself, Lincoln said, "Die when I may, I want it said of me by those who knew me best, that I always plucked a thistle and planted a flower where I thought a flower would grow."

Certain formalities must be observed in reception seating-arrangements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At the head table at my wedding reception next month will be, besides the bride and groom: bride's parents; groom's parents; maid of honor; best man (groom's older brother, married); usher (groom's other brother, married); junior usher, my brother Also approximately 60 others, non-relatives. We are not sure about the shape of the table. Please advise us regarding the seating-arrangements. —M. J.

There are certain seating formalities that must be observed, no matter what shape of table you decide to have, and whether you have a separate bridal table. You and your bridegroom sit side by side, you at your bridegroom's right. At your right, the best man. At your bridegroom's left, the maid of honor. Your mother is the hostess of the occasion; therefore at her right is the man guest of honor, the father of the bridegroom. Your father is the host; therefore at his right is the woman guest of honor, the mother of the bridegroom. If the clergyman is present, he is seated at your mother's left; and if his wife is present, she sits at your father's left .The groom's brother, the head usher, would be seated at the right of the maid of honor. The best man's wife and the head usher's wife should be seated at this head table, but of course husbands and wives (except on this occasion, the bride and groom!) should not be seated together.

Food for Thought

Which Comes First?- The Egg of Course

When I am out of eggs I might just as well fold up and stop trying to keep house.

I suppose one should not lean so heavily on such fragile things but I do . . . .

. . .and I depend on them completely today to supply glamor for this note to you.

One of you wants the perfect custard pie, and I had the recipe up my sleeve, just waiting for a request.

SATIN CUSTARD PIE

Four medium sized eggs (or if you have yolks leftover from making angel food cake or macaroons 8 yolks may be used instead of 4 eggs), 2-3 cup sugar (do not increase the sugar or custard will be watery—decrease it to 1-2 cup preferably), 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, ? 2-3 cup milk (not homogenized) or for an extra rich pie use 1 cup cream and 1 2-3 milk), 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat the eggs with rotary beater—do not overbeat—until they are mixed but just beginning to foam. Add all remaining ingredients. Strain if you wish. Pour into pastry-lined deep pie plate with high fluted edge. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes. Centre of custard need not be firmly set when you remove it from oven—it finishes cooking from the heat retained in it after removal from oven. Serve slightly warm or very cold—never hot.

Mary Jane, Mrs Bigger's eldest daughter, learned now to make Eggs Benedict because one of her numerous boy friends was going to visit them at their summer cottage one weekend.

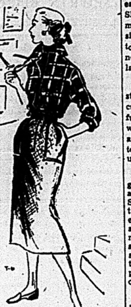
The plan was that she should casually wander into the kitchen on Sunday morning and take over where "the slaves" (Marg. and Flo, her two younger student-dietitian sisters who really could cook) left off, and produce this magic dish. All went very well —even the Hollandaise did not curdle. But Mary Jane said it was all too much bother to hook a man. The man she did marry worships her and she has learned to cook several elegant dishes, but she would much prefer to teach her dear little 3-year-old Tommy to play the piano.

EGGS BENEDICT

The ideal and orignal way to do this to cover a round of split toasted English muffin with a thin slice of fried ham to fit it. Top with a poached egg. Cover with Hollandaise sauce and serve at once. But it has been streamlined and varied so much you would not recognize it on some tables. You may use toast spread with devilled ham which you run under the broiled for a minute or two before putting on the egg. Lots of cooks use Mock Hollandaise. Do it the right way described first and serve it on Sunday morning for breakfast—especially if you have guests.

It is the Hollandaise that is hard so approach its creation with a respectful attitude: In top of double boiler cream 3 tablespoons butter, then beat into it 2 egg yollks until well blended. Add 1-4 teaspoon salt, shake of cayenne pepper, then slowly stir in 1-3 cup boiling water. Place over simmering — not boiling— water and stir constantly until thick. Remove from heat at once and stir in 1 tablespoon lemon juice. It is best to serve this at once If it is held hot it might curdle. If this does happen, beat hard with rotary beater until it is smooth again. Besides serving on Eggs Benedict this is wonderful with broccoli, spinach, Brussels Sprouts, cauliflower, fish steaks or baked fish. behew wit ngtilpsfRleatoabe

Campus Costume



Blouse and skirt

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

SMARTLY casual is a costume composed of blouse, under-sweater and skirt. The blouse is a long-tailed shirt in brown and green rayon plaid, with classic collar and long sleeves, shown rolled up. Underneath is a sleeveless turtle neck sweater in light weight brown wool. The skirt is in brownish beige tweed with pockets at the side stitched all around the patch pocket. Brown buttons, and a brown calf belt, complete the details of a typical college girl's ensemble.

Fashion Flashes

..The interest still centers about the neckline in many of the newest Winter-into-Spring dresses Sheer woolen, in black or navy, makes a handsome dress, smartly simple, a step-in model buttoned to below the waist. The deep, neckline is softened by double lapel-collars.

• • •

• • •

Capsule costumes, ideal for the growing travel-light contingent, appear in many collections for Spring. For instance, a softly tailored tissue tweed suit has lapel facings and lining of silk honan, with a widely scattered print motif. Underneath the jacket is a surplice blouse, and under the suit skirt a pleated skirt, both of the silk honan. Now add up the possible combinations of this outfit!

• • •

There are plenty of slim skirts in the Spring collections for those that don't admire the wide skirt line, especially in tailored suits and dresses. Despite the little jackets and big, billowy skirts mentioned for Spring suits, there are plenty of classic and softly tailored models that are exceedingly slim of line.

• • •

Buy a bit of spring in the guise of a new, flower-trimmed hat. The heart-shaped silhouette is velvet bound in a pretty little hat of off-white-tissue fur felt. The rocker bonnet has a large single silk rose placed upright in back to emphasize the back lift and to create more height. Piping is green to match the velvet leaves of the rose.

A DOG FIGHT!

Peterborough Eagles in a tremendous stretch drive defeated Kingston Sacs 6-5 last night to pull up one point behind the second place Belleville Hawks in the senior "B" race. Eagles have won their last two starts and have a mathematical chance of finishing on top of the heap, believe that one or not. They meet the Hawks tomorrow night in Peterborough and take on the Petes probably Saturday night since all Friday games are postponed. Hawks trek to Kingston Saturday night and do not play again until Feb. 22nd when they take on the Petes here. That should give some of the sick and injured time to get back into the lineup.

Lindsay Kinsmen will be the guests of the junior Hawks here tomorrow night in the last scheduled game of the season for the Cook-Doran crew. These teams have battled in many bitter struggles during the schedule and tomorrow night's tilt should be another sizzler. The game could be a dress rehearsal of things to come but don't take that for granted since the Kingston and Peterborough Links are liable to toss the well-known monkey wrench into somebody's titular aspirations.

But that won't take any edge off the game here tomorrow evening. The Hawklets are buzzing for Lindsay hockey blood and are confident they can take the measure of the potent crew from the Scugog. They did it before and feel they can do it again. With the Lalande, Jacklin, Strahan line back in action, the Hawks should give the Lindsay crew a terrific battle, one that should put them in tune for the playoff series. Incidentally the junior playoffs should get under way at the beginning of next week since the schedule finishes with the Peterborough-Kingston game on Saturday night.

THEY RIDE 'EM DOWN THIS WAY!

Our friend Pete McGillen, Toronto outdoor writer scoffs at the idea as do his buddies of a Toronto Hunters' Club that jack-habbits do not exceed sixteen pounds in weight. In fact the hon. Pete comes out plainly with the statement that he does not believe such a crittur exists. Furthermore a Dr. Roberts, Toronto (Pete wisely omits the street address) will pay $25 for every jack rabbit shot that weighs over sixteen pounds.

Well, the steeplechasing bunnies may not grow any larger than cats, up around Hogtown, but if the honorable McGillen cares to bring his medical pal (plus a well-laden purse) down thisaway, he'll change his mind. Peter Robertson, 50 Geddes Street says he knocked over a jack while hunting around Hillier way, that tipped the scales at 18 pounds, while another source informs us that Bill Orr, also of this city slew one of the overgrown bunnies that weighed 19 pounds.

"... AND SO YOUNG".

Al. Adams star softball hurler of this city informs us that he has hung up the spikes and glove for good. It is to be hoped that Al. was not serious although he made his statement appear that way.

Al has been cavorting around softball diamonds for some years now, and retirement at 26 years of age seems rather out of place. However he says it's true and that's that. Al started his softballing with the Columbian Squires with his mound pal Don Boyle and then went on to play junior softball. He was a member of the team that defeated the Hamilton squad for the Ontario title back in 1945. Vaulting the age limit he played with the Stephens - Adamson team in 1946 and when softball regained its rightful spot here, thanks to the Commercial Softball League, he played with the Howe and Hagerman team which bowed to the Glen Roys in the city finals last year.

NEAT TIMBER TOPPLING!

According to averages just released by secretary Cec Hardwick of the Major "A" Bowling League the timber - topplers of that loop have turned in some neat and nifty play this season. Seven players taking part in from 42 to 63 games have averages of 230 or better. Leading the loop is Jim Corlies of Schwabs (63 games) with an average of 244. Others are W. Dingman (60) 231; W. Fraser (61) 230; E. Greenfield (42) 233; Ron Saylor (53) 237; Joe Legault (62) 234; Jim MacKenzie (63) 246. Other good averages are H. Ridley (57) 223; C. Hardwick (63) 223; A. Holway (43) 217; R. Bagshaw (62) 221; Joe Kirkwood (57) 214; D. Tobe (60) 214; F. Martin (60) 216; J. Bennett (63) 216; T. Caton (50) 217.

Wilf McLaughlin of Lawn Bowlers holds the high triple and high singles record todate with scores of 957 and 378. "Toots" Holway is second in triples with a 940 while Jim MacKenzie has second high single with a 375. Belleville Golf hold the high team score with 3640 and also the high team single with 1398.

PUCK'S BAD BOY!

Lindsay—who stands only 5-feet-8 and weighs but 163 — has established himself as one of the most pugnacious and most penalized players ever to terrorize the NHL. But he has modified his swearing. Because cussing was contributing greatly to Lindsay's misconduct penalties, Look relates, "Last season Jack Adams Red Wing manager, laid Ted $200 to $50 he couldn't cut it out..." Ted did, and he's still holding his tongue.

His style hasn't changed, however. Bill Juzda, the Toronto Maple Leafs' rugged defenceman, testifies in the article: "Lindsay is just about the toughest character in the league. He always has an elbow or a stick in your face." And ex-Chicago Black Hawk ace Doug Bentley amends: "You can't afford to take your eye off the little so-and-so for a second."

The Canadian-born Lindsay was first spotted by the pros with fists flying. He was nineteen and playing for St. Michael's College in Toronto. A Red Wings scout reported: "I saw a kid. His team lost 6-3, but he got all three goals. He also started three fights and won them all."

Though one of the smallest men in the league, Lindsay has been involved in most of hockey's bloodiest brawls in recent years. For his ferocity he has accumulated in his seven years a painful total of more than 100 stitches, an oft-broken nose, smashed cheekbone, torn abdominal muscles, a shoulder separation and a fractured foot, and has lost three teeth.

National League Operations Summed in One Word--Detroit

Montreal, Feb. 12—(CP)—Operations in the National Hockey League this year, at least as far as individual and team honors are concerned, can best be summed up in one word—Detroit.

Not only are the Red Wings comfortably settled atop the league but also they have won the most games, lost the least, scored the most goals, have the least goals scored against them.

The Wings lead, in the individual scoring department, with the greatest number of points, the most goals scored and the greatest number of shutouts.

Have 70 Points

In team standings, the Wings have 70 points—10 more than second-place Toronto Maple Leafs—made up of 30 victories and 10 draws. They have scored 144 goals in 51 games, one more than scored by Montreal Canadiens in 53 contests, and have only 93 goals scored against them.

Canadiens are in third place with 57 points and are followed by Boston with 46, New York with 44 and Chicago with 33.

Howe has 55 points, eight more than second-place Elmer Lach of Montreal. His total is made up of a record 28 goals and 27 assists, compared with Lach's mark of 12 goals and a pace-setting 35 assists.

Sawchuk Out Front

Ted Lindsay of Detroit is in third place with 45 points—19 goals and 26 assists—and Don Raleigh of the Rangers comes next with 44, 14 goals and 30 assists.

Sawchuk is away out in front in netminding chores, having racked up 11 shutouts and a goals-against average of 1.43. Al Rollins of Toronto and Jim Henry of Boston have five shutouts apiece.

Toronto is the most penalized club with 545 minutes and Rangers the least at 398 minutes. League bad man is Gus Kyle of Boston who has spent 111 minutes in the penalty box.

Veteran Musher Leads Dog Derby, Second Heat Gets Under Way Today

Ottawa, Feb. 12 (CP) —The International sled-dog derby is still anyone's race. The second heat opens today with Wilf Lepine, veteran musher from Quebec City leading the 19 entrants by three minutes.

The slim 31-year-old driver won the derby in 1950 and set a course record for the 100-mile event. He finished the first heat yesterday in 2:08:48.

Lepine was pressured all the way with seven drivers finishing just a few minutes behind him.

The course was cut to approximately 29 miles from the scheduled 33 1-3 miles by derby officials when snow conditions in some spots forced a slight change in the route.

The number two man after the first day of racing is Dr. Charles Belford of Deerfield, Mass., who brought his Siberian huskies home in 2:11:56. He holds less than a minute edge over big Bill Shearer of Boston who finished in 2:12:45. Shearer was driving 11 Siberian huskies.

Bunty Leads Ladies

Mrs. Bunty Dunlop, 26-year-old Bronte, Ont., housewife, will enter the second heat with a 40-minute advantage over her lone woman competitor for the $300 cash prize and gold cup in the special Capital Sweepstakes for women drivers. She completed the course in 3:23:12.

The other woman competitor, Mrs. Laird Ouellette of The Pas, Man., finished in last place with a time of 4:03:50. She is driving a team owned by Stan Stanyer of Ottawa, who was unable to drive his own team because of illness.

The pre-race favorite Emile Martel, 39-year-old Loretteville, Que., musher, 1951 derby champion drove his cross-bred hounds across the finish line in fifth place in 2:18:30.

Sgt. Dennis Hayes, sponsored by the Canadian army, brought his Labrador retrievers home eighth in 2:25:09.

He was originally placed fourth through a time error. Dr. Roland Lombard of Auburndale, Mass. was fourth with a time of 2:15:32; Martel fifth and Ovide Carriere of Quebec City was sixth with 2:22:53.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

A Pacific Coast Soccer League extending from Vancouver to Los Angeles is envisioned by John Richardson, secretary of the British Columbia Soccer Commission.

Richardson returned to Vancouver yesterday from a five-week vacation in California and said he was astonished at the development of soccer in that state—particularly in San Francisco.

Before his trip, he said he thought his dream of a Canada-United States Pacific Coast Soccer League was 10 years away.

Now, after watching a couple of games in San Francisco, he said he's convinced the American Pacific seaboard cities are almost ready for top-grade soccer.

He said 10,000 fans turned out in San Francisco's Kezar Stadium for one game, which was televised.

A Canadian jockey felt the wrath of Hialeah Park stewards yesterday in Miami, Fla. Ken Church of Windsor was fined $50 for striking Dart By with his whip during the running of the McLennan Handicap Saturday. Church rode Oil Capital in the race.

Len Loree, for the past three seasons a referee in the International Amateur Hockey League will coach Chatham Maroons of the I.A.H.L., it was announced yesterday in Windsor, Ont. Loree, who played senior hockey in Regina before coming to Windsor, replaced George Edwards at the Chatham reins. Due to the illness in January of Bud Stoddart, Edwards took over as player-coach of the Maroons. He said he found the dual role hard to handle.

Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League yesterday brought up Jim Morrison from Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League and sent centre Rudy Migay down as a replacement. Morrison, former Barrie Flyer junior, can play defence, centre or left wing.

Joe DiMaggio returned to the baseball diamond in San Francisco long enough to take two swings at a soft ball Sunday and fly out to deep left field. DiMaggio flew up from Hollywood for the two-swing appearance in the fifth annual game of married men vs. single lucky fellows. The married men won 6-5.

Willie Mays, speedy young centre fielder of the New York Giants, sent in his signed contract yesterday and with it sent word that he will report to the Giants' training camp at Phoenix, Ariz., next Sunday. Mays, awaiting a call from his draft board in Birmingham, Ala., said he would remain with the team until he is ordered to report for induction.

The West Indies beat New Zealand by five wickets with more than three hours to spare on the last day of the first test cricket match in Christchurch, N.Z. Set to get 139 to win, West Indies made 142 runs for five wickets, Frank Worrell carrying his bat for 62.

Montreal Canadiens of National Hockey League defeated Sarnia Sailors of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A group 5-2 last night in an exhibition game before 3,200 fans in Sarnia. Dick Gamble scored twice for the winners and Dollars St. Laurent, Bernie Geoffrion and Paul Meger got one goal apiece. Martin Zorica and Jim Wilson tallied for Sarnia.

Eagles Edge Kingston 6-5

Peterborough, Feb. 12 —Peterborough Eagles defeated Kingston, 6-5 here last night to climb within half a game of second place Belleville Hawks in the OHA Senior 'B' fixture. The loss dropped Kingston into the cellar.

Eagles led 3-1 in the first period, and 6-3 going into the third. Kingston drew five of the eight penalties.

Marksmen for the winners were Toody Greenlaw, Reg. Stewart, Keith Montgomery, Fred Mortimer, Bert Hill and Dootch Vitarelli. For Kingston Sam Mulholland and George McGregor tallied twice each and Don Murray got the other goal.

Winter Olympics Open Thursday; Canada Favored in Two Classes

Oslo, Feb. 12—(CP)—With or without the co-operation of nature, the winter Olympics will open Thursday as scheduled.

That was the final word today from the Olympic organizing committee and ski officials, who have been plagued with worries about the lack of snow.

The officials at Norefjell, where the skiing events get underway Thursday, are thoroughly convinced their efforts to haul in snow and put it in place with the help of some 300 soldiers, will give the competitors a perfect run.

However, the skiing technical committee decided to postpone the women's downhill race from Saturday until Sunday. This will enable the soldiers to concentrate on getting the courses ready for the Thursday and Friday events which follow the original schedule.

Hopes for snow to cover bare spots on the ski courses all but vanished this morning when the day dawned cold and clear.

The official Norwegian weather bureau said a snow storm that paralyzed traffic in northern Denmark had been swept away from the Oslo region.

Canada Gets Nod in Three.

The bobsled run, scene of the only other opening-day event, will be in good shape without more snow. It is made of almost solid ice and sub-freezing temperatures have kept it well preserved.

Canada has no entries in the bobsled competition. The two-man sleds ended practice runs today with the Germans, Swiss and Americans all bunched closely as pre-games favorites.

A pre-games consensus among the experts here has already given the nod to Canada for three first-place spots or at least a wide-open chance to grab top honors.

Edmonton Mercurys are called to take the hockey championship.

But closely ranked with Suzanne are Jeannette Altwegg of Britain, the world champion; Jacqueline du Bief of France and Sonya Klopfer, 17-year-old youngster from Long Island City, N. Y.

Suzanne, just back from a German barnstorming exhibition tour, competed in the 1948 Olympics at St. Moritz, Switzerland. She was 14th in the singles and third, with Wally Deistelmeyer of Toronto, in the pairs.

She won the Canadian ladies' senior title in 1951 and was chosen for Canada's figure-skating team as far back as last October. She did not compete in the 1952 Canadian championships last month, won by Marlene Smith, of Niagara Falls, Ont., but came to Europe in December to train for the games.

Mercs Meet Germans

Rhoda Wurtele Eaves of Montreal is given a good chance to score for Canada in the women's skiing events, but is not given preferred ranking over United States and European competitors. Chiefly among them are Andrea Mead Lawrence of Rutland, Vt., Jannette Burr of Seattle, Wash., Dagmar Rom and Erika Mahringer of Austria and Tull Gasmann of Norway.

Rhoda, who at various times has won every major North American championship, was on Canada's 1948 team but injured an ankle and did not place.

The hockey competition gets under way Friday. Nine countries are entered and each team meets a rival only once.

Canada's first game will be against Germany, scheduled for 9 p. m. (3 p. m.) Friday.

Canada Has Ten 'Yankee' Trackmen Training in American Colleges

By JERRY LISKA

Chicago, Feb. 12—(AP)—Midwestern United States is a busy training ground for foreign athletes hopeful of representing their own countries in the 1952 Olympic games at Helsinki.

An Associated Press survey today disclosed that at least 17 athletes from seven different countries are performing at colleges in this area.

Canada with 10 natives, seven of them at the University of Michigan, tops the list which also includes two South African athletes, and one each from Sweden, Norway, New Zealand, Finland and Panama.

Olympic rules require competitors to be nationals or naturalized citizens of the country they represent.

There are some lively Olympic prospects in the foreign set on midwestern campuses.

Take Michigan's Don McEwen, Drake's Jim Lavery, and Iowa's Richard Ferguson, all of Canada; Purdue's Denis Johansson of Finland; Oklahoma's Neville Price from South Africa, and Illinois' Cirilo McSween from Panama.

McEwen Stars

McEwen, formerly of Ottawa and Halifax, has won seven N.C.A.A. and big ten distance titles with a 9.01.9 outdoor two-mile clocking to his credit. He was 1950's all-college two-miler.

Just as McEwen captains Michigan, Lavery is Drake track captain and one of the fastest 440 runners in the U.S. His best clocking is :47.6, made in the N.C.A.A. trials last year.

Johansson has learned a lot American running as a sort of third-place chaperone in the Don Gehrmann-Fred Wilt Jile feud. He hopes to qualify for the Finnish Olympic team in the 1500 and 5,000 metres.

McSween, 22-year-old junior, won both the big ten indoor and outdoor 440 championship as a sophomore last year when his only quarter-mile defeat came when he placed sixth in the N.C.A.A.

Price, 22-year-old Oklahoma freshman from east London, South Africa, holds the British Empire broad jump title and also is a sprinter. Ferguson, slender 20-year-old Iowa freshman from Toronto was Canadian three-mile champion in 1949 and 1950.

Michigan's Canadian contingent also includes sophomore John Ross with a 4:12 clocking in his first collegiate mile try; George Lynch, a 10,000-meter hopeful; shot-putter Roy Pella; quarter-milers Jack Carroll and Al Rankin; and sprinter Ross Coats.

Gordon Dickson, sophomore at Drake, is a Canadian hopeful at 10,000 meters.

Three Dodgers Sign Contracts

Brooklyn, Feb. 12 —(AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers announced today that outfielder George Shuba and pitchers Jack Banta and Phil Haugstad have signed their 1952 contracts. The Dodgers now have 34 players in the fold.

Shuba, 27, was up with the Dodgers in 1948, 49 and 50 but never lived up to his minor league ratings. He spent 1951 with Montreal, batting .310 in 92 games. A leg injury curtailed his activity.

Banta, after a fine season in 1949 came up with arm trouble and spent most of 1950 with Montreal and all of 1951 with Fort Worth. He appeared in only seven games for Fort Worth and had no decisions either way.

Collegiate, OSD Girls Split Wins At Basketball

(By Betis and Bev.)

In see-saw girls' basketball games at O.S.D. Monday night B.C.I. Seniors defeated O.S.D. 24-13, while the Juniors lost 26-23.

Seniors

The game started off with both teams checking closely. At the end of the first half the score was 12-11 in favor of B.C.I. After this point the locals took the lead and were never headed.

Dianne Gibson was the best goal-getter by scoring 10 points. Dianne Gourley and Barb Bennett were tied with 6 points each.

L. Coyer played an outstanding game for the losers with 10 points to her credit.

Lineups:

B.C.I.—B. Bennett 6, D. Gibson 10, D. Gourley 6, E. Robbins 2, B. Wilbur, D. Kerr, C. Weston, J. Walden, H. Weston, B. J. Goodwin, E. McCormick.

O.S.D.—L. Coyer 10, E. Garnett 1, A. Allen, L. McOrinone, D. McArthur, E. Manoryh 2, J. Muir, J. Lalarariech, J .Thaw.

Juniors

B.C.I. was lagging behind at the end of the first half by a score of 12-6. Both teams opened up with short scoring rallies making a see-saw battle up until the last minute. B.C.I. tried hard to score to get on even terms but in the meantime O.S.D. slipped in the winning basket to take the game.

Jean Faulkner playing her first game as forward, was top scorer for B.C.I. with 9 points. Several of her baskets brought B. C. I. into the lead.

Joanne Clark and Sandra Winters were next with 5 points each.

The top scorer in both games was Doreen Brown of O.S.D. with 16 points.

Lineups:

B.C.I.—A. Fox, J. Clarke 5, E. Hrachovec 3, M. Kellet 1, S. Winters 5, D. McNish, A. Parks, D. LaRue, E. Clarke, J. Faulkner 9, M. MacLaurin.

New York, Feb. 12—(AP)—Bill Talbert of New York and Mrs. Nancy Chaffee Kiner of Ventura, Calif., today were seeded at the top of the draw for the National Indoor Tennis Championships opening here Saturday.

Dick Savitt of Orange, N.J., 1951 Wimbledon and Australian champion, was seeded No. 2 among the 63 men players. After him comes Budge Patty, 1950 Wimbledon titleholder; Don McNeill, former national indoor champion; Frank Guernsey, Irvin Dorfman, Hal Burrows and Grant Golden.

Five foreign players also were seeded. In order they are, Kurt Nielsen, Denmark; Lorne Main of Vancouver, Nils Rohlsson, Sweden; Brandan Macken of Montreal and Jean Borotra, veteran French player.

Ban of Boxing Managers' Guild Stops All Pro Bouts in Edmonton

By LORNE BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Feb. 12—(CP)—Just when it appears that lightweight George Dunn may have found a knockout touch, the Boxing Managers' Guild has slapped a ban on him.

And the ban may have thrown a monkey wrench into the Edmonton fight picture just when the Alberta capital was becoming known as a good fight town.

Dunn is a 25-year-old Negro puncher from Hartford, Conn. While on a tour of western Canada nearly three years ago, he took a liking to Edmonton and decided to make his home here. His manager back in Hartford claimed Dunn ran out on him.

Is a Contender

In 25 bouts since then, Dunn has won 24, his last a knockout over Joey Velez of Seattle. Last August he was given official ranking as 10th leading contender for the world lightweight title.

The manager mix-up has drawn in Edmonton's 33-year-old boxing promoter, Jack Berry, who claims the manager's guild blackballed him, too.

Claiming to be Dunn's rightful manager is Sam Lewin of Hartford. He had the managers' guild slap a ban on Dunn. At the same time he put a $2,500 price tag on the Negro boxer's contract.

The ban is nothing like a suspension by an official control board. It merely means that Dunn can't get fights with boxers whose managers are guild members.

Extension of the ban to Berry means there is no boxing in Edmonton, Berry being the only promoter operating in the city.

"They blackballed me, but I've never had any official notice," Berry said. "Jack Mendonca of Oakland, president of the California Boxing Managers' Guild, backed out of a promise to bring his boy Johnny Gonzales to Edmonton.

"They're holding me responsible for Dunn not going back to Hartford."

Reg. Chartrand Wins Decision Over Wallace

Toronto, Feb. 12 — (CP—Reg. Chartrand of Montreal won a unanimous five-round decision over Don Wallace of Barrie last night in a light - heavyweight feature bout of a newsboys' boxing card at Maple Leaf Gardens.

In a middleweight semi - final, Wally Gordon, also from Montreal, outpointed Harry Lynds of Sudbury in five rounds.

Hamilton fighters were victorious in three preliminary bouts. Davie Turnbull defeated Don Grinton of Brantford; Bill Pigott bested Paul Kenny of Barrie and Kid Sarson won over Dave Morden of Brantford. All went three rounds.

Other preliminary results:

145 lbs. — Gordon Baldwin, Toronto, decisioned Dave Morden, Brantford, (3).

145 lbs. — Billy McCoy, Toronto, decisioned Tom Whalen Brantford (3).

PREDICTS LARGE ARMY

Paris, Feb. 12 (CP) —A French general just back from Indo-China says the Viet-Namese government hopes to have a fully equipped army of eight divisions—120,000 men—in the field against communist led rebels by the end of this year. Brig.-Gen. Georges Spillman told a press conference yesterday that a shortage of American supplied arms is the only factor which can hold up formation of a native army that size.

Powell Tops American League By 12 Points

New York, Feb. 12 (AP)—Ray Powell's ability to avoid penalties is one of the reasons the veteran centre of the Providence Reds tops the American Hockey League in scoring by 12 points today.

Powell drew a two-minute penalty in the first game of the season and hasn't broken the rules since. Powell picked up five points during the week to boost his output to 74. The clever playmaker has scored 27 goals and leads the field in assists with 47.

Jackie Hamilton of St. Louis Flyers picked up 11 points during the week to tie Steve Wochy of Cleveland for second place at 62 points apiece. Wochy and George Armstrong, who recently moved up from Pittsburgh to Toronto, share the goal-scoring lead at 30 each.

Goalies Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh and Johnny Bower of Cleveland are waging a hot fight for goal-tending honors. Mayer is tops at the moment with a 2.52 average to Bower's 2.53. Mayer and Cincinnati's Emile Francis have turned in the most shutouts, four. Pete Durham of Indianapolis continues to lead in penalties with 138 minutes.

FALLS OUT OF MOW

Formosa, Ont., Feb. 12 (CP) —Norman Beninger, 60, a Formosa district farmer, crawled to the farm house for help yesterday after suffering a fractured leg and shock in a 30-foot plunge from the hay mow to the barn floor. Beninger was taken to Bruce County Hospital for treatment.

Wellington Bows To Frankford By 15-4 Score

(By Gene "Benny" Lohnes)

Frankford— Farley's Fabulous Fireballs are the toast of Frankford today, having finally chalked up a hockey win for the hometown this season. "Hooker" Couture with five goals, and "Wheels" Montgomery with four counters were the top marksmen for the local Canners crew, as they trounced Wellington by a 15-4 count. "Bloomer-Girl" Morgian, "Fireball" Farley, "Tornado Tunny" Hanna also rang the bell, while "Straw Boss" Thompson, the Foxboro Flash bulged the twine a couple of times. "Mort" Baker of the kid line (and we do mean kids. . . they wore three-cornered hockey pant) banged one in as well.

We understand that Wellington is refusing to play any future games, unless the Frankford netminder "Redlight" Lohnes loses a few pounds. They claim that he covers the whole front of the net, and that if they want to score, they have to wave a hot-dog in front of his nose to lure him out of the goal.

"Sandbag" Rogers was a tower of strength on defence along with "Broomstick" Bonisteel. Rogers not only displayed prowess in breaking up the Wellington power plays, but he throws a mean left hook. As he said afterwards (in the penalty box) "I was tired anyway."

"Fireball" Farley drew a one minute penalty for carrying the puck in his pocket from one blue line to the other. He almost got away with it, but referee Bonisteel (he's the one who owns the spotted dog that hangs around Sprague's Hardware) was on the alert. Farley was mad enough to commit murder right there, but he held his control, knowing that there was a ten minute misconduct penalty for homicide in this league.

A return game is being arranged in Wellington shortly. The purpose of it all? Why for the March of Dimes, of course! The attendance at the Frankford arena wasn't too large, but full proceeds will be going to this worthy cause. It just goes to show the real spirit of self-sacrifice men will make when called upon, to go down to the arena and get all crippled up with hockey to help raise money for folks who are all crippled up with polio. Anyone who is crazy enough to read down this far is reminded that the March of Dimes still needs money. The Fireballs offered their lives, won't you give a dime?

SPORTS RULED OUT

Bogota, Colombia, Feb. 12 (CP) —Beauty contests and sports have been ruled out for girls' schools affiliated with the Colombian Federation of Private Catholic Schools. Parents have been cautioned against "encouraging the athletic spirit for vanity or show" and told that social affairs are incompatible with student life. Participation in such contests or in parties or dances will result in dismissal.

Freebooter, Grand National Favorite Will Carry Top Weight of 175 Lbs

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 12 (CP) —Publication of weights for the world's greatest steeplechase marks the start of an annual guessing game which British racing fans await with a sort of doomed anticipation.

It's the same every year. They know the chances are they won't pick the winner—they'll be lucky if their horse stands up—but like a well-meaning matron about to munch a second roll, they can't resist the temptation.

The race is the nerve-testing Grand National to be run April 5, a jaunt of four miles 856 yards over 30 of the toughest fences thoroughbreds can tackle. Every spring approximately 35 horses go to the post in this quixotic classic, and usually the one which comes home in front wasn't even mentioned by the experts.

Many Start, Few Finish

Ponder these statistics:

Last year 36 horses started out on the long journey and only three finished, one of which was remounted. In 1950 six out of 49 were still on their feet at the finish; in 1949 nine out of 43; and in 1948 six out of 43.

In all that time, the only one which even looked like a favorite was Freebooter, the 1950 winner.

Usually the successful steed comes from the clouds, and that's the last you ever hear of him. Russian Hero won easily in 1949, finishing so full of running that his jockey was practically pulled out of the saddle trying to get him to stop. Since then Russian Hero has gone to the post 23 times, sometimes against pretty cheap animals and he hasn't been able to get close.

From this racing writers deduce the Grand National is a law unto itself—but all the formidable figures won't stop racing fans from studying the form as if it really meant something.

To Try for Second Win

This year's race at Aintree near Liverpool will be run April 5, and already the dopesters have established Freebooter a firm favorite. He's the pick to win for the second time in three years, even though he will carry crushing top weight of 175 pounds—10 more than in 1950—and though history seems to put a hex on horses which go to the National well more than once.

The great Reyonldstown, successful in 1935 and 1936, is the only horse to have won twice at Aintree since 1900.

As for weight, since the turn of the century only Poethlyn in 1919 and Jerry M. in 1912 have lugged 175 pounds to victory in the National.

One of Freebooter's big challenges may came from Pearly Prince, a point-to-point racer unknown until this season. At nine years of age the Prince is two years younger than Freebooter and will have a weight advantage of no less than 30 pounus. He has won his last three races.

Ken Laufman Leads Juniors By Scant Point

Toronto, Feb. 12 (CP) — Ken Laufman, the high-scoring Guelph Biltmores' centre, this week held onto his lead in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A point parade.

The 19-year-old forward banged in two goals and assisted on six others in two games to compile a total of 119 points. He is a scant point in front of Danny Poland of Toronto Marlboros who has 118 points. Poland took over the runner-up spot from Galt's Ken Wharram who broke his collar-bone in a Sunday game and will probably be lost to the Black Hawks for the rest of the season. Wharram is still in third place with 114 points.

Galt Manager Blasts Officials Of Junior Game

Galt, Feb. 12—(CP)—Al Murray, manager of Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League, last night denounced officiating in the 10-team league following Sunday's injury to Ken Wharram, Galt scoring star.

In addition to blaming the officials in the Sunday game with Marlboros in Toronto when Wharram collided with Marlies' Parker Macdonald and broke his collar-bone, Murray charged that opposing teams were out to "get" players of the calibre of Wharram and Pete Conacher.

Murray was bitter over the Sunday incident, claiming that Macdonald should have had a penalty for charging.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Courage in the sports world is like Christmas packages. It comes in assorted wrappings, some in gaudy covering, with glittering ribbons, some modestly reserved. Some courage is physical. The late George Hainsworth, Shut Out King of his day, played an entire game for Canadiens one night with blood dripping slowly down his sweater front. His nose had been broken by a practice shot just before the game started. Ching Johnson played for Rangers with a broken jaw, partially protected by a steel cage that covered his head and face. Eddie Shore played with one ear dangling, his nose broken, teeth knocked out.

Some courage is mental. There's the player afflicted with an inferiority complex, who rallies his faltering courage and fights not only the opposition, but his own fears and uncertainties. There's the player who carries on in the face of heart-breaking family tragedy. And all these constitute courage. But you can't measure physical courage and hardihood as against the less-spectacular but equally gallant mental courage.

So we're not going to say that a little fellow named Gerry McNeil, who guards the nets for Canadiens in the National Hockey League is the most courageous athlete of the month or year. There may be scores of other lads who faced situations just as bleak, and rode across the barriers just as gallantly. We're not making comparisons. We're merely here to record what we thought was a throat-catching bit of sports heroism, of the quiet fortitude that is the stamp of true valor.

McNeil is a sentimental boy. He is an only child. His mother had been ill for a long time, her death was a certainty, a mere matter of time. This is a plight calculated to unnerve the stoutest morale. But game after game, McNeil played, and played well, despite the shadowy spectre of death hovering nearby. The blow came one night just as Canadiens were starting for a two-game road trip, in Detroit and Chicago in turn. But McNeil, sadly shaken by the news, even though not unexpected, refused to leave the team. His face actually tear-stained, he played in Detroit, put up a fine game and Canadiens won. His team went on to Chicago. There he played brilliantly, though in between periods he couldn't keep back the tears. But he scored a shut-out.

He arrived back in time to reach Quebec City and be present at his mother's funeral, a trying ordeal in itself. There was a game in Montreal that very night against Toronto Leafs. The club management, feeling that McNeil deserved a rest to recover poise, offered to get a replacement. But McNeil declined. "The replacement might be better than me, but it might upset the team when they're going well," he said. "I'll play."

And play he did. His mates fought savagely to protect McNeil. Only 15 shots were thrown at him, though Leafs boast the second-best scoring line in the League, the Kennedy-Sloan-Smith combine. Canadiens won, 3-1. And when the game was over, it wasn't around the goal scorers that the players gathered. It was around McNeil, shaking his hand, and pounding him on the back, a tribute to courage, to a trooper who had most gallantly upheld the ancient slogan of sport and the theatre: The Show Must Go On.

WATCH FOR THE WASP

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoolap Oxpert gets more ideas during one bridge deal than do some inventors in an entire lifetime. You think not? Then watch some birds do their stuff after a redouble of partner's takeout double.

After a redouble of a takeout double, partner of takeout doubler should bid something. The weaker his hand the more important it is for him not to pass in that spot. Anything is better than pass there.

If partner of doubler ever does pass the redouble, he admits being strengthy or lengthy in the opponent suit. In fact, he shouts aloud that the redoubled bid can be defeated.

All of which is known by good players. But Akoolap Oxpert does not always feel like it. All of a sudden and out of a clear sky his judgment tells him to pass. It makes a big hole in your pile of chips.

While you pant through the nose he pipes up with: "Wadda you wanna double for if you can't stand the redouble or take it out yourself? You could see I couldn't have anything with that kind of bidding."

♦Q 2
♣A K Q

South opens with a heart. You double in west for takeout. North redoubles. Akoolap is still your partner in east. He hesitates for a moment and then passes. South also passes.

Remembering what happened on the last hand, you take yourself out with a bid of two spades. Which everybody passes. Akoolap climbs all over you with: "Whadja wanna takeout that redouble for?"

He keeps on: "North didn't have a redouble and I passed because we could settem. And we might have got some of our dough back."

What do you do with a mug like that? Let him live? Yes. But somewhere else, please.

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 12 (AP) —Edmund Trzcinski spent a year in a nazi prison camp and now has a lively career because of it.

The man with the tongue-twisting name—we'll call his Triz—was shot down over Austria and placed in a prison camp called Stalag 17, near Krems, Austria.

Triz, together with fellow-prisoner Donald Beaven, wrote a play called "Stalag 17." Today Triz is acting in the film version of the Broadway hit and also serving as technical adviser.

Amused, Amazed

He is amused and amazed by the business of being an actor, but he doesn't plan to make it a habit.

"Acting is much too difficult," he said. "I'm doing this part only because Billy Wilder (the director-writer) . . wrote in a part for me that doesn't require much acting ability."

His only previous acting experience was in the real Stalag 17. He and his co-author Beaven wrote, directed and produced four musical shows to entertain their fellow prisoners. They ended up acting in the shows, too.

Triz arranged to have their play produced for a trial showing at the Lamb's Club. Jose Ferrer was in the audience. He became enthusiastic and produced and directed the show for Broadway. It was an instant success.

Timbermen Nudge Madoc Kiwanis In Playoff Tilt

Bancroft—Bancroft Timbermen took a three-finger hold on the championship of the West Hastings-Addington juvenile "C" series when they defeated Madoc Kiwanis 8 to 5 in the first of a home-and-home, goals-to-count series for the league title, in the local arena on Saturday night.

Carrying this slight edge the entry of Martin Brothers Lumber Company travel to Madoc on Tuesday to settle the affair with the Kiwanians. The winner of the series will meet Wellington, champs of the Prince Edward County group in the next round.

About 150 fans saw the best juvenile game of the season, where the boys laid down a number of passes that would have landed on a dime. Ross Severin, Jim Vance and Wayne Coe worked some smooth three and four-way pattern plays around the Madoc net while Fred Nickle, Cassibo and Heaworth, showed the fans how the famous red-herring drop pass of Lester Patrick's Rangers worked.

That extra polish around the nets was responsible for the victory of Stuckey's stalwarts who were both outweighed and outskated by the league leaders. Drummond covered his side of the rink like a large economy-size blanket over a small card table and Paranuik gave a demonstration of the original jet-propelled kid. On countless occasions they were within feet of Glen Andrews but the rubber had a habit of hitting the pads instead of the twine.

Besides Andrews, Floyd Bruce and Barry Jackson played their best game of the season. Two of the regular defencemen were absent and they seemed to thrive on double time on the ice. Twice Stan Jeff was the minute-man of the hour as he cruised through the Madoc defence and decked Arnott with a pair of ankle sizzlers, at the close of the second and third chuckers.

Lineups—

Madoc Kiwanis—Goal, Arnott; defence, Drummond and Reid; centre, F. Nickle; wings, Cassibo and Heaworth: alts., Gaebel, Bellinger, Smith, Paranuik, Hickey, Holmes Mgr. M. Smith; coach, Bogey Taylor.

Bancroft Timbermen — goal, Andrews; defence. D. Martin and Bruce; centre, Severin, wings, Vance and Coe; alts., Jackson, Griggs, Sprackett, Parnell, G. Martin, Landon; Mgr. and coach, J. Stuckey.

AT THE CAPITOL — Ray Milland and Gene Tierney and Hector, the pup, in a domestic scene from Warners' "Close to My Heart," showing today and Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre for its first Belleville showing. On the same program—in color by Technicolor— "Lullaby of Broadway," starring Doris Day and Gene Nelson.

AWARDED DAMAGES

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 12 (CP) — Clarence Couvillion yesterday was awarded damages of $9,731 against the Ontario Registrar of Motor Vehicles in connection with injuries suffered in an accident in December, 1950. Couvillion will collect $5,000 —the maximum payable — from the unsatisfied judgments fund. The remainder will be collected from the driver of the truck which struck Couvillion down as he was changing a tire on a road in this city's outskirts—if the driver is ever found.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Wednesday, February 13

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Mars and Uranus in excellent aspects today sponsor, everyday work, military affairs that require special skill, action and perhaps the unusual in treatment. Good day to advance, achieve.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Perhaps not a wholly personal day but gainful for sound business, courageous deeds, essential tasks no matter how difficult. Venture some where you feel benefits are to be had.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Most worthy undertakings favored, though you may not find the purely mental and artistic interests up to the usual stride. Application, accuracy necessary for sure gain.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—You working with or dealing in metals, ores, lumber, machinery, tools, electronics; building ships, airplanes, any war equipment especially favored today. Be careful but be ambitious.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Atmosphere is full of energy stimulus. A day you busy, go-getter people should enjoy and make produce for you. Military personnel, miners, you in outdoor activities among foremost favored.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Brush up your mechanical and practical side. Inventions, new methods of value, handling tools, machinery, vehicles, transportation in general among day's first benefited.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—You can be resourceful, intuitive and inventive to a high degree this sort of day. Give strength and character to your plans and action. Day spells progress, advancement in useful lines.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Inspiring day for hard work, difficult problems, unusual undertakings if they have merit. But be sensibly cautious though ambitious and acquisitive. Mechanics, science highly favored.

November 23 to December 22—Sagittarius—Money transactions, delicate matters may not be in first line now with activities of other and general importance. You can gain in occupation or hobby by vigor and close attention.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Foresight, inventive ability, you working with electricity, dentists, surgeons, railroad engineers, mechanical workers generally are especially favored. Work for higher advancement.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Your planet Uranus and Mars in benefic aspects augur for personal achievement in a big way. Intuition should be keen, but at same time stress common sense. Avoid extremes.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Neptune advises sensible caution in personal matters, activities connected with the sea, in confidences. Today can be gainful in practically all useful lines of endeavor. Have faith.

YOU BORN TODAY: Studious, thoughtful as a rule, friendly. More inherent talent and ability than you perhaps realize or make proper use of. Curb any tendency toward sudden friendships, attractions that could cause estrangements with true family ties, worthy friends. Restlessness must be handled sensibly, lest it lead you from attention to occupational work and high achievement that can be yours. Prayer, keeping usefully busy, wholesome associates are musts for better life, real contentment.

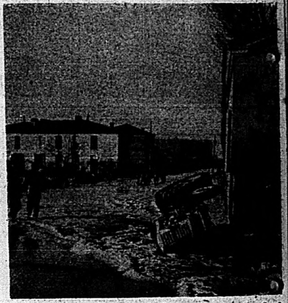
Aftermath of Floods in Southwest of France



Southwest France is now gradually emerging from the floods that inundated large areas after swollen rivers and streams overflowed their banks. This village of Marseilles is typical of many where flood waters are receding —note high water mark on houses —leaving oceans of mud and debris. A farm tractor, none the worse for its experience in the flood is seen lying on its side. — Central Press Canadian.

Ottawa Officials Decline to Give Any Information

Kingston, Feb. 12 (CP) — Appointment of Hugh F. Gibson, city solicitor, as commissioner to investigate charges of political partisanship against Robert S. Wise postmaster at Cloyne, is announced in the current issue of the Canada Gazette. The appointment is as of Jan. 29.

Details of the investigation were unavailable immediately. Ottawa officials declined information.

Mr. Gibson said he has not yet been informed of his appointment and Mr. Wise said he knows nothing of an investigation concerning him.

Mr. Wise, storekeeper at Cloyne, 50 miles west of Kingston, was appointed postmaster there June 10, 1948. He succeeded Harvey Spencer another storekeeper, who retir on that date.

Mr. Wise said he has never r for political office, has not be informed of any investigation a has "no idea" of who would lay charge of political partisansh against him.

'Streetcar Named Desire' Voted Best Picture

Hollywood, Feb. 12—(AP)—Two films that dealt frankly with lust—"A Streetcar Named Desire," and "A Place In The Sun"—dominated the nominations for the 24th annual awards of the motion picture academy last night.

"Streetcar," adapted from the Tennessee Williams play, took top honors. It placed 12 nominations. "A Place In The Sun," followed with nine mentions.

The major nominations:

Best performance by actor — Humphrey Bogart, "The African Queen"; Marlon Brando, "A Streetcar Named Desire"; Montgomery Clift, "A Place In The Sun"; Arthur Kennedy, "Bright Victory"; Frederic March, "Death of a Salesman."

Best performance by actress—Katharine Hepburn, "The African Queen"; Vivien Leigh, "A Street Car Named Desire"; Eleanor Parker, "Detective Story"; Shelley Winters, "A Place in the Sun"; Jane Wyman, "The Blue Veil."

Best picture—"An American in Paris"; "Decision Before Dawn"; "A Place in the Sun"; "Quo Vadis"; "A Street Car Named Desire."

Best performance by a supporting actor—Leo Genn, "Quo Vadis"; Karl Malden, "A Street Car Named Desire"; Kevin McCarthy, "Death of a Salesman"; Peter Ustinov, "Quo Vadis"; Gig Young, "Come Fill the Cup."

Best performance by supporting actress—Joan Blondell, "The Blue Veil"; Mildred Dunnock, "Death of a Salesman"; Lee Grant, "Detective Story"; Kim Hunter, "Street Car Named Desire"; Thelma Ritter, "The Mating Season."

Best direction—John Huston, "The African Queen"; Vincente Minnelli "An American in Paris"; William Wyler, "Detective Story"; George Stevens, "Place in the Sun"; Elia Kazan "A Street Car Named Desire."

CAMPBELLFORD

$150 Damage When Vehicle Hits Parked Car

Campbellford — Bruce Wallace of Campbellford had his car damaged to the extent of about $150 on Saturday morning when he ran into the rear of a parked car on No. 45 highway a few miles south of Norwood.

Frank Stephenson of R. R. 1 Baltimore, age 19, said the battery cable on his car broke, putting the lights out and stalling the car on the highway. He was out of the car attempting to repair the broken cable, when the Wallace car struck the parked vehicle from behind. The Stephenson car escaped practically undamaged. Provincial Constable George Rose of Campbellford investigated.

OVISIONS [illegible]

Provision Being Made to House New Fire Truck

Campbellford — If and when the Seymour township council purchases their new fire truck, they will be assured of a place to keep it. The fire, water and light committee of the Campbellford council met with the Public Utilities Commission on Saturday night to solicit the support of the commission in housing the proposed fire truck.

A committee consisting of Archie Meyers, Howard Hogle and P. C. Denyes was appointed to look into modifying the fire hall to house the new vehicle.

Before the committee can do anything, they will have to have some definite word from the Seymour council as to what truck they are going to purchase, and how big it will be. If the new truck is to be longer than the Campbellford truck, a wall will have to be knocked out of the fire hall in order to make room for the two vehicles.

In the meantime, the Campbellford truck is standing by to answer any fire calls, and will answer calls to anywhere in Seymour township. This arrangement is on a temporary basis until Seymour can get delivery of their new truck.

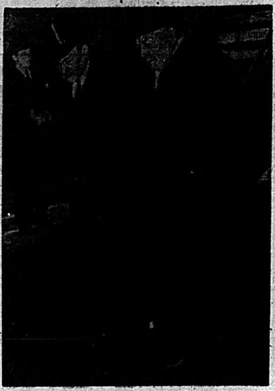
United in Sorrow



Former prime minister, Clement Attlee, left, now leader of the loyal opposition and Prime Minister Churchill, are shown with mournful faces as they awaited the arrival of the new Queen from Kenya Colony, Africa, at London airport following death of King George VI. Although political foes for many years, two famous men were united in mourning the death of their beloved Monarch.—Central Press-Canadian.

Congregational Meetings

FOXBORO UNITED CHURCH

Foxboro—The regular meeting of the United Church, Foxboro, was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. Wilson. The worship service was based on the theme "We Believe in Brotherhood." The hymns, scripture and responsive reading carried out the thought of brotherhood in everyday life. Mrs. Sheltor favored with a solo and Mrs. Giffin offered prayer for the Royal Family and all who mourn the passing of a beloved King. Mrs. Priest gave a reading pertaining to the new Canadians who are coming to our country to begin a new life and the offering was received and dedicated with the doxology.

Mrs. S. C. Gay gave an inspiring talk on the theme, and suggested "we be happy Christians who delight in practising brotherhood in our everyday living." Mrs. Shetlor presided for the business period; twenty-three ladies responded to the Roll Call which was answered with a verse of scripture beginning with the letter "F". An invitation is to be extended to Mrs. Bertrand to visit the March meeting which will be held following a dinner for the Mission Band.

The ladies were reminded of the "World's Day of Prayer" to be held on Feb. 29 in the Sunday School rooms at 2.15.

A finance committee was appointed and the Mizpah Benediction closed a very helpful meeting.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH, MADOC

The annual congregational meeting of Trinity United Church, Madoc, was held on Jan. 30. Trinity Ladies' Club served a bountiful supper, and after all had partaken of these good things the business meeting was opened with worship, led by the chairman, Rev. J. F. Lane. Percy E. Holland was appointed secretary for the meeting. The reports presented from the various organizations of the church revealed the finances in good condition, and the work going steadily forward.

Under the Woman's Missionary Society, a Baby Band of twelve members, and a Mission Band of thirty-nine members, were organized during the year. These together with the senior organization forwarded $390.90 to the presbyterial treasurer. Also a parcel of toys and small useful articles was forwarded to the immigration port worker at Halifax, valued at $12.50. Two layettes valued at $68, and a bale of clothing valued at $125 were forwarded to the clothing depot in Toronto for overseas relief.

The Sunday School is growing in attendance under the superintendency of Will Gordon with his staff of devoted teachers and officers. The Woman's Association, with the assistance of Eldorado and Union, purchased a refrigerator for the parsonage. Trinity Ladies' Club together with the Woman's Association, aided by a bequest, have almost $1,000 in the church kitchen fund. The missionary and maintenance fund showed an increase.

The most encouraging feature here is that the contributions came largely from personal givings, and not nearly so much from organizations as the previous year. More contributors are using the red side of the duplex envelopes. A junior choir was formed under the leadership of Mrs. Florence McCoy, and they are rendering splendid numbers, which assist the senior choir, and enrich the service of worship. A fund has been started by some kind donors to secure gowns for the junior choir.

In the reorganization that followed the receiving of the reports, two new members were added to the Session, Messrs. Delbert Carman and Carl Howse were elected for five years. W. E. Connor was re-elected for four years. Albert Empey was a new member elected to the committee of stewards for three years, together with six others who were re-elected. Mrs. J. W. Hulin was returned to the office of envelope steward and missionary and maintenance fund treasurer, Mrs. Will Parks was returned as United Church Observer representative. Mr. W. E. Connor and Mr. Percy E. Holland were returned as committee for ushers, and were highly commended for their fine work this last year. Mr. Doug Drinkwalter and Mr. Carl Howse were appointed as auditors for 1952. A vote of thanks and appreciation was extended to Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Lane for their fine work for the past year.

CANNIFTON

Cannifton—Appropriate memorial services for the late King, were held in the churches on the Cannifton charge on Sunday with splendid congregations at each appointment. At the evening service in Cannifton of special interest was the presence of the reeve of Thurlow township, Mr. Fred Mitchell, representing the council, who took part in the service by reading the scripture lesson. Appropriate numbers were rendered by the choir, consisting of a duet, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" by Mrs. Milton and Miss Meribeth Holgate. The full choir's number "My Home Sweet Home" was rendered. A solo "I'd Rather Have Jesus" was sung by Cyril Magor, this solo was a special favorite of our late King. The music was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. Harry Farnham.

The altar was very effective with a picture of His Gracious Majesty draped with flags, and beautiful bouquets of white mums. Great credit is due to Mrs. Furmidge and Mrs. Milton for this very splendid arrangement. The pastor based his message on the high qualities of the late Gracious King, who was not afraid to let the world know that his trust was in God.

PRICE TAG FOR SHEEP

Truro, N.S. (CP) — Town council set a price of $25 for one sheep when that amount was voted to pay the claim of Miss Florence Dickie, who reported one of her sheep was killed within the town limits by three dogs.

SORROWING

On the closed coffin the imperial crown returned the candles' flicker with flashes of fire from the vast wealth of diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires.

The oak coffin was draped in the red and gold royal standard. On it, at the head, was a single wreath of snow white flowers—from the dead Monarch's widow, the Queen Mother Elizabeth.

A yeoman of the guard, wearing the Tudor robes of the first Elizabeth's reign, stood just off each corner of the edge of the catafalque.

Their gold embroidered scarlet robes were surmounted by ruffs, and as the guard changed each 20 minutes their rows of medals tinkled. On duty they stood at stiff attention, their ancient pikes, held point downward resting on the light carpet over the stone floor.

Beams Converge on Bier

About 10 clusters of lights on the beamed ceiling were lit. Beams from four of the clusters converged on the bier.

Across the high gothic window at one end of the huge sombre-grey the flags of the commonwealth countries—countries knit together by their affection, respect and loyalty to this line of rulers—were arrayed in a mass of red, white and blue. There were no other decorations to cover the cold, bare stone walls of the unheated chamber.

For 14 hours a day, from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m., until Thursday night the citizens may pass before the bier while the King's body lies in state.

Friday it will be taken by train to Windsor for burial beside the King's ancestors in St. George's Chapel. The body was brought yesterday from the royal estate at Sandringham, where the Monarch died in his sleep last Wednesday.

Last night, members of the royal household, the staffs at Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle, Clarence House and Marlborough House and the staffs of both houses of parliament paid homage before the hall was opened to the general public.

Many Wept Quietly

Also on guard were four gentlemen-at-arms, wearing their tall bear-skin hats and pointing their swords downward, and two officers of the King's body guard at the head of the coffin.

Young Queen Elizabeth, her mother and her grandmother and other members of the royal family prayed for the King's salvation yesterday at a memorial service. There, too, were Prime Minister Churchill and 2,000 others, including peers, members of parliament, and diplomats.

The service was simple, The Archbishop of York, Dr. Cyril F. Garbett, prayed and then repeated the Lord's Prayer. A choir sang the King's favorite hymn, "Abide With Me."

Then, slowly, the three Queens, dressed in deepest mourning, their grief veiled in black, walked from the hall.

Fire Destroys Tee-Pee Motel Near Pickering

Pickering, Feb. 12 — (CP) — Damage estimates ranged up to $135,000 yesterday when the Tee-Pee Motel was destroyed by fire.

The 17-room two-storey building was located on Frenchman's Bay road, some 10 miles west of Oshawa. The only occupants at the time, Mrs. Lyle Jones, wife of the owner, and caretaker escaped safely.

Mrs. Jones said the fire might have started from a cigaret butt left by a honeymooning couple.

Firemen from Pickering, Brougham and South Pickering fought the blaze but ran out of water. Earlier, Mr. Jones set the loss "at a minimum of $150,000."

SABOTAGE BELIEVED CAUSE

Tunis, Feb. 11 (Reuters) —Sabotage is believed to have caused a fire which had destroyed 600 tons of alfa — used to make glossy paper — at a warehouse in Sfax south of here.

Left up to Business

But except in British Columbia and Newfoundland, there will be no general cessation of business across the country Provinces proclaiming the day a holiday left it up to business itself whether to observe the day as a full holiday.

All government offices and liquor outlets will be closed in Ontario.

Prime Minister St. Laurent will head government officials attending a service at the National War Memorial in Ottawa and in many centres, members of the armed forces will parade to church services.

In many churches of every faith, services will be held at various times throughout the day.

Ontario cities proclaiming Friday a civic holiday are Stratford, Brantford, Timmins, Cornwall, Sudbury, North Bay, St. Thomas, Chatham, Welland, Galt, Windsor, Toronto, Niagara Falls and Welland.

Some Not Decided

A number of centres have not yet reached a decision. Others plan only memorial services.

In Stratford most industries are undecided whether to remain open. Of more than 30 plants, 25 plan to follow the lead of the majority.

In Chatham, all places of entertainment and industry have been requested to close. A civic memorial service is scheduled at Park Street United Church.

In Timmins, it was reported that retail stores will follow the example of other northern municipalities and that in all probability stores will be closed. Legion officials are planning a memorial service.

In North Bay, industries and stores are to be asked to close. A memorial service is planned. In Sudbury, all churches are expected to participate in a morning memorial service and in the afternoon a ceremony will be held in Legion hall.

Civic Memorial Service

In Niagara Falls civic and provincial offices will be closed and stores and private offices have been asked to close. A civic memorial service will be held in the collegiate auditorium.

In Welland, a community service is to be held in a theatre and will be preceded by a parade from the Legion hall. Memorial services will be held in all Galt churches.

In St. Thomas the Chamber of commerce has urged stores and industries to close down at 11 a.m. for at least the funeral period.

Stores, industries and other place of business in Brantford are expected to remain open with two minutes' silence being observed. Civic memorial services will be held in Kitchener and Waterloo in the evening instead of in the afternoon as originally planned.

At Toronto a civic memorial service is planned for Maple Leaf Gardens. Services will be held in leading churches of most denominations. Offices, stores and industries are not decided whether to close.

Archbishop Says It Must Have Been Ordeal

London, Feb. 12—AP—"Youthful and alone, she stood at the table to address them."

Thus the Archbishop of York, Dr. Cyril Garbett, described to the House of Lords last night how Elizabeth II took her oath as Queen before members of the Privy Council Friday.

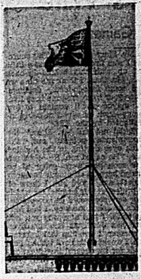
"It must have been to her a trying ordeal so soon after her accession," the Archbishop said, "but she spoke so clearly and directly and showed such great possession, such modesty and simple dignity that I am certain all who were present went away with the knowledge that the Queen has not only charm but other and greater qualities necessary for her high position.

"They went away resolved to do anything in their power to serve and to help her."

400 ARABS ARRESTED

Tunis, Feb. 11 (Reuters) — About 400 Arabs have been arrested by French police in mopping up operations against Tunisian nationalists in the Sousse area, south of here, according to a local press report.

Royal Ensign



The royal standard flies over Clarence House, London, to signify that the Queen is in residence. It went to the top of the staff after the arrival of Queen Elizabeth from Kenya Colony. All flags in London, which were at half-staff in mourning for the King, went to the top of the staff for six hours to celebrate Elizabeth's formal accession. — Central Press Canadian.

Dr. Logan's Wife

By Diana Gaines

At 9.10, Peter shut the door of Mr. Starr's office behind him, walked slowly back to his department. He hadn't said a word. A denial would have been a waste of breath. From beginning to end he could see Starr's point of view. It was logical, irrefutable and entirely moral according to the mores of business.

Mr. Starr had given it to him straight. "Dr. Surinov," he had said "late yesterday I was interviewed in your behalf by a young man whose credentials were in order. He was a federal investigator. He advised me that you were being considered for a government-subsidized research job at Angels Hospital. He asked me questions about you and I answered them freely. You've done a good job here we had nothing to complain of. But I confess that I was annoyed that you had not been sufficiently straightforward to advise me that you were contemplating leaving our laboratories. I saw fit to phone Angels Hospital for further information as to when the project would get underway. I spoke to the superintendent, Mr. Cota, who told me in no uncertain terms of the shady circumstances under which you were asked to leave the hospital. I regret that I did not check into that at the time you came here. I thought you left the hospital job for this one because of the salary increase. Mr. Cota made it clear that there was no research project planned at Angels for which your services would be accepted. I assume therefore that the federal man used that as an excuse to protect your position here until their investigation of you was concluded.

"We have a lot of government contracts at this time, as you know. Frankly, Dr. Surinov, I am not willing to sit out the period during which you are proved safe or unsafe by the FBI. If you put yourself in my place, you will understand that I must act conservatively in a way that best protects our company. You can stop on the way out at the bookkeeping department for your check which will include an extra month's salary in lieu of notice."

When Peter reached the desk, he found the message —Jennet Logan called. He sat on the metal stool absently played with the piece of paper on which her name was written. There was no point in calling her now. He had no future, at least not one he could ask her to share.

He looked down the alley of the room where eight white-gowned, white-capped technicians sat at the counters filling assembly lines of bottles with gloved hands. "I'm just a nurse to a bunch of milk bottles," he had groused to Walter Pelletier not long ago. He was glad to be relieved however forcibly, from the tedium of the work, wondered why he stuck it out this long —probably because it was as good a place as any to come and brood about Jennet. Highly paid brooding it had been, too. But it was not pleasant to be fired even from a dull job, and worse still was the sense of being hunted. He felt it in his belly again, the sick tight belly fear of the pack, of the posse, of men against one.

Question was— who was hunting him? Government— subsidized research project — hogwash. If there'd been such a thing afoot, Pelletier would have told him about it. Still, the FBI was not apt to invent excuses to protect a man's job while he was in the process of being cleared. Also, the FBI was the smell, not the cheese. Was Cota the cheese? First blackmail, now persecution. Why?

He had put so little of himself into this room, there was little to take out. A slide-rule, a Geiger counter, a fountain pen, a film badge. He took them with him to the locker room where he changed back into his street clothes. He picked up his check at the bookkeeper's office on his way out. He drove his car out of the parking lot, turned west to the hospital. He was a car and a few thousand dollars ahead of the last witch-hunt.

Peter was not surprised that Cota refused to receive him. Word came via the secretary that he was 'tied up' and unable to see Peter except by appointment. Peter pushed past the girl, flung open the door of the superintendent's office.

Maxwell Cota was standing at the window, his back to the door, when Peter charged in. Cota wheeled at the sound, his face darkening with sudden blood, and he scurried up the step behind his desk, his hand under the centre panel. Thus aproned, he ordered shrilly, "stay where you are, Surinov—if you know what's good for you!"

"I came," Peter said evenly, without slackening his advance, "to ask you a few questions, Mr. Cota, and I don't care if you have your hand on a howitzer." He reached across the desk and raised Cota from the floor by the lapels. Then he saw the black arm-band on Cota's limp-swinging sleeve, and he remembered Pelletier's mentioning the death of Cota's crippled sister. Abashed by the jarring version of Cota as bereaved brother instead of hostile superintendent, Peter released his grip.

He backed away, sat down on the rim of the lounge chair and crossed his arms on his chest. Cota relieved of his fear of violence rested his weight on the edge of the high, carved banquet chair.

"You've done a lot of talking about me," Peter began, "but very little to me. Yesterday you talked to Mr. Starr about me. This morning I was fired. I'm getting a little fed up with this behind-the-back talk, Mr. Cota. I think it's time we had some face-to-face dealings. Since your interest in me is so lively, maybe you'll explain a few things—such as why I'm being investigated by the FBI."

"I did not call Mr. Starr," the superintendent pointed out, the black eyes darting in the huddled face. "He called me. He asked me how soon you were going to be needed here on an atomic research project, and I told him I know of no project at this hospital for which your services would be acceptable. When he asked me why, I told him the truth. I told him why you left here last June. As one employer to another, I owe him that information. I wouldn't think of withholding it. As for the federal investigation, I had nothing to do with that. That is the doing of your friend, Dr. Pelletier."

Peter catapulted off the chair arm. "Pelletier? Cota, you better make sense. . ."

Cota rang for his secretary. "Please ask Dr. Pelletier to come in to see me at once. Tell him his friend, Dr. Surinov, is here and that he's quite excited." He waved his black-banded arm at Peter. "You had better calm down, young man, and watch your tone. I think we'll do better if Dr. Pelletier is here to corroborate my statements. I'm not used to intimidation."

"All right," Peter said. "That's fine with me. I'd like very much for Dr. Pelletier to be in on this conference." He turned away from Cota to the window, squirted his finger at a ball of drape-trimming, making it clear that until Dr. Pelletier arrived there would be no further discussion.

"You're a very foolish young man," Cota said into the silence. "Your desperado actions will get you nowhere. I advise you to give up any false hope Dr. Pelletier may have given you about getting back here. As long as I'm superintendent I mean to keep Bolsheviks out."

Dr. Pelletier lumbered in, out of breath. He nodded curtly to Cota, made formal mention of his name. "What's up, Peter?" he asked.

It was typical of Pelletier who, perhaps in guilt and shame at the baseness of his species, seemed bent on a personal crusade to expunge evil. The heartening thing was that the generosity of one man could so efficaciously cancel the hostility of ten. It had been this way before. Peter had known then that without Pelletier's staunch friendship, he would have in time succumbed to the dubious escape of neurotic depression.

Peter's tension eased somewhat, poulticed by the man's presence. There was reassurance in the humorous arch of thick eyebrow in the bulbous lidded eyes, the arrogant moustache, the skin that hung under the chin, rough as wattles, stuffed untidily into a white starched collar. It was a lived-in face, battered and yet visibly undaunted by time and experience and the sight of human beings in action. It was a face you could not imagine behind bars or in sickness or in pain, or in any situation of which it was not a firm and temperate master.

"Walter," Peter said, "I was fired from Starr Laboratories this morning. I understand I'm being investigated by the FBI. I figured Mr. Cota here might be at the back of things. He tried to tell me that you're responsible for the investigation. I didn't fall for it."

"It's perfectly true, Peter," Dr. Pelletier said. "I didn't want to tell you about it until things were definite. Didn't want to get your hopes up prematurely. I requested a grant for subsidy of our splenic tissue work. I specified in my request that I had you in mind for the job. Under the new law, all beneficiaries of AEC fellowships have to have FBI clearance even though they don't have access to restricted data." He turned to Cota. "I felt certain that your suspicions of Dr. Surinov's loyalty would be removed by an FBI report. We need Dr. Surinov for this work, Mr. Cota. I'm sure you're too interested in the advance of our hospital to let personal grievance interfere with its contribution to science."

"I certainly am," Cota snapped. "My objections for employing Surinov are far from personal. As for clearance, I can tell you right now he has as much chance as a snowball in Hades!"

Cota's excitement alerted both men. They stood silent, attentive, waiting for him to tip his hand.

"I received a letter from the atomic Energy Commission last week," Cota went on, "informing the hospital that your request for money had been acted upon favorably pending Surinov's clearance. That was the first I knew of your request, Dr. Pelletier. You must have known that all grants come through this office, but perhaps you thought I wouldn't find out until it was too late. When I saw through your plan, I did a little investigating on my own." His head jerked sharply about to Peter. "I don't think you're being quite fair to your friend here, are you Surinov? I don't think Dr. Pelletier would have been so naive as to call on the FBI if you'd come clean with him. . ."

Memorial Services Held By Two Marmora Churches

Marmora—A large congregation attended the memorial service for his late Majesty King George VI at St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday morning, which was conducted by the pastor Rev. Geo. D. Young. Mrs. H. C. Barlow and Mrs. R. Long rendered a duet. Previous to the sermon the late King's favorite hymn "The King of Love My Shepherd is," was the chosen hymn. The pastor chose the charge given by the Archbishop of Canterbury to the sovereign in the coronation service, "God crown you with a crown of glory and righteousness..." and "a crown in the everlasting Kingdom endureth for ever for ever," for an appropriate message. He also referred to the song of the choir at the coronation commencing, "Be Strong and Play the Man."

An enlarged picture of the King draped with the Union Jack was placed to the fore of the communion table, upon which flowers were placed by members of the Sweet family in memory of those of the family who have departed this life.

St. Paul's

Evensong at St. Paul's on Sunday took the form of a memorial service for his late Majesty King George VI and was attended by a large congregation. The full choir led in the singing of hymns in which the life everlasting was the keynote. Canon J. M. Brownlie read special lessons and led in the alternate reading of the Shepherd Psalm. He also gave an appropriate address touching upon fine characteristics in the life of the late King and referring to the progress of the Empire under two former queens, Elizabeth I and Victoria.

A service of Holy Communion was announced for Friday morning in advance of the proposed general memorial service to be held at the town hall.

BOY WON CASE

Toronto, Feb. 12 (CP) —A boy and his dog went to court yesterday and won. Hugh (Butch) Grove, 12, charged that Evan Pavloff Gillard threw an axe at his dog, Teddy, and almost cut off one of the dog's legs. Ray Banner, Butch's chum, testified that Teddy was barking a little "but he wasn't bothering anyone."

Gillard was fined $50 or 30 days.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching ma sewing on her sewing machine and wishing I had a dime to get a frostybar from the Happy Days man, and I said, G, ma, it must of been a cinch for you to get money when you were a gerl. All you had to ask for was a cent, and you could buy something swell with it. But now you need at least a nickle to do any good, and it genrelly takes a dime to buy what you feel like, I said.

There was another side to the picture, I assure you, ma said. A penny was quite an important article of money in those days. It was no easy matter for me to get a penny from my parents, so dont pity yourself too mutch. Anyway, dont forget there's a rule around here. You've got to werk for all the money you get over and above your allowance, she said, and I said, Okay, ma, I'll werk rite now. How about if I tell you funny stories and take your mind off your werk? I said.

No thanks, my mind belongs on my werk and that's where I prefer to keep it, ma said, and I said, But G, ma, it would make you feel like a queen with a court jester, and then you could throw me a dime like a prince in olden times throwing his perse.

Oh shaw, now you've made me get this seam crooked with your incessant chatter, ma said, and I said, Well that gives me another idea. The hardest werk for me to do is to keep quiet. So how about if I stand rite here for a half an hour without saying a werd while you keep your mind on your werk? It will probably make me feel exhausted, but I'll try it, so how about it, ma? I said.

Oh, you'll find a dime on my dresser, ma said.

Which I did, making me feel lucky.

Woman Keeps Night-Long Vigil To Lead Mourners

15,000 Lined Up at Hall To Await Opening of Doors

London, Feb. 13 — (AP) — The Duke of Windsor returned to England today to join in the national mourning for his brother, King George VI, whose subjects gathered in increasing numbers to pay tribute at ancient Westminster Hall.

"It is indeed a sad arrival," said the Duke, who arrived alone at Southampton from New York.

State Secretary Dean Acheson arrived by air from the United States to represent President Truman at the state funeral Friday. He will join six kings and the representatives of many heads of states in the rites at Windsor.

Despite snowflurries and 17-degree cold a line of mourners six abreast and two miles long formed at noon outside the doors of Westminster Hall, where the dead King lay in state a second day.

Business men and students, workers, women and children from Scotland, Wales and northern England, the Commonwealth and foreign countries were in line.

It extended up the banks of the Thames to Lambeth Bridge, across the bridge and down the Albert Embankment.

15,000 in Line

Officers of the Household Cavalry in shining breastplates and red-coated Gentlemen-at-Arms and Yeomen of the Guards wearing Tudor-dated uniforms stood at rigid attention by the catafalque.

At 8 a.m. (3 a.m. EST), when the hall doors opened, 15,000 were in line. They filed past silently at a rate of 5,000 an hour —1,000 more than yesterday. The line had grown to 40,000 by noon.

Queen Mary, grandmother of the Queen, will miss the funeral of her son.

The Dowager Queen "is perfectly well," said a member of her household, "but it should be remembered that she will be 85 this year and it is felt that she should avoid the strain and ordeal of the ceremony."

The Duke of Windsor went directly to her home at Marlborough House when he arrived in London.

First in the line today was a woman from Oxford. She was there before the doors closed behind the last of yesterday's pilgrims at 1.45 a.m., but, she said, "I wanted to see the coffin of my King in daylight."

The man behind her had hitchhiked 130 miles from Somerset. He didn't have the railroad fare, he said, but "I had to get here to pay my last respects to a great King."

A crippled Second World War veteran was the third. He said he had driven the 50 miles here from Brighton in his little motorized three-wheel invalid car. He hobbled in on crutches to pay last respects to the dead Monarch.

Hall Was Cold

The huge stone hall was cold. It was lit only by the grey daylight filtering through the windows high in the walls and six tall candles which threw a soft light on the closed, standard-draped coffin. The 10-man guard of honor stood still as waxwork figures around it.

Most of those who filed past the coffin bowed. None was in the hall more than two minutes, although many had waited five hours or more. Outside the line thickened to a stream.

When the doors shut early this morning, almost four hours after the scheduled 10 p. m. closing, 76,426 had filed past the coffin during the first day of public homage. They came from all parts of the British Isles, from the United States and from the colonies and dominions. They included scores of nationalities. The three days of pilgrimage concludes tomorrow night.

The dead King's family remained in seclusion yesterday but his daughter and successor, Queen Elizabeth II, granted her first official audience as sovereign last night to Prime Minister Winston Churchill, who paid his formal respects. In special messages to her armed forces over the world she described herself as the wife of a serving officer and promised to see to the "welfare and efficiency" of the forces.

Churchill Visits Queen Elizabeth At Palace

Accompanied by 20 members of the House of Commons, Churchill presented an address to the Queen and received a formal reply, court attaches said. The texts of their remarks were not announced.

The Queen, in deep mourning, drove from her residence in Clarence House to the great grey palace nearby with the Duke of Edinburgh, her consort.

Among others from parliament who participated in the brief ceremony were Clement Attlee, former prime minister, and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

The Duke of Edinburgh drove back to Clarence House half an hour after the audience with Churchill. He doffed his top hat to the crowd of some 300 at the gates. Most of them waved back.

Elizabeth and the Duke are to remain in residence at Clarence House for some months before moving to their official residence in Buckingham Palace.

Company Head Objects To Hidden Taxes

Winnipeg, Feb. 13 — (CP) Objection to "hidden" government taxes was raised yesterday by Rene Perrault of Montreal, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Perrault told a joint meeting of the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Club of Winnipeg that the average individual realizes less and less how much he is paying for benefits showered upon him.

By means of hidden taxes and payroll deductions the Canadian is contributing far more through taxation than ever before. In the first nine months of the fiscal year, the taxpayer has contributed to a federal government surplus of more than $700,000,000, greater than the total amount of cash required in 1939.

"If the government were to attempt to secure this amount of money without resorting to payroll deductions and hidden taxes the public outcry would be so great that no government would attempt to resist the pressure to reduce taxation," said Mr. Perrault.

Girls, Touched by Leap Year Spirit, Buying More Valentines Than Usual

(By The Canadian Press)

The girls, no doubt touched by the Leap Year spirit, are buying more Valentines than usual this year. But as in other years, candy and flower shops rely on men for most of their business.

Heaviest sales of Valentines in years, a Canadian Press survey showed today, are reported in almost every city. The fact that 1952 is Leap Year may have something to do with it, dealers averred.

Sentimental cards of the "lacy" type, and inexpensive, are most popular. One Toronto stationer, however, put a $5 card on the counter. He sold it, too.

Candy and flower shops, in which most business is done on St. Valentine Day itself, reported sales brisk. As in other years, many candy stores feature special packs for children.

The peddlers of Valentines in Halifax had an unexpected stroke of fortune when 7,000 United States sailors arrived in the city. It was the men's last port of call before St. Valentine Day.

St. John's, Nfld., reported a departure from the buying preferences of most other cities. There, instead of frilly, lovey-dovey cards, dealers found the best sellers were cards with chewing gum, candy or paper hats attached for the kids.

St. Valentine's Day has been celebrated, in some form or other, since Roman times when it was a pagan festival. It gradually became a day of feasting, of love and goodwill.

At least eight saints were called Valentine. Historians have settled on the one who was beheaded at Rome's Flaminium Gate Feb. 14, 270 A. D., during the reign of Claudius II, as the man most closely connected with the day.

It is believed his death coincided with the Roman pagan festival of Lupercalia, observed Feb. 15. The day, in honor of Pan and Juno, gave Roman youths a chancee to pick lots for their sweethearts of the coming year.

Legend holds that St. Valentine was a matchmaker who defied an emporer's decree against marriage by Roman soldiers and secretly heard the marriage vows of young lovers. While in prison, he wrote a letter to the jailer's daughter signing it, as young lovers do today, "From your Valentine."

DUKE OF WINDSOR TO WALK BEHIND QUEEN AT FUNERAL

Problems of Court Procedure Worked Out

London, Feb. 13. (Reuters)—The Duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII, will walk immediately behind Queen Elizabeth II in King George VI's funeral procession, taking his rightful place in the royal family for the first time in public since he abdicated 16 years ago.

The Duke, arriving at Southampton in the Liner Queen Mary today, will walk with the male members of the family—the Duke of Edinburgh, the Duke of Gloucester, his younger brother, and the young Duke of Kent.

The Duke's position in the cortege has been a delicate problem of precedence. Since his abdication, he has never been seen in a formal appearance with his mother, Queen Mary.

The problems of precedence, court procedure and tradition involved in Friday's state funeral are being tackled at night-and-day conferences here this week.

Calls For Careful Planning

With the exception of a coronation, a state funeral calls for more careful and elaborate planning than any other function of pageantry in modern Britain.

But the ceremonial organization of Friday's funeral has been made more intricate by the accession of Britain's first queen for half-a-century, changed times and disappearance of many monarchies.

Main burden of this week's arduous planning falls on one man —the Duke of Norfolk, premier Duke and Earl Marshal, who by virtue of his office is responsible for arrangements for all occasions of state.

National Period Of Mourning Will Last to May 31

Ottawa, Feb. 13 — (CP) Canada will observe the same period of official mourning as the United Kingdom—to Saturday, May 31—officials said yesterday.

They explained that Queen Elizabeth's decision that the London court go into mourning for that period applies as well to all of the courts of her realms, including Rideau Hall, the residence of Canada's Governor-General.

It means that the Canadian government will hold no social or state functions until June 1, when the court goes out of mourning It is expected the diplomatic corps will follow suit and not hold any formal social functions during that time.

The State Department announced today that Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, administrator in the absence of a governor-general, has received official advice from London as to the Queen's command for court mourning.

Socialists and Liberals Walk Out of Both Houses in Belgium Until After Funeral of King

Brussels, Belgium, Feb. 13 (Reuters)—Socialists and Liberals walked out of both Houses of the Belgian parliament today and said they will stay out until after King George VI's funeral because King Baudouin has refused to attend it.

They said the reason given to parliament for the 21-year-old King's refusal—that he has not yet made a state visit to the British court—is not valid, because King Leopold III himself attended the funeral of King George V before paying an official visit to London."

Two senators, socialist Henri Rollin and Liberal Madame Ciseret, told the Upper House of their parties' decision to stay away for this reason till after Friday

There was tension in the streets and cafes here today, after last night's House defeat of the administration over "the snub affair."

Lobby rumors said Premier Jean Van Houtte had seen the young King after his government's defeat and vainly tried to persuade him to reverse his decision.

Baudouin announced last weekend that his brother, Prince Albert, will attend the funeral instead of him.

Opponents claim Baudouin is acting on the instructions of his father, former King Leopold. They believe Leopold is snubbing the funeral because of British criticism of his capitulation to the nazis during the Second World War.

Truck Careens into Office Bank Manager Fatally Hurt

Ottawa, Feb. 1 (CP)—A heavy oil truck today crashed through the entrance of an Ottawa south bank today, fatally injuring its manager, E. J. Fitzgerald.

The 47-year-old Bank of Toronto manager was sitting at his office desk talking to a customer when the big oil truck crashed in, pinning him to the wall and reducing the entrance of building to a mass of rubble.

Mr. Fitzgerald died in hospital an hour later.

A customer, Charles S. Bennett, 82, of Ottawa, was seriously injured and was taken to hospital with a possible fractured leg and suffering from severe shock.

Driver of the truck, a British-American Oil Company tanker, was Wilfred Conlin, of Hull, Que. He said his vehicle went out of control as he started to pass a tow truck. The tanker went into a skid and plowed right through the entrance of the bank.

A child, Catherine Gibson, was knocked from her sled as the truck careened across the sidewalk and into the bank, located at Bank Street and Cameron Avenue. She escaped with only a bump on the head.

The truck driver said the tow truck suddenly swung into his path.

"I had no choice," he added. "I jammed on the brakes and headed straight for the bank.

"All I could see was that little baby sitting there on a sled, by the door. I prayed I wouldn't hit that child."

The truck nicked the child's sled, spilling her to the sidewalk.

Fred McCullough, a teller in the bank, said he was standing outside the manager's office.

"There was a terrible crash, and the wall fell in against me," he said.

Jack Murray, a clerk, was at the rear of the office at the time. He said:

"I looked up...and there was the truck sitting right in the middle of the office, the driver looking out at me."

Former Canadian Justice Minister Dies in Toronto

Toronto, Feb. 13—(CP)—Senator Sir Allen Bristol Aylesworth 97, former Canadian Minister of Justice, died today.

One of Canada's outstanding lawyers, he became Minister of Justice in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Liberal government in June, 1906. He retired from public life in 1911 when he did not stand for re-election to the Commons.

Sir Allen was appointed to the Senate in 1923 by Prime Minister Mackenzie King. His appointment came as a surprise as he had been out of public life for many years.

In 1906 he developed hearing trouble which led him to curtail his public activities and finally to retire from political life.

He had been in frail health recently and was in the news when King George died last week. He was probably the only Canadian to become a Queen's Counsel twice. He was first appointed a Queen's Counsel in 1889 under Queen Victoria and served during the reigns of Victoria, King Edward VII, King George V, King Edward VIII, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth II.

FORD WORKERS SET SUNDAY AS DEADLINE

Will Strike If Demands Not Met By That Time

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 13—(CP)—The United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) has set 10 p.m. Sunday as the deadline for a strike to enforce its contract demands upon the Ford Motor Company of Canada.

However, Labor Minister Daley of Ontario is in Windsor today for a renewed effort to bring about a settlement in the dispute. He took the unusual step of coming to the scene of a threatened strike.

George Burt, U.A.W. Canadian director, announced the deadline last night after a meeting of 200 stewards of the Union's Local 200. He said the decision was reached earlier in the day by the union's executive board and approved by a majority of the stewards.

"This time, we'll not go past the deadline," he said, in a reference to a walkout scheduled for Jan. 27 and cancelled after Mr. Daley persuaded company and union leaders to embark on a new series of talks. These talks ended Monday in Toronto.

Mr. Burt said the union has accepted Mr. Daley's invitation to meet with company officials here. He said he hopes Ford president Rhys Sale will attend "to avert an action which cannot help but affect a large proportion of the citizens of Windsor."

Crown Company To Control Project At Chalk River

Ottawa, Feb. 13—(CP)—The government today announced the setting up of a Crown Company to take over control of Canada's atomic energy project at Chalk River, Ont., from the National Research Council.

The new company, to be known as "Atomic Energy of Canada Limited," will be headed by Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, president of the Atomic Energy Control Board and president of the National Research Council.

Dr. Mackenzie will be relieved of his duties as president of the N. R. C. and replaced by Dr. E. W. R. Steacie, vice-president of the council, effective April 1.

The announcement, made by Prime Minister St. Laurent, said expansion of the Chalk River plant, with the addition of a second and much larger atomic pile, made the change in administration desirable, "In order that a well-integrated and experienced management will be working smoothly by the time the new pile comes into actual operation."

The N. R. C. has been operating the plant as an agent for the Atomic Energy Control Board.

The announcement said the administrative change will be "maximum industrial efficiency with no loss of parliamentary control."

Hit on Head by Tree Sidney Farmer Dies in Hospital

L.J. Ketcheson, 59, Cutting Logs in Bush Lot at Time

Well known Sidney township farmer Lawrence J. (Larry) Ketcheson, 59, of Wallbridge, suffered fatal injuries late Tuesday afternoon, when he was struck by a falling limb while working in the woods on his 5th concession farm.

Mr. Ketcheson was rushed to Belleville General Hospital but he died a short time after being admitted. He never regained consciousness after being struck on the head with the limb.

With three other men Mr. Ketcheson was engaged in cutting logs when as a tree fell a heavy limb torn from another tree dropped onto him. He was brought to the house by fellow workers and was taken to hospital by Bush's Ambulance.

Born on Homestead

Mr. Ketcheson was born on the homestead, son of Col. Wm. G. Ketcheson and Mrs. Ketcheson and had lived all his life on the farm. He was a member of Wallbridge United Church and of the board of elders. He was also a member of L.O.L. No. 2386 Wallbridge, and Franck Lodge A.F. & A.M. No. 127 of Frankford.

He took an active interest in agricultural activities and was director of the Foxboro Co-Operative; was president of Sidney Town Hall Cheese Company, and was president of South Hastings Film Council.

Surviving besides his parents and his wife, the former Nieta Read, are one daughter, Miss Jane Elizabeth Ketcheson, St. Thomas, and three sons, John William, member of the teaching staff at O.A.C., Guelph; Douglas Read, and Griffin MacDonald, both at home.

There is one brother, George Milton Ketcheson of Saskatoon. A sister, Hettie Ketcheson Vanderwater, predeceased him some years ago.

Simple Device Will Keep Cars From Skidding

Los Angeles, Feb. 13 — (AP)—A Los Angeles inventor today described a simple device which he says will keep automobiles from skidding on slippery roads.

Dr. William Ross calls it the gyro-skid control. The device, weighing 45 pounds, is placed on the cross rear member of a car frame, parallel with the axle.

It consists of a steel tube 36 inches long and three inches in diameter. Inside it is a 35-pound sliding weight, free to slide back and forth laterally on ball bearings.

"It acts as a counter-centrifugal force," Dr. Doss explained. "Since skidding is a result of the lateral displacement of weight the counter - centrifugal action of this device, replacing that weight, prevents skidding."

16 DAYS OF FASTNG

Birmingham, Feb. 13—(AP)—The Rev. M. J. Rockett is 16 days along on a projected 21-day fast "for the glory of the Lord". He has taken only water and fruit juices since Jan. 28, and has lost 20 pounds, now weighing 170. The Methodist minister says his fast will prove "my faith in the Lord and that he will fill all our needs."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 13 (CP)—Synopsis: In the wake of an intense storm centred over the Maritime Provinces this morning, brisk northerly winds over Ontario have drawn cold air from northern sections to the lower lakes regions. Temperatures dropped to near zero in southern Ontario during the night and were 25 to 35 below zero for the second successive night in northern Ontario.

The cold spell will continue on Thursday with generally sunny skies over the province. The storm over the central United States that has expected to bring rain to southern Ontario today now appears likely to remain far enough south of the province on Thursday that only in the Lake Erie regions is some light snow expected.

Great Lakes Shipping Should Get Early Start

Cleveland, Feb. 13 — (AP) — There isn't enough ice in Lake Erie and Lake Ontario to put in a cocktail shaker, weatherman C. George Andrus said today.

So if — and it's a big if — the weather remains the same as now, Great Lakes shipping should be able to get off to an early start next spring, he said.

"Based on what we know today, everything points to an early opening of navigation," Andrus continued. "However, we do not like to make predictions about lake ice until around March 1."

Here are some current ice thicknesses in Great Lakes harbors to the north as listed by Andrus — Escanaba, 15 inches; Alpena, four inches; Soo, eight inches; Green Bay, 16 inches; Marquette on Lake Superior, only floating ice.

United Nations Health Experts Trace Alcoholic Cause to Congenital Defect

Geneva, Feb. 13—(AP) — The basic cause of alcoholism is congenital, according to the United Nations World Health Organization.

A seven-country committee of W. H. O. experts on alcoholism found that only those "excessive drinkers" become alcoholics who are born with a "constitutional liability" to alcohol addiction.

The committee defined alcoholics as "excessive drinkers whose dependence upon alcohol has attained such a degree that it shows a noticeable mental disturbance or an interference with their bodily and mental health, their inter-personal relations and their smooth social and economic functioning."

The experts said the precise nature of the congenital factor in alcoholism had not yet been definitely established, but it was believed to be "a slight deficiency of carbohydrate metabolism, of the enzyme system or of certain endocrine relations."

The belief this deficiency is congenital is based on the fact that "many drinkers who drink as much as the addict, over periods of 25 years or more, never come to the stage of loss of control."

Persons afflicted with a congenital liability to alcoholism become alcohol addicts, the experts said, if they seek to correct a neurotic condition or "personality inadequacy" by drinking. After a few years of increasing intoxication, such persons reach a point where they lose control of their alcohol consumption and eventually become chronic cases. The experts estimated the duration of this process to average 15 years.

A cure is possible, the experts said, with the help of drugs making alcohol abhorrent to the patient, as well as of voluntary organizations such as Alcoholics Anonymous. Once cured, an alcoholic must maintain total abstinence for the rest of his life.

The best way to treat alcoholics is in special out-patient clinics attached to general hospitals, the experts said.

Fire Destroys Home, Contents At Hillcrest

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Akey of Hillcrest and their two small children lost their home and everything they possessed Tuesday night when fire swept through their small combination trailer dwelling. The home was badly gutted with all household furnishings destroyed.

The parents and their two children were away visiting at a neighbor's house close by when the fire broke out, presumably from an over-heated stove.

The blaze swept through the small trailer home in a matter of minutes and by the time the alarm was raised and firemen arrived on the scene, little could be done to save the structure. Firemen answered the alarm with two fire trucks. The home was situated in the northeast part of Hillcrest north of the city limits.

No insurance was carried by the family on their household possessions.

To make the matter more difficult for the family the father has been out of work for some time. The family consists of a five-year old boy and a girl about three. For the time being they are staying with a family in Irishtown just outside the city limits in Sidney township.

Demonstrations Given by Members Of Scout Troop

"One of the finest jobs in the Kiwanis service is the support of Boy Scout troops. Their training and ideals are parallels of Kiwanis." So said Kiwanian Don Allen in giving his fellow members an insight into the inner workings of the 4th Kiwanis troop of Belleville at a luncheon held in the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday.

Mr. Allen presented several members of the troop including Robert Langlois, Arthur Sutton, Richard Moore, Robert Bateman and Stephen Schwab, who demonstrated some of the features of their training. A court of honor meeting, practical first aid, signalling, and life-saving through artificial respiration were shown.

It was explained that the boys face their own problems and the Scoutmaster is invited to listen but to offer his opinion only when requested, at a court of honor meeting.

Leadership Needed

"One support which is needed greatly is leadership" stated the speaker, "as one-third of the youths training is instruction and two-thirds is by self education. We need men whose heart and soul will be in the work."

Mr. Allen closed his remarks by repeating the Boy Scout pledge which says "On my honor I promise that I will do my best, to do my duty to God and to the Queen, to help other people at all times and to obey the Scout law."

Mr. Allen was introduced by Harold Bateman and thanked by president Harold Carruthers.

Other guests and visiting Kiwanians included Earl Bullis, Ottawa, Stanley Goodwin, Jerry Cousins and Bob Brearley of Belleville.

Dr. Harold Craig announced that Inter-Club meetings were being held in Trenton on Thursday and in Madoc on Friday night. Anyone wishing transportation was advised to contact him.

The attendance prize, donated by Ken Atwell, was won by Rev. S E. Larman.

Obituary

MRS. KATHLEEN (Duke) O'FLYNN

Mrs. Kathleen O'Flynn, widow of F. W. O'Flynn, one time of Madoc, died at Whitby on Saturday last. She was a daughter of the late Rev. Richard and Mrs. Duke. Her father was a well known minister in the United Church in the Bay of Quinte Conference some years ago.

Surviving her is one brother, Rowland Duke of Seattle, Wash.

The funeral service was conducted in the chapel at the Gilbert Funeral Home, Picton, on Tuesday and entombment took place at Glenwood Cemetery.

DR. DAVID R. BENSON
(Picton)

Dr. David R. Benson, veterinary surgeon in this city for many years and now resident of Picton died suddenly of a heart attack at his home in Picton on Monday evening. He was found dead in his trailer home, which is located near the fair grounds.

The late Dr. Benson was born in Prince Edward County 84 years ago and from his earliest childhood took a great interest in horses. He studied at the Toronto Veterinary College in Toronto and after his graduation came back to Prince Edward County and practised in the County and Belleville for many years.

While in Belleville he followed the harness horse circuit and raced some of the best in this district during that time. When he came to this city he owned a horse called Ben Dare and after that came Dream Life, Lecco Grattan, K. L. Lambert and Mildred Harvester. The last named was one of the best young trotters in this district and won one of the heats of the Trotting Futurity in Toronto. He was an excellent caretaker and an expert reinsman.

The funeral will be held from the Gilbert Funeral Home in Picton on Thursday.

ALEXANDER CRAWFORD
(Tyendinaga Twp.)

After being around his farm in his usual good health all day, Alexander Crawford, 8th concession of Tyendinaga township, near Roslin, died in his sleep from a heart attack, late Tuesday evening. He was born in the township in which he died and was a well known and highly respected resident of his community. He was born 71 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crawford.

He was a member of the Roslin United Church and surviving are his wife, the former Isabella Coulter, two daughters, Mrs. Percy (Hazel) Vance of Roslin; Mrs. Laurtson (Myrtle) Kennedy of Thomasburg; one sister, Mrs. Earl Morgan of Foxboro; three brothers, William of Manitoba; Robert of Saskatchewan; Wesley of Belleville and three grandchildren.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

PERCY GIBSON
(Oshawa)

Stricken with a heart attack, Percy Gibson of Oshawa, and formerly of Rawdon township, died suddenly on Tuesday evening in the Motor City. He was born in Rawdon township 44 years ago, being the son of the late William Gibson and Mary Pollock and for many years resided in Rawdon, where he operated a bread route. He was well known and highly respected in that community. He moved to Oshawa about ten years ago.

He was a member of the United Church and surviving are his wife, the former Annie Murray. two daughters, Misses Ileen and Barbara at home; one brother Melville of Menie, and three sisters, Mrs. Alvin (Annie) Sauer of Buffalo, N.Y.; Mrs. J. F. (Bertha) Humphries of Calgary, Alta., and Mrs. Ruth Thompson of Campbellford. Four brothers, William, Frederick, George and James predeceased him.

The funeral will be held in Oshawa with interment at Stirling.

MRS. SAMUEL COLLINS
(Oshawa)

Seriously ill for six weeks, Jenny Belle Ryckman, beloved husband of Samuel Collins, passed away in the Oshawa General Hospital on Sunday, February 10, in her 58th year.

Born in Prince Edward County on October 10, 1894, the deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Angus Ryckman. She was married at Bloomfield on August 10, 1911 and came to Oshawa from Belleville 23 years ago. Mrs. Collins attended Simcoe Street United Church.

Besides her husband she is survived by five daughters, Mrs. G. Coulter (Pearl), Mrs. F. O'Connor, (Marion), Mrs. W. Fry (Winnifred) Mrs. D. McMullen (May) and Mrs. E. Cowle (Elva), all of Oshawa and three sons, Harold of Kingston and Ray and Ross of Oshawa.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Blanche Alexander of Kingston, and Mrs. Bernard Morris of Picton; a brother Ashton Ryckman of Kingston and 19 grandchildren.

Rev. J. K. Moffat, minister of Simcoe Street United Church, conducted the funeral service at the Armstrong Funeral Home on Wednesday, Feb. 13th., interment was in the Oshawa Union Cemetery.

C.A. Bateman Sells Garage Property to Principal Investments of Toronto

A real estate deal of considerable interest to Belleville and district residents has been announced today by Mr. C. A. Bateman, president and sole owner of Bateman Motors Limited, to the effect that Principal Investments of Toronto, Canada's largest landlord, has purchased his property at 315 Pinnacle Street.

It is believed the property is to be completely remodelled and made into a large A & P Supermarket, with parking facilities for approximately 100 customers cars. Remodelling is to start in the very near future.

While no mention has been made regarding the price paid for his property, it was understood it was such an attractive price, Mr. Bateman, felt he could not afford to turn down the offer.

At the present time, Mr. Bateman is very indefinite as to his future plans but it is understood both the Ontario and Canadian sales manager of the Dodge-DeSoto Division of the Chrysler Corporation, are very anxious to have him continue as their dealer for Belleville and district if they can persuade him to obtain some other suitable location.

At the present time, Mr. Bateman is very noncommittal in this connection, however, he did state he has a large stock of new and used cars on hand and consequently will be in the automobile business at least until his present stock has been sold.

Worker Slips Into Tub of Hot Grain Slop and Badly Scalded

Accidentally slipping into a large tub of hot grain slop while working at the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company plant at Corbyville, Harvey Putman, 25, of Corbyville, was seriously scalded Tuesday night. He is in serious condition in Belleville General Hospital.

An employee on the night shift at the plant, Putman was working in what is known as the "dry room" when in some manner he slipped and fell into the large vat of hot slop from which the alcohol and grain had been taken. There was about three feet of slop in the vat.

Dr. J. Russell Scott who attended the man at the hospital said he was seriously scalded from the waist down.

A fellow worker, Kenneth Reid of Corbyville, was in the same section of the building when Putman fell into the vat but as he turned to obtain a ladder, Putman was able to climb out himself.

Putman operates a farm on the 3rd concession of Thurlow township, but had taken a job at Corbyville for the winter. He had been working for about three months. He is a married man with two small children.

LATE DR. ROY M. SARLES

The funeral of Dr. Roy M. Sarles was held from his home in Wellington to St. Andrew's Anglican Church for service on Tuesday afternoon Rev. C. P. Heaven conducted the service and also the committal service at Frankford Cemetery vault.

MRS. ANNIE FRANCES HOPKINGS

Trenton (Special) — Funeral services were conducted at Weaver's funeral home Tuesday afternoon for Annie Frances Hopkings, who died in the Kingston General Hospital, February 9th. Rev. G. A. Puttenham of Grace United Church officiated. Interment was in Belleville cemetery.

Born in England, Mrs. Hopkings moved to Trenton 45 years ago. She married Alfred Henry Hopkings, who survives.

In poor health for the last year, she was unable to take part in the activities of Grace United Church or the women's association of the church.

Also surviving are: two daughters, Mrs. Grant Ashley of Belleville and Olive Hopkings, at home; one son, Alfred Hopkings, jr., of Trenton; three grandchildren, one great grandchild, and one sister, Mrs. E. Bartholomew of London, England.

Pallbearers were: Frank Sandercock, Ernest Curtis, Cliff Archer, Glen Meyers, Lorne Mallory and Donald Denton.

MRS. ARTHUR BELL
(Wooler)

Wooler—Mrs. Arthur Bell, the former Grace Wilson, passed away in the Belleville General Hospital Thursday night at the age of sixty-six. She had been in failing health for several weeks but only a patient in the Belleville hospital four days. Mrs. Bell was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alex Wilson and had lived her entire life in this village where she was well and favorably known. She is survived by her husband, her parents and brother Edgar having predeceased her several years ago.

The funeral was held at the McNair Funeral Home, Trenton, Monday afternoon with Rev. W. G. Fletcher, the officiating clergyman.

Burial took place in the Friends' cemetery, Wooler.

The bearers were Charlie Jarvis, John Goodfellow, Charlie Sharpe, Herb Smith, Lloyd Bell and Jim Manners.

LATE MRS. JOHN QUINN
(Campbellford)

The Rev. Father J. C. Moloney of St. Mary's R. C. Church of Campbellford conducted funeral services for the late Winnifred Alice Gurry, wife of John Quinn of Seymour Township near Campbellford on Monday morning.

Mrs. Quinn was born in Campbellford. Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Mark Gurry of this town. She lived in the district all her life and died at the age of 42 after a lengthy illness.

Surviving are her husband, John Quinn, one son John, age 18 who lives at home; one brother, Gerald Gurry of Toronto and a sister, Helen, address unknown.

Mrs. Quinn was a member of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Campbellford.

The bearers were Messrs. Leo Doherty, Ernie Auger, Fred Longmuir, Ward Archer, Garnet Curle and Charles Sullivan.

Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Says Lower Tax Rates Needed in Canada

Toronto, Feb. 13 (CP)—E. G. Burton, President of the Robert Simpson Co., Ltd., said yesterday that lower income tax rates in the upper brackets would encourage Canadians to set up their own businesses and own more of Canada's natural resources. "We have gone too far in making income tax progressive..."

Two Memorial Services Will Be Held in City

Two public memorial services for the late King George VI will be held in Belleville on Friday, Feb. 15th., at 11 a.m., under the auspices of the Ministerial Association of this city. In order that everyone may have the opportunity of paying their last respects to the late King, one service is being held for the citizens on the west side, and one for the east section, Christ Church and Bridge Street United have been selected.

The mayor and members of the city council have received special invitations to attend the services, so that there will be civic representation at both services. In addition there will be representation from the Scout and Guide organizations, and other groups. In view of the nature of this service, the Ministerial Association extends an invitation to all public bodies desiring to participate. Churches of the city are participating unitedly.

At Christ Church, Archdeacon Arthur Smith will given an address, and at Bridge Street, Rev. J. G. Hornsby will be the speaker.

S. L. JOSS

S. L. Joss, president and general manager, The Belleville Cheddar Cheese Limited, announces the purchase of the assets of the "Old Cave" cheese plant at Tweed, Ont., formerly operated by Oshawa Dairy Limited. The Old Cave division will be continued at its present location and will add another high quality product to the well-known Black Diamond Brand cheese produced at the Belleville plant.

E.A. Collins Never Forgot His Home Town

A native of Smithfield, Ont., and well-known in this district, Everett A. Collins, died at the Copper Cliff Hospital, on February 6th. He was in his 74th year.

Mr. Collins was a former assistant to the president, and general manager of the International Nickel Company, Ltd., and mayor of the town of Copper Cliff for 16 years. He was buried in Smithfield cemetery on Saturday, Feb. 9th., following funeral services held at his home at 477 Ramsay road, Sudbury.

Born in Smithfield, he received his early education in Brighton, later graduating from Queen's University with the degree of Bachelor of Science. Following a brief association with the old Central Ontario Railway, Mr. Collins joined the Canadian Copper Company and went from there to International Nickel at Copper Cliff where he rose rapidly to the position of general manager.

He was a member of the Board of Governors of Queen's University and at one time was a member of the Board of Governors of Albert College.

Mr. Collins never forgot his home town. He financed the cost of construction of the manse of the church and offered to finance the cost of a modern public school there.

Interested in sport from early boyhood, Mr. Collins was an ardent golfer. He donated $500, with the promise of more, to the building of a baseball diamond on a film plant property in Trenton which had been turned over to an athletic organization as a sports centre. The site was later given by the town to an industry.

He also donated a handsome trophy to the former Trenton and District Hockey League, then composed of 13 teams, for the "most gentlemanly player." This was won and is held by Norman Johnson, a foreman of the Trenton Courier Advocate for a number of years.

Mr. Collins was a brother of the late George Collins, at one time a CNR divisional superintendent at Belleville.

Surviving are his widow, the former Beatrice M. Jacques, a son George E. Collins, Sudbury; two sisters, Mrs. Ernest Ireland, Smithfield, Mrs. B. R. Orser, Edmonton, Alberta; and two brothers, Walter J. Collins, Montreal and O. D. Collins, Santa Monica, California.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 13 (CP) —Industrial and base metal prices dipped sharply today in early afternoon stock market dealings. Golds showed little change but western oils weakened steadily.

A broad list of western oils, base metals and penny golds attracted speculative interest. Industrial dealings spread slowly from leading issues. Volume for the first three hours was 1,783,000 shares.

Papers and banks led industrials lower while utilities, liquors, and refining oils weakened steadily. Manufacturing companies, however, drew firm support while retail stores edged upward.

Base metal leaders dipped. Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge, Hudson Bay, Labrador, New Calumet, Noranda, Steep Rock and Waite Amulet posted declines ranging to more than $1.

Western oil losses ranged from pennies to about 50 cents. Canada Southern, Home Oil, Royalite, Western Leaseholds and New British Dominions were among the losers.

Senior golds were mixed. Giant Yellowknife and Malartic edged upward but Hollinger eased. Secondary issues made little headway in active trading.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Feb. 13—(CP)—Trade continued dull at the Ontario stockyards today with prices generally unchanged. Receipts: cattle 70; calves 20; hogs 270; sheep and lambs 20. The leftover from Tuesday was 500 cattle.

Medium to good weighty steers sold at $26-$28 with choice steers for export at $29-$30. Common to medium steers and heifers were from $18-$26 with a few good heifers bringing $27.50. Medium to good cows made $17-$20 with a few western cows upward to $22. Medium to good fed yearlings sold at $25-$29 with a few choice upward to $31.

Calves sold steady at $33-$35 for choice vealers and from $25-$32 for common to medium.

Hogs were $26 for grade A with sows $20 dressed.

A few cull lambs brought from $10-$25.50.

'This is Indeed A Sad Arrival' Says Brother

Southampton, England, Feb. 13 —(AP)—The Duke of Windsor arrived home today for the funeral of King George VI, his brother to whom he relinquished his throne.

"This is indeed a sad arrival," said the duke. "I have crossed the Atlantic for the funeral of a dear brother and to comfort Her Majesty Queen Mary, my mother, in the overwhelming sorrow which has overtaken my family and the commonwealth of British nations."

The duke arrived alone. His American wife, for whom he gave up England's throne, remained in the United States.

The duke, King Edward VIII until he abdicated in 1936, said in a statement to reporters:

"Ever since our childhood the late King and I have been close. We knew each other well. The outstanding qualities of kingship he possessed made easier for me the passing on of the uninterrupted succession to the throne.

"And my brother drew strength in his heavy responsibilities from what I once described as 'a matchless blessing'—a happy home with his wife and children.

"So as we mourn a much-beloved Monarch our hearts go out to the widowed Queen Mother and her two daughters in their grief.

"The eldest, Elizabeth, has by God's will been called upon to succeed her father. His well-known attributes will, I am sure, descend to her . . .

"Youth and courage are great assets in these precarious times in which Elizabeth II begins her reign. And at the outset she has the help and support of her husband Philip and the loyalty and good wishes of all her peoples.

"God save the Queen."

The duke, Lord Dudley and his private secretary left Southampton by car for London. He planned to go directly to Marlborough House, home of his mother, where he will stay during his London visit.

Windsor is one of the four dukes who will walk immediately behind the Queen's carriage in the funeral procession Friday.

Engineering Institute Hears Address on South Africa, Land of Big Mineral Deposits

The history of South Africa, its mineral and other resources were outlined to members of the Belleville branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada at its monthly meeting Monday evening at the Masonic Temple. The speaker was J. J. Trainer, staff member of the Stephens Adamson Mfg. Company, who spent 13 years in the country.

E. G. Gurnett presided over the meeting. The speaker was introduced by A. D. Janitsch.

Mr. Trainer opened his remarks by noting that in the beginning all that was known of South Africa was Capetown which was a port of call for the Dutch East India ships en route to the Far East. In 1652 the Dutch East India Company set up a colony which has now grown to a country of 2,500,000 whites and 13,000,000 natives.

It was pointed out that South Africa has the following minerals: — gold, silver, platinum, diamonds, iron, coal, titanium, uranium, copper, manganese, chrome, asbestos, gypsum and many others. The following industrial needs are also present: — citrus fruits, grapes, apples, cattle, sheep, whaling, tobacco, shark oil, leather, hard timbers, ivory, rubber and mica.

Mr. Trainer then outlined briefly the details of the main industries in South Africa.

Big Gold Mines

Gold is found in the huge Rand mines which run from the Springs in the east to Randfontein in the west, about 120 miles of mine shafts, mine dumps and the huge reduction works. The outcrop of the Witwatersand gold mines was discovered by a G. Walker in 1886 and the town of Johannesburg sprung from these few mining shanties. South Africa boasts the largest crushing unit and the biggest collection of mines anywhere in the world. The gold, however, is invisible in the quartz and can only be extracted by crushing the reef to a powder and adding chemicals to loosen the gold.

Diamonds are the result of extremely high heat and are usually found at the foot of an extinct volcano. The "Hole" at Kimberly in South Africa has the reputation of being the biggest man-made hole in the world, and no one has managed to throw a stone clear into the water hundreds of feet below. In South-west Africa there is a large deposit of diamonds on the sea shore and the diamonds are there for the picking. This area is marked off and guarded by police and police dogs. In 1948 exports of diamonds amounted to $48,000.00. Mr. Trainer then briefly described the process of mining and cutting the diamonds, which is a highly skilled trade. Diamond cutting used to be done exclusively in Holland and Belgium, but since the war it has been done in South Africa.

Has Much Coal

Mr. Trainer stated that South Africa has huge supplies of coal amounting to 15,000,000 tons per year. The coal is not rich but sells at $3 per ton. Huge quantities of iron ore are also present and these mines are fully mechanized.

Sugar, which requires a damp, hot, sub-tropical atmosphere, is produced in Natal. The process of sugar making is simply crushing the cane which is boiled until it is white sugar.

The speaker then spoke of the whaling industry in Durban. Whale catching is confined to the period between November and March when the whaling fleets of Great Britain, Norway and South Africa assemble at Capetown. There are many types of whales, blue, sperm and killer. The blue whale has a large square head containing 10 barrels of oil to withstand the shock of impact when it rams the squids which cling to the rocks on the bottom of the ocean. The control of whaling is under international law and it is hoped that this will serve to prevent extinction of the world's largest mammal.

Mr. Trainer also outlined the gypsum, copper and cement industries of South Africa.

Government Helps

The government of South Africa has done much to further the growth of industry. The Industrial Development Corp. founded in 1940 by the government is to assist industry's such as wool, textiles, foodstuffs, timber, etc. Most of the labor is native males and the corporation has done much to improve his efficiency with better living conditions. A special industrial research council has also been set up in conjunction with the South African Bureau of Standards to guarantee the quality of all goods.

Mr. Trainer closed his remarks by noting that in 1946-47, the gross value of manufacturing output in the Union was $1476 million against $800 million ten years ago. It, therefore, appears that industrial development will make the greatest contribution to the problems of the young country based on its enormous mineral wealth, not only in gold but in coal, iron and other base metals.

Politicians See Truman Following Roosevelt Pattern

Washington, Feb. 13—(AP)—Politicians said privately today that President Truman may be following a pattern used by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt in seeking another White House term.

Democratic Representative Adolph Sabath of Illinois, dean of Congress in service, came out of the White House yesterday saying the president told him he might take another term if it would serve world peace.

So far Truman has had nothing to say directly about seeking re-election, but a series of White House callers have produced widely varying reports.

Politicians recalled that other White House callers gave similar reports after talking to the late President Roosevelt just before he accepted nominations for third and fourth terms.

The Sabath report got speedy circulation among members of Congress and political leaders anxious to pierce the Truman mystery.

Senator Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, who served as Truman's secretary of agriculture before entering the senate, said the report confirms his belief that the president will run again.

"I think this checks with what I've said previously that the Democrats would insist upon his renomination and he will not be deaf to their pleas," Anderson told a reporter.

Senator John Sparkman (Dem. Ala.), a southerner who has helped put parts of the Truman program through Congress, said "maybe it sounds crazy for me to say so, but I still don't think he is a candidate."

Prize Winners Of Study Course Are Announced

Prize winners of the National Temperance study course in Sunday Schools for 1951, held in the counties of Hastings, Lennox-Addington and Prince Edward, have been announced.

The course, conducted by the Women's Christian Temperance Union covered five Sundays in October and November with carefully prepared lessons printed in Sunday School papers and in pamphlet form.

Papers were adjudged in four different divisions, juvenile, under 10 years of age, junior, 10 to 12, intermediate, 12 to 15, and senior, 15 to 18 years of age.

Those receiving highest marks in each division will be awarded prizes by their local unions and the county at the convention held in May, 1952.

The four best papers will be sent to compete for provincial and national honors.

Pupils making 50 to 64 marks on the paper will receive a pass certificate and those obtaining a higher mark will be entitled to an honor certificate.

Winners in each classification are listed below, after which will be their age, residence and mark on the paper.

Juvenile: Yvonne Lowery, 9, Napanee, 100; Betty Sager, 8, Queensboro, 100; Isabelle Sager 9, Queensboro, 100; Roger McConkey, 9, Consecon, 100.

Junior: Barbara Dick, 11, Wellington, 98; Barbara MacDonald, 11, Wellington, 95; Grant Ketcheson, 11, Hazzards, 95; Glenda King 10, Newburgh, 94.

Intermediate: Annetta Snook, 14, Napanee, 98; Joyce Dick, 13, Wellington, 96; Ted Burnside, 14, Hazzards, 92; Marion Wager, 12, Newburgh, 90.

Floral Tributes For Royal Rites Total 100,000

London, Feb. 13—(AP)—Florists disclosed today that one of the most elaborate of an estimated 100,000 floral tributes ordered for Friday's funeral of the King has come from Egypt's King Farouk, whose country is involved in a bitter quarrel with Britain.

The wreath includes hundreds of curled laurel leaves—it took two women 12 hours to curl them —and white lilies. The white silk ribbon attached is inscribed "King Farouk of Egypt and the Sudan."

Other figures embroiled in controversy with the late King's government also sent wreaths. Florists, swamped with work, hired hundreds of extra workers.

Among those who ordered wreaths was Egyptian Prime Minister Aly Maher Pasha, appointed by Farouk to quiet Egyption riots which marked the country's dispute with Britain.

Another was Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh and his Iranian government, who still are in dispute with Britain over the British oil properties Iran nationalized last spring.

The King and Queen of Sweden sent a laurel wreath with a blue and yellow crepe band, decorated with the Swedish royal monogram. The Swedish navy ordered a six-foot floral anchor bound in golden crepe.

Three plane loads of flowers were flown in by the French Riviera resort cities of Nice, Antibes and Cannes to decorate St. George's Chapel at Windsor Castle, where the King will be buried. White lilacs were flown from The Netherlands and plane loads of minosa from southern France.

Long Arm of Coincidence Nips Cattle Rustling Scheme in Bud

A chance visit by a Hungerford township farmer to the Belleville Livestock Sales weekly auction last night nipped a cattle rustling scheme in the bud and landed four alleged rustlers in jail.

Names of the four men apprehended were not divulged by provincial police with Cpl. Jack Hatch of Madoc declining to give their names until after they were charged.

Leo Fleming, Hungerford township farmer, chanced to visit the Belleville Livestock auction and rubbed his eyes in disbelief when he saw a yearling heifer being sold in the ring which he thought was at home in his own barn.

He drove directly home and was dismayed to find that not one, but six yearlings, were missing from his barn. He notified police who, after investigation, apprehended the four alleged cattle rustlers at their homes at an early hour this morning.

According to police Fleming had been keeping the yearlings in a barn on a vacant farm away from where he lived. The cattle were in the barn at feeding time late Tuesday afternoon.

It is believed by police that the six yearlings were loaded into a truck some time soon after dark and were trucked to Belleville with the intention of selling them at the auction sale.

TERM EXTENDED 10 YEARS

Ottawa, Feb. 1 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent announced yesterday that the term of A. D. Dunton, 39, chairman of the CBC Board of Governors, has been extended for 10 years from Feb. 1. until an amendment was made to the Canadian Broadcasting Act at the last session, the CBC chairman was reappointed for three-year terms.

County Court Building Offices Will Close Friday

All offices in the county court buildings will be closed on Friday the day of the funeral for the late King George VI, it was learned today. The directive for the closing of the offices came from the Attorney General's Department today.

Yesterday prior to the opening of county court before His Honor Judge J. C. Anderson a moment's silence was observed in tribute to the late Monarch. Special mourning robe is being worn by the judge while lawyers will wear white cuffs during the period of court mourning.

All court officials swore the oath of allegiance to Queen Elizabeth II before B. C. Donnan, as clerk of the peace.

NO MAIL DELIVERIES ON DAY OF MOURNING

Normal mail deliveries will be suspended on the day of national mourning for the King next Friday, a post office department spokesman said yesterday. For postal employees across the country, the routine will be the same as on Sunday.

WHY PRODUCTION LAGS

The Sunday Post, a Scottish weekly newspaper devoted to the British Labor party, has just finished an investigation into how Britain's industrial output can be increased.

"Last week," says the Sunday Post, "we invited workers in all industries to tell us how output can be increased. Hundreds of letters came in from miners, engineers, steelworkers, shipyard workers, builders, railwaymen, and factory workers. And running right through the letters is one strong keynote. The thing above all others that drags down production is — income tax."

At one plant, employing eight thousand men, more than sixty per cent of the workers flatly refuse to work overtime, because the tax collector takes so large a part of the extra earnings.

One of the largest engineering plants in Scotland has admitted failure to increase production. The workmen (apparently they are on piecework) have calculated to a decimal point how they can get the maximum amount of money with the minimum amount of production and have geared their efforts accordingly.

Many plants work a five-day week. Efforts to induce the employees in these establishments to work the sixth day have proved almost uniformly unsuccessful, because, it was discovered, all were already working on the sixth day for people who paid in cash and deducted no income tax.

It was discovered that absenteeism was worst among single men and women and married men without children. Why? These people are the hardest hit by income taxes. Instead of working six days a week, or even five, a good many of this group, the Sunday Post discovered, had some secondary occupation or money-making activity which escaped the tax-collector's scrutiny. Others, who had no such second string to their bow, merely loafed.

Among railroad workers, who are often forced to work on Sundays through unforeseen circumstances, the practice is to take a day or two off later in the week, to avoid the heavier tax involved by extra earnings. Overtime is dealt with in the same manner.

Operators of coal mines told the Sunday Post that the chief reason the British Labor government did not get the response it needed and expected from the coal miners was because of its failure to deal with the same problem.

In order to meet its obligations, including its defence program, the British government must levy fairly high taxes. But if the country's economy is going to function efficiently, production must not only be maintained at present levels, but must be sharply increased.

Whether the Conservative government headed by Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill will be able to succeed where the Laborites failed remains to be seen, but, as the Sunday Post says in concluding its article: "One thing is clear. If individual output is to be raised, the problem of income tax that discourages effort will have to be tackled by one method or another."

STILL MORE UNEMPLOYED

Between mid-December and mid-January, unemployment in Canada increased by 85,000 to a total of 337,000, it was announced in Ottawa last Thursday. The total is 55,000 greater than at the corresponding date a year ago.

Toronto is among the centres of population where the situation is the most serious; the Queen City has 30,556 registered unemployed. Registered unemployed, of course, means only those who are registered at the offices of the National Employment Service.

The situation in Belleville is not very good, either. As of last Thursday, there were 989 unemployed who were registered at the office of the National Employment Service which serves this city and its environs. Last year at this time, Belleville had about 200 fewer unemployed.

Who is responsible for this situation and what, if anything, is going to be done about it? There are people who occupy high positions in this country and who never seem to tire of telling us that we must fight Communism in such faraway places as Korea. In our opinion, some of these people had better begin devoting a little attention to fighting Communism at home.

It is well known, or should be well known by this time, that Communism usually recruits its shock troops from among those who are able to work and willing to work but are denied the opportunity of doing so.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Coypright, 1952, Edgar A. Guest)

THIRTEEN

Into the teens now he goes with a bound,
The eyes of him gleaming, the legs of him sound.
The mischief still in him, but doubt it, can none:
He's taller, he's stronger, and he's getting on.
It's plain from his manner, a great deal it means
When a fellow quits twelve and gets into his teens.

In the boy he has been, now the man starts to show.
In stature and strength he's beginning to grow.
More careful of manner when friends stop to call,
He has learned to be smiling and gracious to all.
Let children be rude; but you wouldn't make scenes,
Or your parents displease, when you've entered the teens.

How lucky the number! How happy the year
Sending twelve on its way, letting thirteen appear!
Then come self-reliance and (must it be told?)
The age when the young seem ashamed of the old.
But never again with the knowledge he gleans
Will a boy be as wise as he thinks in his teens.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Feb. 13th., 1932

The income tax office has been moved from Campbell St. to the corner of Bridge and Front Streets, in the offices formerly occupied by the Standard Bank.

The free open air rinks in the city are to be closed immediately owing to the mild winter.

The local corps of the Salvation Army has on display in a store window on Front Street their new banner which was presented to the corps recently on the 48th. anniversary of commencing to operate here. The flag was made at the Salvation Army weaving factory in London, England.

Mr. Jack Belair has left for Guelph where he will enter upon a course of study.

30 YEARS AGO

Feb. 13th., 1922

In a hockey match at Arnott's rink last evening the Excelsiors defeated the Albert College team, the score being 3 to 2. The stars for the Excelsiors were Roy Buskard, A. Weir and C. Gerow and for the College team the stars were Steele and Hartwell. The referee was Jack Arnott and he gave entire satisfaction.

Mr. W. B. Riggs has purchased the McCoy property on Front Street and it is his intention to erect an up-to date garage upon the site. It will be a two storey brick building.

Mr. J. A. McFee is spending a week in Montreal.

40 YEARS AGO

Feb. 13th., 1912

The Madoc train which left here at 12.55 p. m. on Friday became stalled by snow three miles west of West Huntingdon station and it was thirty - six hours before relief was obtained. An effort was made to reach the stalled train by two engines and a snow plough from Belleville. This outfit also became stalled and when it did reach the train it would not be moved until the track was shovelled clear for a considerable distance. When the train eventually began to move it was at a very low speed, possibly one mile an hour. It was thirteen miles to Madoc and it took as many hours to reach that place. It was 5.10 Sunday morning when the train finally pulled into Madoc station. On the train were five women and three babies; Dr. Harper of Madoc; F. Curry, a traveller; Mr. Tummon, an insurance agent of Belleville and a few others. Soda biscuits were the only available food and snow was melted to drink. Eventually some of the men led by Charles Moore, with great difficulty, reached a farm house three miles away and obtained some food which was thankfully received by the passengers. Dr. Harper rendered valuable aid to a sick baby.

50 YEARS AGO

Feb. 13th., 1902

At the first meeting of the Historical Society the chair was occupied by the president, Mrs. Terrill. The following were elected honorary members: Mr. A. F. Wood and Mr. Fred Seymour both of Madoc; Mr. T. W. Casy, Napanee; Judge Merrill, Picton; Mrs. Wilkins, Mrs. W.N. Ponton, Mr. A. T. Petrie, and Mr. F. Wallbridge, sr., all of Belleville. Mr. D. Barragar is the secretary.

The merchants are feeling blue and no wonder they are in that state of mind. The country roads are blocked worse than they have been for twenty years. Both farmers and merchants are feeling the effects of the tremendous snow fall. The situation has certainly passed the jocular stage.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

MAN AND HIS DESTINY

The first is this: "God created man in His own image." This means that the very first man has in him some of the very essence of God and that upon every human life is the imprimatur of the divine. Hitler, Himmler, Stalin—and before them Nero and Genghis Khan——had upon them, in spite of their depraved cruelty, the image of God.

The second Biblical statement is: "Adam begat a son in his image." God made man and the whole of His creation perfect; fallen man since that time has been making the world a fiery hell. The reason is that man has been fashioning everything after his own image, and Adam's sonss have been ordering human life after their desires, not after God's.

Here is the final statement, and it is one of triumph: "The last Adam became a life-giving spirit." This last Adam was, of course, Christ.

Man begins his life in perfection, with the image of God upon him. He spoils life for himself and everybody else by fashioning his life and his world after his own image, and Adam's sons Christ, the life-giving spirit, restores man to his original perfection——to the image in which he was created.

Man possesses a divine nature. He has spoiled it by his willfulness. He can be redeemed from this willful folly only by Christ——who is God and Man in one Person.

Canada on the Climb

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle

In a material way, at least, Canada is on the march. Her grain fields and her precious metal mines have new asssistants. Oil has been added, more mines opened and rich iron fields have been discovered. All these call for more activity in industry, an inflow of new capital and an increase in immigration. And because of all this activity the Canadian dollar is equal to or better than the American.

Traditionally good neighbors, America and Canada have not been intimates. They may become so as Canada's power climbs toward that of America's. At any rate they will see the need for that closer relationship as our commerce is increasingly intermingled, as defence of the continent is more and more a joint effort.

The University of Rochester has seen the need of better knowledge of Canada. To that end it will bring four representatives of the country here shortly for a series of public lectures on the theme, "Canada: Rising World Power." As in other fields, the University shows an awareness of current events.

Old Name of Hotel Dies Hard

Complications attending the change in name of a famous hotel are much like those facing a new bride who must resign herself to answering good-naturedly, for a time, to either her old or her new name, Helen Henley writes from Chicago to the Christian Science Monitor.

The public quite naturally shows a proprietary interest in a hotel such as the Stevens which, since its completion on the lake front in 1927, has attained fame as the largest in the world.

Many Friends

A hostelry of 3,000 rooms which welcomes approximately a million guests a year, which employs 2,000 people to serve them, and which spent a year in the service of its country during World War II when it was occupied by the United States Army, has made enough friends through the years to know that their feelings must be considered when major changes are set in force.

So, although the official change in name from the Stevens to the Conrad Hilton Hotel was announced at 2 p.m. October 31, Hilton officials have shown no hurry to make the change absolute.

For a few days following the announcement, the hotel's telephone operators answered incoming calls with a mouth-filling formula that told the whole story before the caller could get in a word: "Conrad-Hilton-Hotel — formerly-the-Stevens". When it was assumed, after a few days, that the public was wise to the change, this was discontinued. But when people calling in heard only the answering trill, "Conrad Hilton Hotel," many thought they had the wrong number. While the girls at the switchboard patiently explained to each puzzled caller that it was the right number with a new name, their boards became jammed with waiting calls.

Get Both Names

That's why now, when you call Wabash 2,4400 ready to ask for a name or room number, you may be left with your mouth open saying nothing for the long extra seconds it takes the operator to race tongue-trippingly through both names.

Understanding this public resistance to any change in the institutions they have come to regard as their own, hotel executives are content to let the new name find its place gradually in the minds of Chicagoans and their guests.

In fact, they haven't yet changed all the signs outside the building. Anyone who hasn't happened to hear the news might find himself confused or think that the hotel couldn't make up its mind.

Since the hotel was purchased by the Hilton group in 1945, its china and most of its linen have been marked with the Hilton crest. But guests in the dining rooms will for some time to come be using silverware with the Stevens crest—partly, it was explained, because it represents an investment of about $500,000, and partly because it is too difficult today to get a sufficient quantity of either flatware or hollow ware to replace it.

Stationery Served

Reluctant also to discard six months' supply of stationary bearing the old name, the hotel's publicity man gave a practical turn to thrift. He had the stationery run through the presses again, "x-ing" out but not obliterating "The Stevens", and printing the new name above it. This, he pointed out, not only salvaged the paper but instantly identified the two names with one hotel. Some 783 forms in use in the hotel's operation are being changed as new stock is ordered.

Most extensive job, perhaps, has involved the changing of the name on 2,500 uniforms of hotel employees, which is being effected as uniforms are being turned in for cleaning.

This lack of hurry about the change, according to a hotel spokesman, conforms to the general policy on which the constantly expanding Hilton group operates. ((Hilton hotels, now numbering 16, include one in Chihauhau, Mexico, and one in San Juan, P.R., with arrangements under way for others in Instanbul, London and Rome.)

Speculation as to why the name of the Stevens was changed has been answered by the resolution of the board of directors of Hilton Hotels. These directors, in the absence of their president, Conrad N. Hilton, and it is said, without his knowledge, voted unanimously to rename the largest hotel in the world the "Conrad Hilton."

But as wise hotel men know, it takes more than action of a board of directors to change the habits of the public. "Dad Dearborn," who writes a pungent comment nightly for the Chicago Daily News, one evening addressed himself to Mr. Hilton, congratulating him on the tribute thus paid him.

The change would become official, Dad Dearborn opined, when the cab drivers of Chicago have accepted it.

Some of them have caught on already. But when you're headed in a hurry for that biggest hotel on the lake front, you'd still better have both names ready on the tip of your tongue.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

RAILROAD STATIONS

I have always looked upon railroad stations as one of the most fascinating of places. There you will look upon human beings at a gathering point like none other. You will see there anxious faces, sad faces, and happy ones. There will be seen those awaiting loved ones who have not been seen for long periods, and others departing who may never be seen again by those who love them.

In the small stations familiar faces of townsmen are to be seen and there will be cordial greetings to them. Everyone in the town is familiar with those who carry on the duties of the station. In the larger cities, however, like those of San Francisco, St. Louis, New Orleans, Chicago, Boston, and New York, you see no one but strangers from all points of the compass, a mixture of peoples from all over the globe.

Sit in the waiting room of any of these larger railroad stations and you will get a remarkable array of faces to study. Forever coming and going—a stream of life, people like ourselves, everyone on some sort of a mission or adventure. I recall the old Kansas City station as one of the most interesting I have every known. From it streamed, in the earlier days, races and varieties of people that represented democracy in streamlike form as few other stations.

Familiar around the world are the stations of Grand Central and the Pennsylvania in New York City. It is an event just to visit either. The ideals and dreams of millions are fluid each day in these great gathering and departing places. In all directions you will note people coming and going, like working ants in their home mound, or like bees returning to their hives, busy, each with an objective before it.

Home ties have been broken at railroad stations. Youths have gone out into the larger world to "carve their fortune", and others have returned to their home nest again, passing through the familiar old station. It was from one of these small stations, in Iowa, that I last saw the face of my sainted mother in life, her smile of cheer a living thing to this day!

REMOVAL OF TONSILS AND ADENOIDS FOR EAR TROUBLE IN CHILDREN

A young instructor in a medical school writes: The truth is that there are still many good reasons for performing adenotonsillectomy, such as deafness or chronic otitis-media, and if you have any facts, you . . .

Ah-ah—if any name calling is required I'll do it.

From the most significant and authoritative statistics in medical literature (Children's Tonsils In or Out, by Dr. Albert D. Kaiser) —at least I so regard Dr. Kaiser's studies and shall continue to regard them until something better turns up—I quote this observation:

"Studies made on a thousand children with discharging ears between the ages of one and ten years revealed the fact"— You asked for facts, didn't you, son? —that those whose tonsils and adenoids were removed were as likely to have recurrent attacks as those in whom no such operation was performed. This was especially true in children over three years of age. Between one and two years of age, children whose tonsils and adenoids were removed had a lower percentage of recurrent attacks than those who were not operated upon."

Then elsewhere in this book Dr. Kaiser says:

"Various investigators in England and America have found that in about 25 percent of all children with hypertrophied adenoid tissue, the hearing was affected. . . . Wherever the slightest defect in hearing can be demonstrated, the adenoids, however small, should be removed. Improvement will follow the removal of adenoids in a large majority of the cases. . . . A chronic purulent discharge may not be relieved until the adenoids have been removed."

Dr. S. J. Crowe and other aurists with extensive experience have estimated that most deaf adults owe their trouble to neglected nasopharyngeal disorders in childhood. But Crowe has found X-ray and radium treatment preferable to operation on adenoids particularly in cases where the deafness was due to small adenoid masses around the pharyngeal opening of the Eustachian tube—these nodules of adenoid tissue may remain after adenoid operation.

In many cases of moderate deafness due to nodules of adenoid tissue obstructing the Eustachian orifice in the postnasal space a few painless applications of X-ray or radium emanation have caused these nodules to shrivel or shrink and thus corrected the deafness without the hazard of operation.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Youngster Likes Raw Starch

Son, 5, eats raw starch every time he can get his hands on the box. What effect will it have on him? (C. R.)

Answer—It is harmless. Try to get him to eat some raw potato, carrot or turnip instead—this will give him some desireable minerals and vitamins as well as starch.

Fresh Out of Symptoms

Could you tell me fo rthe benefit of a friend what the symptoms of a thyroid condition are? (Mrs. W. M.)

Answer—It would be much better for all concerned if your friend would tell the doctor the symptoms—his or her complaints.

Calcium for Headache

I had bad headaches for eight years and consulted several physicians with no benefit. Six months ago I sent for your headache pamphlet, began taking calcium and D regularly and now hardly ever have one. I am so grateful . . .(J. H. S.)

Answer—On written request (no clipping please) any reader who provides stamped, self-addressed envelope may have the pamphlet Why Have Headache? It can do no harm, may do much good to take an adequate course of calcium and vitamin D for periodic sick headache, "nervous" or neuralgic headache, recurring headache or migraine.

Softening Hard Nails

You told of some liquid that will soften very hard nails so one can trim them. . . . (S. S.)

Answer—Instructions in booklet Car Of The Feet for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

John o'London's Weekly, an English paper devoted largely to book reviews, refers to Huet, Bishop of Avranches, who was born in Caen in 1630 and died in Paris in 1721 at a necessarily ripe old age, and says he was doubtless the man of the widest reading who ever lived.

He read all languages, and read practically everything that had been written up to his time. And Huet gave it as his opinion in his old age, that if everything that had been writen in all languages, had been said only once, it could have been contained in nine folio volumes.

A man of thirty, he said, might know from these nine volumes all that other men had ever thought.

To the printing trade, this is a shocking opinion. But the more you think of it, the truer it seems to appear. On the train yesterday, the man sitting in the Pullman chair across from me was deeply engrossed in a book, a novel by the look of it. He was an interesting looking man, elderly, weather - beaten, dressed in tweeds. Pencils jutted from his vets pockets, bits of paper protruded from them; he had the iron ring of the Engineers' secret society on his hand. I had that hopeless feeling that he would be an amusing and wise man to talk to: maybe he had been in Alaska or Great Bear. Though his nose spectacles were gold rimmed, he looked as if he could drive a dog team. But the miles clicked by, and the hours. And he never took his eyes off that infernal book. Finally, within a quarter hour of our destination, he finished the book, flung it aside and looked sleepily around, catching my eye.

"Do you know," he said, "I believe I read that damn book before"

And though I am a writing man, I thought soulfully of Bishop Huet.

Trenton Memorial Hospital, Just One Year of Age, Already Filled With Patients

Trenton—Special—It was just about a year ago that the provincial minister of welfare Hon. William A. Goodfellow, opened the Trenton Memorial Hospital in a ceremony attracting thousands from Trenton and the surrounding district.

At the time skeptics wondered about the succers of the venture although they admitted that a hospital was needed badly in the community.

Today the last available space was filled with the opening of the new south-west wing on the first floor. Nine more beds were made available, bringing to 84 the number of beds available.

Latest figures show that there are 64 beds for adult patients, six beds in the children's ward and 14 basinets in the nursery. In the first 10 months of operation more than 2,100 patients were treated while 539 births were recorded.

Superintendent Cora E. Droppo said the only way more beds can be made available and further crowding can be prevented is by the addition of another wing. In the first place the architect designed the hospital as a 74-bed building. Erected as a permanent monument to soldiers who died in both world wars, it cost $525,000 on completion.

Four Years In Building

The yellow - brick building which took four years to build testifies to the perseverance of a group of men who realized the need of a hospital for this air force town of more than 10,000 population. The leader of the group, William H. Ireland, former M.P.P., is himself hospitalized on the road to recovery from a serious illness. It was through his untiring effort that the greatest contribution to the community of Trenton was finally handed over to the public on February 25 last year.

Nine years ago the hospital was a castle in the clouds for members of the Trenton Lions Club who felt they weren't doing enough for the community. They were encouraged enough by the public's interest in their idea to order architect's sketches for a hospital to cost $275,000.

A board of directors was appointed in the fall of 1943, a crosstown canvass for donations brought in $100,000 and town council matched this figure by passing a debenture by-law.

When the provincial government announced its grant of $1,000 per bed for the new hospitals, plans were changed to increase capacity by 20 beds for a total of 74. The building actually has space to accommodate nearly 100 patients but over crowding would create a severe problem.

Construction began in May, 1946, three years after the idea was born, on a 10-acre site overlooking the town and the Bay of Quinte. Lions and Rotarians got the land at the bargain price of $1,000 with only one condition—that a hospital be built on it.

Ireland Chairman

William H. Ireland, who has been chairman of the board since its formation, said contracts for work were let only when funds were assured.

"We wanted to make sure everything was paid for as we went along," he said. "That's the reason it took four years to complete the job."

Of the original nine man board, John J. Macnab and Norman Bower died. The only Lions who are board members are the secretary-treasurer, Sherman Graham, and V. P. Carswell. Most of the others are Rotarians.

These include Oswald M. Newton, George Hardy of Toronto and J. E. Uttley. Representative from Northumberland is Councillor Herman Morrow.

Debentures for $237,000 and provincial and federal government grants totalling $134,000 carried the major share of the hospital's cost but Treasurer Graham said that the public was to be commended for contributing so generously.

Widely travelled physicians and nurses have said Trenton Memorial is in the best class of modern hospitals. At present there are nine local doctors and 10 out-of-town doctors caring for patients in the hospital.

Superintendent Droppo, who is responsible for the efficient operation of the institution, is a graduate of Cornwall General Hospital, who came to her post here from a similar position at the Cobourg hospital.

Galloway Home Scene of Fire

Trenton—(Special) — A stubborn chimney fire at Bob Galloway's home above the Bo-Peep restaurant on the corner of Dundas and Bay Streets caused no damage on Monday night.

On account of the high wind firemen stood by with chemicals until the chimney burned itself out. Both trucks answered the call.

Death Toll 32

New York, Feb. 13 — (CP) — The death toll in Monday's plane crash in Elizabeth, N. J., rose today to 32 as disaster - haunted Newark airport, from which the ill-fated plane took off, remained closed.

Miss Sarah, Aronwald, 52, of New York, a passenger, became the 32nd victim of the crash — third in two months in the Elizabeth area. A total of 118 persons have died in the three crashes.

Government and airline officials who met here for almost six hours yesterday promised to keep Newark airport closed pending congressional and other official investigations.

Death of King Delays Fun Fair

Trenton — (Special) — The College Street Home and School Club's annual Fun Fair has been postponed for one week because of the death of King George VI.

The fair is now being held on the night of Friday, February 22nd, and the proceeds will be used to purchase equipment for the school. Last year the fair netted over $700.

Home and School Club executives responsible for planning the fair include: president, Ivor Walling; vice-president, R. E. Jackson; recording secretary, Mrs. Dorothy Todd; corresponding secretary, Mrs. D. E. Gunter and treasurer, C. Magee.

DEMONSTRATES SUBSTANCE

Bergamo, Italy, Feb. 13. — (Reuters)—An Italian druggist yesterday demonstrated to defence officials a secret substance which he claims will prevent automobile or airplane fuels from catching fire or exploding in fuel tanks. The druggist, Angelo Secondi, said he exploded a small charge in a tank treated with the substance and it did not catch fire.

STIRLING

Stirling Plans To Spend $7,000 on Roads

Stirling—By-law No. 549 to provide for $7,000 expenditure on streets was passed at the monthly meeting of council Monday night. This expenditure was broken down into $3,000 for construction and $3,000 for maintenance on streets and $400 construction and $600 maintenance on bridges and culverts.

Reeve R. H. West presided and was supported by councillors Holt, Rodgers, Bailey and Jeffrey.

The municipal bodily and injury and property damage liability insurance was renewed with E. D. Ketcheson local agent on a motion sponsored by Holt and Rodgers.

A communication was tabled from O. Larry, clerk of Trenton, relative to the erection of a proposed sign at the intersection of the Ridge Road and the Madoc road directing traffic through Stirling to Trenton. It was pointed out that a ruling by county council prohibited erection of signs within 50 feet of the road, but council felt the county officials were not familiar with the type of sign it was proposed to erect and councillor Holt was authorized to discuss the matter further with the county roads committee.

On motion of councillors Holt and Bailey the usual grant of $25 was made the Salvation Army, the cheque to be made payable to the Tweed branch.

A communication was tabled from the Ontario Department of Planning and Developing announcing the annual trade and industry convention to be held in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto on March 13, and 14th. Councillor Holt spoke of the advantages derived from attending this convention and on motion of councillors Holt and Rodgers were appointed delegates with expenses not exceeding $20 each to be paid.

Councillor Rodgers introduced the matter of wage schedule for village employees and after discussion the following schedule was adopted: labor 75 cents per hour, 1-2 ton truck and driver $1.75 per hour and stake or dump truck with driver $2.50 per hour. A request was tabled from J. L. Good, principal of the high school, for use of the chairs from the community hall. After discussion it was decided to set a rental fee of $10 on the chairs.

Councillor Rodgers introduced the matter of a revision in the admission price for adults at the weekly show in the theatre. He stated he was acting on the suggestion of the theatre manager in asking for increases of five cents per adult ticket. The admission price for adults was raised to 40 cents. No date was set for the new price to take effect.

ORGANIZER KILLED

Belgrade, Feb. 13. (CP)—Lt.-Slavoo Trnski, organizer of Bulgarian resistance in the Second World War but who fell into disfavor with the communists several months ago, was slain early this month by Soviet Secret Police in Bulgaria, it was reported today. Trnski, veteran member of the Central committee of Bulgaria's communist party, was arrested after he intervened in protest against arrests of former underground fighters who served under him during the war.

Trenton Flyers Whip Trenton 10-5

Trenton RCAF Flyers drew up on even terms with the Belleville Glen Roys at the top of the southern division of the Trent Valley Hockey League last night when they defeated the Trenton Jewellers by a 10-5 score. Trenton is now in third place four points behind the leaders.

WEDDINGS

MACDONALD—WICKETT

Bridge Street United Church parsonage was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding on Saturday, February 9, at 2.30 p.m., when Doris Elaine Wickett, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merle W. Wickett, Belleville, became the bride of AC 1 Elroy Preston MacDonald, of the R.C.A.F., Trenton, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter MacDonald, of Summerside, Prince Edward Island. The Rev. Duncan McTavish officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was becomingly attired in navy taffeta with corsage of gardenias. She was attended by Miss Joan Marie Wickerson, of Belleville, who wore wine taffeta with corsage of cream roses.

AC 1 Robert B. Lafferty, of R.C.A.F. Station, Camp Borden, Ontario, cousin of the bride, attended the bridegroom.

At Lattimer's Town room, where the reception was held, Mr. J. Corradi and Miss Carolyn Forhan, soloists, rendered pleasing solos.

The bride's mother, gowned in cinnamon with feathered matching hat and corsage of Supreme yellow roses, received the guests.

For the wedding trip to Kingston and points east, the bride wore a navy dress, mauve flowered hat and mouton topcoat with matching bag and gloves of mauve. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests present were from Hamilton, Camp Borden, Foxboro and Rossmore.

BANS DIRECT IMPORTS

Singapore, Feb. 13. (AP)—The Singapore government joined the Federation of Malaya today in banning direct imports from Japan of cameras, phonographs, fountain pens, automatic pencils, cigaret lighters and vacuum flasks. The ban apparently is part of the severe economy program decided upon by the recent London meeting of Commonwealth finance experts to cut down the sterling area's financial decline.

Many Ways to Prepare Delicious Fowl Meals

There's a difference between chicken and fowl. Most people are familiar with young, tender chicken, which may be roasted, broiled or pan fried. On the other hand, the fowl, sometimes called "boiling" or "stewing" fowl, is usually cheaper but does not receive the attention it deserves.

Fowl are mature hens not producing enough eggs to pay their food bills, and surplus roosters culled from the flock. They are usually plump and meaty, because they have been turning their food into flesh. The dressed weight is from 3 to 6 pounds (feathers removed but head, feet and entrails intact). The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture point out that roosters and old hens are good for canning and may be prepared in many ways to be served at the family dinner table. To can these birds, first cook them until they are partly tender. This shortens the processing time, which should always take place in a pressure canner.

Use Moderate Heat

Fowl should be cooked with moderate heat to be juicy, tender and evenly done to the bone. Full grown birds, past their prime for roasting, may be braised or served en casserole, but very old ones need long, slow cooking in water or steam to make them tender. These may be fricasseed, creamed, curried or used as the base for many dishes hot or cold. Stewing means several hours of slow simmering in water so do not boil. To steam a bird, lay it on a rack in a saucepan, with just enough water to come to the level of the rack, but not to cover. Place a tight fitting lid on top and cook slowly. Liquid is added to maintain the same level.

To roast a fowl, it is necessary to first stew or steam it until tender. Then let it cool in the broth, breast down, for an hour or more, so that the juices will be reabsorbed, and stuff the bird with a favorite dressing. Rub the outside with melted fat, sprinkle with salt and brown in the oven. The remaining broth can become gravy or soup.

A fricassee is really a type of stew. To cook a fowl in this way, it is cut into individual serving pieces, then dipped in milk, coated with flour, salt and pepper, browned in fat and placed in a casserole dish. A sauce or gravy is made and poured over the chicken. It is covered and baked. An alternate method consists of stewing the pieces until tender, then brown in hot fat and return to the broth or a gravy.

A favorite dish on many dinner tables is chicken and dumplings. The fowl is prepared in the same way as fricasseed chicken and when the pieces are tender and the gravy thickened, the dumplings are dropped by spoonfuls on top, covered and returned to the oven. The dumplings will require about 15 minutes to cook and no peeking is allowed.

Italian Dish

If the family appreciates a good, tangy sauce, a delicious Italian dish is Marengo. A fowl is cut into pieces and browned in hot fat. A gravy is made by blending flour with the fat, adding water and stirring until thick. To this gravy is added a cup of canned tomatoes, minced garlic, fried mushrooms, a cup of apple juice, chopped parsley and seasoning, stirred until blended. The browned chicken pieces are added and simmered in this sauce until tender, this takes about 2 hours.

For a chicken casserole, partially cook a fowl and remove meat from the bones. Arrange the chicken meat and vegetables in alternate layers in a casserole dish. Sprinkle with flour, salt and pepper. Add some broth, cover and bake until tender.

Stewed or steamed chicken may also be served in creamed dishes, salads or sandwiches. For these dishes, it is well to remember that 4 to 5 pound bird usually yields 3 to 4 cups of chopped cooked meat. If the hen was plump and fat, the fat may be strained off the stock and used in cooking, the stock used for gravy, soup or broth. Many homemakers use the giblets in gravy. Chicken livers or giblets with mushrooms on toast are tasty combinations for main course dishes, the family are sure to love. An important point to remember about giblets is that, the gizzards and hearts need long slow simmering, to make them tender. The livers on the other hand, are tender to begin with and so only need brief cooking.

CHICKEN CURRY

1-2 cup finely chopped onion.
1-2 cup finely chopped celery
1-4 cup chicken or other fat
1-3 cup flour.
2 cups chicken stock, fat removed
1 cup tomato juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
1 teaspoon curry powder
3 cups diced cooked chicken

Lightly brown onion and celery in fat. Add flour and blend. Add stock and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add tomato juice, Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper, curry powder and chicken. Heat thoroughly. Serve in a green rice mould. Yield: six to eight servings.

CHICKEN JOHNNY CAKE

2 tablespoons chicken fat or other fat
2 cups diced, cooked chicken
3-4 cup cornmeal
1 1-4 cups sifted pastry flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1-2 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 egg
3-4 cup milk
1 teaspoon celery seed or celery salt
1 tablespoons minced parsley
1-4 cup melted chicken fat or other fat

Melt the two tablespoons fat in a 7x11 inch baking dish. Spread the chicken evenly over the bottom of the pan. Mix and sift together cornmeal, flour, sugar, salt and baking powder. Combine beaten egg, milk, celery seed and parsley and add to sifted dry ingredients, stirring lightly. Quickly fold in the 1-4 cup melted fat. Pour batter over chicken, spreading evenly. Bake in a very hot oven, 425 degrees F., for 20 to 25 minutes. Unmold, inverted on platter or serve from baking dish. Garnish with parsley and pimiento. Serve immediately with chicken or giblet gravy or seasoned cream sauce made with part chicken stock. Yield: six servings

FRICASSEED CHICKEN WITH SOUR CREAM

1 fowl (3 1-2 to 4 lbs.)
3 tablespoons vinegar
1-2 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
1-4 cup fat
1-3 cup chopped onion
1-4 cup chopped parsley or celery leaves
1 1-2 cups sour cream

Cut fowl in pieces for serving. Rub fowl with vinegar and roll in mixture of flour, salt and pepper. Melt fat and brown meat on all sides in hot fat. Place browned chicken in a 6-cup casserole, add onion, parsley or celery leaves and cover with sour cream. Cook, covered, in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees F., until tender, about 2 1-2 to 3 hours. Yield: six servings.

WEST HUNTINGDON W.M.S. AND W.A.

The W.M.S. and W.A., of the West Huntingdon United Church met at the home of Mrs. Clayton Wright on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. William Grant, the president, presided.

Miss Sara Wilson read the Scripture followed by several readings: a poem "Love", by Mrs. Mac Sarles; "Watch Tower-India", by Mrs. George Cooke; one on Christian Stewardship by Mrs. Hammond; poem, "This I Know" by Mrs. E. Poste; "With Hearts Aflame", by Mrs. John Jeffrey.

Mrs. Frank Hammond gave a fine talk on "The Spirit of Truth and the Spirit of Error".

The presentation of a Life membership certificate was made, on behalf of the W.M.S., to Mrs. Morley Clarke, and presented by Mrs. George Cooke and Mrs. William Grant.

The business consisted of matters dealing with the W.M.S. activities and was dealt with by the president.

Mrs. Morley Clarke rendered a pleasing piano selection after which a vote of appreciative thanks was tendered to Mrs. Clayton Wright and Mrs. Morley Clarke and also to others who had taken part in the program by the president, Mrs. Grant.

After Rev. M. Clarke closed the meeting, a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

Centenary-Aikens H. & S. Assoc. Holds Hobby Fair

Centenary school was the scene of a Hobby Fair sponsored by the Centenary - Aikens Home and School Association under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Slavin and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keary.

Following the business meeting, Colin Bain acted as chairman for the program.

Music of our neighbors from Holland was the first item on the program. The entertainers, with an organ, guitars and a mandolin, were introduced by Dick Koning and played and sang several folk songs of that country.

William Slater, president of the Sidney township trustees' association presented Doreen Hollomby, Marilyn Jones and Barbara Hall with the trophies which they had won at the Field Day in June, following which Colin Bain sang a Scotch ballad by Burns.

Puppet Show Given

A puppet show "The Rainbow's End", was produced by Doreen Hollomby, Margaret Slavin and Barbara Hall.

Many exhibitors, who told of their hobbies, were introduced by William Slavin. These included Mr. Hollomby who had a fine stamp collection, and Mr. Holton who had a Bible of 1709, 19th century photos of Belleville and an assorted array of sea shells.

A Russian knife collection was exhibited by Bruce Christie, coins and other monies were shown by William Sargent, Mrs. Holton had a button collection and Doreen Hollomby displayed a marionette as well as puppets.

As well as model airplanes, owned by Charles Keary and Hubie Brown, there were old muzzle loaders, exhibited by Percy Sutherland, Colin Bain and Richard Brown, and models of log cabins and clipper ships.

Mrs. Slavin was in charge of a doll display where dolls from the 19th century were shown along with the very latest Bo-Peep and Red Riding Hood models.

Scrap books and bottle collections were shown by the girls as were lamps made by the young collegiate boys. Some plastic work was also shown.

150 Years Old

In the needlework display there was a nightdress, 150 years old, belonging to Mrs. Aikens, as well as hooked mats, cork mats, embroidery and knitting. There was a yarn picture of old Quebec, leather work, paintings and numerous other articles that made up the hobbies of the neighborhood populace.

Delicious refreshments were served by the conveners, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sargent, Mr. and Mrs. P. Sutherland and Mr. and Mrs. K. Bush.

COMEDIAN COLLAPSES

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Where are you, "Worried Mother"?—Help awaits you

A little over a month ago, there appeared in this column a letter from a desperate young woman of 25, who had developed an obsessing fear of losing her mind.

This young woman had been married five years to a man who was irresponsible and a heavy drinker. She had three children, and because of her husband's irresponsibility, and his drinking, the family has "just barely enough money to get along on," the young wife said adding: "All the worry about the children, and the bills that pile up, are on my shoulders."

Obviously, these practical problems, and her worries about coping with them, had brought her to the very edge of a severe nervous breakdown, but for the sake of her children, she was fighting her way along from day to day, frantically trying to hold onto herself. The two symptoms of her very evident emotional illness which terrified her the most were that she frequently had "a terrible feeling of unreality", and that she had read "of mothers going insane and killing their children," and she feared she might do something of the sort.

Unfortunately, this young woman, whose letter showed her to be a person of intelligence and character, gave me no name or address, so that I was unable to get in touch with her. All I could do was to hope that she would see the column in which I suggested how she might go about seeking help.

Similar Experiences

I am mentioning her case again now because so many readers were so touched by her story, and so eager to help her in some way, that I have received a good many letters I would like her to know about. Some of the letter writers spoke of having had similar experiences, and told how they had managed to survive the ordeal and come through to such an understanding of their problems that they had overcome their fears. One sympathetic woman wanted to finance her treatment by a psychiatrist. Another went to the trouble of getting in touch with a well-known psychiatrist herself, who has offered to arrange for free treatment for the young wife.

To give you an idea of the warm human sympathy so readily held out to her, let me quote from a note which arrived enclosing a long and most interesting letter which the writer asked me to forward.

"Would you be kind enough," the note reads, "to forward the enclosed to the young mother whose letter was published in your column telling of her fears of going insane and possibly harming her children, as she has read in the newspapers of others doing?

"I have troubles so very similar to hers, and after years of indescribable suffering, I received psychiatric help. Since then, I have been able to live normally and quite bearably.

Understanding Comfort

"I feel sure I can afford this distressed young girl some comfort through understanding of what she is going through and by passing on to her the fact that her condition need not be dangerous, even though it is so frightening to the person who doesn't know what is actually wrong with herself. I know that there is nothing so helpful to one in her situation as to feel that others can understand because they have experienced the same thing themselves."

It is very heartening indeed to have such a demonstration as all the letters I have received about this case have given, of the increasingly understanding and sympathetic attitude of the general public toward illness of this kind. For as knowledge and understanding grows, so facilities will expand for making help more readily available to its victims, many of whom now wander helplessly and hopelessly in a dark morass of depression and defeat, either because they do not know where to find a helping hand, or are unable to afford the service such a hand holds out.

It is a matter of great disappointment to me that because of my ignorance of this particular young woman's whereabouts, I am unable to get in touch with her directly and let her know about these offers of help. But I am hoping she may see this and write to me, letting me know if she would like to take advantage of some of them.

WILL VISIT PARLIAMENT

St. Catharines, Feb. 13 — (CP) — An extra 80 persons will be on hand in the House of Commons, Ottawa, during the Throne Speech debate. Gordon Price, principal of St. Catharines Collegiate, has announced plans to take 40 girls and 40 boys from grade X of the collegiate to see parliament in action.

DIRECTIONS

How do you like Transformation Pie for a name? That is exactly what it is too—ordinary things transformed into a beautiful pie that deserves highbrow-company attention. Guess what modest little violet made it up . . . . me.

EMEM'S TRANSFORMATION PIE

I had 1 1-4 cups well-packed, leftover ground spiced beef. Smoked ham or highly seasoned ground cold beef would do equally well. I added the meat to 3 well beaten eggs and 1 cup milk. I poured this filling into a pastry-lined pie plate. I made semi-French pastry by rolling a chunk of pastry out once and covering half of it with about 2 tablespoons soft butter, folding it in eight and rolling it out [illegible] ore. I sprinkled it with salt [illegible] ked it at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes, when the custard had begun to firm up, then I sprinkled the top generously with grated processed cheese—about 1-4 pound. I put it back in the oven at about 400 deg. Fahr. still, and baked it until firm and the cheese was bubbly and brown. Serve with catsup or chili sauce—preferably warm. Cut the pie in wedge-shaped pieces as you would a dessert pie.

SALAD TALK

In order to maintain or fan your enthusiasm for salads, especially now when they are needed to do a protective job, I have hammered away at them every week. Last night I was hard up for salad materials when I was preparing dinner. In fact, I was hard up for everything—the refrigerator was almost bare. That is why I had to work a miracle in the form of that Transformation Pie. However, I found a large cooked beet in a jar, the hard centre of a head of lettuce and 1 large tomato in the crisper, and plenty of young carrots.

I shredded the lettuce finely with a sharp knife and divided it among 4 plates. It looked skimpy. I shredded the beet on the shredder and did likewise with it. Things began to look better. I sliced the tomato as thin as wafers, and gave each plate 2 slices. Then to make it look generous I piled a bundle of fine carrot strips at one side. We passed garlic French dressing. Something out of nothing? Just the same everybody liked it and you can serve salad every day too if you are determined.

LAZY DAISY CAKE

Two eggs, 1 cup each sugar and pastry flour, 1-2 cup milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon each vanilla and baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt. Beat eggs for 2 or 3 minutes, until they are light in color, and of creamy consistency. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Remove beater, add vanilla. Add flour which has been sifted with baking powder and salt. Fold in. Scald milk and butter in top of double boiler, and add all at once to flour mixture. Pour into greased pan and bake 30 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr.

FROSTING

3 tablespoons melted butter, 2-3 cup light brown sugar, 2 tablespoons cream, 1-2 cup cocoanut. Mix all ingredients. Spread on hot baked cake in pan immediately it is baked. Return to oven at once to brown the frosting under broiler for about 2 minutes or until it bubbles. Let cake cool in pan. Nuts may be substituted for the cocoanut.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Superfluous hair

This may be a crazy world but, in some ways, it is a better place for a woman than it was fifty or sixty years ago. Beauty blemishes were accepted as griefs laid upon one by the hand of fate. If a girl had an incipient mustache, or bristles on her chin, nothing was done about it. Now these disfiguring growths are seldom seen. They caused much unhappiness, so let us rejoice that the campaign for beauty goes on.

The reason for this distressing growth has not been definitely determined. It may appear at any age, in the late teens or at seventy. It is believed that glandular disturbances may have something to do with it. Heredity plays a part, as it does with prematurely grey hair. Daughters of parents who have heavy, coarse hair may become afflicted with facial fur.

There seems to be a widespread belief that oily cosmetics will produce these unwelcome fuzzers. There's nothing to that idea. If creams would grow hair we would have no bald men among us; the cure would be too simple. Creams help to keep the skin clean, and specialists who have made surveys have observed that the worst cases of superfluous hair have been found on women who have coarse, dingy skins and who have never used cosmetics of any kind.

There are various means of removal, the oldest among them being electrolysis. A skillful, conscientious operator can delete the growth with the electric needle leaving no scars or ill effects. Usually there are no returns. A pliable needle is used, often of gold. It is inserted in the pore beside the hair shaft and forced gently into the channel until it comes in contact with the papilla, from which the shaft emerges. The current is turned on. If the papilla is destroyed, a new hair cannot appear. If the shaft resists the tweezers, the needle must be inserted a second time. With multiple needles the work goes on fairly rapidly.

The patient can have a fifteen minute sitting and check results before continuing the treatments. Usually the first treatment is satisfactory. The operator is careful not to remove hairs too closely placed together, as that may mean too much burning tissue and a resultent scar.

This method is not so desirable for thick soft growths on the arms and legs. Depilatories serve this purpose, though it is best to make a test as some sensitive skins are allergic to the chemicals employed.

Never use a pumice stone on growths on the face. It acts exactly the same as a razor, cutting the hair close to the skin.

Complexions can be temperamental

"One of the greatest beauty blessings is a skin of fine texture and attractive coloring. It should be preserved and it can be by careful attention and by having respect for the laws of health. Neglect will destroy this lovely work of nature and that is indeed a pity, since women are learning more about diet and hygiene, and they have access to good looks aids that will keep the skin surface soft, smooth and white.

"No woman who would remain within finger touch of her youth, as far as appearance is concerned, can afford to indulge in emotional binges since, like the condition of the health, they are reflected in the face. Emotional upsets retard digestion, have a deplorable effect upon the nervous system. The calm, poised woman, who takes like as it comes, and knows that there will be bad days as well as good ones, has a big advantage in the battle of the birthdays.

"Incorrect eating habits may bring premature wrinkles because the underlying tissues are not properly nourished. Every cell depends upon groceries. It is necessary to have a varied diet, including plenty of fruit and vegetables, if one is to receive the various necessary elements, vitamins and mineral salts. Without these the skin can become temperamental, developing signs of disturbances, becoming florid, or changing from a fine texture, to a coarse one. Some skin diseases are due to a diet deficiency. Too much fat in the diet will cause the sebaceous glands to riot, throwing out a film of oil that the powder pad cannot combat.

"Wrinkles can also come because of facial contortions—frowns between the eyes, lines across the forehead caused by lifting the eyebrows, sagging tissues under the mouth brought about by pulling down the lip ends. Why should we bring these afflictions upon ourselves? It doesn't make sense.

"Peace of mind is an element that makes for beauty. Between the mind and the body there is a close bond, each one being in sympathy with the other. There are women who make worrying an all-time occupation. They fret and stew, are restless and unhappy, often about unpleasant things that they fancy will happen but never do. Anxiety is something else. During stress, that cannot be avoided.

"How can you control unpleasant emotions? By relaxation, by self-communion, by telling yourself you will be strong. When you feel as if the bottom has dropped out of your world, lie down, close your eyes and let your lines fall in pleasant places. Recall happy holidays of the past. The way to get doleful thoughts out of your head is to put pleasant ones in."

NEEDS MORE TROUGHS

Toronto, Feb. 13 — (CP) Motor traffic may be a major problem but Canada's second largest city still needs horse troughs. City council has approved $17,426 to supply water to street drinking fountains and horse troughs.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Valentines for you. . .in '52!

This year's Valentines sing heartily of love and romance. . . hearts and flowers. . .gentle affection. . .abiding devotion. . . tender memories. The classic "Love conquers all" is their grand and insistent message. And with this armament of love and friendship and sentiment, they disdain wars and defy atom bombs!

Store windows "from sea to shining sea" are dramatically bright with hearts, hearts, hearts . . .enormous hearts, medium-sized hearts, small (but fervent) hearts, satin hearts, silk and velvet hearts, hearts luxuriously beribboned, lacy hearts, hearts pierced by Cupid's golden darts. And there is. . .I'm delighted to report. . .the delightfully quaint design of the old-fashioned motto-hearts (perfect as place cards for Valentine parties).

The majority of Valentines are for sweethearts. . .just as Saint Valentine himself would have wished. And there are wonderful ones too for mother, for father, for wife, for husband, for sister, for brother, for relatives of all kinds, for friends. . .engaging ones for children of all ages (even "Baby's First Valentine"!). No relationship, no "special title" (even in-laws!) has been omitted. Including, of course, the Leap Year Valentines, most of them trying too, too desperately to be gay and light-hearted. (Perhaps that's one reason why the number of marriages in 1948, the last Leap Year, were 16 per cent less than in 1947, not a Leap Year!)

Most impressive. . .and expensive. . .of the 1952 Valentines are the de luxe numbers, 100 different designs costing from $1 to $5. Attached to these lush old-fashioned Valentines are gift items which may be removed and worn to prolong the day's fond memories. A locket and chain with your favorite flower on the cameo centrepiece. An attractive purse compact. A soft linen handkerchief with elaborate lace-trimmed edges. A locket containing the sender's photograph. A ringlet of small pearls. Tiny cupids engraved on silver doilies. All with verses that charmingly declare in one way or another:

"A Valentine for someone Who's as nice as anything."

Which is just what Valentines are for!

How mother signs notes to teacher

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I write a note to my young daughter's teacher, should I sign it "Mrs. Henry Smith", or "Mrs. Grace Smith", or "Grace Smith"? Of course she calls me "Mrs. Smith", and so I think the "Mrs." should be included in my signature to the notes. To me either of the first forms seem correct. Also please tell me if I should sign my notes to her "Very sincerely yours" or "Very truly yours." —G. S.

The important rule always to remember: When you sign a letter or note to anyone never sign the title before your name. Your direct signature is your informal name: Grace Smith or Grace Brown Smith, or Grace B. Smith. Then, when necessary for information or identification, write your formal name (husband's name preceded by "Mrs.") in parentheses underneath your signature. And close your letter with "Very sincerely yours" (or "Sincerely yours"), rather than the too-businesslike "Very truly yours."

So the correct signature for these notes to the teacher:

Sincerely yours,
Grace Brown Smith
(Mrs. Henry Smith)

FOUND IN FLORIDA

Newmarket, Ont., Feb. 13—(CP) Herman Prins, 32, missing from his home since Jan. 31, has been found in Jacksonville, Fla., an amnesia victim, it was learned yesterday. Mr. Prins was identified through the numbers on a metal tag on a key ring and a label. Unable to remember anything before his arrival in Jacksonville, Prins wandered into a Salvation Army shelter Friday seeking assistance.

Fashion Flashes

IMAGINATION spikes a new group of beautiful ball gowns done mostly in black and white. Black silk taffeta is used for a beauty, the strapless bodice intricately touched. A wide godet, at the side of the full, graceful skirt, is of embroidered, hand-painted lace in black and white, which is topped by enormous taffeta bows.

BY-THE-SEA fashions are more sensible and prettier than in many a season. For instance pedal pushers and a halter bra of white denim are worn with a knit cardigan in navy with a yoke of navy and white stripes.

AN EASY WAY of making a scoop-necked, short-skirted dance dress right for an afternoon date, is to use a big bow-tied bib of white silk ottoman and big cuffs, both generously rhinestone-studded.

TRADITIONAL wedding gowns, while hewing to the classic line, cleverly use new fabrics. Pleated nylon tulle makes the bodice of a new and lovely gown, the top embroidered in nylon ribbon lace over tulle. The skirt is in nylon tulle over satin and has winging side fullness.

PERFECT for holiday parties is a full-length dance dress of white nylon net, the strapless bodice of white and silver brocade, crossed surplice fashion. The big skirt billows out over a crinoline.

UNDER-THE-COAT dresses now coming into the stores were never prettier. Real dresses they are, too! Bluish-charcoal silk taffeta, with a fleck-print in bright fuchsia, yellowish green and pale blue, is used for a handsome dress. The bodice has a big soft bow, and the skirt falls full from a wide hip section that is accordion-pleated and stitched.

WHAT TO WEAR with the poodle hair-cut is the question that devotees of this new fad are asking. Well, many milliners are making little discs in shell, round or oval shapes, just to cover the top of the head, with the curls arranged around in halo fashion. Satin, velvet and ribbon for now, and silky straw for later. The discs are secured by side clamps.

WORTH SAVING up for is one really good handbag, such as a whopper of finely polished, high grade alligator Better, much better, than a couple of cheap bags of this type. Right with almost all daytime clothes—town or country—is a huge bag of light honey colored alligator, the covered frame outlined by the narrowest of gold metal edgings. It has two wide self handles and is lined in black leather. Such a bag just "makes" an outfit.

PERFECT CRIBBAGE HAND

Fort Erie, Feb. 13 — (CP)—For years, Ellsworth (Ducky) Troup had hoped it would happen and it finally did. Playing at the Legion Hall he got a perfect cribbage hand — three fives and a Jack and the right five showing for a total of 29 points.

Women's Activities

ELDORADO-UNION W.M.S.

The February meeting of the Eldorado-Union W.M.S., was held at the home of Mrs. Dan Robinson on Thursday last, with a fair attendance of members present. Mrs. R. Peate, vice-president, presided and opened the meeting with Mrs. A. Robinson at the piano.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and accepted. Mrs. Leonard Blackburn was appointed assistant mission band leader to take the place of Mrs. E. Blakely. Thanks for cards were read from Mrs. E. Blakely, Mrs Beryl Carman and Mr. H. Barker.

Mrs. Peate read an article about the late King. This was followed by a minute of silence while the organist softly played, "God Save the Queen".

Mrs. G. Crabbe had charge of the worship service and also gave part of the study book, while Mrs. Cecil Robinson gave the second portion of the book, assisted by Mrs. A. Robinson, Mrs. D. Robinson and Mrs. H. Barker. The Christian and Citizenship secretary, Mrs. Cecil Blackburn, gave an interesting paper and offered prayer for Miss Kilpatrick.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

CHIEF CORONER INJURED

Toronto, Feb. 13 — (CP)— D Smirle Lawson, Chief Coroner fo Toronto, suffered chest injurie when the car he purchased Monday collided with another automobile yesterday. Dr. Lawson's car, which his wife is believed to have been driving, was extensively damaged. Mrs. Lawson was not injured. Andre Ehtondo of Sudbury, driver of the other car, was not hurt. Police said his car was severely damaged.

New Town Clerk

Mr. J. E. Finnigan has been employed by the village of Frankford as the new town clerk. In addition to the duties of clerk, Mr. Finnigan will be the assessor, tax collector and treasurer. Previously, Mr. W. N. Simmons has been town clerk, Mrs. Irene Bennett has held the offices of tax collector and treasurer, and Mr. Arthur Ferguson assessor. Mr. Finnigan, who has served for many years with Canadian National Railways will be superannuated next month, and will be able to devote full time to his town duties. He is well known and liked by everyone, and will undoubtedly carry on his new duties with the same faithfulness and devotion with which he has worked with his present employers.

Several members of the Frankford United Church Sunday school are attending a special course of instruction in King Street United Church this week. Two expert leaders in children's and Young People's work are in charge of the course, and reports are that the instruction is excellent.

The Frankford Branch of the Canadian Legion is progressing well with the new kitchen on the hall. All veterans of the district are reminded that the Legion meets the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

Reported Tomato Plant Contains Required Material

Washington, Feb. 13—(AP)—The United States Agricultural Department reported today that the common tomato plant contains material that can be used to make sex hormones.

Chemical research has found, the agency said, that a new alkaloid called "chrystalline tomatine" can be extracted from the tomato leaf.

This alkaloid can be used as a starting material in the manufacture of the medically important sex hormones progesterone and testosterone.

Progesterone is used in drugs for the correction of menstrual disturbances, prevention of spontaneous abortions and the relief of cervical cancer. Testosterone also is used as a remedy for menstrual disturbances and for suppressing breast cancer.

The department said the value of the new discovery lies in the fact that heretofore only three sources were available for the preparation of these drugs—animal-nerve tissues, soybeans and Mexican yams.

Production of these drugs from the animal-nerve tissue and soybeans was said to demand more chemical steps than the production of tomatine from the tomato plant. The yam does not grow in this country.

The department said tomatine might be converted into cortisone, a new drug being used for relief of arthritic pains. However, there are chemical difficulties to such conversion.

TWEED

G. W. Nelson Will Act as Public School Inspector

Tweed — G. W. Nelson of Brampton has been named acting public school inspector for centre Hastings, in the absence of A. W. McGuire, who has been granted temporary leave of absence for three months, owing to ill health.

Mr. Nelson was one of the public school inspectors in Halton county, prior to coming to Tweed and made his headquarters at Brampton. He is making his home with Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wilkinson on South Victoria Street.

Delegates Attend Meeting

Given Promotion

Catharine Barry who has been a member of the Bell Telephone Company staff at Tweed office for the past four and a half years has been promoted to the position of chief operator in Madoc. Prior to her departure Catharine's fell staff members presented her with a pen and pencil set. Miss Marie Baker is now senior operator following the staff change .

Harmony Club

The regular monthly meeting of the Harmony Club was held in St. John's Sunday School parlors on Wednesday evening with a large crowd in attendance.

The gathering enjoyed a potluck supper and after the devotional period, and a short business discussion, supervised by president Charles R. Porritt. Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Belch program conveners took charge of the meeting. Mrs. S. H. Connor accompanied by Mrs. Belch rendered a vocal number. An amusing skit, "The Country Store" was presented by Mrs. Emerson Hodgins and Mrs. Harold Emerson, and was particularly well done. Howard Connor consolidated school principal, Harold Foster a decorator and Rev. A. L. Sisco each gave some experiences during their work.

The program was concluded with a memorial service for the late King George VI. Special prayers were said and Mr. Sisco paid tribute to His Majesty. God Save the Queen was sung for the first time.

Attend Convention

DUKE OF

Queen Will Be First

If tradition is followed Friday, Queen Elizabeth II will follow immediately after the hand-made oak coffin and the Royal Standard Bearer.

Then will come male members of the royal family. These will include the Duke of Edinburgh, husband of the new Queen, and the Duke of Gloucester, brother of the late King, but whether the Duke of Windsor and the 16-year-old Duke of Kent, nephew of the late King, will be with them is not yet known.

It is also not known whether the procession will include Prince Charles, three-year-old son of Queen Elizabeth and heir to the Throne, and Princess Anne, his sister.

The place to be taken by the King's widow, Queen Mother Elizabeth, his mother, Queen Mary, and his younger daughter, Princess Margaret is also not yet clear.

Queen Juliana of The Netherlands (accompanied by Prince Bernhard) and Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg (with Prince Consort Felix) will be attending in their own rights as monarchs but it is not known whether they will ride in the procession with the male rulers or with other queens and princesses.

King Haakon of Norway, at 79, Europe's oldest monarch, is certain to have top precedence Friday among overseas kings. It will be the third time he has attended a British Monarch's funeral. At the funeral of King Edward VII in 1910 he walked with eight other kings after the coffin. All eight, including Ferdinand of Bulgaria, Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany and Manoel of Portugal are dead.

FORD WORKERS

Company Ready to Negotiate

In a statement yesterday Mr. Sale said the company is ready to re-open the contract talks at the union's pleasure. He added that, if the talks go on again, the company will be represented by Wallace Clark, vice-president in charge of Ford industrial relations.

Mr. Burt had asked that Mr. Sale take part personally in the renewed discussions.

The stumbling block that led to the breakdown of the Toronto talks was reported to be a section dealing with seniority as it affects layoffs.

The company expressed the view that a solution could be found.

"If the union sees fit to call a strike at this juncture, the question of seniority in layoffs will be the sole issue," a Ford statement said. "Monetary clauses are still to be discussed if and after the seniority clause is hurdled. However, on straight wages, the parties are in virtual agreement."

Talks on the wage contract started last March. The dispute was regarded as a basic cause of an unauthorized 12-day strike which made 12,000 Ford workers idle last December. Of these, 9,000 were production workers, 1,000 superintendents and foremen, 1,200 Ford office orkers and 800 were feeder-plant workers.

Turks Seek Aid In Forecasting Disastrous Quakes

Istanbul, Feb. 13 — (Reuters)—In the aftermath of the Jan. 3 earthquake which killed 94 persons and injured 257, Turkey is calling on scientific help to find out where future quakes are likely to strike so that her people can build their homes, offices and factories some place else.

The new research is being undertaken with the help of the United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organization which has sent to Turkey 47-year-old Gaston Grenet, a French seismologist, to set up three new earthquake observation stations.

He arrived just after the Jan. 3 earthquake near Erzurum in Eastern Turkey, in which thousands of people were rendered homeless and even those whose houses still stood were afraid to sleep in them for fear of additional quakes.

In fact there was another minor quake in the same area Jan. 18.

Many of the homeless are living temporarily in tents which cannot be properly heated.

Grenet said in an interview he thinks it will be possible to establish scientifically the areas of Turkey where earthquakes are likely to occur, or "the most dangerous areas at any rate."

Earthquakes are frequent in Turkey. Usually they are just strong enough to make you feel "uncomfortable" as the ground rumbles beneath your feet. But every now and then there comes a slightly worse one and occasinally there is one such as the earthquake at Erzincan, also in Eastern Turkey, in December, 1937, when 23,000 persons were killed.

Grenet said: "We shall install three new seismographic stations which, with the existing station at Kandilli, will provide stations at all the four corners of the land."

The data they supply will be examined in the light of world-wide records at central seismological stations at Strasbourg, France, and Pasadena, Calif.

Grenet himself helped to invent new recording apparatus which will be installed in the new stations.

Canadian Buyers Purchase 4 Bulls At Shorthorn Sale

Top price of 10,000 guineas ($29,400) was paid for Calrossie Highland Piper, Dark Roan son of the famous Calrossie Welcome, by A. R. Cross of Calgary.

British Society Urges Revision Of Divorce Laws

London, Feb. 13 (CP)—The newly-constituted Royal Commission on divorce has been asked by the Marriage Law Reform Society to recognize mutual consent and breach of faith as the principal grounds in future on which divorces would be granted in Britain.

Adultery, desertion and cruelty are the chief grounds under existing law.

The proposal was submitted by the society in a lengthy brief embracing a series of far-reaching recommendations. It also suggested abolition of the three-year period before divorce proceedings are admissible, intervention of the [illegible] proctor and the decree nisi—an order for divorce is not challenged within six months.

Divorce by consent, the brief contended, should be permissible as being the most rational and decent way of determining a marriage that has failed. But it also urged that imprisonment be added as an extra ground for divorce and that adultery and cruelty be re-defined.

It was argued that injury to health should cease to be an essential condition to a charge of cruelty, but by amending the law it should expressly include habitual drunkenness, communication of venereal disease and cruelty to children.

Other recommendations called for the abolition of damage claims for adultery, granting authority to the courts to impose maintenance payments on co-respondents and a law making women equally responsible for the maintenance of illegitimate children.

Reform society spokesmen said that if their recommendations were adopted more than 3,000 husbands will cease to go to prison every year and abandoned wives will get their maintenance regularly.

"We propose that these laws shall be based primarily on human needs," they said.

FLUORESCENT LIGHTS

Toronto, Feb. 12 (CP)—Suburban Etobicoke township next week will have fluorescent street lights —believed to be the first in Canada. Township council was told that the new lights give 50 percent more brightness than the ordinary types.

Special Prayer For Queen To Be Used Friday

London, Feb. 13 — (AP) — Church - going Britons commemorating the King's funeral will pray for a long and prosperous reign for their new Queen. Special forms of service were issued "by Her Majesty's special command" today.

The Church of England said the services are to be used Friday, the day of the funeral, or when convenient afterward.

They included this prayer:

"Almighty God, who rulest over all the kingdoms of the world, and disposes of them according to Thy pleasure, and who has now called Thy servant our Sovereign Lady, Queen Elizabeth, to the throne of this realm:

"Let Thy wisdom be her guide, and let Thine arm strengthen her. Let justice, truth and holiness, let peace and love, and all those virtues that adorn the Christian profession, flourish in her days.

"Direct all her counsels and endeavors to Thy glory and the welfare of her people: and give us grace to obey her cheerfully and willingly for conscience sake: that neither our sinful passions, nor our private interests, may disappoint her cares for the publick good:

"Let her always possess the hearts of her people, that they may never be wanting in honour to her person, and dutiful submission to her authority:

"Let her reign be long and prosperous and crown her with immortality in the life to come."

Many of Britons Keen To Migrate Head for Canada

By GLENN McDOUGALL
(Kemsley Journalist Student)

London, Feb. 13 (CP)—A new tide of British migration will sweep over the shores of Canada this year, spurred by the darkening austerity picture in the United Kingdom.

Thousands of young Britons who hesitated to emigrate to the Commonwealth immediately after the war are ready to take the plunge in 1952—and many of them have elected to go to Canada.

Canadian government emigration officers in London are processing an estimated 5,000 applicants a month. Some 30,000 Britons, already processed, are waiting for shipping space or an opportune time to travel.

If the present trend continues, Canada may welcome from 50,000 to 90,000 British immigrants this year compared with about 65,000 last year. (Canada's total immigration from all countries in 1951 was 195,000).

Most of the immigrants are seeking refuge from austerity and the economic confinement of life in present-day Britain. The exodus was stimulated when the Conservative government announced its program of further ration cuts and more belt-tightening and held out no hope for an early sunrise in the nation's gloomy food picture.

Speed Up Flow

To speed up migration, British Overseas Airways corporation and Trans-Canada Airlines will operate special plane services to Canada in 1952. The Canadian government has arranged 38 additional ship sailings.

The big question is will increased flow of emigrants from Britain produce more unemployment in Canada? Canadian officials say "no." and they say Canada welcomes all the settlers it can get from this economically beleaguered island.

"Every immigrant is a consumer before he is a producer," explained one official. "He creates work for some one else before he seeks a job himself."

Mass migration of other parts of the Commonwealth is being widely urged in Britain today. Many people feel the United Kingdom must reduce its population by at least 15 millions (present population 50 millions) if the country is to survive its economic difficulties.

The migration council says Britain cannot afford to go on spending more than three billion dollars a year to import food for its meat-starved population. Its solution: Send the people where the food is—to the Commonwealth.

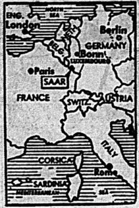
Urge Commonwealth Talks

The council wants a Commonwealth conference called to discuss a mass shift in population. It points out the United States achieved much of its present greatness by admitting millions of immigrants in a 50-year period following the Civil War. The council envisages a similar type of program for the British Commonwealth.

Since the war, Canada has welcomed approximately 62,000 immigrants, about one-third of them British. Australia, which has followed a more aggressive immigration policy, has taken about the same total but 52 per cent are British.

Canada's recent immigration figures fall far short of the records set before and after the First World War. But the present jump in British migration may mark the start of an increasing flow of new settlers across the Atlantic. And if this flow reaches the proportions urged by the migration council, experts say Canada can look for a population of at least 35,000,000 by the end of the century.

Cause of Setback in NATO Plans



The rich little section of Europe known as the Saar, formerly German and now autonomous, has caused a setback in Gen. Eisenhower's NATO army plans. France and Germany are at odds over the 900-square-mile industrial Saarland because the French cabinet changed title of its Saar high commissioner to ambassador, causing West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer political trouble at home. —Central Press Canadian.

WANT OWN METERS

Toronto, Feb. 13 — (CP) Mayor Allan Lamport yesterday suggested a consolation prize for a parking meter company which submitted an unsuccessful tender to supply meters in the downtown area. The company produces hundreds of thousands of dollars in taxes for the city, the mayor told board of control, and should be permitted to install their own meters outside their downtown premises. The board sent the suggestion to the works committee for study.

LINDSAY TONIGHT!

Tonight at Memorial Arena the junior Hawks swing into action for their last game of the group schedule. They meet the Lindsay Kinsmen, power-packed crew the most of whom get their mail in Lindsay but visit their folks in Oshawa and other surrounding centres in their spare time.

That being beside the point at the moment, this Scugog crew lines up as one of the best to come out of this neck of the junior "B" woods in some time. But if Bill Cook's "cookies" play the brand of hockey of which they are capable of playing, they stand an even chance of knocking off the group title. They have beaten Lindsay — and in their own backyard, so to speak. And they can do it again. But they'll have to forget the sweethearts of Sigma Chi and other things and concentrate with all they've got on power and effort.

So with the hair-down sign out, and unless something runs agley, tonight's tilt should be worth viewing. The playoffs will likely get under way at the beginning of next week with the first and fourth teams meeting, and the second and third squads clashing in a best-of-five series. Finals ditto.

"SPEEDY" WILL LOVE THIS!

Perhaps one of the most colorful, most powerful athletic groups of all time, the New York Yankees baseball club celebrates its 50th anniversary of entry in the American Baseball League next month. And the publicity bloke of the Bombers has put the baseball experts on the spot by asking them to select the best single Yankee team and the all-time Yankee squad.

After all it may not be so tough. In fact Arthur (New York Times) Daley says "there isn't the slightest doubt about the first assignment being easier than the second. The top Bomber team was the 1927 aggregation, a group which also holds the distinction of being the best team anywhere at any time."

This was Murderer's Row at its peak, Daley relates. This was Five O'Clock Lightning. In that era games had a habit of starting later than today and Earl Coombs formed the unconscious habit of glancing at the clock just as Yankee bats would begin to thunder. It always seemed to be five o'clock on the dial when lightning struck. Hence the nickname.

Joe Dugan tells a story which illustrates the terrific power of that team. It had been a tight ball game and then Five O'Clock Lightning struck. Coombs tripled to centre. Koenig doubled to left. Ruth hit one over the wall. So did Gehrig. Meusel doubled. Lazzeri tripled. And Dugan hit a sharp single to left.

"That will cost you $100 fine," snapped Miller Huggins the Mite Manager afterward.

"What for?" asked the puzzled Dugan.

"For breaking up a rally", said Huggins.

It sounds ridiculous but that 1927 Yankee team is probably the only one in history where a one-base hit could be termed a rally-disrupter. It had a club batting average of 307. It had Babe Ruth setting his home run record of 60 and hitting .356 as well. Lou Gehrig was at .373 and Coombs the lead-off man hit a rousing .356. It had slick fielding and slicker pitching.

The story is told that the 1927 Yankees won the 1927 world series from the swashbuckling Pittsburgh Pirates at a batting practice. The Bombers strode into Pittsburgh for a workout the day before the first fray. Waite Hoyt, a 22-game winner, was to be their starter.

"Get a good workout today, Waite," said Manager Huggins. "Limber up in batting practice.".

By all rights the Pirates should have vacated the park before the Yanks took over. But they were overwhelmed by their curiosity. They just had to get a glimpse of these supermen in action. They saw too much.

"Gee, they're big," whispered Paul Waner to brother Lloyd.

Then Hoyt wheeled in one fast ball after another. Boom! Ruth whacked one out of the park. Wham! Gehrig did likewise. Then it was over the fence or against it in rapid succession as Murderers' Row teed off.

"Gee, they can hit" murmured the Pirates in dark despair.

The Buccaneers were beaten before they started. Four straight it was.

Daley says picking the all-time Yankee team is a trifle harder. He selects practically the 1927 squad but moves in Bill Dickey as catcher. He was the best the Yankees ever had. The outfield of Meusel, Coombs and Ruth hardly could be improved but he substitutes Joe DiMaggio for Coombs. Gehrig has to be at first base. And it is difficult to lift Tony Lazzeri from second although Joe Gordon was a wizard for many years. Tony could hit so he stays.

Red Rolfe wins third base from Joe Dugan and here Daley hesitates. Is it Mark Koenig, Frankie Crosetti or Phil Rizzuto at short? This is virtually a dead heat. However Daley voted for the "Scooter". The righthanded pitcher will be Red Ruffing. The lefthander will be Lefty Gomez, who was as good as he was funny.

Leafs Strike for Stretch Run Bring Up Hornets' Morrison To Bolster Bentley, Armstrong

By CRAIG SWAYZE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Even though two games that could have a great deal of bearing on positions for the impending Stanley Cup playoffs are scheduled tonight, many National Hockey League players have what they consider more serious worries.

For this is the week generally known as "dread week" in the N. H. L. The boys know if they can stay in the senior circuit past this Friday — the deadline for farming players out to the American Hockey League—they are reasonably safe for another season in the big time.

However, with the runner-up Toronto Maple Leafs entertaining the league-leading Detroit Red Wings tonight while the fourth-place Boston Bruins meet the fifth-place Rangers at New York, most of the teams in the league appear to have made their moves far in advance of the deadline.

Surprise Move

Toronto, eyeing first place a full five games away and at the same time striving to pull away from the red-hot Montreal Canadiens—just three points behind—struck early to prepare for the stretch drive. They brought up George Armstrong from Pittsburgh Hornets of the A. H. L. in time for last weekend's games and then, in a surprise move, elevated Jim Morrison from Pittsburgh Monday.

Armstrong lived up to advance notices during weekend play, notching Saturday night's winning goal against Montreal and turning in a strong game at New York. Morrison, and ex-Barrie Flyer who can perform equally as well at centre, defence or left wing, is reported to be slated for the portside berth opposite Armstrong on a line centred by veteran Max Bentley.

"We Wuz Robbed"

If Morrison makes good with Conn Smythe's club—and the experts figure he will—Boston sports writers will be after Art Ross' scalp. They roared he had been robbed when Smythe lifted Fern Flaman from Vic Lynn and Bill Ezinicki last year (both wound up in the minors) and they weren't too happy over the Morrison-Mackell deal.

With centre Sid Abel and defenceman Marcel Pronovost temporarily sidelined, Detroit have been forced to bring up Fred Glover and Johnny Wilson from their A. H. L. Indianapolis club.

New York Rangers, striving for that fourth and final playoff spot, look towards tonight's clash with the Bruins as one of their most important of the season. Reports from Gotham indicate coach Bill Cook may unveil some new talent for the game.

Marciano Fancied Easy Winner Over Lee Savold

Philadelphia, Feb. 13 (AP) — Rocky Marciano, young, lusty and unbeaten, figures to cakewalk to his 39th straight victory tonight in a scheduled 10-round fight against battleworn 35-year-old Lee Savold.

The 27-year-old Marciano is a heavy favorite to demolish Savold in an early round. Savold has few supporters. Even the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission indicated it was concerned about the possibility the fight be a turkey from the standpoint of competition. At last week's physical examination, Commissioner John Dagrosa told both boxers that he had been asked by many people, "why this fight?"

He reminded Marciano that he had catapulted into heavyweight boxing prominence with his knockout of 37-year-old Joe Louis, the old Brown Bomber. Dagrosa mentioned that this same fading Louis had unceremoniously dumped Savold.

The commissioner warned the fighters he would hold up purses if it wasn't a good show.

It's a cinch the fight won't be a turkey financially. A crowd of 13,000 is expected to pay some $90,000 to see the battle.

Marciano, who has knocked out 33 of 38 opponents, has little to gain and everything to lose in this bout. As things now stand, Marciano is a cinch for a heavyweight title fight by summer.

Injury-Riddled Canadians Will Play Hockey Exhibition With US Olympic Puckchasers

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Oslo, Feb. 13 (CP) —Canada's Olympic hockey team decided today to go through with its scheduled exhibition against the United States despite injuries.

"We'll go ahead with the game although we may have to borrow players from other teams," Doug Grimston of New Westminster, B.C. president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said after a huddle with officials of the Edmonton Mercurys.

"We made the commitment and we'll stick to it."

The Mercurys had been in favor of calling off the game because six players came out of the team's European tour with leg and arm injuries.

Stadium Sold Out

A major factor in the decision was that the 10,000 seats in Oslo's Jordal Amfi Stadium had been sold out.

Officials of the Norwegian Hockey Association said "nothing doing" when the Mercurys tried to beg off, explaining that further injuries might result from the game and weaken the team for the Olympic competition beginning Friday.

It is known that the question of reinforcements for the Mercurys has been discussed but no action has been taken yet.

Early today coach Lou Holmes of the Edmonton Mercurys was undecided about the line-up of his team for tonight's exhibition game, assuming it goes on as scheduled.

The squad arrived last night from a seven week European exhibition tour with this casualty list:

Goalie Eric Paterson, water on the knee; defenceman Jack Davies arm injury; centre Billy Gibson, twisted knee; winger Louis Secco, twisted knee; playing manager Frank Sullivan, groin injury; winger Billy Dawe, broken toe.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

London — Randy Turpin, 163, London, stopped Alex Burton, 163, London, (7).

Los Angeles — Lauro Salas, 125½, Los Angeles, outpointed Baby Face Gutierrez, 124¼, San Diego, (12).

Sacramento, Calif. — Bobo Olson, 162, Honolulu, outpointed Woody Harper, 152, Oakland, Calif., (10).

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Randy Turpin, British middleweight champion, made an unimpressive return to the ring last night in London as he defeated Alex Burton, who was forced to quit at the end of the seventh round with a badly-cut left eye.

Each weighed 163 pounds.

Turpin, who had not fought since losing his world crown to Sugar Ray Robinson in New York last September, was slow and wild. In fact, the entire bout was a slow waltz which brought rhythmic handclaps from the capacity crowd of 10,600 at Harringay Arena.

The police of Grey County are going to tangle with the cops of Bruce County tonight in Owen Sound. In the second annual Charity Exhibition hockey game of the Grey and Bruce Police Association. Last year the Bruce cops scored a one-goal victory but the Greys are confident this year because of the re-instatement of Alex Hawyrs of the RCMP last year, it is reported he was barred because he insisted on wearing spurs.

The widowed Queen Mother in London has scratched her steeplechaser Devon Loch from all races in which the six-year-old horse had been entered.

Toronto Cottage Comets last night downed St. Christopher House 62-44 in Toronto to win a two-game, total-points round 135-93 for the Toronto junior basketball championship. Comets now meet St. Catharines All-Stars in the first round of the Ontario Basketball Association playoffs beginning in Toronto next Tuesday.

Alex MacGregor who has been secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Soccer Association since it was revived three years ago, now is serving his last term. He announced last night in Toronto that he will not be a candidate for re-election at the annual meeting of the association Saturday.

Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League will call up Ray Ross, high-scoring centre for the Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League. The management of the Guelph club was notified yesterday of the impending move. Ross is Cleveland property.

Boston Bruins, engaged in a tight battle for fourth place in the National Hockey League, yesterday returned rookie winger Leo Labine to Hershey for more experience. Labine will join the American League farm club in Cleveland tonight.

Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday in St. Louis got his back pay for 1951—a cheque for $20,001. The raise had been held up by the wage stabilization board which only recently gave permission to grant it.

Nothing Sissy About Norwegian Ski Surroundings

Norefjell, Norway, Feb. 13 (AP) —If you think modern skiing has gone sissy you should be in Norefjell for the Winter Olympics. Man, it's rugged up here.

These hardy Norwegians are used to taking their winter sports the hard way. There are no elegant winter resorts with plush hotels and electric ski lifts for them.

The Norwegians carefully avoided the softening influence of the cities by locating the Olympic down hill and giant slalom ski races way up in the mountains, 75 miles north of Oslo.

The setting is lovely—steep wooded mountainside looking down upon a frozen lake with another range of green and white mountains rising sharply on the other side of the lake.

Few Farms, Etc.

But if the Olympic skiers were not here, there would be mighty few people around to enjoy the scenery. There is nothing resembling a village in the entire area—just a few farm homes, a country store or two, several ski cabins and a few resort hotels scattered around the mountains.

That made it quite a problem to house the nearly 300 skiers, 200 officials, and 50 newspaper men who'll be here for the Olympic races. And it left no room for spectators. They'll have to drive up from Oslo in the morning and back at night.

The Norwegians built one new hotel and a few barracks for the skiers.

The competitors and newspaper men have been billeted in a hotel eight hilly miles from the race centre. The reporter who succeeds in getting a taxi to the mountain top first must walk down a hill, across a frozen lake and up another hill to meet his vehicles.

To get from the bottom of the race course to the top is another six-mile drive. Norwegian reporters seemed to know what to expect. Most of them brought their skis.

Gigantic Relay of 100 Ski-men Begin Carrying Olympic Torch

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Oslo, Feb. 13 (CP) —Canadians moved centre and front on Norway's Olympic stage today.

One bowed in as the first racer who will open the 1952 winter games. The other is almost certain to bow out as a competitor.

Rhoda Wurtele Eaves of Montreal drew the No. 1 spot for the women's giant slalom, the ski-opening event on the first day's program tomorrow.

Engelbert Miller of Edmonton, left winger on Canada's hockey team awaited the almost sure decision that he is ineligible under Olympic rules.

The situation brings disappointment to both. For Rhoda, despite the honor as first skier down, it means she must break the trail, an unenviable assignment among skiers.

Spectator's Role

For Miller, it means, in all probability, a spectator's role while his teammates of the Edmonton Mercurys shoot for another Olympic championship for Canada. The eligibility question arose because of Miller having played a couple of seasons for Streatham, a semi-pro team in Britain.

The traditional ritual and ceremony that reach far back into Olympic history come into a modern setting again today. A gigantic relay of 100 men on skis begin carrying the Olympic torch from the birthplace of modern skiing to the opening of the games in Oslo.

At the same time the torch left Moregdal, the Oslo weather bureau sorrowfully announced there seems no prospect for snow in southern Norway "for at least three or four days."

This prediction rules out any possibility for good runs for the opening skiing events tomorrow at Norefjell.

The official opening of the games will not take place until Friday morning when the Olympic torch is carried into Bislett Stadium and the Olympic fire is lighted above the traditional Marathon Gate.

The relay started today at Moregdal, in the mountains of western Norway, with a brief ceremony in the house where Sondre Norheim, Norway's first active competitive skier, lived 100 years ago.

The two-man bobsleds, with no Canadian entries, will get the 1952 games away tomorrow morning. The women skiers begin their take-off on the giant slalom at 1 p.m. Norwegian time (7 a.m. EST).

Behind Rhoda Eaves' lead come high-seeded entries. Preferred spots, Nos. 4 and 5, by custom went to the top seeded favorites, Andrea Mead of Lawrence of Rutland, Vt., and Trudy Jochum-Beiser of Austria.

Three Canadian girls, in addition to Rhoda, are far down the list and will likely have to contend against a cut up course. Joanne Hewson of Montreal is No. 23; Rosemary Schutz of Montreal No. 33, and 16-year-old Lucille Wheeler of St. Jovite, Que., No. 40 in the field of 45.

Two-Game Grey Cup Final To Be One of Major Issues of CRU Annual

Toronto, Feb. 13 — (CP) — A number of controversial issues, some the subject of intense discussion in the past, will be aired at the annual meeting here Feb. 21-23 of the Canadian Rugby Union—the time each year when the off-season football gripes reach the boiling point.

The football brass will pound the table and use all the oratory at their command in trying to pull over their pet projects. Representatives of the Big Four Union and the West Canada Conference perhaps will even threaten again to pull both major leagues out of the C. R. U. x

Wash Out Eastern Final

But if the results of the C.R.U. annual meetings of the last few years are any indication, the controversial matters will be left pretty much the same, to be brought up again at future gatherings.

However, there is always the possibility that some far-reaching decision will be taken. It is with this in mind that the action taken on 3 particular proposals will be viewed with more than passing interest.

These are: 1. A two-game Grey Cup final to be held in Toronto and Montreal; 2. Elimination of the eastern Canada final; 3. Demands of the Big Four and Western Canada leagues for majority voting power, particularly on affairs which affect them primarily.

Elimination of the eastern final will be fought vigorously by the Ontario Rugby Football Union, whose champion automatically takes on the Big Four winner. The two top leagues consider the eastern final a waste of time since the O. R. F. U. champions in the post-war years have shown they hardly rate consideration.

Millions of Tickets, But Nary a Tip Come from Pari-Mutuel Print Plant

Winnipeg, Feb. 13—(CP)—Millions of tickets, but nary a tip, come out of a Winnipeg printing plant that produces pari-mutuel tickets for most Canadian race-tracks.

Bulman Brothers have been in the business since the early 1920s when the firm started supplying Winnipeg's River Park with the multi-colored receipts. Their present yearly production of 150,000,000 now turn up at all Canadian tracks with the exception of a few in Quebec province, in Panama, South America and Nassau in the Bahamas.

Eeven at $2 the Bulman pasteboards represent a considerable investment to race fans. But tickets come in higher denominations. Top price now is $20 and at one time a $50 number was turned out for the Woodbine track in Toronto.

Harold McLennan, a Bulman employee for 27 years says the business started with a conversation. Someone asked why tickets which were imported from Chicago could not be made in Winnipeg.

Tough at First

"It was tough at first," he says. "We used to turn them out one day and then hustle them out to River Park for the next.

"Now our tickets are recognized as the best. We're not infallible. Once in a while we make mistakes, but not often."

Tickets are manufactured in 14 colors plus white. Each track has a small design or serial number to designate the track. The design or serial number presents doctoring of ducats which some enterprising persons have tried in the past.

It would be hard for anyone to collect money from a wicket on a doctored Bulman ticket. Each number is hand engraved and has a slight change in character.

A six can't be inverted or inserted as a nine with the aid of a hot iron. People have tried it. Super-imposed spelling of the number doesn't help either.

Tickets are checked for missing numbers, then shipped in such a way that the fellow at the mutuel window can tell at a glance if everything is all right. No waste paper from the manufacturing process is sold. It's consigned to the furnace.

Ironmen Edge Calgary 4-3

(By The Canadian Press)

Seattle Ironmen slipped into Calgary last night for a Pacific Coast Hockey League game and slipped away with a slim 4-3 victory over the Stampeders that was rugged.

Meanwhile, the Canucks stayed home in Vancouver and whipped Victoria Cougars 7-2.

Bill Richardson, Walt Smanski, Nick Tomiuk and Ray Cerresino scored for Seattle and Hank Blade, Frank Ashworth and Hal Brown scored for Calgary.

Redmen Drub Owen Sound 8-2; Galt Wins 15-2

(By The Canadian Press)

Brantford Redmen advanced another step up the Ontario Hockey Association senior A ladder last night when they delighted a home crowd by drubbing Owen Sound Mercurys 8-2.

The Redmen moved into third place in the six team league, eight points behind the runner-up Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen who edged Hamilton Tigers 3-2 at Hamilton in the only other senior A tussle.

In junior A play, Guelph Mercurys consolidated their runner-up position by handing St. Catharines Teepees an 8-2 setback, their worst home-ice beating in months. The other junior clash saw Galt Black Hawks swamp Waterloo Hurricanes 15-2.

Up north, the slow-starting North Bay Black Hawks gained second place in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A race by upsetting the league-leading Sault Ste. Marie 4-2.

Pontiacs Clinch Loop Leadership

Bancroft—Bancroft Pontiacs took undisputed possession of first place in the Hastings-Addington Hockey League when they defeated Tweed by a score of 7 to 4 in North Hastings Arena Monday night.

With only one regular league to play the Pontiacs now have a six point lead over adoc, Tamworth occupies the third spot and this defeat places Tweed in the cellar.

After a slow start the locals finally started to click in the second period and were flying high in the third. Tweed ran in the first three goals on some nice work by Robson and McLaughlin but the Pontiacs had the finishing power when they flashed the red light three times in the final half of the third.

Cec McAlpine and Jim Bruce came into the limelight in the final period when they made end-to-end solo rushes that ended in goals from the sticks of Elwood Brough and Doug Maxwell.

At the last moment Milt McGhee the sub-goaltender for the Pontiacs went in the nets for Tweed. The visitors had not been able to secure a replacement for Stan Cournyea who suffered a groin injury in a recent game. Playing his first game of the year Milt deserved a huge orchid for his performance.

Pontiacs goals were by E. Brough 3, Delyea, Ted Maxwell, Bruce and Doug Maxwell while Robson with a pair and Rivers and McLaughlin with singles accounted for Tweed's goals.

Lineups

Tweed: Goal, McGhee; defence, Cotton and Graham; centre Robson; wings, Cole and Sherry; subs, Meraw, Rivers, McLaughlin, Rupert, Mitchell, Mumby, Reid and Curry.

Bancroft Pontiacs: Goal, Young; defence, McAlpine and Stringer; centre, E. Brough; wings, N. Brough and Delyea; subs, Stuckey, Green, Hogarth, Hattin, Dugald, Ted Haxwell, G. Maxwell, D. Maxwell.

Sought by Police

Lanark, Ont., Feb. 13. (CP)—A 43-year-old Lanark man and his 15-year-old bride were sought by police yesterday after the girl's mother took out a warrant charging the groom with abduction.

John M. Lalonde, 43, married Marjorie Mary McGonegal, last Thursday. They disappeared during the weekend.

Yesterday the girl's mother, Mrs. Elwood McGonegal, decided to take action to fight the match she said she has opposed for some time.

The mother said both signed false affidavits about their ages. Lalonde, who swore he was 37, was really 43. The daughter was 15, not 18 as she said.

Lepine and His Cross-Bred Hounds Have Dog-Derby Practically in 'Bag'

LEPINE GETS WIFELY GREETING

Ottawa, Feb. 13 (CP)—Wilf Lepine, 31-year-old Quebec City musher, all but has his second international sled-dog derby championship tucked in the pocket of his big mackinaw.

Home first with the best time in the first two heats of the three-day event, Lepine, who won in 1950, goes into the final 29-mile lap today leading the field of 19 contestants by more than eight minutes.

In the first two heats, he built up a combined time of 4:19:07. In second place is Dr. Charles Belford of Deerfield, Mass., with 4:27:57, and big Bill Shearer, Boston, Mass., furniture dealer, third with 4:30:08.

Predicted Win

The outspoken Lepine predicted from the start that his team of cross-bred hounds would romp home winners in the three days.

Lepine built up a great reputation in 1950 for his tireless efforts in running most of the course to give his team a better chance. He has a habit of letting go the sled 500 yards from the finish line and running beside his team urging them across it.

Emile Martel, 39-year-old Loretteville, Que., racer, who won the derby last year, moved up from fifth to fourth spot at the end of the second heat yesterday. His combined time was 4:40:44, about four minutes better than Dr. Roland Lombard of Auburndale, Mass., who dropped to fifth with 4:44:03.

Ovide Carrier, Quebec City jailer, is sixth with a combined time of 5:05:17, Sgt. Denis Hayes of Ottawa, sponsored by the Army, seventh with 5:10:18 and Paul Savageau of Quebec City, eighth with 5:11:56.

Mrs. Bunty Dunlop, 26-year-old Bronte, Ont., housewife, running her first big race, appears to have all but copped the special "Capital Sweepstakes" which provides a $300 prize and a $500 gold cup to the woman posting the best combined time in three heats.

Heading into the final heat, she holds a 45-minute lead over her only rival, Mrs. Marie Ouellette of The Pas, Man. Mrs. Dunlop has a combined time of 7:03:37, compared with 7:57:36 for Mrs. Ouellette.

Mrs. Ouellette is driving a strange team of huskies owned by Stan Stayner of Ottawa, who became ill before the race and was unable to compete.

Solly Cantor Now Resident Of Edmonton

By LORNE BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Feb. 13 (CP)—Solly Cantor, the second top-flight boxer to decide in two years to settle in Edmonton, says "I love it here."

Just married a couple of months, 25-year-old Solly and his wife, the former Rita Tressman of Paris, France, moved into an Edmonton bungalow to begin what they hope will be a long stay.

"You have a growing town here," said Cantor, a native of Toronto,—and there is room for opportunity for everybody.

Cantor said he was misquoted several weeks ago in a story which had him saying: "down east it's dog-eat-dog and the devil take the hindmost"

Solly said he wouldn't use such coarse language about his former home town and what he had in mind was this:

"The people here are easy to meet. In the east they are friendly but more reserved. It takes longer to get acquainted."

George Dunn, formerly of Hartford, Conn., ranked 10th among leading challengers for the world's lightweight crown, also fights out of Edmonton now. Dunn, a 25-year-old Negro, visited this booming oil city while on a tour and decided to make his home here.

Train too Tough For B.C. Moose

Toronto, Feb. 13—The moose in British Columbia's north country have long been known as pretty rugged customers, but the other day one of them found out he was not quite rugged enough to tackle a train single handed. The moose ran into the side of a westbound Canadian National Railways' freight train near Bednesti, about 20 miles west of Prince George, unlatched a coal car and spilled half the contents of the car. While inspecting the car, conductor A. A. Clapperton found moose hairs on the ratchet of the car door and the animal's remains about eight cars back.

Several Members Olympic Mercurys Hurt in Crash

Oslo, Feb. 13 (CP)— Canada's Olympic hockey team was involved in a highway accident in Sweden, coach Lou Holmes revealed today. Several players received slight cuts.

The accident occurred last Friday when members of the Edmonton Mercurys were travelling by bus for a game at Laksand.

"The wheels locked as we rounded a curve on the highway and the bus went over a ditch and toppled against a tree," Holmes said.

"It was a mess. The players were tossed around and we were lucky to get out with only slight injuries.

Engelbert Miller received a cut face, George Abel came out with a sore back and Tom Pollock had an arm cut. Another bus picked up the team an hour later and the Mercurys played that night. They won 7-2.

Dredge Naval Base Out Of Ocean Floor

Den Helder, The Netherlands, Feb. 13 (Reuters)—Hydraulic engineers and dike-builders, using centuries of experience to serve defence needs, are building a great new naval base here at the northernmost tip of The Netherlands.

They are scooping the naval base out of the ocean—dredging sand from the ocean floor to form two giant ship basins and then using the sand they have dredged up to build dikes and provide land for shore installations.

When they finish, they will have a brand new base to replace the old tradition-steeped Den Helder, demolished during the German wartime occupation.

It had served as a key harbor in The Netherlands' 18th-century sea battles with England and for three centures was the country's main naval training centre.

Experts say the new base will be virtually bomb-proof, chiefly because of its size. Even the largest bomb, they say, "would only make one more hole in the ocean or perhaps make us a third entrance to our new harbor."

The dikes will be so wide, they say, that no bomb could break them open or do more than limited damage.

A plan for its construction was drawn up in 1947. Its estimated cost at that time was about $7,500,000. The plan calls for construction of two large sea basins, many acres of buildings and workshops, a score of double-sided berths for warships of all sizes, a floating dry dock to hold the largest known battleship and huge protecting dikes.

The work is going on in the Wadden Sea, the stretch of water between the Zuyder Zee dike and Frisian Islands, the chain of islands fringing Holland in the North Sea.

The project is divided into two parts. The first basin will be finished in 1954, the second in 1957.

The project is being paid for entirely out of normal budget funds. But it will cost considerably more than the original estimate of $7,500,000. Already most of that has been spent, and there are several years' work ahead.

Queen Sends Special Messages To Armed Forces

London, Feb. 13. (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II, describing herself as the wife of a serving officer, sent special messages last night to her armed forces over the world. She promised to look out for the "welfare and efficiency" of the forces.

The young Queen said she had a "specially intimate link with the Royal Navy," in which her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, is a lieutenant-commander.

She told the armies her own wartime service in the Auxiliary Territorial Service and personal association with individual regiments have "given me some experience of the varied and onerous tasks which they are called upon to discharge."

The Queen praised the heroic exploits of the Royal Air Force during the war and expressed confidence its men "will continue to display that pride of service and unswerving allegiance to the Crown which they have ever shown."

Radio Says Soviet Forced to Sign Pact With Hitler

London, Feb. 13—(AP)—The Moscow radio said last night the Soviet Union was "forced" to sign its non-aggression pact with Hitler in 1939 to stall for time in building up Russian defences.

(The Moscow broadcast, heard in London, showed a hitherto masked sensitivity of the Kremlin toward criticism of the Stalin-Hitler pact. Western countries in recent U. N. sessions at Paris referred to it more than usual.)

The broadcast carried a Soviet commentator's remarks that communist history students are being taught now that the Kremlin "did not doubt for a minute that sooner or later Hitler would attack the Soviet Union."

The newcomer who had just cut in became my partner in the north. He was an affable chap. But his good nature was no match for the competition we had at the time. It was no time for tricks.

East was dealer and started with an opening bid of one spade. In south I passed. West bid two hearts and my partner promptly doubled; a takeout double ordering me to bid if no bid intervenes.

When east passed the double, I felt some confidence. Even if my partner was a little weak with his takeout double, I had more than he had a right to expect me to hold under the circumstances.

My bid in that spot was three clubs. West doubled; a penalty double. My partner promptly redoubled, confirming confidence in the bid. East and I passed. We went down 1400 points.

When dummy hand went down it was evident that he lacked values promised by a takeout double. But some players think they are so good they can stretch. Which may not be bad if you know what to do next.

So, when I saw dummy hand my body may have jerked a little. Maybe my head settled down into my collar a little. But I assumed he had mistaken my club bid for a diamond bid and let it go at that.

There was nothing for me to say. And I said nothing. When I peeled off the chips to pay the loss, however, I hoped partner would make some explanation. He must have had some reason for his redouble.

But partner said nothing until a kibitzer remarked: "Did you think he bid diamonds?" My partner grinned: "Oh, no. I tried to scare opponents into going back to spades."

It may have been a bright idea. But there are times when it does not pay. One is when opponents are smarter than you.

Col. J. Thompson, Dies in Ottawa

Ottawa, Feb. 13 — (CP)—Col John Thomas Thompson, 80, son of one of Canada's early prime ministers, and a former director of Government Economy Control, died yesterday.

A native of Halifax, he was the son of the late Sir John Thompson, Conservative Prime Minister of Canada from 1892 to 1894, and was educated in England and at Osgoode Hall, Toronto. He practised law in Toronto before moving to Ottawa.

He served overseas in the First World War and was appointed head of the Pensions Commission on his return. Later he became director of Government Economy Control.

It was while in this post in 1943 that reports were published quoting him as charging extravagance and waste in the operation of government offices. He denied the reports but the incident led to his resignation from his government post.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 13 (AP) — Should a girl ask a man for his hand in marriage?

This question has faced women since the beginning of history. Here it is leap year again and the gals have the traditional right to propose marriage to eligible males. But is it wise? A number of Hollywood glamor girls were asked this question and these were their replies:

Maureen O'Hara—"Certainly a girl should propose. There isn't a husband in this world who wasn't manoeuvred into asking for his wife's hand in marriage. But I admit that a girl has to be subtle about it."

Elizabeth Taylor — "Why shouldn't the girl do the asking —if there's a man handy?"

Arlene Dahl—"If her man is the slow type. I think a girl should definitely establish a beachhead. She doesn't have to be too obvious about it, but she can easily work him into a position where he is vulnerable."

Marilyn Maxwell—"Should a girl propose? Certainly! Today there are six or seven women for every worthwhile man. Just like the song says, a good man nowadays is hard to find."

Esther Williams — "Certainly the girl should do the asking, if necessary. The important thing for her is to get a husband, establish her home and have babies. If the man doesn't have brains enough to ask her, she might as well take the initiative."

Joan Crawford—"I see no reason why the girl shouldn't be bold about it. Three of the happiest marriages I know came about because the woman asked the man. As for myself, I'm not observing leap year. I couldn't go through it (marriage) again."

Janet Leigh — "I should say not! If a man didn't think enough of me to ask me to marry him, I wouldn't want him."

AT THE BELLE — In "Payment on Demand", Bette Davis and Barry Sullivan play man and wife whose marriage cracks up because of female ambitions. Frances Dee is the other woman. A funny Newlyweds Comedy and a Pluto Cartoon are added attractions.

AT THE McCARTHY — The talented Nelson family, headed by Ozzie and Harriet, are brought to the screen direct from their popular radio series in Universal-International's new family comedy, "Here Come the Nelsons". Ricky, right, and David Nelson, 11 and 14, respectively, make their screen debut in the new comedy. Rock Hudson is co-starred in "Here Come the Nelsons" and Barbara Lawrence heads the strong supporting cast. The picture opens Thursday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

WATER CONTENT LOWER

Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 13 —(CP) — The Provincial Lands Department says the fire hazard rating for this district may be higher next summer than in the last three years. Rangers studying the season's snowfall say that the water content is much lower than usual.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Thursday, February 14

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Avoid foolish tendency to gamble with securities, personal properties, any assets. Let your better self dominate, and you will never regret acts. Offers to travel may invite, but judge well.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Stimulating aspects for business, finances, propositions well checked (especially in early hours). Brook no deception, underhandedness. Any gain through trickery is not good.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Interesting and benefic day. You working in business concerns, builders, contractors, professional employment all should move forward appreciably toward goals. Aspects improve.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Some less friendly situations for money matters. Watch most carefully all business interests, monies, etc. Above all don't disregard some in p.m. Scrutinize the news!

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Be the diplomat in personal and work activities. Avoid present tendency to take things for granted; work for anything you really want. Ear to the ground, strive to improve trend.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Excellent day for headway in trading, renovating, conferences; for work on future activities; contracts, traveling. Careful attitude and open mind always help.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Strike a sensible pace; don't lag, become complacent. New methods, buying on future possibilities in understood markets favored in measure. Artistic endeavor rates.

October 24 to November 22—Scorpio—Quiet planning, assorting and study of problems early will facilitate your chances of success. Research, confidential work generally favored, but all must be realistically handled.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Take optimistic but practical outlook and attitude. Do your best now with whatever tools and opportunity at hand; don't just wait for "better" days. Adhere to sound fundamentals.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn) — Need not have much trouble with today's tendencies if you hold true to your innate industriousness, concentrate on important things and have faith. P.M. favors personal affairs more.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius) — Some disturbing elements that could grow into large obstacles if you don't watch, check carefully. Exercise your talents, cheerful attitude; use your best qualities, and trust in God.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)— Your sturdy outlook will endorse day's good possibilities. Press on in best way, and day should prove better than just satisfying. You are endowed with good qualities, use them rightly.

YOU BORN TODAY have fresh advantages now, and general outlook urges hard work with admirable achieving. Continue education, learning. Be patient. Don't be easily turned from wise "first" decisions. Be careful in personal habits, and handling private affairs. You could major in science, law, art, music; make good as merchant, in sports. Slow to anger but may procrastinate, be indecisive at wrong time. Check these and you can go as far as you honestly try.

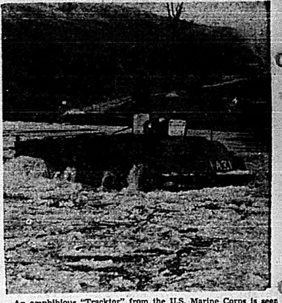
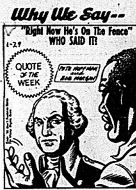
New "Weapon of War"



An amphibious "Tracktor" from the U.S. Marine Corps is seen here breaking up the ice in a Korean river to keep the vital flow of traffic running over a pontoon bridge to Canadian positions on the Korean battlefront. As there is a constant danger that the formation of ice on these rivers will smash up the bridges on these supply routes, this novel method of prevention points up one of the many roles being played by this new fighting vehicle. — Central Press Canadian.



Why We Say--
"Right Now He's On The Fence" WHO SAID IT?
1-29
QUOTE OF THE WEEK
PETE HOFFMAN and BOB MORGAN

A Negro slave made this statement to General George Washington when he was asked whether his master, Judge Imlay of New York, was a Whig or Tory. The answer was, "Right now he's on da fence." And right now that's the way a lot of people feel about politics today. (George Baker, Topeka, Kansas).

Dr. Logan's Wife

By Diana Gaines

Peter lunged toward the desk, and in the instant that Cota sprang back against the wall, Peter felt his outstretched arm hugged firmly against Pelletier's chest. Braked less by Pelletier's restraining weight than by the sheer comfort of contact, Peter relaxed slightly. "You are a faker, Cota," he said, letting his arm drop. "You haven't got a thing on me and you know it. Exactly what should I come clean about? Come on, say it, Dr. Pelletier's a big man, he can take it. And frankly, I'm curious, too."

Cota shrugged. "Surely you do not need me to tell you about yourself," he said with a confidence that shook both men. "Matter of fact, I don't think the FBI needed my assistance either. They have access to the Washington files. . ."

"Washington files?" Peter echoed.

Cota sat down at his desk, moved a few papers, looked up. He addressed Dr. Pelletier. "I see no reason for detaining you further, Doctor, I have nothing more to say, and I have ag reat deal of work to do. The hospital doesn't run itself you know. The problem of Dr. Surinov's loyalty is in much more competent hands than my own. I am not responsible for his past nor am I interested in his future. Good day, please, gentlemen."

Peter's lips clamped like a sprung trap. He felt Walter's glance and met it, expecting to find there commiseration at the rudeness of the dismissal. Instead, he saw worried questioning. He turned and walked out of the office.

He heard Walter's hurrying steps behind him in the hall, felt Walter's fingers tight on his arm. "Peter, is there something you should have told me before?"

He shook his head dispiritedly, "I don't know, Walter."

"Come to the office for a minute. We can talk there."

Peter followed Dr. Pelletier through the back entrance into the consultation room. He sank into a chair, absently flexed his fingers, made a fist, scrubbed the knuckles that had been held back from the superintendent's person. The morning's expenditure of emotion had bought him nothing but a soggy sense of defeat. He said "I suppose you have to be innocent to feel this guilty. It might even be safer to be guilty, at least you'd know when to throw your guard up."

Walter lit a cigarette, sat swiveling in the desk chair.

"What could he mean?" Peter went on, frowning. "The Civil Liberties Union? That's not on the subversive list. The NAACP— that's still okay as far as I know. Washington files, the man says. When I was in college I remember I sent $25 which was my entire bank account at the time to some Spanish Loyalist outfit. Maybe that puts me in the drawer marked 'premature anti-Fascist'. Do you suppose Cota could have tracked me that far back?"

Walter smiled then. "If it's that vague, then forget it. Cota had me worried there for a while. Listen, even if there's some organization you joined that's now verboten, they may discount it. Same thing happened to me. I had to be cleared on this thing too, you know. I'd have sworn they could finecomb my past and not come up with so much as a flake of dandruff. Then one night—funny how you begin to remember things— that clearance period is nerve-racking—well, one night Stella tells me she remembers she sent a check in 1946 to some organization—Friends of the USSR or some such name. She thought it was for Russian children's relief, but we looked it up on the attorney-general's list and there it is—a subversive outfit, a front. Can you imagine that? I bossed plenty, don't think I didn't. But if they did track it down my record must have outweighed it."

"It's a joke," Peter said, snorting. "The country is screaming for scientists but it won't let them in the laboratories to work. We're the most valued and most distrusted men in the country today. How can the government expect young men of intelligence and integrity to come into profession where they're treated like criminals. You're not even granted a criminal's right of self-defence."

The door opened a few inches and the secretary talked through the aperture. "Dr. Pelletier, the patients are standing all the way into the hall. Will you be free to see them soon?"

"Right away, my dear. Right away. I'll buzz you."

Peter got up. "I'm sorry, Walter."

"If he's trying to frame you, I'll tell you right now he won't get away with it."

Peter made no answer.

Walter stood up, put out his hand. "Keep me posted Peter."

"Yup."

And then, loath to let Peter go, Pelletier followed him through the back door, flung his arm across his slouched shoulders. "Peter you are young and you're angry. I'm too-old to be angry. But I beg you to sit tight for a while. As long as your conscience is clear, I'm not worried. Sit tight. The stakes are worth it. You may have the recipe for the antidote to atomic bombing —remember that. You may be the one to find the security the world is looking for. Let's hope the government won't bar you from that chance. It's a paradoxical situation, but there it is."

"Sure, I'll sit it out," Peter said.

Stella Pelletier with the matchmaking drive of a satisfied wife, had said, when she heard that her husband had asked Peter to pay them a visit Thanksgiving night "then I'll invite Jennet to have dinner with us. Her mother's gone, she's alone and I'd like to see those two children get together."

And Jennet, hoping to encounter Peter there, had accepted with alacrity.

As did everyone who fell within the warm circle of the Pelletiers, Jennet felt relaxed and at home with them on that family holiday. The boys, aged 12, 10 and eight, were scrubbed, untidy and garrulous. Their lively faces which resembled but did not repeat each other were, Jennet thought, the gayest table decorations she had seen for some time. The children made a great fuss over the turkey for which only the 12-year-old ultimately had appetite, and Jennet remembered her own reluctance as a child to eat the bird which always came, after weeks of school stories to seem more human than John Alden himself.

Jennet's own appetite was lost to the memory of her initial meeting with Peter—here, at this table, under the crystal wheel of light, facing this portion of scenic wallpaper, genderless idyl of willow and pond—and to the still live hope of his coming here tonight. In the welter of children's talk, her lapses of attention and her picking at her plate went unnoticed.

After dinner, the boys, lured by television, disappeared into the upper regions of the house, and Jennet and Stella and Walter sipped brandy in the quiet of the living room.

Stella raised her great gentian eyes to her husband who, thus cued, said "I'd be glad to see you get out and get busy, Jennet, but at this particular time, I'm not sure the hospital is a good idea. Peter is in a little trouble right now. . ."

"Well, I'm trying to get him reinstated at the hospital. We're waiting for a federal clearance —that is, Peter has to be passed on as a good security risk. Some of his enemies, particularly Maxwell Cota, would be only too glad to throw a monkey-wrench into things. In fact, Cota seems to have some ace up his sleeve already—he hinted as much. That's why I feel—in view of the —er—trouble last June, it might be better for him—and for you too—if you steered clear of Angels until the situation is under control."

When the chimes rang a few minutes later, Jennet's head swung to the sound.

"That must be Peter now," Stella said, without looking up from her needles. "Why don't you answer it, Jennet?"

Jennet opened the front door. Peter's eyes widened at the sight of her and then he grinned. "Looks like I've got more to be thankful for than I thought."

She pulled him inside, put her face against his coat. "Peter, I tried to phone you. . ."

He lifted her face with his hand, bent to her mouth.

When, remembering the Pelletiers at last, she pulled away from his kiss, she was surprised to feel tears under her lashes.

They stayed the space of time it took Peter to drink a highball, but it seemed a long time to Jennet, the more so since Peter did not seem to be in a hurry to depart. They sat beside each other on the couch.

"My plan," Walter was saying, "is to present your clearance and the grant to the Medical Executive Committee and to request your reinstatement. But I hope you're not going to be skittish about signing the oath, Peter. That's a must now at Angels. You're not going to balk again on that?"

"Walter, you know how I feel about test oaths," Peter said. "I think they stink. But," he reached for Jennet's hand. "There's too much at stake to balk at that now. Put it this way. When the oath first came up. I stood with the guys who said 'Why?' Now," he said, looking at Jennet, "I'm a why-notter."

"You don't have to sound so sheepish about it," Walter said. "I'll tell you, Peter, maybe I rationalize but to me this is no time for frontier attitudes. There aren't any more frontiers. It's no time for absolute certainties. It's a period of flux, of changing creeds and ideologies, and in time of change, one makes compromises. One has to get along. We're caught between two American ways of thought. The democratic ways, the democratic society which favors individual independence and says 'Stand on your own two feet.' And the authoritarian society, the capitalistic outgrowth which says 'Be a good boy and mind the boss and then you'll get protection and an electric dishwasher.' Obviously, these are opposite ideals— independence and submission. Yet, they exist side by side in America today. Naturally, the individual is conflicted. Let's face it. The society in which we live is unstable. The economic contradictions alone are enough to make us a nation of schizophrenics let alone the moral ones. But the strong have to stay and fight. Maybe out of this struggle between authority and democracy will come a new creed, a way of living in peace and international amity. That's what we have to stay and fight for."

MADOC

ST. PETER'S W.M.S.

Madoc—St. Peter's W.M.S. February meeting was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Walden with a good attendance. The hymns and scripture readings were chosen as a memorial to our late King George VI.

A report on the presbyterial annual meeting held in Kingston was given by Miss Vankleek.

A letter was read from a missionary Mrs. Rumball who is now in Korea and who had visited Madoc two years apo. It was an interesting letter telling of her work there.

The topic "The Church and State in South America" was taken by Mrs. Heslip, she told of the work being done by the Presbyterian Church there. Mrs. Jack Bailey and Mrs. G. Alvey read articles on the work.

A pleasant half hour was spent with the hostess being assisted by Miss Vankleek and Mrs. Armstrong in serving afternoon tea.

Rinfret Appointed To Quebec Bench In Cabinet Shuffle

P.M. Names Alcide Cote As Postmaster-General

Ottawa, Feb. 14—(CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent in a slight shuffle of his cabinet yesterday replaced his postmaster-general with a 48-year-old Liberal member of parliament.

Postmaster-General Rinfret, 46-year-old Montreal lawyer, goes to the Quebec court of Queen's bench. Replacing him is Alcide Cote, member for the Quebec constituency of St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville.

Mr. Cote was sworn into his new post yesterday.

The prime minister also announced the appointment of John H. Dickey, Liberal member for Halifax, as parliamentary assistant to Production Minister Howe. The post was vacated last week by George McIlraith, Liberal member for Ottawa West, who remains as Mr. Howe's parliamentary assistant in the minister's trade portfolio.

Confirms Speculation

The appointment of Mr. Rinfret to the Quebec bench confirms speculation which has been prevalent for several weeks. Mr. Rinfret first entered the Commons in 1945 and has been postmaster - general since August, 1949. He is a son of Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Cote, a lawyer, was born at St. Johns, Que., in 1903 and is unmarried. He is a direct descendent of Jean Cote, one of the first settlers of Canada.

Mr. Cote was a representative and delegate of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities at the meeting of the International Union of Cities in The Hague, The Netherlands, in 1948. He served as mayor of St. Johns from 1945 to 1949.

In preparation for the parliamentary opening Feb. 28, the prime minister also announced that E. Q. George, Liberal member for Westmorland, will move the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. The address will be seconded by Andre Gauthier, Liberal member for Lac St. Jean.

Fewer Motor Vehicles Sold, More Taxes Paid

Toronto, Feb. 14 — Canadians purchased 45,000 fewer motor vehicles in 1951 than in 1950 but paid $53 million more for them in federal taxes, according to the latest report from the Canadian Automobile Manufacturers Research Service.

Sales of vehicles in Canada fell from 429,000 in 1950 to 384,000 last year while collection of federal taxes on motor vehicles over the same period jumped from $91,000,000 to $144,000,000. Passenger cars are subjected to a 25 per cent excise and 10 per cent sales tax. Excise tax is not imposed on commercial vehicles.

The drop in sales was reflected in a decline in employment by auto manufacturers from 37,000 in January 1951 to 30,000 in December and a drop in monthly wages for the corresponding period from $11 million to $7 million.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 14. (CP)—Synopsis: The current cold spell in Ontario shows no signs of ending. Temperatures again were near the zero mark in southern sections this morning and 20 to 30 degrees below zero in northern sections.

The storm that has been moving across the eastern United States during the past 24 hours is causing an area of rain, snow and freezing rain south of the lower lakes. The only evidence of the storm in Ontario will be cloudy skies and strong winds in regions bordering on the lower lakes.

Friday will be generally sunny and cold over the province.

Chinese Troops Said Battling Among Selves

Rangoon, Burma, Feb. 14—AP Chinese nationalist troops on Burma's border with China today were reported battling among themselves over the division of operations between two cliques. The reports said there were heavy losses on both sides.

Remnants of nationalist troops under command of Brig. Wan Ywe Wai clashed with locally-recruited guerrillas at Muse, on the border between east central Burma and China's Yunnan province.

Reports reaching Rangoon tended to confirm that Gen. Li Mi no longer commands the 15,000-man remnant of two Chinese armies he previously has led on large-scale raids into Yunnan. The troops recently have been operating from hideouts in eastern Burma.

The latest reports here said Li Mi's command was taken over by Lt.-Gen. Nui Kwoh Chwen, commander of the remnant 26th army of nationalist China. The 26th army and the remains of the eighth army had been under Li's command and were the last to escape from China after the nationalist defeat in 1949-50.

Two Trainmen Injured

Lindsay, Feb. 14 — (CP) Two trainmen were injured yesterday when two freight cars and a caboose were derailed near Manilla, nine miles west of here.

Harold Watkins of Toronto, the conductor, suffered second degree burns, shock and bruises. Reginald Hodgson of Burnt River, Ont., the brakeman suffered shock and bruises.

A-Energy Heats House, Lights Lamp, Practical Atomic-Power Objective

Oak Ridge, Tenn., Feb. 14 — (CP)—Atomic energy is heating a house here and lighting electric lamps in Idaho.

And "in the not-too-distant future" energy from atoms in atomic ovens may replace such electric power systems as the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The prediction was made by Dr. Alvin Weinberg, research director at the Oak Ridge national laboratory, who spoke to newspapermen on a tour of the laboratory.

Dr. Weinberg said the house heated by atomic energy had used winds that cool the Oak Ridge oven. This method, in use for four years, involved carrying the air through filters and concrete ducts and then up a 200-foot smokestack.

The lights are lit by electricity generated by the atomic reactor at Arco, Idaho. The heat from splitting atoms is used to make steam to run a generator, Dr. Weinberg said.

So far, he added, only a few kilowatts of electricity have been produced. But the prospects for really useful power were looking up.

One hope is a new kind of oven, the homogeneous reactor. In these, the uranium is dissolved in a liquid soup, not used as rods of metal inside a great block of graphite.

There is hope, Dr. Weinberg said, that "in the not-too-indefinite future, we may put the T. V. A. out of business. We may push the button to turn T. V. A. off and turn nuclear energy on."

It is "no longer really a question of whether we can make atomic energy work this way. We have to make it work."

He cited figures indicating that coal preserves would be exhausted in 468 years at present rates of use, and usage is going up. Coal might even be in short supply "by the time your grandchildren die."

But it is estimated that we have in uranium 100 times the energy in our reserves of coal.

LABOR MINISTER SAYS PROGRESS MADE IN TALKS

Faces Brighter In Automotive City

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 14—(CP)—Faces are brighter in this strike-threatened automotive city than at any other time since a series of wage contract talks between the Ford Motor Company of Canada and the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) broke down Monday in Toronto.

The discussions were resumed yesterday after Labor Minister Daley came from Toronto to get the parties together again. When the conferences were adjourned last night until this afternoon, Mr. Daley gave the word that brought hope to Windsor citizens:

"Progress has been made."

Today's program calls for union and management delegates to confer in separate groups during the morning in a effort to work towards agreement on the dispute that started last March.

The union has set 10 p.m. Sunday as the deadline for a strike in the big Ford plant.

Union members staged an unauthorized 12-day walkout in December. Then they scheduled a new strike for Jan. 27 but cancelled it after Mr. Daley arranged for the talks in Toronto. Now unless the latest discussions iron out the differences in the dispute, a midwinter walkout looms.

"This time we'll not go past the deadline," George Burt, U.A.W. Canadian director, said after a meeting of 200 union stewards voted unanimously in favor of a walkout, if necessary. He made the statement before the present Ford-U.A.W. discussions were arranged.

Reporters Barred

Reporters were barred from the suite in the downtown Prince Edward Hotel in which the company and union negotiators were closeted for several hours last night. Twice, the union delegates emerged briefly to go into a private huddle but each time they went back into the main conference room to continue the joint talks.

Except for Mr. Daley's announcement, there was no indication of the direction the talks were taking. Officials on both sides have agreed to keep silent until a decision is reached.

Principal sticking point in the Toronto negotiations was the framing of a seniority clause acceptable to both union and company. The union, however, has been critical of the company's insistence on discussing contract clauses in an "arbitrary" order and of its refusal to set aside contentious matters for later discussion. Union officials say they want to see "the whole package" which is being offered to them.

In this western Ontario industrial city, across the Detroit River from Detroit, one person in every three is directly dependent on the Ford plant for a livelihood. Twelve thousand workers were made idle by the December tieup.

The funeral service is expected to end about 9:35 a.m. All CBC stations will then close down until 2 p.m. E.S.T. when the National Memorial Service from Ottawa will be carried until 3.30 p.m.

All CBC stations will again close down until 6 p.m. local time in all time zones. At 6 p.m. local time, the funeral services will be rebroadcast.

Windsor Reported Asking Queen to Let Him Stand Honor Guard at Bier of King

London, Feb. 14 (CP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury, Britain's foremost Anglican churchman, bowed in prayer beside the closed coffin of the King today as people by the thousands filed silently past.

This was the third day of the King's lying-in-state in Westminster Hall. Tomorrow the body will be lifted on a gun carriage and taken by train to Windsor, burial place of Kings.

Sorrowing Britons continued to pay their respects in such numbers that palace officials decided not to shut the great iron-strapped doors of the nine-century-old hall until 5 a.m. tomorrow.

This is only 3½ hours before the ceremonial cortege starts for Paddington station amid the dirges of massed bands and artillery salutes of the state funeral. Originally, it was planned to close the doors at 10 tonight.

Before that hour, it was reported without confirmation that the Duke of Windsor asked to be allowed to stand a watch at the candle-lighted bier, as he and his three brothers did 16 years ago for their father, King George V.

The Duke, who arrived from New York yesterday, was said to have besought Queen Elizabeth II for Royal permission to stand beside the body of the brother to whom he relinquished the throne.

As the greying Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, bowed for a few minutes in front of the purple-draped catafalque and then turned away through the famed star chamber door, palace officials put their seal to the final order of the funeral march.

The young Queen, her mother, and her sister, Princess Margaret, and the King's sister, the Princess Royal, will ride in a carriage close behind the body.

Then on foot and abreast will follow the four Royal Dukes: Windsor who was once Edward VIII; Gloucester, the King's other living brother; Edinburgh, the Queen's husband; and 16-year-old Kent, nephew of the King.

Pulled by Sailors

A bearer party of the Brigade of Guards will lift the coffin from its catafalque to grey-green gun carriage. Sailors of the Royal Navy will pull the carriage through the streets with the glittering state crown, orb and sceptre and the King's insignia of the Order of the Garter laid on top.

Throughout the lying-in-state and the services at Windsor the coffin is kept closed, as is traditional at the funerals of kings.

Bands of the R.A.F. and Welsh Guards will lead the procession, followed by 10,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen of Britain and the Commonwealth countries.

Diplomats will follow the troops. Included will be representatives of Russia, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia and Poland from behind the Iron Curtain.

Five crowned heads of Europe, and the chiefs-of-state and their representatives from dozens of countries will follow the royal family.

The King's aides-de-camp, pipers, household officials and the Monarch's master of the horse will immediately precede the gun carriage. Equerries, flanked by colorful Yeomen of the Guard, will walk close beside it.

Will Carry Standard

Immediately behind will come the household cavalry warrant officer carrying the King's scarlet, gold and blue personal standard.

Just ahead of the aides-de-camp will be chaplains and high officers of the armed forces, including three former chiefs of the Imperial General Staff, Viscounts Ironside, Alanbrooke and Montgomery and Admirals of the Fleet Lord Tovey, the Earl of Cork and Orrery, (the former William Henry Dudley Boyle) Lord Chatfield and Sir Charles M. Forbes.

Sources close to Queen Elizabeth indicated there were no definite plans as yet for the Duke of Windsor and the other royal dukes to mount guard together at the catafalque. It is unlikely that any such plans would be announced beforehand.

Windsor was reported to have asked his mother, Queen Mary, for permission to stand guard beside the coffin. She was reported to have sent him to the Queen for royal permission.

CANADA TO BUILD F-86 SABRE JETS IN QUANTITY

Will Help Build Up Air Forces for West

Ottawa, Feb. 14—(CP)—Canada is going to produce F-86 Sabre jet fighters in quantity to help build up the air forces of Gen. Eisenhower's western defence bulwark.

An announcement made simultaneously here and in Washington and London last night, said Canada has joined with United States and Britain in a tri-country agreement to build, equip and man "squadrons" of this first-line operational jet fighter.

The planes will be built at the big Canadair, Limited, plant at Montreal, with Canada making the air frames. The engines and other equipment, such as radio, will be supplied by the United States and the fighters will be turned over to the R.A.F. which will man them to "strengthen the North Atlantic Treaty force."

The new arrangement will not interfere with production by Canadair of several hundred Sabres now being produced for the R.C.A.F. to equip squadrons Canada has promised to send to Europe.

The announcement did not indicate when production would begin but said the number would run into "some hundreds". The planes will go to form R.A.F. "squadrons". A modern fighter squadron consists of about 20 planes.

Just what this new development will mean in dollar value as a Canadian contribution to European defence was not indicated. Canada's aid-to-Europe program — including arms shipments aboard and air training in this country—has run to $325,000,000 in the last two fiscal years.

External Affairs Minister Pearson recently said it would be upped and there are reports it will touch $200,000,000 in the next fiscal year, in addition to Canadian expense for the building of airfields and communications in Europe.

The tri-country arrangement to produce Sabres results from discussions between ministers and service heads of the three countries.

Dim Outlook For Cheese Exports to U.K.

Ottawa, Feb. 14 — (CP)—Canada's traditional market for cheese in the United Kingdom may be obliterated by Britain's import slashes, trade officials disclosed today.

Last year Ontario cheese producers sold the U. K. about 25,000,000 pounds of cheddar and it was expected earlier this year that the contract may be renewed for 1952.

However(the latest word from Britain is that Canada can expect no contract for cheese in 1952 because of Britain's lack of dollars and urgent need to cut down on imports.

Mining Engineer Group Informed Of New Way of Garnering Gasoline

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Gorgas, Ala., Feb. 14 (AP) — A coal fire, lighted under an oil well to produce more petroleum, is the new step in conservation of gasoline.

The discovery was described here yesterday to enthusiastic mining scientists attending the first international conference on underground gasification of coal. The process was reported by Frederick Squires and Edmund S. Merriam of Champaign, Ill.

They said there are seams of coal in many oil fields. A hole is drilled down to a seam, and the coal there is set on fire and sealed in such a way as to force the gases from the fire out long distances underground.

No matter whether the oil sands are over or under the coal, the gas reaches the oil and forces it up the petroleum wells. The Illinois scientists said a similar trick can be done, where there is no coal, by burning some of the oil in the sands to produce gas to make the wells flow again.

This oil recovery is an off-shoot of the underground cooking of coal to substitute for mining here at Gorgas.

The newest trick was shown yesterday. Electricity is used to boil the coal underground. This saves digging shafts.

Holes 60 feet apart are drilled down to a coal seam, electric cables are lowered down each hole and current flows through the coal between the two cable ends

The electrical heat boils the coal. Rich gases boil off and rise through the holes to be trapped for industrial use.

$30,000 in Gold Precipitates Found Under House Step

Three Youths Held, Face Charges of Armed Robbery

Timmins, Feb. 14 (CP)—Three Timmins youths were arrested late yesterday and early today and charged with armed robbery in connection with the theft Tuesday of gold precipitates from the nearby Aunor Gold Mines.

Police recovered $30,000 in gold precipitates under the back step of an unidentified Timmins home.

In police custody are Calvin Craik, 21, an employee of the company, Kenneth Eastman, 19, a grocery store clerk and Reuben Utriainen, 20, a hardware store clerk.

Craik, one of three men seized and bound by the thugs, was picked up as he worked at the mine early today. Police said he was the inside man in the theft, which mine manager R. E. Findlay had described as an "inside job from the word go." The other youths were arrested shortly before midnight.

Police said the toboggan used to haul the loot one-quarter mile from the mill, where the precipitates were taken from 10 canvas sacks, was found outside the mine mill. Several locks knocked off the precipitation press also were found under the porch steps, police said.

Had Inside Knowledge

Wearing hoods of black stockings and brown overalls, the bandits committed the fourth major robbery in this gold-rich Porcupine area since June, 1950, shortly before 4 a.m. Tuesday.

The bandits, armed and working with inside knowledge of the operations of the mine, tied and gagged Yvon Guillemette at a pump house adjoining the mill, dragged him inside a 55-foot-long tunnel and left him there. They then entered the mill through the tunnel and also tied up Antony Ferri, another mill worker. Craik told police they had left him tied up.

The precipitates were stuffed in long cotton bags, carried through a window and loaded on a toboggan. The loot was dragged to an awaiting getaway car.

Inspector Harold Graham of the provincial police flew to Timmins yesterday to investigate the theft and called in Det. Sgt. Gordon Peacock of the Timmins police, who discovered the precipitates.

Will Publish On Friday

In common with all provincial dailies, the Ontario Intelligencer will be published as usual on Friday.

FIVE GUARDS DISMISSED

New York, Feb. 14—(AP) — Five Ellis Island guards have been dismissed, one has resigned and 26 others face possible reprimand, suspension or dismissal on charges of charging aliens for special privileges.

The guards are charged with demanding fees for letting island inmates go off limits to use telephones; permitting gambling games to be run in recreation rooms; taking aliens to expensive restaurants and letting the internees pay for all food and drinks.

Young Prince Remains Puzzled About Grandpapa

London, Feb. 14 (Reuters) — "Where is grandpapa?"

This plaintive question is asked almost every day by Prince Charles. And the reply, from his mother or father, is always:

"He has gone to God and is very happy."

The young Prince remains puzzled, however. The nursery routine for him and his sister, Princess Anne, has remained unchanged since the death of the King last week and all Charles knows is that he no longer sees his grandfather.

Each morning the Prince and 18-month-old Princess play happily in the nursery of Clarence House. Later there is an outing in a nearby park with their nurse.

Tomorrow, the day the King is buried, the pattern will be the same. Charles will not realize that his grandfather is dead and that his mother is Queen. He will not attend the funeral.

He and Princess Anne will probably spend the morning indoors in their nursery. They are accustomed to their parents going away, particularly since Elizabeth and Philip went on their six-week tour of Canada.

Clarence House employees try to behave normally and cheerfully so that unnecessary sorrow will not touch the children.

Will Mean Change

By the death of King George will mean a change for them.

The Queen is expected to move from Clarence House into Buckingham Palace some time before the coronation. Neither date is known.

Daily routine of her children is not likely to be changed until they have settled into new nurseries in Buckingham Palace.

The move into the palace will mean that even the children's afternoon car drives, will become much more formal affairs than they were at Clarence House.

There always are people watching and waiting outside the palace, even when the Royal Family is not in residence. So there will not be as much chance for privacy.

When he starts his schooling Prince Charles may go to Eton, famous public school, followed by Oxford University and later the navy.

Princess Anne may well do as her mother did as a child—study with a governess at home.

CONSTRUCT ANTENNA

Columbus, O., Feb. 14 — (CP) — A radio telescope with 48 antennas is being constructed at Ohio State University and scientists hope that when it is completed they will be able to hear the sounds produced by stars 1,000,000 light years away. The stars produce a "frying sound," said Professor John Kraus, who is conducting the construction of the apparatus, largest in existence and the only one of its particular design.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will fall in at 10.15 and move to the church at 10.30.

The regimental pipe band of the Anti Tank Regiment will skirl the unit to and from the church.

Following the service both regiments will observe the traditional drinking of the toasts to His Majesty King George VI and Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. The ceremonies will take place in the respective officers' messes.

MARMORA

Wellington Bows To Marmora 6-5

Marmora—A fast and evenly contested game of hockey was seen at the Marmora arena on Wednesday evening when the homesters defeated Wellington in the Trent Valley League by the score of 6-5. A crowd of about three hundred was on hand.

Jones for Marmora played the best game of his career getting a goal in each period and being in on two assists.

His partner Mantle netted once and obtained three assists. Stewart of the same line netted also as well as Gray. It was the first game of the season for the first line to fail to score. For the losers, Twigg did the hat trick and Scott their centre who scored once also had three assists to his credit.

Lineups:

Wellington: Parks, Platford, Scott, Twigg, Cassiro. Alternates, Cork, Lightfoot, Pettingill, Istead, Lord, Dumais.

Marmora: Killian, Moynes, Gray, Forestell, Lavender, Trumble. Alternates, Jones, Mantle, Stewart, Kerr, Brown, Smith, Doyle, Darrah. Spare goalie, Drummond.

Referees: Aquino and Scarrow.

LIFE MAY BECOME LONGER

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 14. (CP)—Within the half quarter century the average life span will become 100 to 120 years, a noted doctor predicted last night. "Medical science has given us a 25-year longer life in the past 50 years," said Dr. Edward Bertz, past president of the American Medical Association, in an address here. "They're going to give us 25 years more in the next 50 years."

'One-Night Blitz' To Be Used To Raise Funds for Red Cross

The annual fund-raising campaign of the Belleville branch of the Red Cross will again take the form of a "one-night blitz" that proved so successful last year.

This was decided at the first meeting of the new executive of the branch held in St. Thomas' Parish House on Tuesday. The 1952 chairman, Judge J. C. Anderson, presided.

Alan Sprague has been named general chairman of the campaign committee and will form a strong executive to assist him in the "lightning drive" scheduled for March 11th. Campaign headquarters has been established at Trudeau Motors, 125 Front Street next the Capitol Theatre, where plans are now under way for the conducting of the drive.

Incidentally any volunteer assistance for typing will be greatly appreciated by the chairman and his staff. Phone 5097.

The executive endorsed a more definite policy for relief cases to avoid overlapping with the city welfare department, and to emphasize the fact the Red Cross is an emergency and catastrophe service.

Chairman of the Blood Donor Committee, Rod Cameron announced that the next clinic will be held March 28th at Kiwanis Centre.

Reports were heard from Mrs. Jack Buchanan, Homemakers Service and the treasurer, C. S. Lowther.

Mrs. W. C. Mikel was named by the branch for membership on the executive of the Ontario Division.

Delegates named to attend the annual Ontario Division convention being held in Toronto on March 19 included Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, Mrs. Mary Bulger Mrs. Herbert McCabe; Mr. C. S. Lowther and Judge Anderson. Mrs. Fred Deacon was named an alternate.

Homemaking Clubs to Hold Achievement Day

Homemaking clubs in Hastings county will hold their achievement day at Madoc on Saturday when club members from all parts of the county will meet to exhibit and discuss their year's project. Project for the year was "working with wool."

The girls will convene in the morning at the Trinity United Church Sunday School room where registration will be held at nine o'clock. Exhibits will be placed and judging will be completed before lunch. During the afternoon there will be comments on exhibits, demonstrations and skits, with discussion on program planning and presentation of certificates.

The day will be held under the direction of Miss Elsie Irvine, home economist.

PROTESTS IN HOUSE

Bonn Germany, Feb. 14. (Reuters)—Dr. Hugo Decker protested in parliament yesterday against the import of "French nudes and semi-nudes in filthy magazines". His complaint that are dealers did not have enough foreign currency to do business resulted in a demand by the house that more money be set aside to pay for import of art from abroad.

Over 200 Enjoy Three-Act Play, 'Simple Simon Simple'

Rawdon.—Last Friday evening, over 200 people gathered at Mount Pleasant Rawdon United Church hall and enjoyed the three-act play entitled "Simple Simon Simple".

This comedy was staged in the living room of the simple home with Scene 1—A day in summer around noon; Scene II—A night scene ten days later and in the third act the scene was the following morning.

The cast was as follows:

Simon Simple, an inventor, Herbert Smith. He invented numerous contraptions which did not bring financial success.

Sophie Simple, his wife, Hazel Sharp. She gave the impression that money was the joy of her life.

Minerva Webb, who boards at the Simple's, Marguerite McMullen. She was dressed in the latest fashions and found herself in several predicaments.

Hazel Hawkins, Sammy's fiancee, Nellie Smith. She was an ardent radio fan especially interested in soap programs.

Elwood Elkins, just back from the city, Eric Summers. He was a persistent suitor.

Good Clean Fun

The play was full of good clean fun, with lots of excitement and in the last scene many unhappy episodes were straightened out and everyone was delighted with the results.

The pastor, Rev. R. R. Bonsteel, welcomed the guests, who had gathered from all nearby points, filling the hall to near capacity. The characters of the play were introduced by Mrs. Kenneth Weaver.

Between Act I and II Kalvin Sharp and Carol Sharpe sang two numbers in costume with Mrs. Malcolm Sharp as accompanist. The first selection "Bicycle Built for Two", had a decorated tricycle and then they rendered "Slow-Poke".

Between Acts II and III Mrs. Percy MacMullen recited "The Inventor's Wife". Raeburn Scott and David Potts sang, "A Lonely Little Robin", with Mrs. Carleton Potts as accompanist. Mrs. Potts also contributed piano music as the guests were arriving.

Mr. Bonsteel extended thanks to all who had helped to make the evening a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Sharp and members of the Two-by-Two Club served sandwiches, pie and coffee, which had been provided by the women of the community.

The proceeds amounted to $125 and after expenses, this will be the beginning of a fund to purchase chairs for the hall.

The play cast have several engagements booked elsewhere.

Potato Shortage Pushes Prices Much Higher Than Year Ago

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 14—(CP)—An unusual potato shortage in Canada has pushed prices three times higher than a year ago, and placed new wealth in the hands of the successful potato grower.

It has also reversed a traditional trading pattern. Canada, which usually sells most of her surplus potatoes to the United States, is leaning more and more on American supplies to fill the gap in her needs.

The irony is that in this potato crop year which started last July the United States has been prepared to allow a bigger quota on shipments of Canadian potatoes to the U.S. market. However, Canada has sent only a fraction of her normal exports.

The root cause was a drop in Canadian production and a slight decline in American production too. Total output in Canada dropped to 67,195,000 bushels, one of the smallest crops in recent years, and 30,000,000 bushels below the total produced the previous year.

Acreage was trimmed to 400,900 in 1951, compared with 505,200 acres in 1950. Yields dropped from 192 to 168 bushels per acre.

This combination of factors has hoisted the wholesale price to about $3.75 for a 75-pound sack, compared with $1.25 a year ago. Retail prices currently run around $4.50 for 75 pounds.

Exports Slashed

Exports to all countries since last July have declined to 1,940,000 bushels from 3,799,000 bushels in the previous year. The United States, prepared to receive up to 6,600,000 bushels of Canadian spuds at the half-tariff rate, was shipped about 831,000 bushels.

On the other hand, Canada, which usually starts buying new American potatoes in April, May and June before her own are ready, is already digging into the American stockpile with dozens of carloads arriving in Canada. This trend is likely to continue as long as the Canadian price remains high and as long as the scarcity continues.

The American decision to increase imports from Canada at the reduced tariffs had nothing to do with the Canadian shortage, but was the result of a long-standing agreement. Under this agreement Canada may ship a total of 3,500,000 bushels at the low rate, plus any fall-off in American production below 350,000,000 bushels. The reduced tariff is 37½ cents per hundredweight, or one-half the regular 75-cent rate.

The current shortage in Canada has helped to put a hole in the family budget, but there is one consolation for the housewife. Usually, when the farmer makes a killing on a crop, he tries to boost his earnings still further by expanding the crop the following year.

That is what the experts believe the farmers will do with potatoes next summer. They foresee a much larger crop with a possible surplus, pushing down prices from the current levels.

Obituary

JOSEPH R. NASH
(Tyendinaga)

Following a sudden seizure, Joseph R. Nash, 7th concession of Tyendinaga, died at his residence on Wednesday of coronary thrombosis. He was in his 41st year.

Son of the late John Nash and former Sarah Bennett, now Mrs. John Brennan, Mr. Nash was born in Tyendinaga township and spent all of his life in that locality.

A truck and school bus driver, he was a member of St. Charles' Roman Catholic Church in Read, the Holy Name Society and the Knights of Columbus.

Surviving besides his widow, the former Mary Francos Shannon, are five children, James Joseph, John William, Mary Helen, Gerald Francis, and Mary Teresa, all at home.

Also surviving are three sisters, Mrs. Fred (Mary) Powell, of Mallorytown; Mrs. Ciderick (Lucy) Hillman, of Petrolia, and Mrs. William (Ann) Whalen, of Belleville, and one brother, Edward, of Roslin.

Resting at the Corrigan and O'Brien Funeral Home, the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition

MRS. FLORENCE REID
(Millbrook)

Following an illness of a few weeks, Mrs. Florence Reid, Millbrook, died in Peterborough Civic Hospital on February 11.

Born at Madoc, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Connor, she was educated in the public and high schools there. She moved to Millbrook about 20 years ago and was a member of the United Church in that village.

Surviving besides her husband, Arthur Reid, are two daughters, Mrs. James (Lois) Sanders of Millbrook, Mrs. George (Phylis) Olenick of Hamilton; two sons, Russell and Beverly of Millbrook; five brothers, W. E. and Alfred of Madoc, Rev. Charles of Vancouver, Howard of Tweed, Russell of Waterford, Ontario, and two sisters, Mrs. Egbert (Mae) Demorest of Madoc and Mrs. Laura Tremneur of Arthur, Ontario.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday at her residence in Millbrook to Trinity United Church in Madoc with Rev. F. Lane, assisted by Rev. A. L. Sisco of Tweed, officiating. Mr. Sisco was a former minister in Millbrook and a friend of the family.

A duet was sung by Mrs. Adams and Mr. Holmes.

Pallbearers were Russell Lewis, Charles Conley, Goldie Ellis, Charles Morrison, Arthur Parks and Arnold Gaebel.

Interment was in Lakeview cemetery.

RAYMOND EARL GRAY
(Marmora)

Funeral services for Raymond Earl Gray were held on Wednesday from his residence in Marmora to St. Andrew's United Church. The service was conducted by Rev. G. D. Young.

Pallbearers were Ralph Empey, Henry Empey jr., Ross Lake, Roy Lake, Patrick Trunlan and Herbert Williams.

Burial was in Marmora cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

FRAIN. — In loving memory of our baby son Tommy who passed away February 14, 1943, age one year, 9 months.

No stain was on his little heart,
Sin had not entered there.
And innocence slept sweetly on
That pale white brow so fair.
He was too pure for this cold earth,
Too beautiful to stay.
And so God's holy angel bore
Our darling one away.

—Ever remembered by Mummy and Daddy. F14

LORNE E. HUBBLE

Death occurred suddenly to Lorne E. Hubble, R. R. 3, Frankford, at his home on the 7th Concession of Sidney, on Thursday. He was in his 73rd year.

Born in Rawdon Township, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hubble, he was a member of Stockdale United Church and of Franck Lodge, No. 127, A.F. and A.M. He had been a resident of this locality for the past 62 years.

He is survived by his widow, the former Luella Mills.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

WALTER BRUCE MILLER
(Niagara Falls, N. Y.)

Walter Bruce Miller, Niagara Falls, N. Y., passed away in that city on February 11th. He was in his 52nd year.

Born in Madoc, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Miller, Mr. Miller was educated at Madoc Public School where he was quite active in sports. He attended the United Church and Sunday School.

He is survived by his widow, the former Beatrice Winters, Reg. N. of Tweed, one daughter, Marilyn, who resides in Illinois, and two sons, Robert and William who are both serving in the United States Marine Corps.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 14—(CP)—Prices slipped steadily today in early afternoon stock market dealings as support weakened.

A wide list of western oils, base metals and penny golds attracted speculative interest. Industrial dealings were mainly in leading issues as volume for the first three hours reached 1,540,000 shares.

Papers, foods, liquors, textiles, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous issues led industrials lower with a wide majority of fractional declines. Utilities, steels and banks weakened steadily while only agricultures posted a majority of gains.

Western oil losses ranged from pennies to about 50 cents. Anglo-Canadian, Calgary and Edmonton, Canada Southern Oil, Central Explorers, Federated Petroleum, Gridoil, Pacific Petroleum, Sapphire and Western Leaseholds were among the losers.

Base metal leaders dipped. Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge, Golden Manitou, Hudson Bay, Labrador, Normetal, Noranda, Quemont, United Keno Hill and Waite Amulet slipped.

Senior golds were mixed. Secondary issues, however, showed a small majority of penny gains.

PRODUCE MARKET

The egg market opened steadily here today with supplies ample at unchanged prices.

Sheep and lambs 100; market not established.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Feb. 14 (CP)—Ontario stockyard cattle prices today were about steady in dull trading. Receipts: Cattle 20; no calves; hogs 70; sheep and lambs 190. The leftover from Wednesday was 200 cattle.

A few good weighty steers sold at $27-$29 with one load of western steers at $26.50. Medium to good cows brought from $17-$20.

No prices were established on calves.

Good western lambs sold at $30.

HOGS

Stratford, Feb. 14 (CP) — Truck hog prices were quoted here today at $25.25.

Decline in Price Of Beef Irks Cattle Men

Beef cattle are getting worried over the steady decline in beef cattle prices, according to the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Many feeders last fall paid 33 cents or more for good cattle and from a business standpoint are much concerned. Quotations at Toronto on Wednesday were 26-28 cents for good steers.

Hog producers who buy all their own feed say they cannot break even on pigs and many little pigs offered at community auction sales do not find a buyer. Opinion is that at least one third of the brood sows in the district will be marketed for meat.

There is plenty of feed available in most farms and hay is offered at from 10 to 20 dollars per ton.

Brampton Driver Sent to Trial On Murder Count

Brampton, Ont., Feb. 14 (CP) — James Hutchinson, a Brampton taxi driver, yesterday was committed for trial on a charge of murdering his former employer, Harry Brading. Brading died Jan. 27 in Ottawa Civic Hospital as a result of a severe beating summered on a side road near here Jan. 18.

Mrs. Eileen Brading testified that she took her husband to Ottawa but did not call a doctor because she "didn't think he was hurt bad enough." She said she was afraid he might lose his taxi licence.

"He was always getting beaten up," she said.

William Elliott, another witness at the preliminary hearing, said he rode into the country with Brading on the night of Jan. 18 while Hutchinson followed in a truck. He said both vehicles stopped and he walked down the road while the two men argued.

Elliott said he returned shortly to find Brading lying on the road, bloody and with blackened eyes. He said he had overheard Brading accuse Hutchinson of ""improper relations" with Mrs. Brading.

Jean Brading, daughter of the dead man, said she and her stepmother took Brading to Ottawa by car and put him to bed at her home. "Mrs. Brading refused to take him to a hospital," she said.

Mrs. Brading, asked about her relationship with Hutchinson, testified that he was "merely a driver." She said her husband fired him two weeks before his death.

$10,000 FIRE LOSS

Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 14—(CP) —Mrs. Rod Myers and her week-old baby escaped unharmed yesterday when fire destroyed an apartment they were visiting. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Mrs. Myers was visiting Ivy Bowden when fire broke out in her apartment.

WINDSOR

If Elizabeth approves, the Duke —first former king to attend the funeral of his successor— would stand a ceremonial 20-minute guard alongside the coffin later today with his only remaining brother the Duke of Gloucester, and the Duke of Edinburgh.

As final preparations were made for the funeral of the King who died eight days ago, 25,000 persons patiently lined up in cold and slush outside Westminster Hall to pass in homage before the flag-draped jewel-topped coffin.

50,000 Waiting

By 10 a.m. today the number of persons waiting to make their last bow to the late King had grown to 50,000.

Many had waited since 3:30 a.m. when the doors of the hall were closed after yesterday's procession of homage which saw 108,692 pass by the royal catafalque. Since the lying-in-state started Tuesday 185,092 have paid tribute.

Early morning trains into the city from the suburbs and the provinces were packed to suffocation as people travelled in to see the King's bier and watch tomorrow's state funeral.

Meantime, the world's remaining Monarchs, heads of state and aristocracy arrived at London's international airport and coastal seaports.

By tonight London will house the biggest assembly of foreign royalty to gather in one city since before the Second World War. There will be seven Monarchs with their queens and consorts and 17 princes and princesses.

Prime ministers, presidents, foreign ministers and diplomats are crowding the city's hotels.

Represents Pope

Archbishop Paolo Groppe, representing the Pope arrived at Harwich channel port today on the same boat as Ole Kraft, Danish foreign minister.

The first of the day's arrivals at London airport was Maj.-Gen. Mahrbib Shamsher, personal representative of King Tribhuvan who rules the tiny Himalayan monarchy of Nepal.

Back in the procession of mourners beside the River Thames an old man and woman, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Gilbert, led the file past the purple draped catafalque. They got up at 2 a.m. to walk four miles to Westminster Hall.

Sidney Hilton and his two daughters, Patricia, 6, and Brenda, 7, waited seven hours "because the King was good to us." Hilton said two years ago when he was without a home he wrote to the King. Within a week he had a house.

A crippled woman, both legs in irons, was carried past the coffin.

Mrs. Mary Davies, 79, laid a small bunch of flowers beside the catafalque. "I shall never forget when the King came to visit me when I was bombed out," she said.

Snow, sleeting rain and a sharp wind blew as the long line waited in the morning gloom. It is expected the number of mourners today will be a record.

At one stage last night the line wound for three miles along the banks of the Thames River, across a bridge and far along the opposite bank. It could take anything up to seven hours to reach the top of the line for the brief walk past the closed coffin.

Route Being Draped

At Windsor, a short distance west of London, the mile-long route from the little railway station where the body will arrive to the grey walls of hill-topping Windsor Castle where it will be taken was being draped in the black and royal purple of mourning.

The boarded windows showed shopkeepers had remembered the crowds who were pushed through the glass during the funeral of George V in 1936.

Window space along the procession route was being sold at prices from one guinea to more than five guineas.

Inside St. George's chapel in the castle—where the burial will take place—special broadcasting and television circuits were installed to carry descriptions of the last procession.

The funeral ceremony was painstakingly rehearsed to avoid the 1 1-2 hour delays that occurred during the funeral of George V

The Duke of Windsor paid homage to his dead brother last night. He went to the bier with his aged mother and his sister, Mary, the Princess Royal. The twin lines of public mourners were halted.

Queen Mary, wearing deep mourning and carrying a tight-rolled umbrella, advanced slowly toward the bier of her son, the third of her five sons to die before her.

Lips Moved Silently

A pace behind her came the Duke. The Queen grandmother stopped, and as her gaze passed to the coffin her lips moved silently, perhaps in prayer. She touched a handkerchief to her eyes.

Windsor stepped forward and took his mother's arm for a moment.

Then he dropped to one knee near the catafalque and put his head down upon his right hand. A minute later he arose

But the Queen grandmother, her eldest son and her daughter stood silent for another moment, then Windsor again sank slowly to his left knee and bowed his head. After several minutes he again arose and as the three family mourners reached the stone archway of departure, they turned for one more look at the coffin.

C.B.C. HAS BIG PROGRAM

We have just received a booklet entitled "The Voice of nada." This booklet describes the foreign language oadcasts which the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation esents to its public in Europe, Latin America, Australia, w Zealand and elsewhere.

These programs, "The Voice of Canada" informs its ders, are broadcast in the following languages in addi- to English and French: Czech, Slovak, Dutch, Danish, nnish, German, Italian, Norwegian, Russian, Swedish, rtuguese and Spanish.

"The Voice of Canada" is itself multilingual. It is inted, according to our calculations, in no less than ven languages. Also, it is printed on the most expensive d of paper, or "stock," as printers call it. We are not rinter ourselves, but we have been closely enough ociated with members of that craft to know that the inting of even a relatively small publication in a dozen languages is an expensive undertaking.

To print a booklet in about a dozen languages requires only translators, proofreaders and other such folk th an extensive knowledge of the language involved; it th an extensive knowledge of the languages involved; it ges do not use the same alphabet as we do. Even the tting of a piece of text in French requires extra type, cause the French use accents along with some of their ters, and these accents are not used in English. Many the other languages mentioned above also use accents; rman for example.

The cost of publishing "The Voice of Canada" would pend partly upon how many copies were printed. But en if only a few hundred were printed, the cost of setting e type alone must have been substantial.

Since we have received our copy of "The Voice of nada" and have examined it, we have been trying to ure out why it was published. The only answer that curs to us is that its sponsors were trying to provide ployment for a staff of highly-paid craftsmen. There ay be some other explanation, but we have thus far been able to arrive at it.

However, there is one thing that we have figured out. is this: If the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is in e business of printing booklets in half a score of foreign nguages, as well as broadcasting its activities around the rld, then it is going to need all or nearly all of those tra dollars which it is asking the taxpayers to provide it.

If anyone wants our copy of "The Voice of Canada," may have it, free of charge.

THE FRUITS OF LABOR

Karl Marx and Frederich Engels, stewing in their ret over their Communist Manifesto, came to the ques- n of property. To their distorted minds the concept med essentially evil. "Private property," they wrote, "all perty, is evil. It must be destroyed." They meant, of rse, the ownership of property. The lesser creeds that ve followed this manifesto — a long way off — would be so forthright. Property would be taken from pri- hands by the peaceful process of law, not by violence Marx would have it. But perhaps Abraham Lincoln d the best comment. "Property," he said, "is the fruit labor. Property is desirable. It is a positive good in the rld. That some should be rich shows that others may come rich, hence it is just encouragement to industry d enterprise. Let not him who is homeless pull down house of another, but let him work diligently and build for himself, thus by example assuring that his own ll be safe from violence when it is built."

ARMORED TROOPS AGAIN

Reference was made in these columns some weeks ago experiments being made by the United States military horities to determine whether the use of body armor s practical in modern battle conditions.

A dispatch from Tokyo the other day pointed out that atrol of United Nations troops in Korea, all wearing the armor, killed 25 Communists in a grenade battle with- themselves suffering a single casualty.

This armor probably will not stop a bullet from a dern rifle, but it seems to be effective enough against nades.

ST. VALENTINE

riend to lovelorn youth was he
Whose feast we celebrate today.
phrased the vows they seemed to be oo timid for themselves to say.
lovers shy, St. Valentine
ned many a tender, loving line.

en some young blade in deep despair
(As lovers are when wooing bent)
o wished to tell a maiden fair ow much to him her beauty meant, as the gentle priest who penned pretty verse for him to send.

I fancy I can hear him say:
"With this send her a flower or two
Or box of sweets or ribbons gay
Or any gift you choose will do,
For what the mind lacks power to phrase
The heart can tell in many ways."

The good old priest has long been gone,
But still we follow as he taught.
His spirit still is living on.
By lovers all his aid is sought.
We call each gift and tender line
Love sends today a valentine.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Feb. 14th., 1932

Over $6,000,000. is the value of goods manufactured in this city annually according to the annual report of Mr. J. O. Herlity, manager of the Chamber of Commerce. The figures are supplied by the indisputable statement published under the authority of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The latest available "Census of Industry" is compiled from the returns made by the individual manufacturers upon which their sales tax is based. The report lists 54 industries at Belleville with value of annual output $6,342,392. There are 1457 employees and the sum of $1,492,116. is paid in salaries and wages. The capital invested amounts to $10,005,427.

Building permits here last year amounted to $221,900.; in this list was included the building of 34 attractive homes. For 1931 the building permits amounted to $187,360.

Everybody is grumbling about the street lights — or rather the lack of them.

A team of horses attached to a load of hay and owned by Mr. Yateman of Thurlow township, ran away on the market this morning and caused some excitement. The load upset when turned onto Pinnacle Street and this brought the horses to a stop.

This is St. Valentine's Day and it was astonishing the large number of girls who called for mail at the post office. You couldn't have kept them away with a shot gun.

The Belleville Amateur Minstrels will hold a full dress rehearsal this evening. There is certainly a treat in store for Belleville people.

The temperature has been above zero for many days and is a great relief.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In most part of Canada, it is compulsory for children to attend school until they are sixteen. The intention of this law is noble. But, as one wily schoolmaster has lately put it: "It converts the teaching profession into a bunch of baby sitters."

Before this law came into effect, high school teachers had to deal only with a selected group of children: those inclined to go to school, those qualified to continue their studies, and those with parents intent upon having their children educated, and therefore prepared to back the teachers up.

A fifteen or sixteen year old boy or girl can, very often, be a formidable character. The most formidable are usually those least inclined to paying attention in a schoolroom. Half a dozen of these formidable characters in one classroom can disrupt and wreck the teaching process of that entire room. In the smaller schools this must be a desperate problem.

In large schools, the teachers can play tricks that entirely defeat the intention of this noble law. One high school teacher explained it to me as follows:

"We have five classes in the first form. In accordance with their behavior and interest in their work, we segregate the pupils. Those who would normally have continued their schooling to the age of sixteen and beyond are easily recognizable. They are in two or maybe three of the classes.

"Into a special class or two, ostensibly on the same level as the others, are drained off all the smarties, the badly home-trained ones, those without discipline and with no inclination for work. Strenuous efforts are made to devise methods of instruction that will be of some value to these characters. But essentially, it is nothing more than a sort of teenage baby sitting institution."

It is better than child labor, of course.

But how much better?

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

HEAVEN ON $6.90

Well, sir, I'd hardly finished strumming away on the typewriter about my dreams of escape to Majorca or to Mexico via very slow schooner when a couple of oddly complementary items cropped up in the mail.

One was the annual report on the retirement plan that most everybody in our office belongs to. Instead of telling me how much I've contributed since I joined, the report merely noted my equity, if that's the word I want.

In any event I was pretty excited to find that if I retired tomorrow I'd be entitled to $6.90 a month for the rest of my life! It isn't much, but it's a beginning.

Also in the mail, sent me by Harlan Publications of New York, was a slim, paper-bound volume titled "Lands in The Sun", a kind of shopping guide to Paradise.

It was, as you can see, an explosive combination, one detonating the other, and I spent most of the day in a pleasant trance, and early in the afternoon fell down the basement stairs.

* * *

"Lands in the Sun" would interest you, I'm sure, if you've still got a red corpuscle left. It is written by a man named Norman D. Ford, who set out to look for possible Shangri-las in the sun and off the beaten track. Found quite a few, too.

Personally, I am really right this red-hot minute to lope as fast as my stubby legs will carry me to the island of Tobago, which Mr. Ford calls "a retirement spot whose location has been jealously guarded for years because its few white residents don't want it discovered by tourists."

Tobago is in the West Indies, just west of Trinidad, and Mr. Ford, generously handing us his opium pipe, describes it thusly: "Coral reefs encircle the island, turning the sea into a blaze of color, while above the palm-fringed beaches dense forests blanket the steep slopes, heavy with the fragrance of the tropics and the scent of the wind shore."

The average temperature is 83 degrees; a retired couple, says Mr. Ford, could live like royalty on $2,500 a year (including a housemaid and gardener) and rum costs about $9 for a case of twelve. (I could buy two-thirds of a case every month on my own theoretical income alone!)

New arrivals are carried ashore on the backs of sturdy natives, and when I go I'm planning on taking a towel.

I mention Tobago merely as one golden place that appealed to me.

You may prefer Grand Cayman Island with its five-mile long bathing beach of pure white sand and four-room bungalows that rent for $8 a month (they need a newspaper there, Mr. Ford notes); or Barbadoes, which has a nine-hole golf course and a supply of native butlers at $2.55 a week; or Grenada, another of the British islands, described to Mr. Ford by a native of "Dis islan' suh, is t'ing Gahd mek from rainbo' " (they need a lawn mower repairing shop, Mr. Ford notes); or St. Lucia, just 25 miles long, where an income of $1,600 will keep you happy (and if you want it that way, drunk.)

Saba, an island in the Netherlands West Indies, is the most escapingest of all.

There's a little town in the middle of a volcano crater, reached by burro, where the trade winds keep the temperature at around 80 degrees summer and winter, and—as Mr. Ford puts it —"if you've got a book to write or a problem to think over, Saba is the place."

There are no taxes whatever and two women for every man on the island, which is rather nice.

* * *

Like all escapists, or those who encourage escapists, Mr. Ford refuses to look on the dark side and I, for one, admire him for it.

Speaking of Guatemala ("carpets of red and purple bougainville hide garden walls and cottage homes") he makes light of the occasional eensy-weensy revolution.

"Recently, a stray bullet went through the window of the American Embassy in Guatemala City," he notes, adding quickly, but it was only a stray and the friendly, but excitable citizens seldom have troubled foreign residents."

Hurricanes and earthquakes? What kind of escapist are you? As Mr. Ford puts it, so soothingly, "no matter where you go there is always some slight risk of disaster." (Like stray bullets or two women for every man, or rum at $9 a case).

Myself, I prefer to think only of the white beaches, the crystal waterfalls, "secluded palmfringed coves that you can claim for your own" and the other wares Mr. Ford dangles so invitingly.

Of course, I'm only window-shopping and will be, I guess, until I've learned how to repair lawn mowers.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE GREAT ADVENTURE

Happiness is difficult to define, for it is appraised by all differently. Yet it is the one thing we all look upon as the great adventure. There are so very many varieties of happiness. That happiness, however, for which we all most search is heart or spiritual happiness, and that can only be gained by earning it and then distributing it.

The happiness men get from mere money-making doesn't last long. There comes a time when its pursuit and accumulation leave its possessor cold and lonely. Andrew Carnegie got to worrying about having so much money, so he decided he would like to die poor. He started to distribute his wealth by building and presenting libraries all over the country, and indeed in other countries besides America. He started a little late, however, for he did not die poor in money, nor did he die poor in spirit, for he left monuments far and wide that have blessed millions.

Wealth is not essential for happiness, but the considerate and generous heart is essential. Many search for happiness, but it isn't discovered that way. Happiness comes unaware as you give something of yourself to others. You think and work for the happiness of others, and all of a sudden you realize that you are happy!

Among the happiest of human beings are those whom we class as our naturalists. They thrill over God's creations and their appreciation knows no bounds, so they invite others to enjoy what has so richly made them happy through adventures in nature. It's the little surprises that constantly come to the student and researcher and which make him want to tell the whole world about them.

I can imagine the happiness of Rachel Carson as she delved into the mysteries and discoveries of this world in her remarkable book "The Sea Around Us." So artistically is her book written that it reads almost like a long poem! In describing what is forever going on in the ocean, one chapter is named "The Long Snowfall." Happiness is upon the face of every flower, if we have the perception to discover it!

WHAT ABOUT EXPOSURE TO COLD

Everyday exposure to cold, dampness, draft, insufficient clothing, sudden changes, inadequately heated apartments, inclement weather or the like cannot be shown to cause or predispose to any respiratory disease or any joint disease.

Of many scientific investigations of this question that of the British Medical Research Council whose conclusions were published recently, seems most significant. One of the conclusions the Council reached after several years of experiments on human volunteers is — brace yourselves, old fogies, both medical and lay—that exposure to cold and wet has nothing to do with susceptibility to the indispositions or ailments you poor geeks call "colds."

I refrain from saying I told you so—but if I had two bits for every time I have told you something of the sort I could indulge in a pound of Regimental and a brand new 6-inch straight stem pipe, supplemented with a pouch of ordinary tobacco to appease the cadgers on the bowling green.

On occasions when I have experienced extreme exposure to cold and/or wet, such as running around the 3-kilometer park drive in shoes and shorts on a freezing winter night or breaking through the ice on the skating pond, my knowledge that there was nothing to worry about except the immediate discomfort and possible frostbite has made the incidents trivial.

By George, it has just occurred to me now, for the first time, that I had a genuine Oslerian chill, dived into bed and bawled for more blankets and artificial heat before they spirited me off to the hospital with—oh, well, perhaps some of you misguided ones suffer more from your fear of pneumonia than from pneumonia. All I can say now is what I said after my set-to with appendectomy—if that's all there is to it don't look for any more sympathy from me.

No doubt some of you unteachables will infer, in your childish way, that the chill caused my pneumonia and it was just what I deserved. Don't fash yourselves. The chill was one of the early symptoms of the pneumonia. Any physician who knows pneumonia will tell you so.

Then how do you get pneumonia? You get it just as you get diphtheria, by catching it from some one who has it or who happens to be a carrier of the germ—Pneumococcus. Notwithstanding the 19th century notions of doctors and people, climate, weather and exposure to cold or damp have no more to do with it than with diphtheria.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

What! Gray at the Peak!

What is wrong with me. I am 38 and my hair is turning gray. (Mrs. O. S.)

Answer—Gazing into my crystal ball I find you are suffering from iodine deficiency. Anyway it can do you no harm to get an adequate daily ration of iodine from now on. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (no clipping) for pamphlet The Iodin Ration. Mind, now, I do not believe anything can restore the original natural color to hair that has turned entirely gray, but a good many readers have assured me that even belated correction of certain nutritional deficiencies has seemed to bring back color to their graying hair, as described in booklet The Hair and Scalp, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dog Bites Man is Not News

You may be interested to know that I have had the injection (ambulant, office) treatment for hemorrhoids and it was entirely satisfactory and that I had no pain or detention from my work —just a few minutes in the office for each treatment, So I feel sorry for people who still enter the hospital and suffer, they tell me, atrociously for days after operation. ...(H. E. C.)

Answer—Thank you. Your experience is usual, among the well informed, that is. But a lot of poor geeks will undergo the crude hammer and tongs, I mean clamp and cautery "operation" in hospital because their physicians assure them that it is the only effective treatment.

Strength for the Day

THE ASTOUNDING NATURE OF TRUTH

There is nothing more shocking or ridiculous than truth. The first time we hear an unusual truth expressed, we are inclined to laugh at it. Bernard Shaw always insisted that he was not a humorist; he maintained that the reason why he made so many people laugh was because he told the truth. We are always fascinated or amused by the unusual. A new approach to truth almost always appears to us to be ridiculous.

When Columbus proposed sailing west across the Atlantic Ocean in order to reach the East Indies, the nobles of Spain fell off their banquet chairs laughing. The idea was manifestly absurd. Pasteur was persecuted when he advanced the theory of the transmission of disease by means of germs. All sorts of doggerel was written about the Wright Brothers and their crazy flying machines. Some of us can even remember when Albert Einstein was universally looked upon as an irresponsible freak.

Nothing seems more absurd than a truth with which we are not familiar. Read Shaw's Prefaces and between your paroxysms of laughter ask yourself what you are laughing about. You may discover that it is the truth with which up to that time you had been utterly unfamiliar.

A new truth is usually shocking or ridiculous. We can seldom take it without a laugh or a snarl.

RAWDON

Rawdon — On Friday evening last, River Valley Women's Institute sponsored a successful euchre party at the Valley School house with nine tables in play.

The prizes were as follows—ladies' high, Mrs. Roy Tucker; low, Mrs. Glenn Morrow; men's high, George Heasman; low, Hadley Richardson.

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed. Another party will be held February 22.

Many people in Rawdon township felt a real sense of loss when they received the sad news of the death of King George VI. The royal family have been much closer to Canadians since their visit to Canada and also during World War II.

The King's Christmas messages have been heard in homes both rich and poor and his Christian character and courage has been a great influence.

Hundreds of people saw the new Queen last October, then Princess Elizabeth, and Canada's sincere prayers and loyalty go out to her at this time.

On Sunday afternoon at Mount Pleasant United Church, Rev. R. R. Bonsteel, gave a special memorial message. He also gave identical messages at Bethel and Wellman's on the Rawdon charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mount Pleasant; Mr. and Mrs. John Rainie and Miss Emma Rainie, Wellman's; Mrs. Walter Warren and Allyn, of Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown and Verna of Carmel, were among the large number of visitors who attended the memorial service, Sunday morning at St. Paul's United Church.

On Sunday afternoon, during the Sunday school period, at Mount Pleasant, Mr Orno Sharp observed two minutes silence and all sang "Abide With Me" in tribute to the late King George VI.

Mrs. Kenneth Caskey and children, Madoc, visited Mr. and Mrs. A. Fox and Miss Doreen Bailey on Sunday and attended the afternoon service at Mount Pleasant United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Jeffs entertained several friends at their home, Thursday evening.

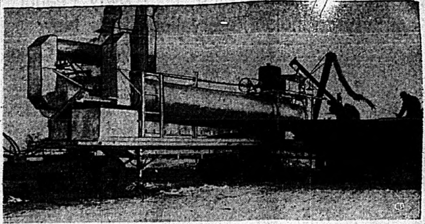
Mr. William Carlisle, Mr. Ernest Carlisle and Miss Marion Carlisle, of Carmel, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carlisle, at Frankford.

Miss Ruth Dunham was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Bush, River Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Wrightman and Allan, were guests at a family party on Friday evening last, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Gainsforth, Glen Miller. The party was in honor of her brother, Mr. Milford Wrightman's birthday anniversary. A large number of relatives were in attendance.

Mr. John L. Bailey spent a day recently in Foxboro with his brother, Mr. Charles Bailey.

Drying Grain



Saskatchewan, with an estimated 60,000,000 bushels of damp grain on its farms, has adopted the use of grain driers. Agriculture Minister I. C. EMPEY HILL

S. S. 10 Tyendinaga Holds Euchre Party

Empey Hill.—Last Thursday the Home and School Association held its monthly meeting. The two hostesses, Mrs. B. Freeman and Mrs. C. Marisette, graciously welcomed all guests and proceeded with a card party.

Miss Vera Dudgeon with 92 points for a ten-round game was first prize winner; Mr. Joe Hunt with 94 points was the winner of the men's prize. Mr. Charles Akey took home the lone hand prize.

It was decided to donate $20 to the teacher to be used for craft supplies and games The children have been learning to weave with reed making baskets and trays. Miss L. Powers, the teacher, has assumed the task of instructing the pupils.

As there was still some money in the funds, several card tables are to be purchased to be used in the school for the various activities.

Refreshments were served by the ladies and the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. C. Akey and Mrs. Wiedman are in charge of the meeting next month to be held March 6.

WEDDINGS

BARKER—GORDENIER

The United Church manse at ringbrook was the scene of a iet but pretty wedding on Sat-day afternoon, February 2, hen Audrey Eileen, eldest ughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles rdenier, of Bonarlaw, became e bride of LAC, Ronald Mac-an Barker, son of Mrs. Bruce rner, of Middleton, N.S., and e late G. W. Barker.

The double ring ceremony was rformed by the Rev. H. E. are, pastor of Springbrook nited Church.

Miss Dolores Bradford, of Belle-lle, was the bridesmaid, and AC. John Harbocian of the .C.A.F. assisted the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a re-ption was held at the home of e bride's parents.

Later, the young couple left on motor trip to the United States. ey have taken up residence in elleville.

Women's Activities

MELROSE W.M.S.

Melrose—The February meet-g of the Woman's Missionary ociety of the Melrose United urch was held at the home of rs. James Hines with a large tendance present.

The president, Mrs. Russell acFarlane, opened the meeting observing one minute's sil-nce in memory of the late King eorge VI, followed by the Lord's ayer. Mrs. John Weese read e scripture lesson and Mrs. eorge Morgan led in prayer ith special prayer for the Royal amily.

A short business period was nducted. Letters of thanks for rds and flowers were read. rs. Roy Badgely gave a read-g in which she said, "what the orld needs today is love and rotherhood. Our church doors e swung open. The door of the urch has no latch on the out-de."

Mrs. E. M. Badgley, convener Christian Stewardship read a tter from Mrs. Denton who id, "Let our keyword for 1952 e "Care and Share." Mrs. Badg-y added that stewardship is the sis of Christian living, sharing me, money and talent, giving heerfully and lovingly.

Mrs. E. M. Badgely group lead-r, took charge of the program f the Study Book, "From Lakes Northern Lights" showing on map the different mission cen-res across Canada. Through its oard of Home Missions, the nited Church maintains 16 city ission centres engaged in res-ue and redemptive work. Mrs. adgely was assisted by Mrs. C. sborn and Mrs. Roy Badgely ho told about the work in some f these mission centres. The argest and ripest Home Mission ields in Canada today are right n the cities and towns.

e Forward

The church must press forward hrough its ministry to meet the omplex needs of crowded down own districts and by helping roups of people in newer subur-an areas to build their own hurch homes. Both avenues of ervice are tremendously import-nt if the United Church is to roclaim a living message to all lasses and conditions of people.

Mrs. John Milligan, literature ecretary, told about some of he real people whose lives have een made happier because of heir association with city mis-ions.

In closing, Mrs. Badgely said, the greatest challenge before he United Church today is hurch extension. One hundred nd fifty new churches and 50 ew manses are needed in the ext five years. Meetings are aluable, giving is essential, but hese are days that call for ac-ion by Christian women."

Mrs. John Weese closed the eeting with a scripture read-[illegible] served refresh-[illegible] and a social time was en-oyed.

Valentine Suited

By TRACY ADRIAN

Today is the day when all Canadian women want to look their best for their favorite beaux or their ever-loving husbands. And although Saint Valentine's Day is not a holiday for most of us it nevertheless means some sort of romantic celebration.

A situation like this usually calls for a little intimate dinner for two and the sort of informal but flattering suit that is pictured. This one is made of petit point light blue tweed. The skirt is taffeta lined and the jacket has a lapped rolled collar. Starched white linen cuffs have rhinestone buttons.

Holloway Street Y.P.U. Entertains Baptist YoungPeople's Group

Holloway Street Y.P.U. entertained the Baptist Young People on Monday evening, who were most cordially welcomed by the president, Cam Hitchon, following which, Rosslyn Robertson conducted a rousing sing-song.

The Baptist Young People led by Jim Bos, conducted an inspiration worship service, after which the Rev. S. E. Larman introduced the Rev. Keith Daniel, who explained the meaning of the Negro spiritual, and rendered a few numbers including, "Joshua and the Jericho Wall", "Deep River", "Wadin' in the Water" "Little David, Play on Your Harp", "Steal Away", and "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?". All of which were greatly enjoyed.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Daniel for his fine talk and rendition of the spirituals, and also to the Baptist Young People's group for their part in the evening's devotions.

Games and refreshments were served, and the evening closed with 'Taps'.

Y's Menettes Club Enjoys Court-Whist

The regular meeting of the Y's Menette's club took place on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. F. R. Clarke, Oriole Park, with the president, Mrs. Bryson Leslie, presiding.

During the business meeting, Y's Menette crests for their blazers were given to the members. Reports were given on the progress of arrangements for the Robin Hood Cooking School being held in March.

Following the business, the members thoroughly enjoyed a game of court-whist with Mrs. Carm. Lowther being the winner.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Clarke and the committee in charge.

BARGEES DWINDLE

Liverpool, England — (Reuters) — The older generation of bargees who man the barges on Britain's canals is dying off and no one is taking their place. British transport officials, faced with a shortage of recruits for work on barges, said "once it was the rule for sons to follow their fathers, but now the younger men prefer regular jobs ashore."

FELINE SERVANTS

Vienna — (Reuters) — Three cats on duty every night in the city hall are listed for a monthly food allowance in the Vienna municipal budget. It also includes a food allowance for 13 hunting dogs.

LOW TB RATE

Toronto, Feb. 14 (CP) —Ontario had the lowest tuberculosis death rate in its history last year when 13 deaths per 100,000 population were recorded, Health Minister Phillips said yesterday. The Canadian death rate in 1950 was 25.9 per 100,000.

Ladies' Auxiliary Sponsors Dainty Valentine Tea

Yesterday afternoon a wee bonnie lassie, Sharon Wilson, in red tartan and a that, opened the door to the numerous guests, members and friends of the ladies' auxiliary to Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, who came to partake of the dainty Valentine tea and to enjoy the friendly atmosphere at the home of Mrs. L. Reynolds, Front Street.

Receiving were the gracious hostess, and the president, Mrs. W. H. Smith, while Mrs. M. Hearns and Mrs. W. H. Morgan, acted as treasurers. Mrs. Hearns for the first part and Mrs. Morgan for the latter part of the afternoon.

At the left as one entered, was a prettily arranged table of home-cooking, replete with cakes and candies, lemon pies with delicious golden tinted meringues; Valentine cookie hearts, coffee buns with white icing; a big luscious looking chocolate cake, and near by a white cake crested with a heart enclosing the words, "Happy Valentine", also Chelsea buns oozing nuts and raisins, and close by a jar of "Lazy Housewife pickles". Mrs. John Ronsky and Mrs. C. Gilroy were in charge of these dainties.

Lovely Tea Table

Through an archway was the lovely tea table with its handmade Queen Anne lace cloth, its flickering red and white candles in tall silver candelabra flanking a symphony in red and white—red tulips and pure white snapdragons—delightfully arranged in a red heart container, emphasizing the Valentine theme. At the silver services presided Mrs. W. Waite and Mrs. G. A. Rogers for the first hour, and Mrs. P. Kerr and Mrs. C. E. Burley for the last hour. Mrs. F. Savage invited to the tea room.

Those who served both the dainty sandwiches and tiny cakes, as well as assisted in the replenishing in the kitchen included: Mesdames A. Wilson, W. J. Lynch, G. E. Simmons, G. Clapper, L. Addy, J. Kitchen, R. J. Noyes, A. Burrows and Miss Shirley Rolston.

The novelty table in charge of Mrs. John White and Mrs. C. Lathangue also bore out the Valentine theme with its white tissue cloth bordered by red "To My Valentine" hearts, and centred with a cascading fountain of elongated balloons in variegated shades of palest pink, mauve and blue which spouted forth from a paper-lace covered basket having a red heart motif. Underneath the fountain spray of balloons were the various articles, and though few in number, yet their daintiness and fine workmanship more than made up for this lack.

Dainty Handiwork

Here were lovely aprons, three or more, one a dainty organdy in palest blue having a sweetheart pocket of floral organdy and bordered with the same; a dishcloth doll, very real and life-like; tiny pink and white mitts; colorful sockees; bon-bon dishes; a case in blue for combs, both in plastic, for pocket use, and beautifully embroidered tea towels.

To Mrs. H. Quinsey, convener of the tea; to Mrs. G. H. Diment, convener of the tea room; to the Templer Florist Shop for the charming centrepiece, and to each and all who assisted in making this event so worth while, appreciative thanks are tendered.

Lithuanian Woman Dentist Kept Busy on Indian Reservation

Dr. Amanda Gerulaitis, a Lithuanian who arrived in Canada last April, is the first dentist to provide regular treatment to children at Curve Lake Indian Reservation near Peterborough, Ont. Dr. Gerulaitis said 90 per cent of the dentists in her native country are women. Indian children, she added, are not much different from children anywhere else. They all want to know: "Will it hurt much?"

This is the first time Indians have been given free dental treatment. Until last year's change in the act they were entitled only to free extractions. Other work they paid for themselves.

In front of Dr. Gerulaitis' office-door, small dark-skinned patients wait to take their places in the dental chair. Their school companions grab them when they are finished, opening mouths forcibly to see what the woman dentist has done.

No one could have told Dr. Gerulaitis when she read about Indians in her high school days in the Lithuanian capital of Kaunas, that one day she would actually be looking after their dental welfare.

While she is an able linguist in five languages, Dr. Gerulaitis doesn't know whether she will be able to master all the Indian dialects.

Mrs. M. Tugnett President Of Women's P-C. Association

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Progressive Conservative Association was held at the Kiwanis Centre, on Monday evening with a large number in attendance. Mrs. M. Tugnett presided.

One minute's silence was observed in memory of the late King George VI after which "Abide With Me", was softly sung.

Mr. Gerald Hyde, president of the Conservative Men's Club, spoke briefly. A report of the year's activities of the club was given, which showed a large increase in the membership during the past year.

The treasurer's report showed a substantial amount on hand after all disbursements had been met. The membership and financial secretaries reports also showed a great interest in the work during the year.

Mr. Ireland, of Trenton, who is seriously ill, is to be remembered by the club.

Officers Elected

Mrs. Tugnett expressed thanks to all present for their co-operation during the past year. As all offices were then declared vacant, Mrs. Charles Hyde, past president, conducted the election of officers for the ensuing year, with results as follows: honorary officers: Mrs. J. W. Kinnear, Mrs. George Stokes, Mrs. R. Ketcheson, Mrs. E. Sandercock, Mrs. H Rollins, Mrs M. B. Weese and Mrs. A. M. Kennedy. Past president, Mrs. Charles Hyde; president, Mrs. M. Tugnett; 1st vice-president, Mrs. C. Ostrom; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. R. Bateman; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. W. M. Tice; 4th vice-president, Mrs. H. Yorke; secretary, Mrs. H. Murphy; treasurer, Mrs. A. Young; financial convener, Miss Lottie Warham; card convener, Mrs. J. Chapman; membership convener, Mrs. H. Lee; pianist, Mrs. K. Wensley.

Chair-ladies

Chair-ladies: Foster, Mrs. J. McKenna; Samson, Mrs. R. Bateman; Ketcheson, Miss H. Sulman, Baldwin, Miss G. Lazier; Bleecker, Mrs. G. Ostrom; Coleman, Mrs. A. Jordan; Murney, Mrs. W. D. Adams.

Mrs. Tugnett was called to take the chair, repledging herself to do and work for the interest of the Conservative party.

Mrs. H. Rollins, who has been sick is to be sent a card bearing the signatures of all the members present, wishing her a speedy recovery.

Following the close of the meeting, progressive euchre was enjoyed with Samson Ward in charge. Refreshments were also served.

BLAMES MOTHERS

Beckenham, England — (Reuters) — Mothers are held responsible for the mental and emotional troubles of some adolescents sent by police courts to a hospital here for treatment. The hospital physician, Dr. W. Warren, wrote that the abnormalities of mothers which most often affect their children are over - anxiety, rigidity, hostility or rejection.

Lowly Peanut Yields New Synthetic Cloth

London (CP)—Austerity-ridden Britons will soon be parading about in mothproof, unshrinkable synthetic clothing made from peanuts grown in West Africa.

Known as ardil, the new protein-type wool substitute, is being mass-produced by a factory near Dumfries, Scotland. Clothes made from the material will be sold in British shops for the first time this year.

A report issued by the Commonwealth Economic Committee estimates that approximately 20,000,000 pounds of the synthetic fabric will be produced during 1952 and marketed in the United Kingdom and overseas.

The new cloth, said to be superior in quality to anything developed by the synthetic textiles industry in Germany before the war, can be dyed any color and blends well with wool or cotton to produce a hard-wearing fabric.

Tests have shown that ardil clothing lasts as long as cloth made from pure wool and possesses the wool-like qualities of warmth and softness. It will also be cheaper as the new material sells at 30 per cent less than natural wool.

The committee's report discloses that experiments also being made with fish, feathers, soya beans and eggs in the development of synthetic fibres.

Queen Victoria H-S. Association Presents 'Scattered Showers'

At Queen Victoria Home and School Association on Monday evening, an interesting, adult one-act play, entitled "Scattered Showers", by Nora Stirling, was presented by the Belleville Theatre Guild, to a large audience of parents, teachers and friends.

This play depicted three types of mothers, and three types of children; the strict, confused and sensible mothers, and the nervous, self-reliant, and problem child. Those of the cast included, Mrs. Gordon Thompson, as strict mother; Miss Hilda Burley, as the confused mother, and Mrs. J. C. R. Punchard, as the sensible mother.

Following a brief business period, over which the president, Mrs. D Bradford, presided, Mr. M. Lysecki read a short address on "Founder's Month", after which Mrs. Bradford called upon Mr. E. Fairman to introduce the guest speaker, Miss I. Laird, professor of psychology of Queens University, Kingston, who gave a concise and illuminating talk to the discussion groups on the main points of the play with its bearing on today's problems between mother and child, after which each group presented its findings.

This play is a new innovation with the Home and School Association department, and was first tried with pleasing results in Toronto, by professional players, and now in the city for the first time, by amateur talent, the thought being, that by a living representation of problems, a better solution might be had in dealing with the mother-teacher-child difficulties.

Mrs. J. A. Layton tendered a vote of appreciative thanks to Miss Laird for her fine assistance and educational helps.

Refreshments were served later, bringing to a close a most interesting and profitable time.

B.C.I. Glee and Drama Club Entertains Large Audience With Fine Presentation

A large audience was both impressed and delighted by another fine evening's entertainment provided by the B.C.I.V.S. Glee Club and Drama Club. Wednesday evening saw the first of two performances of Anton Chekhov's one-act comedy, "The Bear", and the Gilbert and Sullivan light opera, "H.M.S. Pinafore."

The classic Russian farce, "The Bear", opened the bill. The central part, of Elena Ivanovna Popova, a landowning little widow, was charmingly filled by Donna Cameron. Doug McIlraith played Grigory Stepanovitch Smirnov, an obstreperous woman-hater, whose horrific tantrums proved vastly diverting to his auditors. Bill Cook, as Luka, Elena's solicitous old footman, rounded out a very effective cast.

The lengthy Slavic soliloquies were performed by both Miss Cameron and Mr. McIlraith unhesitatingly and in natural, interesting fashion, and all humorous potentialities were well developed. The direction of Charles Sloan is evocative of a bright, swiftly moving performance on the part of his young actors, and results in a very pleasant, lively entertainment.

Choice Happy One

The many lovers of the works of Gilbert and Sullivan will welcome the timely revival of the art of the Savoyards in Belleville. The choice of H.M.S. Pinafore is a happy one. On a stage setting that would do credit to a professional company, the B.C.I.V.S. Glee Club gave a performance of this favorite that sparkled with all its traditional fun and warmth. An ample ship's company sailed merrily through the choruses in strong support of a really fine group of principals.

Gordon Babbitt, as the hapless Captain Corcoran, harassed on one side by his crew, and on the other by the Admiralty, struck many a nautical pose and gave forth his baritone solos in a very satisfactory manner. His daughter Josephine, the lass who loved a sailor, was played by a fine young soprano Jarko Novak. This young lady is the fortunate possessor of just that type of voice which Sir Arthur Sullivan required from his leading sopranos.

The tenor lead, Ralph Rackstraw, suitor of Josephine, was in the capable hands of Jim Wagg. The audience will not soon forget Ralph's precarious farewell to his sweetheart, and his acting was most suitable throughout.

Fetchingly Played

Buttercup, the very spirit of the opera, was fetchingly played by Joan Wood, "the rosiest, roundest and reddest beauty in all Spithead". Her several solos were all delivered in the best traditions of Pinafore. That three-cornered villain, Dick Deadeye, was played in proper triangular fashion by Duane Warren.

The Right Honorable Sir Joseph Porter, K.C.B., (First Lord of the Admiralty), fell to Douglas Trumble. His rendering of the rapid-fire solos and his acting of the portly politician left nothing to be desired. Marion Sills, as the most persistent of Sir Joseph's cousins, Hebe, and Bill Wilson, as the boatswain, added much to the action of the piece by their thorough-going performances.

Mr. Clifford Templer and Mr. Linton Read are to be congratulated on the successful completion of a difficult and demanding piece of work. Both from a musical and from a dramatic standpoint the evening's performances were excellent, a fact to which those in attendance can testify, and which the many more who attend on Thursday will be delighted to discover for themselves.

Mrs. F.M. Carscallen Re-elected Regent

The annual business meeting of St. Julien Chapter Imperial Order Daughters of Empire, was held in Oddfellows' Temple, Front Street.

The reports were read by officers and conveners of various committees, results were most satisfactory. The treasurer, Miss Evelyn Coulter, reported a fairly healthy balance even after generous disbursements were met during 1951.

Contributions made were as follows: Provincial work room fund, Shipping fund, National Institute for Blind, Children's Aid, Navy Sea Cadets, D.V.A. patients in Ongawanda sanatorium; food parcents were sent to Great Britain along with food parcels to Provincial Chapter for reshipping to Women's Voluntary Services; scholarship to winner of commercial course; Collegiate Institute; gifts to aged for Christmas; Queen Mary carpet fund; helped with blood donors clinic in November; a wreath placed on Cenotaph on Remembrance Day; a Life Membership Certificate was presented to Mrs. R. A. Backus; hundred dollars to I.O.D.E. convalescent hospital for children; presentation of pictures of the late King George VI and Queen Mother along with calendars for each room and a flag to Queen Elizabeth school; clothing and knitted articles to provincial headquarters chapter activities; tag day in May, Queen Alexandra Rose Day; bridge marathon; sale of cards.

Officers 1952 are: hon regent, Mrs. R. A. Backus; hon vice regent, Mrs. G. E. Watkin; regent, Mrs. F. M. Carscallen; 1st vice regent, Mrs. E. ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

smug young man wants a suitable wife

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 21, and in the past few months have been going out with about four girls, all of whom interest me very much. There are two of them I specially like, and someday I want to get married to one of them but don't know which one.

One of these girls will go out with me whether I have my dad's new car or not, and she will go any place I want to go. We always have a very good time, and I like her because we both enjoy the same things. The other girl will only go out with me when I have the new car but when we do go out, we always have a good time.

I want to be very choosey about the girl I marry, because my father is a very important business man and anything I do will either help make his business or help wreck it. - So while I love both these girls, I want your advice on the one you think will both make me happy and prove to be the best one to help my father's business. Should I take the one who goes out with me whether I have the car or not, or the one who only wants to go when I have the car?—G. R.

Dear G. R.:

When you find the girl with whom you are really in love, you won't have to analyze the situation the way you are doing at present. The fact that you don't seem to know which one would make you happy shows very plainly that you're not in love with either. And it seems to me rather beside the point, as well as very smug and snobbish, to put so much stress on choosing a girl who will help your father's business. If your father really is a "very important business man," his business is hardly likely to be affected by the kind of marriage his son makes.

As I see it, you are not ready yet, by any means, to take a wife or even to decide what sort of girl you want for a wife. That being so, I suggest that you keep going out with all four of the girls you mention, and any others to whom you may be attracted. Wait until your judgment of people and values has developed a little more before thinking of marriage.

Finds it hard to adjust to role of wife

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 and my husband is 21. He is in the Army and stationed not too far away, so that he can get home every month or so on a three-day pass.

My problem is that each time he comes home I seem to feel afraid, at first, to have marital relations. Is this natural, or is it just silliness? We have only been married seven months.—Lou.

Dear Lou:

Having been married such a short time, it might be that you are still a little shy about the marital relationship, and to have your husband away so much makes it difficult for you to adjust yourself to the role of a wife.

There are two things you might do, the first and most important of which is to talk it all over with your husband Because he loves you, he will want to understand and help you, so that you can be happy together on these short leaves of his.

The other thing I would advise is that you see your doctor and explain your problem to him. He should be able to make suggestions that will help you.

Food for Thought

A Busman's Day Off

What city I was in doesn't matter, but some who read this will know I was in their town by the folks I saw.

The primary reason for my visit was to see the newspaper folks and, as often happens when I breeze in, the first thing I was greeted with was a letter from a reader and a note to call another on the telephone. It is all fun and I love it.

Because the publisher suggested it I called Mrs. J. S. Campbell on the telephone too, and she invited me over. Such a charming and diminutive little lady! I felt I could have listened to her for hours, and hope to sometime for she invited me back. She has a wealth of treasured memories to share. Then I skidded down the icy street to Marion Opperman's new shop. That gal sure has a big viewpoint. She has girls' clothes of all sizes and shape and ages and quality. I wish I could have bought darling little silk broadcloth hand-smocked dresses at her prices for Marianne when she was wee.

Then the crowning event of the day—dinner at Marjie's. This was her plan: Since she does not get home in time to prepare dinners with roasts very often she said if I could make my calls in time to be back in her apartment by 4:30 p.m., we could have roast beef for dinner,—otherwise—she didn't get any further for I snapped up the roast beef offer too fast.

I had the roast beef in under the wire at 4:30 (and I do mean wire for the oven was electric), and from then on the fun grew.

The folks that belonged in the house and the guests that were invited because I was there began to arrive home—and I received them in the kitchen.

I tried to look as if I were helping by basting the roast and scrubbing the potatoes to roast around it, but I actually was quite in the way. However I did make the gravy and for two reasons I am going to tell you how: (1) a reader said she appreciated my careful instructions on how to properly poach an egg (so maybe simple things like that and how to make gravy should be given more space) and (2) I was figuratively under Marjie's thumbs and had to do it the way it is always done in her household, because Gracie likes it this way, and Gracie is the gravy addict.

I belong to the school that sprinkles the dry flour in the roasting pan, but is done this way. Into a rose plastic gravy shaker (with a twist-on lid) put 4 tablespoons flour and about 1-3 cup cold water. Shake until it is mixed and smooth. Stir this into the fat and lovely brown sediment in the pan and add the water from the celery stalks you are boiling for a vegetable (see below) and stir until thick. If needed add salt and pepper to taste. If gravy is ever too pale have on hand some gravy caramel (burnt sugar) or gravy granules and stir them in sparingly.

CELERY DISH

I could stand this once per week in winter—and it is an excellent way to utilize those outside celery stalks. Clean and cut outer celery stalks into bite-size pieces. Boil in salted water to barely cover but not so long that all the crispness is gone—never more than 15 minutes. Use water in gravy or soup. Add 1 can of condensed mushroom soup. Heat through. Serve in hot vegetable dish. Sprinkle 1-2 cup almonds browned in a little butter over top.

ENDIVE AND GREEN ONION SALAD

Gracie's boy friend wasn't coming so Marjie pulled apart a whole head of endive and mixed in the green part from about 6 onions chopped fine. Tossed the works with heavenly French dressing. A grand day.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Three grace notes for February

(1) The February birthstone is the amethyst. (2) The February flower is the violet (3) The February pronunciation is Feb-ru-ary. Look at this word carefully. Pronounce every letter. . . .don't omit that first r. Incorrect is that careless, so-often-heard "Feb-oo-ary." Correct: Feb-ru-ary.

The aunts had the wrong point of view

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Such a controversy in my family regarding the question: Who should be invited to a shower for a bride-to-be! The shower that caused the "controversy" was given by the attendants of the bride. They invited intimate friends of the bride, and also the mothers and aunts of the bride and of the groom. The bride's aunts declined the invitation saying that it was not proper for "older folk" to be at the shower, that a shower for a prospective bride is correctly given for her friends only. What about this?—M. M.

It was a most charming and thoughtful gesture. . . and entirely proper. . . for the bridal attendants, who were giving the shower, to invite the mothers and aunts of bride and groom. The fact that it was not at all necessary for them to include the mothers and aunts in their hospitality gave the invitations even more importance and grace. . .and the aunts not only should have graciously accepted the invitation, but also should have been particularly pleased and honored to acept. (A bridal shower may be given for the bride's friends only, but often, and properly the couple's mothers are included, and other relatives as well.) I'm sorry, as I'm sure you are too, that these aunts didn't have the grace and social appreciation to realize what a delightful compliment was being given to them!

The best man pays only for wedding present and his own attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My girl friend is to be married soon, and in her wedding processional she is to have a maid of honor, best man, and two ushers. She maintains that the best man is to pay for her bouquet, the bouquet of the maid of honor, the cars, and the church fee. I have tried to explain to her that this is not correct, but she insists that this is correct procedure, good taste. So to settle the question we thought it would be best to write to you as to what the best man's obligations are.—M. M.

The best man has only two "financial" obligations: (1) he gives a wedding present to the bride-to-be; and (2) he provides his wedding attire, as prescribed to him by the prospective bridegroom. The bridegroom gives his bride her wedding bouquet (as well as her going-away corsage). The maid of honor's bouquet is supplied by the bride's parents. The bridegroom supplies the car that takes him and his best man to the ceremony, and the car that takes him and his bride from the reception; all other cars are supplied by the bride's parents. All church expenses are the responsibility of the bride's parents (except the fee or contribution to the clergyman or church, which is the bridegroom's responsibility).

Carmel W.M.S. Elects 1952 Officers

An inspiring installation service was the highlight of the February meeting of Carmel Woman's Missionary Society which was held at the home of the past president, Mrs. B. Pitman.

Rev. W. R. Merrick used the aims and objects of the Society as the basis of a short talk and then installed the following officers, who had been previously elected for the years 1952-53.

Honorary president, Mrs. B. Pitman; president, Mrs. M. Ross; vice-president, Mrs. Brintnell; recording secretary, Mrs. S. Homan; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. Howes; treasurer, Mrs. G. Moorman; Christian Stewardship secretary, Mrs. F. Hicks; community friendship secretary, Mrs. J. Homan; Temperance and Christian Citizenship secretary, Mrs. J Patterson; supply, Miss M. Jones; Associate Helpers, Mrs. Brintnell; press, Mrs. A. Porter; pianist, Mrs. A. Porter; Literary and Missionary Monthly, Mrs. H. Howes; Mission Band leader, Mrs C. Sullivan: Baby Band leader, Miss M. Hicks.

Same Allocation

In the business period 17 members answered the roll call.

"Thank-you" letters were read from Mrs. William Sills and Mrs. C. Barlow for plant and gift. Some clothing was brought in to add to that which had been made at a sewing meeting for supply work.

The allocation for 1952 is $200 the same as for 1951 when that amount was raised by the Auxiliary with the help of the Mission Band and the Baby Band.

It was also decided to accept Mrs. Pitman's invitation to meet for the Day of Prayer at her home and to have the March meeting at Mrs. Frank Hicks' home. It is expected that Mrs. Fred Wilson will be present at the next meeting.

Mrs Moorman, group leader, opened her part of the program, with a hymn and a poem, "The Better Thing". The program from the study book was "Fellow Canadians from Europe", telling of the two and one half million non-Anglo-Saxons of seventy nationalities in Canada and of work carried on in 19 languages and of the results of the work carried on by the United Church of Canada in Canada's great cities and large rural areas.

Miss Marguerite Hicks read a poem by Edgar Guest.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and members of Mrs. Moorman's group, and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

Carmel Comrade Club Holds Box Social

The regular meeting of Carmel Comrades was held in the church, Friday evening, with a good attendance, taking the form of a box social.

Harold and Dorothy Howes and their group, presided.

In place of the usual devotional there was a short service of remembrance for the late King George VI, concluding with the National Anthem.

Rev. W. R. Merrick conducted a short but impressive installation ceremony for the new officers for 1952.

Several items of business were discussed and it was decided to have the next meeting in the form of a progressive crokinole party at the home of Carl and Olive Thompson.

The evening concluded with the selling of the beautifully decorated boxes and a social hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. A. McLauchlin Tells W.A. Of C.A.S. Work

The president, Mrs. M. Ryan, being in charge, referred to the death of King George VI and opened the meeting with a prayer for Queen Elizabeth II. Prayers for the Queen and Royal Family were taken from the Jubilee Servieces held for Queen Victoria in 1897.

Mrs. K. Reid gave her report of the flower committee and thanks received for cards and flowers sent during the past month.

It was decided to hold the "Box Social" on Valentine night. Three new members were welcomed to the association.

The motto "Suffer little children to come unto Me and forbid them not for of such is the Kingdom of God" was read by Mrs. J. Haig followed by all singing "When Mothers of Salem".

Parents' Duty

Miss Thelma Shaw gave a splendid talk on the parents' duty in taking their children to Sunday School and Church. She quoted: "Children brought up in the Sunday School are rarely brought up in the police court."

Mrs. Farnsworth then introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. A. McLauchlin, who gave an interesting and enlightening talk about the work being carried on by the Children's Aid Society. This was followed by a question period.

Mrs. J. Parrott favored with a piano solo.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. E. Farnsworth, Mrs. C. Grass Sr., and Mrs. J. Garbutt.

ARMY ON SKIS

Montreal (CP) — All reserve units in the Montreal area will have a chance at ski manoeuvres being held in the Laurentian foothills each weekend until the middle of March. A small caretaking staff of regular soldiers looks after the camp site during the winter months so the visitors ately 133,000 immigrants in 1951 have no chores.

Churches Hold Memorial Services

Madoc — A Civic Memorial Service was held in the Presbyterian Church on Friday night with the members of the village council and representatives from Madoc Legion and Madoc citizens of all communions in attendance Rev. M. W. Heslip, minister of St. Peter's, was in charge.

Members of the choirs of the different churches led in the singing of God Save the Queen, followed by one minute's silence The hymns used during the service were "O God Our Help in Ages Past," "Unto the Hills," "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Abide With Me."

Prayer for Royal Family

Prayers for the royal family and Queen were offered by Rev. T. H. Good, rector of St John's Anglican, while the Rev. Mr. Poynter read the Bible lesson from St. Johns 14. A brief message of sympathy was expressed by Reeve Jack Kincaid, who said the sudden passing of the King was a great shock to the peoples of the world and reminded all of the pledge of their loyalty to Queen Elizabeth II. Rev. R. McPhail announced the hymn. "Nearer My God to Thee."

The address was given by Rev. F. Lane who chose as his text Hebrews 11:4, "He being dead yet speaketh," adding in the words of Churchill, "He walked with death as if death were a companion, an acquaintance whom he recognized and did not fear," He was a good man, one of courage and revered by all. In times of distress during the world war, he lived with his people and shared their sorrows and joys alike.

"The family life in their home was an example we all could follow and although king of a mighty realm he was human like us all and today the royal family's grief is our grief." Mr. Lane's address will long be remembered by all who were privileged to hear it. The closing hymn was "Abide With Me," followed by the Benediction.

On Sunday the different churches held special memorial services.

At Trinity Church

At Trinity Church on Sunday morning a large crowd was in attendance. Members of the Madoc Legion and veterans sat in a body. Bouquets of white spring flowers were placed on the communion table on each side of the draped portrait of the late King and at each end of the table two Union Jacks in standards. Special hymns were used for the service, with Messrs. W. Rothwell and W. Hawthorne singing "Abide With Me."

The singing of "God Save the Queen" followed the one minute's silence and prayer offered by the minister. The Bible lesson was chosen from 14th chapter of St. John's Gospel. Mr. Lane paid tribute to the late King, of his devotion to his duty as King and of the fine example of family life in their home. He reminded his listeners that "while paying tribute to an earthly king, let us not forget our King of Kings, Jesus Christ, who was the example we must follow. Our patriotism must go further than those of earthly kings and to show this we must be good countrymen, trying to use love instead of war for peace among the peoples of this earth." He paid high tribute to the young Queen Elizabeth II, and prayed for God's guidance during her reign.

Sunday Evening

On Sunday evening, St. John's Anglican Church held a joint memorial service, members of Bannockburn choir assisting in the service of song. Hymns in keeping with the service were used. The rector, Rev. T. Harvey Good, had charge of the service.

The Rev. F. F. Downing, rector of St. James' Anglican Church, gave the address, basing his remarks on the text from Acts 13:36. Mr. Downing spoke of the 15 years of storm and trial through which the King had reigned and of the high plane on which he lived, His Majesty's home life might well be an example for all the home life of his subjects in the Empire and throughout the Commonwealth.

Outstanding throughout his reign was his devotion to duty and his faith in God, and in the cause of Christian civilization, which might well serve as a torch to be held aloft in other hands in the difficult years to come.

Prayers for Queen Elizabeth II were offered. The church was filled with people, who wished to pay homage and honor to a King who held the high esteem of his subjects throughout the Empire.

RAWDON

St. Paul's United Holds Impressive Memorial Service

Rawdon — A large number of folk from Rawdon Township and Sidney Township joined with the congregation of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, on Sunday morning for a solemn service of remembrance of His Gracious Majesty King George VI.

The church was artistically draped with mourning colors and a large Union Jack hung from the pulpit. A bouquet of white tulips and snapdragons adorned the communion table.

The pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker, was in charge of the service and it followed the pattern of the one held in Metropolitan Church, Toronto, in 1901 for Queen Victoria, and in 1936 for King George V. Copies of these services were on display also views of St. Mary Magdalene Church and Sandringham House. These latter were gifts from royalty to Mr. Baker at the time of "The Vimy Pilgrimage."

Form of Service

The service opened with a processional hymn by Issac Watts, "O God Our Help in Ages Past." The Royal Junior Choir sang words from Sarum Primer, "God be in My Head, and in My Understanding, God be in Mine End and at My Departing."

The Senior Choir contributed "Rock of Ages" and the male quartet, Messrs. Bob Patterson, William Aylesworth, Harry Brown and Grant Richardson, sang "Abide With Me."

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.R.C.T., rendered Chopin's Funeral March previous to the service and during the offertory, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings Fair," from Brahm's "Requiem".

Just previous to the message, the large congregation sang one of royalty's favorite hymns, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is," and special Bible passages were read in accordance with other memorial services for royalty.

Message of Tribute

The pastor based his message of tribute on the theme, "He has served our generation." He spoke of the deep devotion of His Majesty the late King to his own home and his family; of his great service to his country and its peoples, and his many sacrifices of personal pleasure in order to carry on the great traditions of the crown.

Mr. Baker referred to many instances that were outstanding in the reign of George VI over the past 15 years and in closing read from the King's Christmas Day message in 1939 the following words which have been cherished in many Canadian homes:

"I said to a man who stood at the gate of the year, 'Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown,' and he replied, 'Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God. That shall be to you better than light and safer than the known way'."

The service closed with, "O Sweet and Blessed Country, the Home of God's Elect," a 12th century hymn, and after the benediction, two minutes' silence was observed after which the organist rendered "Dead March in Saul," by Handel as a silent hush fell over the large assemblage, followed by "For All the Saints," as the congregation moved quietly from the edifice.

Mrs. John McKibbin Addresses Annual I. O. D. E. Dinner

Campbellford.—The annual dinner of the Bemersyde Chapter of the I.O.D.E., was held in the Parish Hall last week, when the women of the Parish Guild served a delicious turkey dinner to the chapter members and their guests.

The program opened with community singing, led by Mrs. Frank DeCarrol, after which the Regent, Mrs. A. K. Loucks, who was in the chair, paid a fitting tribute to the late King George VI. This was followed by two minutes silence in his memory, after which Mrs DeCarrol sang "The Lord's Prayer". All members then took the oath of allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II

Mrs. George Vice proposed the toast to the guests to which Mrs David Ness responded. A dance and encore by Miss Gaele Meyers was enjoyed by the audience. She was accompanied by Mrs. George Nicholls.

Speaker

The speaker of the evening was Mrs. John McKibbin, who was introduced by Mrs. Frank DeCarrol.

Mrs. McKibbin told of her work among tubercular patients under the Samaritan Club, of Toronto She gave a detailed account of her day's labors as a social worker, and enlivened her remarks with many humorous stories of her experiences. She said that the most essential quality for such work was a genuine love of people.

Mrs. H. T. Scott thanked the speaker for her interesting message. A solo by Mrs. Ted Smith completed the program.

Mrs. James Gay presented the Regent with a small gift on behalf of the members, in appreciation of her leadership during the year. The meeting closed with singing "God Save the Queen".

Fireside Hour

A near capacity crowd was on hand on Sunday evening for the fireside hour at St. John's United Church. The members came to see a demonstration of a sound projector the church contemplates purchasing, and a representative was on hand to operate the machine and answer general questions concerning it.

The Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith presided for the meeting.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg—The county meeting of Central Hastings Loyal Orange lodges was held in Madoc, Tuesday. There was a good attendance from the various lodges. Messrs. W. Martin, T. Emerson, B. Brough and J. Geen were the representatives present from Thomasburg.

The Independent Order of Oddfellows lodge No. 293, of Thomasburg, met on Friday in a special session when visiting brethren were present from Picton and Tweed.

During the meeting, Rev. A. L. Sisco, Tweed, dedicated a Noble Grand chair which was presented to the lodge by Mrs. W. H. Chisholm and family, in loving memory of the late Mr W. H. Chisholm.

Following this service, Brother Ed. Way, Tweed, presented colored slides on his recent trip through Eastern Canada, Gaspe and the Maritimes.

Included also were pictures of Northern Ontario and Manitoba and through to Churchill on Hudson's Bay. These he made most interesting as well as amusing by his commentary.

Later refreshments were served.

The euchre party under the auspices of Christ Church, Thomasburg, held at Mr. and Mrs. H. Sherry's on Wednesday last, was a decided success. The tables were full and many just looking on. A goodly sum was realized from the evening's entertainment.

Rev. and Mrs. Morley Clarke and Grant, spent the supper hour Thursday with Miss Sarah Wilson and Mr. Arthur Wilson, West Huntingdon.

Mrs. W. Morton is visiting her sister, Miss Emma Porter also her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. Porter in Toronto. Thomasburg friends hope she will find her sister much improved in health.

RAWDON

Richard Chard Addresses West Hastings W.I. Meeting

Rawdon.—Last Thursday evening, over 200 people gathered at Stirling Community Hall from the various branches in West Hastings District W.I.

Mrs. Don Donohoe, president of River Valley W.I., welcomed the guests as they arrived and at 9 p.m., she rang the brass bell which was a gift to the River Valley group in 1949 by the late Mrs. Clarence Chard, who brought it from Chester, England, on her return from a happy holiday in the homeland.

The president voiced greetings to all in attendance and said this February meeting had been planned and arranged by Mrs. Ross Bush and Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh. She also paid tribute to the entertainment committee of R.V.W.I.

Mrs. Harry Morrow was pianist and the ode and Lord's Prayer were used as an opening.

Report Given

Mrs. J. L. Donohoe gave a full financial report and the usual monthly business was laid over until the next meeting on March 6th.

Two minutes silence was observed for the late King George VI and all sang "O God Our Help in Ages Past".

Mrs. George Heasman led in community singing throughout the program and the various numbers included, "On Top of Old Smokey"; "It's a Good Time to Get Acquainted"; "In the Crust of the Old Apple Pie", and "Pack Up Your Dishes on the Pantry Shelf".

Guest Speaker

Mrs. S. McIntosh introduced Mr. Richard Chard, one of the River Valley boys, and said the Institute had admired his college career and overseas work and they had always appreciated having the Chard family in the community.

Dick, (as he is better known), chose as his theme, the motto of the Women's Institute, "For Home and Country" He said the Institute was rooted in W.I. homes and branched out to the country.

The speaker graphically pictured the tremendous strides made in three generations in the schools of Ontario and told of the vast changes brought in by the Department of Education.

He attributed much of this success to the spade-work done by Institute members in Ontario. It was the Institute who in many cases, installed pianos and radios in the school and pioneered hot lunches at noon.

In Canada there is a large group of folk with various views and opinions. It is 3,600 miles from coast to coast and here we have people of all creeds and denominations. He compared home with country and spoke of the great value of travel and of various conventions which are an education in themselves if a person is willing to learn.

Home and Country

He also spoke of income and taxes; income tax forms and the national budget and other comparisons of home and country. In many ways the home can teach the country a great many things. Many Institute members know what should be done but find it hard to have the opportunity to do it.

Public opinion is important and the Women's Institute plays a direct part in shaping the country and making it more Canadian and it also helps to make the homes of the nation a better place for the family to live.

Throughout his address, Dick gave several well-known sayings interspersed with spicy witticism.

He spoke of the progress of Canada and outlined the full affect of the Monarchy and paid tribute to the life of our departed King George VI.

He referred to the Right Hon. Vincent Massey, the newly appointed governor-general, pointing out that each individual reaps what he sows and gets back what he gives.

The speaker highly commended several Canadian magazines which should be read and Canadian films that are worth seeing. He gave titles and authors of a number of worthwhile Canadian books. Then he told of several Canadian pictures which have been painted by Canadian artists and have eventually won fame.

Today rural depopulation is a great worry to farm organizations but young folks should remember that you can't buy your standard of living; rather you make it yourself.

In closing, Mr. Chard spoke briefly on "Peace and International Relationships", and stressed the spirit of unity among the various Institutes in this country and overseas.

Part in Program

Stirling Institute furnished three numbers, a vocal solo by Miss Marlene Carlisle, with Mrs. A. E. Baker as accompanist; two humorous readings by Mrs. Louis Rodgers entitled "Mr. Brown,—Upside Down" and Mrs. A. Lake "How We Hunted a Mouse".

Bay of Quinte W.I.

Miss Barbara Thrasher gave a couple of tap dance numbers in costume and she also sang "You Can't Get a Man With a Gun". She was accompanied by Mrs. Grace Calvert, of Belleville, and the latter contributed two piano selections, on of which was "Honeysuckle Rose".

Wallbridge W.I.

Mr. Everett Phillips delighted with two musical numbers, guitar and harmonica; Misses Shirley and Sandra Fisher with guitar accompaniment, sang two vocal selections, "Slow-Poke", and "Waiting Down Yonder For Me".

Uniondale W.I.

Mrs. Milton Grills sang "The Stranger of Galilee", and Miss Helen Burkitt contributed a piano solo.

Pinegrove W.I.

Freda and Ronnie Barrie sang "A Lovely Little Robin" and Miss Joan Campbell gave a piano solo.

River Valley W.I.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen recited "The Pilot of the Plains", by E. Pauline Johnson.

The orchestra composed of Mrs. Phil Conley, Trenton, (formerly Gladys Rosebush, River Valley), Messrs. Ernest Rosebush, Glen Morrow and Kenneth Belcour, played music during the program and afterwards for dancing with Mr. James McDonnell calling the squares.

The program closed with the rendition of "O Canada".

Thirty Present

There were 30 members of River Valley W.I., in attendance with their families.

A silver collection was taken to defray expenses and amounted to $24.00.

Mrs. Roy Bush convened the kitchen and was assisted by Mrs Alex. Bush, Mrs. Roy Irven, Mrs. Jennie Donohoe, Mrs. Foster Wannamaker and several other members.

Another group of members and their husbands, served refreshments.

The committee in charge was grateful to all who helped in any way to make the evening such a success.

Several officers of the district were in attendance which included, Mrs. George Burkitt, Mrs. Louis Rodgers, Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Mrs. Morley Sine, Mrs. E. B. Finkle, Mrs. Berson Mitts, Mrs. Fred Campbell, Mrs. Roy Bush, Mrs. H. Coulter and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Spencer, Mrs. Roy Thrasher and Mr. Orno Sharp attended the Leadership Training Course at St. Mark's, Church of England, Bonarlaw, last Wednesday evening.

The McConnell families at Mount Pleasant received word of the death of Mr. James Chambers of North Bay. His wife was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ira McConnell.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith and family were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carr and Mrs. Frank Carr of River Valley.

Last Wednesday Mrs. Harry Brooks of Carmel-Sidney, accompanied her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Phillips, to Malton airport where the latter couple took a plane to Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips arrived at their apartment in Tampa Bay, Florida, about 7 p.m. that evening and Mrs. Phillips is enjoying the sunshine.

Dr. Harry W. Mack, Detroit, Michigan, whose former home was in Rawdon, is anxious to get some information re the Baptist burying grounds in the Stirling district. His mother's descendants were among the first pioneer settlers in the Hubble Hill community. Dr. Mack has just about completed a full family history.

The Y.P.U. skating party planned for last week had to be cancelled because of the heavy rain the Sunday previous.

A special Young Peoples rally in charge of Mr. Frederick Beckett, sponsored by the Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora Council of Religious Education, will be held on Friday evening, March 22nd, in Mount Pleasant United Church Hall. Rev. Morley Clarke will be the guest speaker. The rally is for Young Peoples' Unions, Young Adult Groups and Young Married Groups of the various churches in this district. Each group is providing a share in both program and refreshments.

Rev. A. H. Beare, Springbrooke, was recently appointed chaplain of the County L.O.L. for Centre Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Wilson, Mr. William Maynes, Mr. Ed Pyear, Mrs. Helen Neal and Bob spent a recent Sunday with relatives at Watertown, N.Y.

Miss Marion Johnson, Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Don Johnson and family, Mount Pleasant, spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Johnson.

Mr. Gerald Austin has resumed his duties at Port Dalhousie.

Mr. and Mrs. Boulter Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. James Johnston, and family, of Rawdon, were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Finkle, Chatterton.

Mrs. James Beckel, Kingston, has been visiting Rev. and Mrs. Boyd Beckel, on the Ivanhoe circuit.

Claridge's Hotel in London Packed With Kings and Queens In Town for King's Funeral

London, Feb. 14 (Reuters) — Claridge's Hotel, founded more than 100 years ago by a retired butler and his housekeeper wife, is packed with the world's Kings and Queens and aristocracy, here for the funeral of the King.

Europe's few remaining monarchs nod to each other as they walk down the thick-carpeted corridors. Princes and Princesses from the end of the earth chat over coffee.

Visiting royalty has booked nearly 50 rooms in the hotel, in London's exclusive Mayfair district.

First to arrive were 70-year-old King Gustav Adolf and Queen Louise of Sweden. King Haakon, 80, of Norway, hurried over from Buckingham Palace yesterday to greet them.

Haakon, an erect six-footer, is the only monarch staying with the British Royal Family. They call him "uncle Charlie."

Claridge's is a sombre place this week despite its glittering clientele. Its orchestra is silent.

As each monarch arrives his flag is unfurled above the roof. By tonight the flags of 16 countries will be fluttering at half-staff.

A corps of detectives has been brought in to guard the visitors.

King Paul of Greece, a great-grandson of Queen Victoria, arrived yesterday after being greeted at one of London's main-line stations by the Duke of Edinburgh.

The Count of Barcelona has a suite at the hotel. He will be joined later by the Duke of Segovia, Prince Ernst August of Hanover, Prince Braganza of Portugal and Prince and Princess Wan Waithayakon of Thailand.

Members of the British Royal Family and British diplomats are working an 18-hour day, rushing to air and sea ports to greet the arirving monarchs and heads of state.

The Duke of Edinburgh was out again at London airport today to meet President Vincent Auriol of France.

Scottish Landlord Says Britons Ought To Raise More

London, Feb. 14—(CP)—Lord Lovat of Beauly, one of Scotland's leading landowners and cattle-breeders, believes he has a solution for Britain's acute food-shortage problem.

Speaking in a House of Lords debate, he suggested that as a starter the people themselves should concentrate on producing more homegrown food from nearly 20,000,000 acres still to be developed in the United Kingdom.

But to get back on its agricultural feet the country primarily needs a bold, long-term development policy.

Lord Lovat, a wartime commando, who controls about 190,000 acres of farmland, mainly in Inverness-shire, aroused considerable curiosity in the Chamber when he placed on the seat beside him a plate containing a pair of rowelled spurs. Later, he disclosed they had been brought along to spur the government into action, if necessary.

Too much money had already been squandered, the Scottish peer charged, overseas developments such as the £30,000,000 West Africa peanuts scheme and a costly egg venture in Gambia. He also told of a plan to provide a factory ship to produce shark's fin soup for rich Chinese. This was a commodity, he said, that apparently was no longer popular in communist China, but it had cost the taxpayer approximately £500,000 before operations were closed down.

All this money, he contended, could have been spent to far greater advantage by helping the United Kingdom to become more self-reliant on her agricultural resources.

Chief Ingredients

The British people, he said, had been told it would be a comparatively easy matter to go overseas for the purpose of their meat requirements. That no longer held true. Supplies in some of the major exporting countries, like Argentina and Australia, were tightening up, while the general rise in production costs was shooting prices sky high.

"In spite of these facts," Lord Lovat continued, "there still seems to be a school of thought which considers that it might be possible to make bargains with the new world and Australia to get beef at cheaper rates. In my view that is entirely wrong."

To redress prevailing shortages, Lord Lovat outlined a program he said he would recommend to the government as a means of implementing a long-term development policy.

The chief ingredients of his proposal: (1) Review of existing subsidies; (2) Restoration of plowing grants on hill and marginal farms; (3) Immediate survey of the country's freight rates structure and easing of charges in areas where intensified production could best be effected; (4) A program providing for winter keep of livestock; (5) Reduction of state-owned land so the problem of production may be tackled by the farmers themselves instead of government officials.

"As a farming community we are inarticulate," Lord Lovat said. "Yet if we had only the slightest confidence, if we had over a reasonable period an assurance of guaranteed prices and some form of hope of a policy which did not change every five years with every government, we would gladly launch into a full-scale development program."

Give Up Search

Montreal, Feb. 14—(CP)—Montreal police today said they have all but given up their search for Nursing Sister Lieut. Elizabeth Sansom, missing from her post at Kingston, Ont., military hospital since Christmas.

Police said they have found "absolutely no trace" of her and can only assume now that she deliberately disappeared.

Witness Says Accused Asked Her to Wait

Hull, Que., Feb. 14—(CP)— A former girl friend of Leo Rheal Bertrand, charged with the murder of his wife, testified today that the accused suggested some months ago that she wait for him rather than accept another man's proposal of marriage.

In November, Bertrand's 52-year-old wife was burned to death in an isolated hunting cabin. The Crown is trying to prove that Bertrand is guilty of her murder.

The trial of the 37-year-old correspondence - school psychiatrist and taxi-driver took another unusual turn today when one of the jurymen told Mr. Justice Bienvenue that his conscience is not clear because he has found he knows one of the witnesses.

The judge told him to judge the case only on the facts placed before him and he would have no need to fear or to reproach himself.

Then for an hour 21-year-old Ruth Boucher held the stand with her testimony about the months between May, 1950, and November, 1951, when she said she saw Bertrand quite regularly.

She thought, at least until Nov. 1, that Bertrand was a widower, she said. Mrs. Bertrand was killed Nov. 10.

Miss Boucher testified that last Sept. 3, while she was on a trip to Montreal with Bertrand, he had told her he would have to make a trip to Montreal Sept. 7. He said the trip was "very important to me —pray for me."

Bertrand, she said, was often too busy to see her for a week at a time, so she went out occasionally with other men, one of whom wanted to marry her last spring.

She testified that when she told Bertrand about the proposal, he said, "you might just as well wait for me in a case like that."

'GOOD DIET' HAMSTER DIES

Port Arthur, Tex., Feb. 14 (AP) — A nutrition experiment conducted by the junior Red Cross was temporarily suspended yesterday. A hamster on a "good diet" died. Another hamster, on a "bad diet" was thriving. The 'good diet' consisted of green and yellow vegetables, cheese, milk and eggs. The "bad diet" was made up of starches and sweets.

Family Reunion

For the first time in 10 years all the immediate members of Prime Minister St. Laurent's family came together at Ottawa for a surprise celebration on the 70th birthday of Mr. St. Laurent. They are, left to right, (back row): Frank Lafferty, Montreal, son-in-law; Jean Paul St. Laurent, Quebec; Lora St. Laurent, Compton, Que., sister of Mr. St. Laurent; Reneault St. Laurent, Quebec; Hugh O'Donnell, Montreal, son-in-law; Dr. Mathieu Samson, Quebec, son-in-law; (centre row): Mrs. Reneault St. Laurent, daughter-in-law; Mme. Paid With a Smile

Hamilton, Feb. 14 — (CP)— Harry Burville, J. P., fined Harry Burville, J. P. $2 in traffic court yesterday. And he paid it with a smile.

The charge was driving an automobile without tail-lights. Evidently Mr. Burville's son had been driving at the time, but the fine was charged to the car's owner.

GIVEN MORE PAY

Mexico City, Feb. 14. (AP)—Mexico's supreme court ruled today that miners working in temperatures above degrees are entitled to a peso extra a day. A peso is worth 11 1-2 cents.

OWN TEETH BETTER

Belgrade — (Reuters) — Authorities in North Bosnia have started a drive to persuade Yugoslavian peasants that healthy natural teeth are more beautiful than false ones, even of gold or chromium. In the villages it is considered a mark of special merit to be able to show a row of gold teeth. Since trade in gold was prohibited, they turned to chromium.

NO ESCAPE

Singapore — (Reuters)—Trying to avoid making a trip after curfew hours, V Tng Meng Fui crowded 11 fellow-laborers into his car to give them a lift home. He was stopped by police and fined $8.40 for overloading his car.

On Buying Splurge

Ottawa, Feb. 14—(CP)—Consumers ewnt on a buying splurge in 1951, increasing their spending in Canada's retail stores by $1,000,000,000 to create a new high of $10,400,000,000 in sales for the year. The Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

NO WASTE

New Delhi—(Reuters) — Indian food chemists have evolved a "rapid, inexpensive process" to turn spoiled skim milk powder into edible casein. Scientists at the Central Food Institute at Mysore estimate that a ton of milk will yield one-third of its weight in good quality casein, a base for cheese.

Communists Jab At Advance Allied Positions

Seoul, Korea, Feb. 14— (AP)—Communist troops jabbed at advance Allied positions all across Korea today, hitting with a beefed-up company at one point on the western front.

Stormy skies restricted the air war. But F-86 abre jets flying cover for fighter-bombers damaged one of 30 communist jets which tried to break through the protective screen.

On the ground, pre-dawn red attacks knocked Allied infantrymen out of two positions northwest of Yonchon on the western front and one near the Mundung Valley in the east. All three were recaptured without trouble, the Eighth Army reported.

EEast of the Mundung Valley the reds hurled 700 rounds of mortar and artillery fire at a U.N. division in the 24 hours before dawn.

The Eighth Army said the reds made nearly a dozen other small probes across the front.

The north Korean war communique, broadcast by the Pyongyang radio, said red shore batteries on the west coast sank two allied warships offshore. There was no Allied confirmation.

Allied planes fought through threatening weather to attack communist life lines in north Korea. Targets were obscured by heavy clouds.

108 YEARS OLD

East Meredith, N. Y., Feb. 14 - (AP) — Valentine Oblinski is 108 today — St. Valentine's Day. The centenarian, who was named for the holiday, spent most of his birthday in bed. He has been in failing health. He was born in Poland in 1844.

New Prisoner-Exchange Plan Incorporating Allied Ideas Presented by Red Negotiators

By OLEN CLEMENTS

Munsan Korea, Feb. 14—(AP)—Communist truce negotiators presented a new prisoner-exchange plan today incorporating some allied ideas but clinging to their own demand for forced repatriation.

The allies repeatedly have said they won't turn a single prisoner back to the reds against his will.

The communists have another new plan. It was drafted for the final clause of the Korean armistice. It will be unveiled Saturday before a full dress session of truce negotiators.

Originally the communists suggested a three-point recommendation for a high-level, post-armistice conference; withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea; settlement of the Korean peace, and settlement of other Asian problems relating to the Korean question.

The U. N. agreed in principle to the first two, but balked at discussing problems other than those directly connected with the Korean war. The reds offered to submit a new proposal.

Col. George Hickman said he had not time to read carefully the nine point prisoner-exchange plan, but on several points the communists had "come to our own point of view."

While holding out against voluntary repatriation the communists did agree to let Red Cross teams operate in prisoner-of-war camps after an armistice is signed.

Staff officers discussing truce supervision made little progress. A U. N. spokesman said some minor differences were ironed out.

Col. Don Darrow said an agreement was reached on the five islands below the 38th parallel off western Korea which the allies will hold after an armistice. U. N. troops will be withdrawn from all other coastal islands.

Gracie Says Plans For Marriage Are Called Off

Capri, Italy, Feb. 14—(CP)—Gracie Fields, British film and stage star, left suddenly today and a friend said her plans for marriage with Capri's Romanian-born radio repairman are off.

The wedding originally was set for yesterday, but Gracie announced last week the ceremony was postponed until after the funeral of the King. Yesterday she refused to discuss her plans.

A friend said Gracie "postfinitely after a sharp disagreement with her fiancee," Boris Alberovich.

"Gracie left in a fury," the friend said. "She's expected to fly to America right away, after her dispute with Alberovich. Gracie will deny to anyone that her marriage is not going to take place, but I know for sure that her marriage plans are off."

Hollywood to Counterpunch Against Accusations of Using Screen to Spread Red Ideals

By JAMES BACON

Hollywood, Feb. 14 — (AP) — The movie industry, solid almost to a man, is readying a counterpunch against what it labels unfounded charges of Communist sympathy from irresponsible pressure groups.

The main target — the Wage Earners Committee of the U.S.A. —welcomes a "chips down" fight to "bring the whole filthy mess into the open to see who's right."

The scheduled return of the House of Representatives Committee on Un-American Affairs for hearings this month will accent the fight — a court libel action — which promises to be one of the most significant in the industry in recent years.

The battle was touched off when the Wage Earners Committee picketed "Death of a Salesman", a Stanley Kramer production.

Many in Hollywood believe the W.E.C. picked the wrong man to picket in Kramer, younger and spunkier than the average producer. Kramer immediately filed a $1,000,000 libel suit against the committee.

Kramer based his suit on a pamphlet distributed by the pickets in which the charge was made that Kramer pictures have been notoriously Communist-slanted and Communist-starred.

Quick Support

The Kramer decision to fight back brought immediate industry reaction. Public offers of support and pledges of legal resources came from such powerful groups as the Motion Picture Producers Association.

The recent memory of Kramer's firing of Carl Foreman may have helped rally right-wing industry support for the young producer. Foreman was a charter member of the Kramer company and wrote such hits as "Cyrano de Bergerac", "Champion", "Home of the Brave" and "Ten Men." Kramer fired Foreman the day after he refused to tell the Un-American Affairs Committee whether he had ever belonged to the Communist party.

Some hold even more significant Kramer's hiring of director Edward Dmytryk, one of the "Hollywood Ten". Dmytryk, who was born in Grand Forks, B.C., served a jail term for his refusal to tell the house probers about his Communist connections.

Last year Dmytryk recanted and started off a chain reaction of friendly witnesses before the house group which thus learned much of the inner workings of the Hollywood Reds. Dmytryk was marked as a stool pigeon among the left-wingers.

Attack March

Kramer says the current picketing is directed largely at Frederic March, star of "Salesman".

"It's well known from one end of the country to the other that March was unjustly accused of Red front connection," comments Kramer, adding March spent $36,000 in court to win a public retraction of Red charges in Counter Attack, a New York anti-Communist publication.

Kramer accuses the W.E.C. of "deliberately ignoring (the retraction) to reiterate the original untrue charges."

"Maybe March figures 'what's the use' but I don't," says Kramer.

"I have no intention of becoming a knight on a white horse but if I have to, I will—right down to stabbing the horse. As to the Red-slanting charge, my pictures will speak for themselves — in court".

The W.E.C. is fighting back with a threatened libel suit against Variety, the tradepaper which is supporting Kramer's stand. The W.E.C. libel action is directed against Variety's uncomplimentary description of the committee.

Spearhead of the W.E.C. is its executive director, R. A. McConnon, a 56-year-old former salesman. McConnon says the two-year-old organization now claims 250,000 members nationally — "98 per cent of them common wage earners."

"If Kramer wins this fight," asserts McConnon, "no person, no organization ever again will dare challenge Hollywood's so-called right to slant pictures to propagandize Communist or any other totalitarian ideals."

Swiss Experts To Try Climbing Mount Everest

By HAROLD K. MILKS

Bombay (AP) — India's best known Himalayan expert will accompany a team of Swiss mountain climbers making a new attempt this spring to climb the unconquered heights of 29,141-foot Mount Everest.

He is Ram N. Rahul, consultant to many Himalayan expeditions.

The new assault on Everest, sponsored by the Alpine research foundation, will be the first to be attempted by any group from the Nepalese side of the world's tallest mountain.

The Swiss party of eight experienced Alpine climbers and four scientists is led by Dr. Eduard Wyss-Dunant, who directed the Swiss Himalayan expedition of 1949.

The expedition will establish a base camp at the 20,000—or 21,000 foot level. From there advance camps will be erected up to a top height of 27,000 to 28,000 feet—the last one of the jump-off point for a dash toward Everest's unknown summit.

Two members of the team will try the final stretch but the subzero gales which sweep across the heights of Everest rule out an overnight stay on the summit even if they reach it. They must return in one day to their last advance camp, or perish in the cold, rarefied air near the top.

Good Chance

With them the Swiss climbers are bringing new type lightweight oxygen breathing apparatus. It is described as far superior to that used by previous expeditions.

Rahul, who has himself climbed to 27,000 feet in the Himalayas, and was liaison officer to the Swiss Himalayan expedition of 1949, agrees with Eric Shipton, who led the last British reconnaissance expedition up the slopes of Everest, that "the Swiss have as good a change of reaching the summit as anyone."

Rahul estimates it will require at least two weeks after reaching Nepal for the climbers to set up their base camp. Another fortnight may be required before the actual climb begins.

The pair of climbers selected to make the final dash "have only one job," said an Himalayan expert here. "It is to climb that last two thousand or more feet and come back alive with a report of what they found at the top."

If successful, the Swiss climbers may solve an old mystery. That is the secret of what happened to George Mallory and Andrew Irvine, a pair of British climbers who vanished into the clouds shrouding the last few hundred feet of Everest's peak June 7, 1924, and were never seen again.

Many believe they actually reached their goal, only to die on the lonely heights.

Sally Rand Is Red Indian By Adoption

Springfield, O., Feb. 14 (AP)—If Sally Rand ever runs out of feathers for her fans, she'll know where to get replacements.

Sally, a noted feather fancier, is an adopted Indian. She became a princess of the Squamish tribe in Canada last year.

This information comes from a curious organization known as the Continental Confederation of Adopted Indians —a sort of union of palefaces taken into Indian tribes.

Perhaps you thought only politicians ever won the right to wear a war bonnet and answer to a name like Chief Eagle Head.

Wrong again. Viscount Alexander, former governor-general of Canada, won that title as an adopted member of the Blood band last year. There were lots of others.

The head of the confederation is Daniel Francis Clancy, a Springfield, O., newspaper man. He's known around the tepees as Chief Big Writer.

Bing Crosby — better known at Indian camp fires as Chief Man-of-Many Songs — is the confederation's war chanter. Up until now, Der Bingle hasn't had to chant his braves into battle, although the confederation is feuding at the moment with a paleface across the sea.

That feud was the big confederation project for 1951. The problem was how to get the bones of Pocahontas back to the United States. The paleface that has the confederation on the verge of going on the warpath is Rev. Dr. R. D. Daunton-Fear, pastor of St. George's Church at Gravesend, England.

That's where the bones of Pocahontas now rest. The confederation wants them back. But Dr. Daunton-Fear is a determined man. He visited the U.S. last fall to raise money to turn his ancient church into a shrine to the Indian princess.

Dr. Daunton-Fear escaped back to England with his scalp but the confederation set up angry smoke signals for weeks.

New Silhouette In Men's Clothing

Montreal, Feb. 14 — (CP) — The "new silhouette" in men's clothing, designed to flatter the male figure, will give men the neat, well-groomed look, Thomas Adler of Montreal said Wednesday.

He told delegates attending a convention of the Retail Men's Wear Association of Canada that in 1952 styles, from top to bottom, the well-dressed man will wear "better looking and better fitting clothes than ever before."

"The cut of the lapels is narrower and shoulders are to be less accentuated to conform to the more slender silhouette," he said. "The shoulder padding that made a slim man look like a Hercules, will disappear. Waistlines also will come in and trousers will conform to these slenderizing lines."

Farm Forum Notes

On the question "What sets farm prices?" the answers were varied. Some thought it entirely impossible to control prices of farm produce. One forum suggested a producer-controlled market board. River Valley stated that it would be necessary for farmers to interpret market trends requirements of population and supply on hand. Vegetable growers have fulfilled their job adequately. Foxboro says the law of supply and demand is working to the disadvantage of both consumer and producer in the commodities of pork and eggs.

The forum agreed that surplus foods should be distributed internationally, perhaps by establishing a world food bank.

With the exception of one small group the forums would like a period in which prices were stabilized. This group thought they liked the thrill of having something better to look forward to. It would help keep them on their toes.

There was a total of 75 members out in four farm forums.

May Cancel Visit

Amsterdam, Feb. 14 (Reuters) —The official visit of Queen Juliana of the Netherlands to Canada scheduled for April has been cancelled because Canada plans to observe mourning for the King until the end of May, it was reliably learned Tuesday night.

But the queen and Prince Bernhard may make an unofficial visit to Canada after their United States tour, which under original plans was to end April 17.

It seems likely now that the U. S. visit may be extended.

In Ottawa there was no official confirmation of the report that the official visit has been cancelled but such a development is considered unlikely.

PROPOSE NEW SUBDIVISION

Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 14 (CP)—A group of local business men has proposed opening a $2,700,000 residential subdivision in an attempt to ease this city's housing shortage.

R. H. Elgie, spokesman for the group, said 59 acres of land have been purchased, and local contractors are willing to proceed with construction of houses in the $8,000-$9,000 bracket.

Only delay in starting work is installation of water mains, which public utilities commission says is too costly.

Canada is Not Bluffing Says Noted Author

New York, Feb. 14 — (CP) — Any belief in the United States that Canada is bluffing about her intentions to build the St. Lawrence seaway alone is a "misconception," Leslie Roberts, Canadian author, says in a special article in today's Herald Tribune.

Roberts says it does not "appear to have struck home in numerous quarters in the United States that Canada needs the completed seaway and the latent power of the St. Lawrence in its rapidly expanding economy."

In an accompanying editorial, the Herald Tribune says no doubt it would be feasible for Canada to build a 27-foot navigation channel around the International Rapids without the power dam—"but such a costly procedure would not make sense to the Canadians themselves, as Mr. Roberts observes, and is hardly within the present range of possibility."

Regarding the power project, Roberts said half the cost of developing the 2,000,000,000-plus horsepower which now roars unharnessed through the International Rapids will be borne by Ontario, the other half by whatever authority is designated by the United States.

New Speculation Playing Old Tune About Pearson

Ottawa, Feb. 14—(CP)— New speculation is playing an old tune about Canada's External Affairs Minister Pearson.

He is reported going to an international post. The reports are no likelier to prove true than have their numerous predecessors, which included one half-serious suggestion that he should become czar of baseball.

This time he is reported mentioned prominently in European capitals as the outstanding possibility for the full-time job of director or secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization under a revamped setup.

He's not likely to take the job even if it is offered to him. He's needed in the Canadian cabinet.

So far, in fact, no word has come back here to the cabinet or the External Affairs Department from Mr. Pearson in London to indicate that any discussions are going on about the job.

One strong indication that he won't take it is that he at last is really ready to run for one of the other international jobs for which he's been mentioned.

Canada has informed other members of the United Nations that Mr. Pearson is willing to run for the presidency of the U.N. General Assembly at the session slated to start next September. (That's one of the jobs he's been prominently mentioned for in the past.)

This was reported from Paris several weeks ago and is confirmed by Mr. Pearson's office here. The information was passed along to other countries at a time when it was known the N.A.T.O. job was coming up.

GORE

The Gore—The social evening sponsored by the Victoria W.A. at the Montgomery home on Thursday evening was well attended. All enjoyed the crokinole tournament. A pot luck supper is being held next Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mac Hubbs.

Mrs. B. L. Redner entertained the W.M.S. for their February meeting on Wednesday. Mrs. Frank Townsend, group leader, conducted an interesting program.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Anderson, Belleville, visited her mother, Mrs. D. B. Fox and Mr. and Mrs. W. Fox on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. V. O'Hara spent Friday at his home near Port Hope.

Mr. Melvin Pulver attended the Good Roads convention at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Brickman were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bryant, Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Fox and Gerald entertained the Farm Forum group for their Monday evening meeting. All enjoyed a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cairns, Centre, were supper and evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pulver on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Green were Sunday evening guests of his brother and family, Bethel.

The current epidemic of measles and chicken pox have both invaded The Gore.

How To Hold
FALSE TEETH
More Firmly in Place

Do your false teeth annoy and embarrass by slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, laugh or talk? Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This alkaline (non-acid) powder holds false teeth more firmly and more comfortably. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH today at any drug store.

Detroit's Noted Policeman Quits

Detroit, Feb. 14 (CP)—Detroit's one-man police force, Lieut. Bob (Two Gun) Williams, 49, resigned yesterday to take a job as chief of plant protection for an industrial firm.

Said he: "I felt some day my number would be up and I thought I better get out."

Detroit's most-decorated policeman—he has been awarded 134 citations of merit — Williams has shot and killed nine men in the line of duty and made nearly 10,000 arrests.

He is a mild-looking, bespectacled man.

MATCH FOR WOLVES

Fort William, Feb. 14 (CP) —The speed of the propellor-driven snowmobile is a match for timber wolves, which have been running on the ice of Nipigon Bay, 60 miles northeast of here. George Dampier, operator of a snowmobile between Nipigon and St. Ignace Island, spotted a pack of eight wolves in the bay, took chase and ran down one of them. The animal was five feet three inches long and 33 inches high.

Coaching Canada's Skaters

Frank Stack of Winnipeg, veteran of Canada's Olympic team and, at 46, believed the oldest competitor in the Oslo winter games, has taken over coaching duties of the speed skaters. He was forced out of skating action by a torn knee cartilage. He is shown second from left, giving pointers to, left to right: Ralph Olin, Calgary; Craig Mackay, Saskatoon and Gordon Audley, St. Boniface. —(CP Photo.)

RAWDON

Two Mission Bands Entertained

Rawdon.—On Saturday afternoon, Miss Marlene Haggerty and her grandmother, Mrs. E. Haggerty entertained Wellman's, Rawdon, Mission Band at their home with 16 members and several visitors in attendance.

The president, Miss Annie Dracup, presided and the theme of the February meeting was "Who Are Our Neighbors?"

Miss Muriel Morton played quiet music and two hymns were sung from the special Mission Band hymn books.

Following the call to worship, Jimmie Chumbley read "The Story of the Good Samaritan", from the Scriptures.

Offering Dedicated

The offering of $1.37 was gathered by Sadie Russett and dedicated with "Father Bless the Gifts We Bring Thee."

Marlene Haggerty read her report, and the leader Mrs. Burton Morton, conducted the business which included plans to raise expense money for 1952.

In December, each member wrote an examination on the former study book "Where the Carp Banners Fly". These papers were corrected by the leader and handed back to the members at this meeting, with a bookmark on which was written each member's record for the year. This interesting study gave the members a general outline of the slight difference between Japanese children and Canadian children and Mrs. Morton made the chapters interesting, at all of last year's meetings.

The pastor, Rev. R. R. Bonsteel and his mother, Mrs. Charles Bonsteel, were in attendance and this is the first time a minister of Rawdon circuit has attended a meeting of Wellman's Mission Band.

Presentations Made

At this juncture Mr. Bonsteel presented Muriel Morton and Charles Nix each with a life membership certificate and a Mission Band Badge which he pinned on each recipient. The certificates were a work of art as they had been hand engraved by Miss Gladys Clarke.

Nancy Chumbley sang "Into a Tent Where a Gypsy Boy Lay", and the group joined in with the last three choruses.

The leader graphically told the first and second chapters of the new study book on home missions dealing with Canadian boys and girls. The study book is entitled "The Twins Make Friends" and chapter one is about a Dutch girl and chapter two about an Indian boy. This book will be of great interest to Mission Band members throughout Canada.

The pastor closed the service after which Margaret Dracup staged a contest and the assistant leader, Mrs. Carman Nix conducted several interesting games.

The "World Friends" magazine was distributed to all members and all the children in attendance paid their 1952 Mission Band fees.

The Band is being highly complimented as last year they remitted $90 to the Presbyterial treasurer, Mrs. F. Mills, of Napanee.

Refreshments consisted of apples and candy and thanks for hospitality closed a successful meeting.

Canada, Australia Said Racing To See Which Can Import Largest Flow of Immigrants

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

wa, Feb. 11 (CP) — Canada d Australia, two members of e British Commonwealth with enty of room for additional opulation, are running a close ce in the post-war drive for ew citizens.

Canada is ahead at the moment, t Australia could overcome the d in a matter of months.

Since the end of the last war, anada has admitted approximely 625,000 immigrants and Ausralia 591,000, a difference of 34,-00.

Both countries are tapping the me sources — the United Kingom and Europe. Both have plans assist immigrants who cannot ord to pay their passage.

Neither country has set a longnge immigration target. Some gh-ranking Australians have pressed the hope that the popution of their country will grow 20,000,000 in the next 25 years. ustralia now has a population 8,000,000.

ardiner's Opinion

Canada's Agriculture Minister ardiner has said several times e believes this country could upport a population of 50,000,000. eorge Drew, Progressive Conervative leader, has gone farher and suggested that Canada ould eventually have a populaon of 100,000,000. Canada now as a population of approximatey 14,000,000.

Canada admitted an estimated 95,000 new citizens in 1951, the argest number for any year since 913. No target has been set for 952, but the number of admisons is expected to be as great as st year if there is no serious unmployment.

Australia admitted approximely 133,000 immigrants in 1951 nd has set a target of 150,000 for 952.

Following is the immigration ecord of the two countries since 946, the first year following the nd of the Second World War:

ear	Canada	Australia
946	71,719	18,217
947	64,127	31,765
948	125,414	65,739
949	95,217	167,727
950	73,912	174,540
951	195,000	133,000
otal	625,389	590,988

United Kingdom Emigrants

Canada obtained about onehird of her immigrants from the United Kingdom, while Australia btained about one-half from that ource.

More than 200,000 of Canada's 25,000 immigrants in the postar years came from the United ingdom. Australia's total of pproximately 591,000 included 76,000 citizens from the United Kingdom or other members of the ommonwealth.

Complete figures were not avilable here on the number of imigrants reaching Australia from ther than commonwealth counries, but large numbers were rom Poland, Latvia, Italy and Holland.

In 1949, for instance, Australia dmitted 35,000 Poles, 11,000 Latians and 10,000 Italians. In 1950 dmissions included 32,000 Poles, 1,000 Dutch and 13,000 Italians.

In 1952, Australia hopes to obain 25,000 Dutch, 15,000 to 20,000 talians, 12,000 Germans and 30,-000 to 35,000 from displaced perons camps.

From Everywhere

Canada admitted more than 00,000 persons from countries other than the United Kingdom. They came from practically all parts of the globe — about 50,000 from the United States, 125,000 from northern Europe and 225,000 from all other countries.

In 1951, a total of 27,000 Germans were admitted to Canada compared with 4,900 in 1950. Italian immigrants totalled 21,312 compared with 8,258 in 1950.

Other large groups included Dutch, French, Poles, Ukrainians, Yugoslavs, Czechs and Danes.

JOHNSTOWN

Johnstown — The 3-H Club, (Harder's Happy Helpers) held their social evening on Friday night at Harder's School with an excellent attendance. There were 17 tables of euchre, one table of crokinole, one table of checkers. There were people from Front of Sidney, from Johnstown, Telephone Road and Belleville. Dancing was enjoyed. Then a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Whitney and Eric of Trenton, Mr. Allan Hall of Detlor, visited with Mr. and Mrs. McLean on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Stickle were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred May of Belleville on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Alva Meyers wish to thank all those who sent cards and messages of congratulation on their 35th wedding anniversary. They were much appreciated.

WALLBRIDGE

Wallbridge — On Sunday morning Wallbridge Church was filled when the pastor, Rev. W. Neelands, gave an inspiring sermon in memory of the beloved King who passed away on Wednesday last. A large number of people from the other appointments were present.

The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. James Sine, gave a couple of selections with Mr. Ted Evans singing a solo entitled, "In the Garden;" the choir number, "Good Night Here and Good Morning Up There," was also in keeping in memory of the King.

L.A. - W.M.S.

L.A. and W.M.S. members of Wallbridge held a pot-luck dinner in the church hall on Wednesday. Dinner over, they met in the church to hold their meetings. All enjoyed the speakers of the W.M.S., Mrs. Fred Wilson and Mrs. M. Denton of Holloway Street, Belleville, who gave two splendid talks which had helpful ideas of the missionary work. Mrs. Wilson is president of the Belleville Presbyterial; Mrs. Denton secretary of Christian Stewardship, and they are visiting all the auxiliaries of the Belleville Presbyterial.

Mrs. Harry McKee, who has been under the doctor's care for some time, is a patient in the Kingston General Hospital. All wish Mrs. McKee a speedy recovery.

Weather being ideal for skiing on Sunday, a large number were seen enjoying themselves.

Guess old Bruin saw his shadow as it has been like real winter again for the past few days.

Mr. David Trow and Mr. Frank Harris called on Mr. J. Hogg on Tuesday and Mr. Hogg was in the very best of spirits having been confined indoors since last October, when he fell and broke his hip, and he says he feels fine, although he is not able to walk around. He loves to have his old neighbors of Wallbridge call on him. All are hoping he will be able to return to his home here when the springtime comes as he is greatly missed. He will, on March 8th, be celebrating his 92nd birthday and all will be wishing him a real happy birthday and that he will be spared for many more.

Girls' Club

The Wallbridge Girls' Club held their sixth meeting at the home of Jacqueline Smith with seven girls present. The evening was spent in finishing up their skirts they had started at one of their other meetings, sewing up hems. After the meeting a vote of thanks was tendered to Jacqeline for opening up her home. Refreshments were then served.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lagabeer and baby Larry were Sunday tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Wannamaker called on Mr. and Mrs. A. Wannamaker on Sunday afternoon.

Britain Must Sharply Increase Present Output Home-Grown Food or Face Actual Privation

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 13 (CP) — The British people have been told bluntly that unless their present output of home-grown food is increased sharply and soon, they not only face a long ordeal of austerity rationing, but the prospect of actual privation.

The warning came from one of Britain's leading agricultural authorities, Sir George Stapledon, in a full-blown debate conducted through the columns of The Times. It followed a published query from Lord Hungarton, asking: "When will the people of Britain realize the true position regarding the world's food supplies?"

The situation is serious, replied Sir George. Britain's agriculture future can only be made secure by planning in terms of wise regionalization of crop rotations.

If Britons were to farm always with the possibility of privation at the back of their minds then, on the grounds of national safety, there was much to be said for small farms with their inherent capacity for intensified production.

Not Keeping Pace

Lord Hungarton had started the soul-searching by reminding his countrymen that world food production is far from keeping pace with increasing population. Countries such as Australia and Argentina, normal suppliers of a goodly share of Britain's food requirements were consuming more of their own products and shipping less overseas. There was also an alarming drift from the land which had brought about acute shortages and higher prices.

Lord Hungarton suggested Britain should deal with her own problem to the best of her ability by converting millions of acres to more useful production. But this, he said, can only be done if sufficient capital, manpower and equipment is made available or by making work in agriculture as financially attractive as in other industries.

Best Farmers in World

Viscount Bledisloe, former governor-general of New Zealand and president of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, said it is an indisputable fact that Britain has some of the best farmers in the world.

"But unfortunately," he observed,"we have also some who through inefficiency, laziness, physical infirmity, or lack of adequate capital, are not producing from Britain's fertile acres one-half of the food these are capable of yielding."

Britain could no longer afford to keep farmers of that type on her limited and steadily-shrinking cultivable land.

J. O. Cherrington, a Hampshire tenant farmer, attributed the drop in production to the average farmer's lack of working capital.

This, he said, is caused by high taxation and a price system which pegs farm produce in an otherwise uncontrolled economy. Being sensible businessmen the farmers had simply gone over to operations known as low farming, which required less cash inventment but also low production.

As a possible remedy, he suggested return to the pre-war custom of assessing farm profits on a rental basis. The thought of a tax-free profit after a certain level had been reached might, he said, provide the desired spur for farmers to take greater risks and bring about a greatly increased output of home-grown food.

Meanwhile, the government stepped in with a short-term incentive of its own. It undertook to pay farmers £5 an acre towards the cost of plowing up land which has been under grass for four years, and sowing it to an approved crop for harvesting this year.

Looking to North

Toronto, Feb. 14—(CP)—Ontario is looking north for new sources of power.

Premier Frost said yesterday that Ontario is interested in the possibility of using the lignite deposits of Northern Ontario to produce electrical energy.

The presence of great quantities of lignite in an area north of Cochrane has been known for years, but a way of bringing it to the major markets of the province at a reasonable price has not yet been found.

Now it is thought that hydro steam-powered generators, for which lignite would be the fule, could be brought to the deposits.

Ontario Plowman Best Overseas Contestant

Armagh, Ireland, Feb. 14 (Reuters)—Norman Tyndall, Ontario's champion tractor plowman from Richmond Hill, yesterday won the cup for the best performance by an overseas contestant in the International Plowing Championships here.

A Scot, John Reid of Mechars, Wigtonshire, was declared world's champion horse plowman. An Irishman, T. H. Humphries of Danaghadee, took the tractor plowing title.

With Tyndall, but entered in the horse plowing event, was Eugene Timbers, 18, Canada's horse plowing champion, the Milliken, Ont., boy is the youngest plowman ever to compete outside Canada. In six years five of his family have plowed in international matches.

The two Canadians were kept from the Major awards by ill luck which dogged them after snow delayed their arrival until they were a half hour late for the start.

Officials gave them extra time to finish and Tyndall was on the top line until forced to plow through stones big enough to be called boulders. His skill brought him out in good order and he might have taken the day if he could have avoided a dead furrow.

And it was skilfull work coupled with the bad luck which led to Timbers' downfall. He started so expertly that a crowd of the 10,000 flocked to watch him.

That was his undoing. His team, unused to contest work, took fright and became unmanageable.

BANCROFT

John Hattin Heads Red Cross Society

Bancroft. — John Hattin was elected president of the North Hastings Red Cross Society at a recent special meeting of the board. With regret the group accepted the resignation of A. M. Burns, who had been elected president at the annual meeting. Mr. Burns, who had been president in 1950 and 1951 stated that he could not take sufficient time from his regular business to fulfil again the duties of this office.

An announcement was made that the annual drive for funds would start on March 1st. This will cover the territory served by the hospital. Leo Freiburger was appointed chairman of the yearly financial campaign.

"Shooting Stars"

"Shooting Stars" a television variety show sponsored by Branch 181, Bancroft Canadian Legion, brought fair-sized crowds to the community hall on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. The affair was a take-off of a TV program, in which Ernie Thomas, Don Wilson and William Lavalley, acted as masters-of-ceremonies, taking the parts of Jack Bailey, Fred Waring, and Milton Berle. These three gentlemen introduced the various acts and skits.

Mrs. Dalton Grant was chosen as "Queen for The Day" on the first night and Mrs. Rhea Callaghan received the same honor on the second night. Both received a number of gifts donated by local merchants. Accompanist for the two performances was Jack Hutton.

Legion officials announced that their net profit would be approximately $107 and this money would be ear-marked for their cenotaph fund.

At Home

North Hastings high school held its annual "At Home" on Friday night. The evening was spent in dancing to the music of 'The Sevenaires' of Peterborough. Using the decoration theme "The Deep South", the gymnasium was decorated in pink, white and light green.

The receiving line consisted, of Principal W. R. Robinson, Guy Bentley, chairman of the school board; Beth Brown and Fred Ayers, president and vice-president of the students' council: Shirley Brown and Joe Vance. In charge of the evening was a committee of the students' council, with Beth Brown as chairman.

Junior Hawks Drub Lindsay 7-3 In Wind-Up Game—Seniors Lose

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The junior Hawks proved to nearly 700 fans here last night that not only can they play hockey when the occasion demands it, but collectively they can toss punches and brawl in the most approved Donnybrook style. They whipped the Lindsay Kinsmen to take second place in the final standing, slamming home three goals in less than two minutes in the third period to clinch the game. They came up with a far better brand of hockey than that dished up against Kingston last Friday night and their performance last night clearly indicated that if they get by Peterborough in the semi-finals, the tussle for the group title, presuming it will be with Lindsay, will be a hockey classic. And from what we saw last evening the Hawklets on their performance stand a better than even chance to take the honors.

Lindsay suffered a serious loss when Lucas, one of their stars suffered a fractured wrist. Bob Wilson parted a Kinsman hair-do with his stick in the dying minutes of the game and that was the signal for a general free-for-all. Lindsay players swept from the box, thereby laying their coach open to a chastisement and in less than a second the teams were at each others throats. After the final whistle blew Hec Lalande, Hawks star of the evening resented a Lindsay player's remark, tossed a punch and the second Donnybrook got under way. Police and spectators rushed on the ice as the boys squared away. Manager Bill Cook of the Hawks raced out in an effort to restore peace, but the Lindsay management appeared to revel in the fist-tossing episode.

OHA executive member Lorne Cook, of Kingston, was present and promptly checked unprovoked criticism from the Lindsay management with the warning he would report the incident. He reminded these gentlemen that they made no effort to prevent their players from leaving the players bench when the "ruckuses" started and as such left themselves open to OHA rebuke.

Lalande played another sensational game in pacing the Hawks attack, but the team as a whole turned in one of their best efforts in weeks. Ross Mason, in this corner's opinion was second only to Lalande in an all-round performance and although Mr. Bill Tobin, boss man of the Chicago Hawks who selected the three stars, did not choose him, he gets this departments nod for being one of the best players on the ice. Mr. Tobin selected Lalande, Jacklin, and Bob Wilson, with mention going to Therrien. Ted DeGray also turned in a fine effort but marred it with a major and misconduct penalty.

SENIORS DROP TO THIRD

The senior Hawks, short three men went down to defeat before the Peterborough Eagles by a 6-2 score last night. Lack of reserve power was again the deciding factor as the Hawks faded in the third period before the attacks of the Vitarelli platoons. The Eagles vaulted into second place and now are only three points behind their "blood" brothers the Petes. And they stand a more than average chance of hopping into the top slot. Hawks dropped back to third place, the lowest spot they have occupied all season. They have four games left to play, two each with the Petes and Kingston. Anything can happen in this dogfight, so don't be surprised at anything.

* * *

THIS IS IT!

You can forget the junior "B" schedule now, except for reference reasons. It's so much water under the bridge and there are far more important matters ahead. The chips are down and on Monday starts the series which proves which teams are the money squads and if schedule performance is a criterion of playoff things-to-come.

Lindsay Kinsmen finished on top of the pack a few points in front of the Belleville Hawks with Peterborough in the place spot and the Kingston crew in fourth position. Lindsay and Kingston will battle it out in one semi-finals bracket in a three-of-five series with the Hawklets and Peterborough Links tussling in another three-of-fiver. From schedule performance the Hawks-Links tussle appears to be the pick of the semi-finals crop, not forgetting that anything can happen in a hockey game or series and Kingston might pull the impossible and dethrone the Links. However, we do not suggest that you bet the family insurance or your pension on that angle unless the opposition gives you Fort Knox as odds.

The Hawklets and Peterborough open their series in Memorial Arena on Monday night with the second game also played here on Wednesday. The third and fourth games are scheduled for Peterborough on Friday Feb. 22 and Wednesday, Feb. 27th. The fifth game if necessary will be played here, Saturday, March 1st.

Lindsay and Kingston start their series in Lindsay on Tuesday, Feb. 19th, alternating the games on Thursday, Feb. 21 and Saturday, Feb. 23rd. No dates have been set for the fourth and fifth games.

The Hawklets wound up their schedule here last night and will spend the rest of the time between now and Monday night girding themselves for what Coach Red Doran expects will be a keen series with Peterborough. The Petes pack plenty of power and they surged to the third place spot with a surprising resurgence of form after trailing in the cellar in the early part of the schedule. They have always proved tough nuts for the Hawks to crack, and nothing should be taken for granted. However, it is hoped the injury - jinx has departed for the unknown and the youngsters will be at full strength for this all-important series. It should be a thriller-diller.

"STEAK-HORSES"!

And if the Hawklets play hockey like they can eat large juicy steaks, there's nothing to worry about. Tuesday night the younkers were the guests of the management of the Belmont Restaurant at a steak dinner, and the way those slabs of steer disappeared would have done credit to a Houdini. And there was not much left of the trimmings either not to mention plates of tasty dessert. Brother, do these Hawks love their steaks. It was a nice gesture on the part of the Belmont Restaurant, but nothing strange. Every year it entertains the juniors squad to these delicious dinners and on occasions visiting teams. Needless to say, the gesture is greatly appreciated by both the players and Manager Bill Cook, who is no shrinking violet when it comes to manhandling a steak, or "Red" Doran, too, for that matter.

Score Three in Two Minutes In Third to Clinch Victory; Free-for-All Features Game

Unleashing a powerful third-period attack, the Belleville Hawk juniors defeated the Lindsay Kinsmen by a score of 7-3 in the final junior B game of the schedule at the Memorial Arena last night. A crowd of nearly 700 was in attendance.

The win left the Hawks one point behind Lindsay, who finished the schedule in first place, but well in front of Peterborough and Kingston, who finished third and fourth respectively. The Hawks play host to Peterborough on Monday in the first game of the playoffs.

Tied at two goals each at the beginning of the third period, the Hawks rattled three goals by McGuire, Kinsmen netminder, in a little over a minute to sew up the match. Lalande, Green and Jacklin were the marksmen with DeGray and Jacklin adding insurance markers, before the end of the game.

Fights Feature

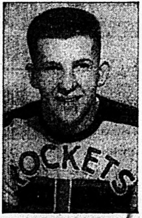
The game was kquite fast and, although heavy checks were being handed out by both squads, appeared to be only the natural course of events between these two teams. Then in the latter part of the second and during the third, real mayhem threatened and the game finished with two near brawls, one just before the bell and the other after the completion of the fray.

No penalties were handed out in either case although both squads would have been hard hit had the referees been so inclined.

Hector Lalande had a real picnic on the ice as he counted twice and picked up three assists. Jacklin tallied twice and assisted on another, DeGray also produced two goals and Pete Green netted the other. Mason and Strahan set up a pair of scores each while Bob Wilson assisted on the opening goal.

Gary Vasey netted the first two goals for the visitors on assists from Hall and Copeland fed MacDonald the pass for the final Lindsay score.

The Hawks appeared to have their passing plays in much better form than in their previous two or three showings while their back checking was an outstanding feature, giving Bob Green a maximum of protection, breaking up many of the visitor's attacks before they really got started.



ROSS MASON
. . . Tops All Round

Leading 2-1 at the three-quarter mark of the second frame, the Hawks' Ted DeGray, who turned in a good performance, received a dubious five-minute penalty for boarding and a 10 minute misconduct as well. It was while he was off the ice that Lindsay tied the count.

Lalande received credit for the tie breaker at the start of the third but Schinkel of the Kinsmen deflected the puck into the net. McGuire had robbed both Lalande and Strahan just previous to that.

Mason, Lalande, Stand Out

Green fired a 40-footer that was screened all the way and seconds later George Jacklin netted one of the prettiest scores of the night, completing a three way passing play from his two linemates.

Although only drawing two assists, Ross "Swat" Mason was one of the outstanding players on the ice for either team. Used on defence most of the time, he broke up rush after rush and spearheaded many thrusts into enemy territory.

Vasey, Hall and Marshall were the best performers for the Lindsay crew, the latter being a standout on defence, after Lucas was forced from the game in the first period with a broken hand.

Powell was helped from the ice just before the end of the game, the victim of a high stick, and required two stitches to mend a gash in his head. Wilson drew a major penalty for the offence.

The teams:

Belleville Juniors: Goal, R. Green; defence, Wilson P. Green; centre, Lalande; wings, Jacklin, Strahan. Alternates, DeGray, Mason, Doran, Therrien, Houle and Gilmour.

Lindsay Kinsmen: Goal, McGuire, defence, Lucas, Marshall; centre, Vasey; wings, Hall, Deeth. Alternates, Powell, Schenkel, Dysart, Smith, MacDonald, Copeland.

Officials: "Yip" Radley, Kingston, referee; "Speedy" St. Louis, Belleville, linesman.

Sixty Germans In Winter Games

Oslo, Feb. 14 (AP) —Germany may mark its return to Olympic competition after a 16-year lapse with three gold medals in the winter games starting today.

A total of almost 60 athletes have entered, all from western Germany. Winning chances, however, are pretty well confined to figure-skating and the bobsled competitions.

Rated high in the figure-skating contset for pairs are Ria and Paul Falk, twice European champions and holders of the German title for the last six years.

Also regarded as heavy favorites in their contests are the German two-man and four-man bobsledders.

World champion Anderl Ostler, who turned in the fastest times in official training, is the choice of many experts to drive both gold medal winning combinations.

Redmen Oust Sarnia Sailors; Dukes Nip Spits

(By The Canadian Press)

The sailors from Sarnia sailed right out of a playoff berth in the Ontario Hockey Association senior A league last night when they dropped their game with Brantford Redmen 5-3.

Redmen's victory over the last-place Sailors in Sarnia strengthened their hold on third place in the league standings.

In the junior A circuit of the OHA Toronto Marlboros increased their margin in top place in the league with a 6-3 win over ninth place Windsor Spitfires in Windsor. Marlies now lead second-place Guelph Biltmores by six points.

Waterloo Hurricanes, in seventh place, played host to Oshawa Generals and whipped the cellar-dwellers 3-2 to snap a 10-game losing streak and a third period drive in Barrie gave the Flyers a 6-2 triumph over Toronto St. Michael's in the other junior games last night.

Wilf Lepine's Cross-Bred Hounds Lead Pack in Canadian Dog Derby

Ottawa, Feb. 14 (CP) — For the second straight year, a Canadian beat out an American to win the Gold Challenge Trophy and $1,000 in the 1952 three-day annual international sled-dog derby.

Wilf (Pit) Lepine 31-year-old Quebec City musher, galloped across the downtown finish line, puffing a bit but an easy winner in the 90-mile classic over 17 other contestants, including two women.

He finished the final 30 mile lap in 2:08:20 for his best time in the three heats against a 20-mile-an-hour wind and temperatures below zero. His elapsed time for the race was 6:27:27. The course normally is 100 miles, but it was reduced this year because of the lack of snow in some sections.

Belford Second

Second was Dr. Charles Belford, 30-year-old veterinarian from Deerfield, Mass., who completed the course in 6:40:22. His time in the final lap was 2:12:25. He was driving a team of nine Siberian huskies. Bill Shearer, Boston, Mass., was third with a total time of 6:42:22. He also was driving huskies.

Mrs. Bunty Dunlop, 26-year-old housewife from Bronte, Ont., won a $300 special purse and $500 gold cup for compiling the best time for the women. She finished with 11:03:13, beating out her lone rival, Mrs. Marie Ouellette of The Pas, Man., who finished in last place with 11:50:29. Her husband Laird, finished in ninth spot with 8:10:11.

Emile Martel of Loretteville, Que., winner in 1951, placed fourth with 7:09:25 and behind him was Dr. Roland Lombard of Auburndale Mass., fifth with 7:12:21.

After the race Lepine promised he would be back again next year, saying: "I would like to win this thing two more years in a row so that I can hang on to that gold trophy."

Fifield Verdicts Ken Lovegrove

Hamilton, Feb. 14 (CP) —Billy Fifield of Toronto last night used a powerful left jab to punch out a unanimous 10-round decision over Kenny Lovegrove, former Hamilton policeman, in the main bout of a professional boxing card.

The flicking left that Lovegrove just couldn't duck opened cuts over both his eyes but the Hamilton fighter battled all the way.

Preliminaries included:

Howard Leslie, 148, Toronto knocked out Jimmy Torkaz, 150, Brantford at 1:15 of the first round.

The Ace Bailey benefit game at Toronto 18 years ago tonight drew more than 14,000 fans who paid $20,900 into the fund for the injured Toronto player, whose hockey career had been cut short when he was seriously injured in a collision with Eddie Shore on Dec. 11, 1933. The crowd cheered as Bailey and Shore shook hands at centre ice. The game itself ended in a 7-3 victory for Toronto Maple Leafs over an all-star team.

Eagles Take Over 2nd Place With 6-2 Victory Over Hawks In Speedy Senior B Battle

Peterborough — Pulling out a 6-2 OHA Senior "B" win here last night over Belleville Hawks before a slim and shivering crowd, the Eagles climbed into second place a game and a half back of the leading Petes in the Central Ontario race. The loss dropped Hawks to third slot, half a game behind Eagles. It was the highest in the standing the Vitarelli pack has reached all season, and the lowest ebb for Belleville.

Though chippy in spots and marked with a fist fight in the final minute, play was fairly clean and quite fast. Hawks drew six of the nine penalties, including a major to Barrett for fighting with Wilson, who also went off for five minutes. Jed Wilson earlier got a misconduct allegedly for arguing with referee Louis Lecompte. The Quinte crew were [illegible] three players and the pace [illegible] on them in the windup stanza. Eagles led 3-2 in the first and after a scoreless second stanza, they threw in three more in the third period and were outplaying Hawks by a good margin toward the finish.

Goyer Scores First

Dootch Vitarelli and George Samalenko each fired home two goals for the winners, with Bert Hill and Freddy Mortimer accounting for the other pair. Keith Montgomery flashed some fast stepping and passing to aid on three markers, as Jed Wilson helped on two, single assists going to Reg Stewart, Toodie Greenlaw, Hill, Bill Berwick and Bill Crowley. For the losers, Vern Goyer and Jackie Wardhaugh were the snipers, as Red Doran and Peter Jones each earned an assist. Some good goal tending was seen by both net-minders, with Nicholls busy enough the first half, and LeFort having plenty to do throughout.

In less than half a minute after the face off, Goyer scored when he raked the puck out from behind the Eagles net and backhanded it into the mesh. Play was fast and clean then, besides being fairly even. Vitarelli evened the count shortly on fine finish of a rush with Crowley and Montgomery pulling Lefort out of the net to sink it. Samalenko made it 2-1 later on an angle rebound in close on a play started by Wilson and Berwick. Wardhaugh tied it on a close in stab with Jones and Doran for their last goal. Wardhaugh returned from a slashing penalty, and Samalenko took two slaps to net the rubber on a pass-out from Wilson to make it 3-2 at periods end.

No Score in Second

Play swept up and down fairly rapidly through the middle chukker but the rival goalies kicked aside everything in this heat. Goyer almost tallied early. Doran drew a holding penalty, followed by Montgomery for interference. They were back and Eagles drove hard with a Crowley-Vitarelli thrust almost paying off. Sambo Smith of Oshawa was bouncing all and sundry as the going got a bit stiffer. Wilson complained to the referee that the Hawks had too many men on the ice and he was given a misconduct for "arguing" with his nibs. Moher was gated next for charging but returned with no damage done and both sides were bumping hard at the bell.

It slowed down a spell in the third and Hawks seemed tired. The Hill line pepped it up but it wasn't till Doran went off for playing with a broken stick momentarily that Vitarelli slapped in a forward pass on a play with Hill and Montgomery. Red returned and Hill added one on a sizzling angle shot from Montgomery going in fast. Wilson returned to the fold and Eagles kept sweeping in to test Lefort. They buzzed around him hard and finally in a banging-away mix-up Mortimer scored the final goal of the game with Stewart and Greenlaw in on it. MacDonald got the finger for boarding and just got back when Barrett and Wilson tangled on the boards and started throwing punches. Order was restored and they drew majors just before the last gong.

Teams:

Belleville — goal, Lefort; defence, Reeves and Semark; centre, Goyer; wings, McDonald and Moher; alternates, Doran, Wardhaugh, Jones, Barrett and Day.

Eagles — goal, Nicholls; defence Fennell and Munroe; centre, F. Mortimer; wings, Greenlaw and Stewart; alternates, Hill, Crowley, Vitarelli, Samalenko, Berwick, Wilson, Montgomery and Smith.

Referee: L. Lecompte; linesman. W. Romhanyi.

Machine Shop Trims Metals 5-3

Scoring four goals in the first period without a reply, Machine Shop defeated Sheet Metal by a score of 5-3 in a Northern Electric Shop League hockey game played at the Memorial Arena last night.

Sheet Metal took command of play in the second period and during the first part of the third, firing three goals to climb within one point of a tie but Pucanik notched an insurance marker at the 15-minute mark of the final frame to sew up the verdict.

Pucanik topped the point-getters on the night's play, notching three goals for the winners. MacDonald and Wetherall counted the other two with Clark assisting on a pair.

Totten scored a brace of goals for Sheet Metal, Rosebush counting the other and assisted on one, Bell getting credit for two assists and Salter and Shore also getting an assist.

Machine Shop: Weeks, Pucanik, Clark, Wardhaugh, Wetherall, Skinkle, MacDonald, Crawford, Rivers and Guthrie.

Sheet Metal: Hughes, Rosebush, Rossetti, Bell, Totten, Salter, Shore Ross, Hatfield, Jewel and Draycott.

Helicopter Stands By

Norefjell, Norway, Feb. 14 (AP) —Three American airmen manned a flying ambulance today at the finish line of the perilous women's giant slalom course of the winter Olympic games.

The ambulance helicopter can carry any seriously injured skiers to the Oslo hospital in 45 minutes. By automobile the 70 mile trip takes about four hours.

The plane was sent from the United States Air Force headquarters at Wiesbaden, Germany.

American Wins Olympic Giant Slalom Race

Norefjell, Norway, Feb. 14—(CP)—Andrea Mead Lawrence of Rutland, Vt., won the Women's Giant Slalom Olympic Ski Championship today.

The American girl was timed in 2:06.8 in her streak down the sleet-packed Norefjell course.

Rhoda Wurtele Eaves of Montreal was timed in 2.14, and on the basis of unofficial results, seldom altered, appeared at that time likely to be placed anywhere from fifth to 10th.

Mrs. Mead's time was 2.2 seconds better than that of her nearest competitor, Dagmar Rom, blue-eyed blonde Austrian movie actress, who was clocked in 2:09.

The unofficial results placed Mrs. Anne Marie Buchner-Fischer of Germany third in 2:10, Trudy Klecker of Austria fourth in 2:11.4 and Louise (Katy) Rodolph of Hayden, Colo., fifth in 2:11.7.

Austria's chief hope, Trude Jochum-Besler, expected to be Mrs. Meade's most dangerous threat, was a disappointment, finishing in 2:14.3, three seconds slower than Rhoda Eaves.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, Feb. 14 (AP) —The 1956 Olympic Games may be considered up for grabs; as of now, and without waiting for Melbourne, Australia to make a reluctant admission that its eyes were bigger than its appetite. At a guess, we'll pick Philadelphia as the town most likely to pick up the pieces.

Melbourne has been given until May 15 to make a final decision, and its civic leaders may be counted upon to put up a real struggle to save the situation. This was to have been the biggest thing that ever happened to Melbourne. But it is difficult to see how the Aussies can win.

Two months ago when we talked with large number of Melbourne's leading lights about the Olympic prospects and inspected the Melbourne cricket grounds, where they they expected to hold the games, we decided that they might just possibly be able to swing it despite many handicaps.

A few days ago the cricket satraps announced they didn't want any bare-legged athletes running around on their grass. That is a blow from which the Melbourne organizers scarcely can recover. They doubtless are pretty bitter about it, as the cricketers apparently gave them good reason to believe that the big stadium would be available.

Melbourne has several other arenas, but none is anywhere near large enough to hold an Olympics audience. There was some vague talk about taking one of these and jacking its capacity to 'way up yonder, but a citizen who claimed to know the temper of Australia's labor unions said this was pure moonshine.

"There's still a bad housing shortage in the country," he explained, "and the unions would never permit their men to work on a project like that requiring a lot of scarce raw materials. The government couldn't afford to allot such materials, in the first place."

As a sidelight, the Aussie tennis officials were not permitted to erect temporary stands for the recent Davis Cup challenge round until they gave an oath to return the wood and steel tubing to the public domain. Workmen began ripping it down almost before the last spectator was safely off the top row.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

Philadelphia— Rocky Marciano, 186½ Brockton, Mass., stopped Lee Savold, 200, Englewood, N.J. (7).

Miami Beach, Fla. — Roland La-Starza, 190½, New York, outpointed Ralph Schneider, 222½, Chicago (10).

Rocky Marciano Batters Savold Into Submission and Retirement

Philadelphia, Feb. 14 (AP) — A fighter has to have his annuities paid up before going against Rocky Marciano.

Marciano, the hard-punching heavyweight from Brockton, Mass., not only beats his opponents into bloody submission, but he sends them scurrying for a rocking chair and retirement.

Last night to all intent and purposes he ended the career of the veteran Lee Savold. It is no exaggeration to say that Marciano slaughtered Savold. The 35-year-old Englewood, N.J., fighter was a blood-soaked hulk when his manager asked referee Pete Tomasso to stop the uneven match at the end of the sixth round.

"The will was there but not the body," said Billy Daly. "I'm going to advise Lee to retire from the ring tomorrow."

John (Ox) Dagrosa, Pennsylvania State Athletic Commissioner said he was going to suspend Savold indefinitely and ask him to retire.

Never Had a Chance

Savold never had a chance last night. The unbeaten Marciano charged across the ring from the first bell, smashed two tremendous left hooks into Savold's face and then unmercifully cut down his bigger opponent. Marciano weighed 186 1-2 and Savold 200 for the scheduled nationally-televised 10 rounder. The announced attendance was 9,243 and the gate a disappointing $61,386.

Despite his easy victory—Marciano won every round—the rock was far from satisfied. Asked how he felt after cutting Savold's eyes and the veteran's lip so badly it needed stitches, Rocky said, "it wasn't sharp at all. I need to fight oftener. A four month layoff is too much."

Marciano said "I'd like to have another fight under my belt before I shoot for the title."

Marciano doesn't know who he'll fight next. "I leave that up to my managers." His managers probably are waiting for the Jim Norris-Felix Bocchicchio conference in New York today before deciding. Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, and Bocchicchio, manager of heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott, are meeting to decide who Walcott will defend against.

Barons Extend Unbeaten String

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets ..continued their winning ways in the American Hockey League Wednesday night, Phil Maloney scoring three goals as they downed St. Louis Flyers 5-2.

Cleveland Barons kept foraging ahead, boosting their undefeated streak to 11 games by crushing Hershey Bears 10-4. The Barons hold second place in the league's western division while Hershey is top team in the western section.

In other games, Providence Reds outscored Indianapolis Capitals 4-1 and Syracuse Warriors triumphed over Cincinnati Mohawks by a similar score.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Dick Savitt, home from a tempestuous campaign in Australia, said in Orange, N. J., yesterday that he plans to give up bigtime tennis after this year's national championships and "go to work."

"I'll just play on weekends and in my spare time," the towering, 23-year-old Savitt added in an interview. "My tournament schedule will be cut down sharply."

Asked if he would be a candidate for the next Davis Cup team and whether he would go to Australia to help try to retrieve the trophy if selected, Savitt said:

"I don't know. That's too far ahead. After the nationals, I intend to give first consideration to a business career."

The Maryland Jockey Club yesterday in Baltimore set Saturday, May 17, as the date for the 1952 running of the $75,000 added Preakness, central feature of the Kentucky Derby-Preakness-Belmont triple crown of racing.

Pittsburgh Pirates signed a working agreement yesterday with St. Johns, Que., baseball club in the class C Provincial League. This brings to 14 the Pirates' minor league affiliations.

Weather note in Vancouver: Golf courses here are so busy that weekend golfers must book starting times Friday.

Communist China said yesterday it would take part in the Olympic games at Helsinki in July. The Peiping radio, heard in San Francisco by the Associated Press, said a telegram giving red China's decision to enter was sent to the International Olympic Committee Feb. 5.

Manager Red Rolfe of the Detroit Tigers, underwent an appendicitis operation yesterday in Detroit. An 'acute gangrenous appendix" was removed and his condition was reported "satisfactory."

Edmonton Flyers of the Pacific Coast Hockey League, down to seven able-bodied forwards in their current injury seige, have suffered another blow. Sid McNabney, who joined Flyers for their recent west coast trip, has been recalled by Buffalo Bisons of the American League. McNabney scored five goals in four of Flyers' coast games.

EVEN CLIMATE

Average summer temperature in South Australia is 71 degrees, and in winter 53 degrees.

Tacoma Unbeaten In Nine Starts

(By The Canadian Press)

Tacoma Rockets stretched their undefeated streak in the Pacific Coast Hockey League to nine games last night by coming from behind at New Westminster to tie the league-leading Royals 2-2.

In Edmonton, meanwhile, the Flyers, short three players because of injuries, whipped Seattle Ironmen 5-2 and moved within a point of third place in the league standings.

Bugle Fanfare Signals Start Winter Olympics

Nearly 300 skiers from 26 countries stood at attention under the flags of their countries as the Olympic flag was hoisted to mark the official opening. A more formal opening ceremony will be held in Oslo tomorrow.

The ceremony here preceded the first competition in the women's giant slalom in which 45 of the top women skiers from 15 nations were entered.

Standing near the ski race finish line Olaf Ditliav-Simonsen, Jr. of Norway, president of the Olympic organizing committee, said "I hereby declare the Olympic games open and I hope that the spirit of international friendship will prevail and may the best man win."

Princess Ragnhild of Norway and Princess Josephine Charlotte of Belgium stood nearby. Ditliav-Simonsen expressed regret Crown Olav could not attend because he is in London for the funeral of King of King George VI.

The few hundred spectators present in this isolated mountain resort bared their heads to the icy air as the strains of the Olympic hymn and Norwegian National Anthem came over a loud speaker.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

The two games in the National Hockey League Wednesday night failed to produce any changes in the individual standings although high-man Gordie Howe picked up a goal to move further ahead of the pack.

Howe now has a record 29 goals and 27 assists for 56 points, nine more than second-place Elmer Lach of Montreal Canadiens. Lach has 12 goals and a record 35 assists.

The leaders:	G	A	Pts
Howe, Detroit	29	27	56
Lach, Montreal	12	35	47
Lindsay, Detroit	19	27	46
Raleigh, New York	14	30	44
Smith, Toronto	18	23	41
Peirson, Boston	16	25	41
Richard, Montreal	25	15	40

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

WALLY HERGESHEIMER New York, whose two goals led the Rangers to a lopsided 6-2 victory over Boston Bruins.

Rangers' Rally Beats Boston; Red Wings Edge Toronto 3-1

By ED SIMON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lantern-jawed Bill Cook has discovered a new way of coaxing customers into Madison Square Garden to watch his New York Rangers play hockey.

The gimmick is amazingly simple. All he has to do is to get them to score a few goals.

Last night, for example, 7,644 fans were sitting on their hands for the first 25 minutes while Boston Bruins took a 2-0 lead over the New Yorkers in a listless game. Then rookie Wally Hergesheimer fired home the first of two tallies and before the startled onlookers knew what had happened the Rangers had skated off with a 6-2 victory.

Ranger's whirlwind finish, which tied them with Boston for the N. H. L.'s fourth and last playoff spot, overshadowed the league - leading Detroit Red Wings' 3-1 triumph over the Maple Leafs at Toronto which increased their margin over the second-place Torontonians to 12 points.

Hergy Gets Two

Apart from Hergesheimer, who brought his freshman goal-scoring total to 19, Ed Kullman, Reg Sinclair, Paul Ronty and Frank Eddolls fattened the New York total. Dunc Fisher and Milt Schmidt tallied for Boston.

The difference between the teams was strictly in the accuracy of the sniping, in which the old-maestro Cook is a bit of an expert after many productive seasons as a deadly rightwinger for the Rangers in the 20s and 30s. His charges fired 14 shots at Sugar Jim Henry in the Boston nets while Chuck Rayner turned aside 20 Bruins efforts.

The Toronto game was much tighter, with the Leafs pressing hard for a tie in the last minute of play when Gordie Howe broke loose to score his 29th goal in an empty net. The home club had lifted goalie Al Rollins in favor of an extra forward.

Tony Leswick and Alex Delvecchio scored the ealier Detroit goals, both at close range. The only Leaf tally came on a picture play by rookie defenceman Hugh Bolton, who skated through the entire Detroit team before faking goalie Terry Sawchuk out of position and firing the puck home.

The Red Wings move on to Chicago tonight for a date with the last place Black Hawks. Toronto will be in Montreal, protecting their slim, three-point lead of the third-place Canadiens.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Glendale, Calif., Feb. 14 (AP)—"If I had life to live over again? Certainly, I'd do things differently. But I'd start back a few years."

Dick Contina, the onetime sensation of the accordion, was pondering his past mistakes. He has had plenty of time to do so, since he has made no professional appearances since a year ago His career came to an abrupt halt when he failed to report for army duty at Fort Ord.

The handsome, husky 21-year-old was sentenced to six months in prison and fined $10,000. He served the full time at McNeil Island, Wash., minus a month for good behavior and 15 days allowance for working on the prison farm. He regained his freedom two days before last Christmas.

"Naturally, I thought about the past while I was in prison and since I've been home," he said. "But it isn't just the one big mistake I would have changed. I would have started further back.

"When I was touring with an entertainment unit for Horace Heidt, I was doing one-night stands with five and six shows a day. Sometimes we would travel 400 miles to make the next show the following day. When I finally got my freedom from Heidt, I started out with my own show the next day. The performers who had been with me before handed in their notice to Heidt and joined me.

"I kept going at the same pace. The offers kept pouring in, and I saw no reason not to take them. I was young, I felt strong and I was enjoying mysle£. I didn't realize what the fast pace was doing to me until the crack-up came. Then I had plenty of time to think about it."

Contino has done little since his release from prison. He went to his home town, Fresno, for Christmas, and then came back to Glendale. At present, he said, he is waiting to be drafted into the army.

"If I'm not drafted, I'll enlist," he said.

DOOMSDAY CLOSER

London, Ont., Feb. 14 (CP) — Doomsday looms closer for the rat, the cockroach and all other such pests. Dr. Donald C. Brunton of Oakville, one of Canada's top atomic scientists, last night suggested a quick end to them—radioactivity. Effect of radioactivity would be sterility which would prevent birth of further pests.

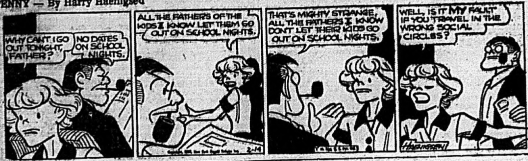
PENNY — By Harry Haenigsen



WHY CAN'T I GO OUT TONIGHT, FATHER?
NO DATES ON SCHOOL NIGHTS.
ALL THE FATHERS OF THE KIDS I KNOW LET THEM GO OUT ON SCHOOL NIGHTS.
THAT'S MIGHTY STRANGE, ALL THE FATHERS I KNOW DON'T LET THEIR KIDS GO OUT ON SCHOOL NIGHTS.
WELL, IS IT MY FAULT IF YOU TRAVEL IN THE WRONG SOCIAL CIRCLES?

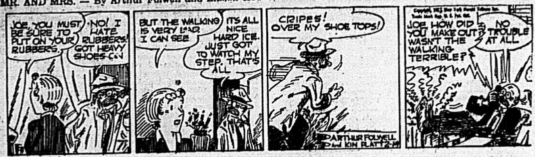
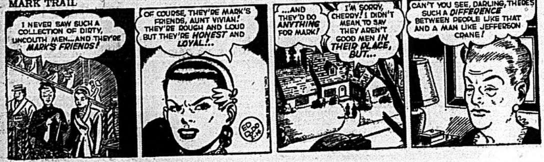
MR. AND MRS. — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover



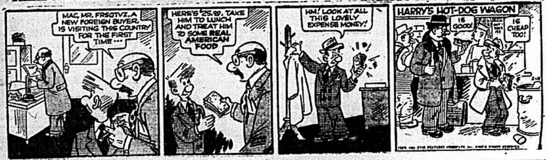
JOE, YOU MUST BE SURE TO PUT ON YOUR RUBBERS.
NO! I HATE RUBBERS! GOT HEAVY SHOES ON
BUT THE WALKING IS VERY BAD. I CAN SEE
IT'S ALL NICE HARD ICE. JUST GOT TO WATCH MY STEP. THAT'S ALL
CRIPES! OVER MY SHOE TOPS!
ARTHUR FOLWELL and KIN PLATT 2-14
JOE, HOW DID YOU MAKE OUT? WASN'T THE WALKING TERRIBLE?
NO TROUBLE AT ALL

MARK TRAIL



I NEVER SAW SUCH A COLLECTION OF DIRTY, UNCOUTH MEN... AND THEY'RE MARK'S FRIENDS!
OF COURSE, THEY'RE MARK'S FRIENDS, AUNT VIVIAN! THEY'RE ROUGH AND LOUD BUT THEY'RE HONEST AND LOYAL!...
ED DODD 2-14
...AND THEY'D DO ANYTHING FOR MARK!
I'M SORRY, CHERRY! I DIDN'T MEAN TO SAY THEY AREN'T GOOD MEN IN THEIR PLACE, BUT...
CAN'T YOU SEE, DARLING, THERE'S SUCH A DIFFERENCE BETWEEN PEOPLE LIKE THAT AND A MAN LIKE JEFFERSON CRANE!

TILLIE THE TOILER — By Russ Westover



MAC, MR. FRSGTVZ, A NEW FOREIGN BUYER, IS VISITING THIS COUNTRY FOR THE FIRST TIME...
HERE'S $25.99. TAKE HIM TO LUNCH AND TREAT HIM TO SOME REAL AMERICAN FOOD
HM! LOOK AT ALL THIS LOVELY EXPENSE MONEY!
HARRY'S HOT-DOG WAGON
IS GOOD!
IS CHEAP TOO!

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, February 15

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Mercury and the Sun favorably aspected sponsor attainment through intelligent management in worth-while and useful undertakings, but Mars here advises against irritability.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Your Venus position today stresses need for patience, especially in personal contacts. Day can be productive in work, all purposeful matters and especially mental problems.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—A peak day for your interests and advancement if you are consistent at duties, avoid unnecessary contention and think of others' rights. Study, teaching, inventing, all brain work honored.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Your most advancement now likely through calm, intelligent procedure at work and at home. May be some irritating elements but don't you heed them. Good day on whole; aim high!

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Promising influences. Make the most of opportunities, valuable contacts, of your natural talents and capability. All good work will reward generously. Unselfish, cooperative motives needed.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Fine Mercury and Sun influences augur for success in brain work, for dealing with those in authority, government; advancement in science, inventions, religion, all learning.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Heed advice to Taurus now. Day offers advantages galore in matters that require keen intelligence, cleverness in technique. Strive to learn much. Skilled mechanics very favored.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio) — Mars' influence advises a restraining hand on the emotions, disposition generally, that you may be able to accomplish the great amount of good. Fine period for brain work.

November 23 to December 22—Saggitarius—Should be good day for most work and business interests, although quick financial gains may not materialize. Worker, and executive, artist, homemaker can benefit through sturdy effort.

December 23 to January 21—Capricorn—Your Saturn inactive, but Sun and Mercury in auspicious aspects say much good can be done, personal advancement made in wholesome occupations, professional lines, careful thinking.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Perhaps not so generous today for personal gain, but Sun and Mercury rays can be beneficial in all worthy undertakings if you go forward. Journalism, teaching, study, sciences tops.

February 21 to March 20—Pisces—Be extra careful in confidential matters where risks to security are likely. A promising period for selected study, advanced learning, religion, experiments in science, medicine, etc.

YOU BORN TODAY are either very active and progressive or passive and unambitious. You have wonderful possibilities, but must spur yourself on, keep enthusiasm, ambition alive. Honesty, generosity and artistic ability inherent. Usually popular; you are friendly, never morose. A few dangers: being swayed by wrong company, overindulgence in pleasures, discouragement. Remember, true friends criticize wisely, urge you constantly to achieve. Pray daily for guidance, strength of will. Birthdate: Galileo, great astronomer, H. A. Howell, science writer, poet; Elihu Root, noted lawyer, statesman; John Barrymore, actor.

CAMPBELLFORD

Midgets, Bantams Win, Lose With Wellington

Campbellford—A large crowd in the Campbellford arena on Wednesday night saw the local Bantam and Midget OMHA teams lose and win respectively to the Wellington teams in the first of a home and home series, goals to count.

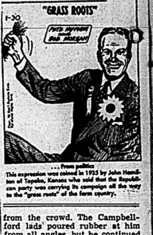
The bantam OMHA team which has been flying high of late, bowed to defeat before the stronger Wellington team, who shut out the local puckists by the score of 3-0. Campbellford's passing plays just were not clicking on Tuesday, and they go into the final round three goals down.

The midgets really opened up after a rather slow start. Wellington got the first goal of the game when the first period was only two minutes old, but the local lads held them from appearing on the score sheet again until there were less than four minutes remaining in the game. Wellington put on a final burst of speed and went past the tired Campbellford defence twice in the last five minutes of play. The line of Garvey, Wilson and Dooher got most of the local goals, with Girard carrying the ball on the second line, backed up by Baker on defence.

The final score of 13 to 3 was hardly indicative of the play. The Wellington team was demoralized when at the five minute mark of the second period, their goal keeper, Gayer, received a head injury and the game was held up for several minutes while the unlucky lad was patched up in the dressing room. He returned to the ice and received well deserved hand from the crowd. The Campbellford lads poured rubber at him from all angles, but he continued to kick out most of the shots.

Why We Say—

"GRASS ROOTS"



... From politics

This expression was coined in 1935 by John Hamilton of Topeka, Kansas who said that the Republican party was carrying its campaign all the way to the "grass roots" of the farm country.

MARSH HILL

Harmony Club Holds Meeting

Marsh Hill — The February meeting of Marsh Hill Harmony Club was held Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allyn Finkle with 35 present.

The president, Mr. Farley Lindenfield, opened the meeting. Mrs. Harry Coulter read the Scripture.

During the business it was decided to send for new hymn books.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Bateman were program conveners. A reading, "What is Life?" was read by Mrs. Charlie Ross, followed by a short memorial service for the late King George VI.

A poem, "February," was read by Mr. Elwood Bateman.

A reading, "Husbands," was read by Mrs. Elwood Bateman, after which a stunt and a contest was enjoyed by all.

Progressive crokinole was enjoyed by all the members, followed by refreshments served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. Brown, Mrs. Elwood Bateman and Mrs. David Hollinger.

READ

Read — The Read ball team held a successful party in St. Charles' Hall on Friday evening.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Tim Cronin on the arrival of a baby boy.

All are glad to report that Mrs. M. J. Hunt is some better these last few days.

Mr. Joseph Bennett is ill at his home on the 9th Concession.

Mrs. Pat O'Ray returned home on Saturday after visiting relatives in Detroit.

Mr. Leo McKenny of Ardoc, spent the weekend at his home here.

It can't do that to me!

Oh, yes it can

Fire always picks on people who thing "it can't happen to me."

Nobody expects a fire next week.

But sensible people reason that a fire MAY occur to them any minute and they get ADEQUATE insurance without hemming or hawing about it.

And if they now have insurance, they check to see if it is sufficient pay for rebuilding at TODAY'S COSTS.

Come in and talk fire insurance with us today.

Mr. and Mrs. David Hollinger and Jimmie were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Pollock, of Wellmans.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Ross and Raymond were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. John McMullen of Harold.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Breeze called Sunday afternoon on Mr. and Mrs. Russell of Rednersville.

Among Survivors of Air Crash at Elizabeth, N.J.

Arlene Krushenski and Donald Borup, both of Perth Amboy, N.J., are shown in hospital after they had survived the crash of a U.S. National Airlines plane at Elizabeth, N.J., in which 37 passengers of 62 aboard, including crew and four tenants of a three-storey apartment house hit by DC-6, were killed. An estimated 43 others were injured — many critically — in third plane crash in that city in past two months. The accident, believed due to motor failure, brought plane-disaster total to 116 victims and resulted in official closing of nearby Newark airport, which plane had just left en route to Miami when it crashed. It has also started a complete investigation into accident. — Central Press Canadian.

TWEED

Tweed.—Mr. and Mrs. Leo Allore and Miss Donna, of Cleveland, Ohio, returned to their home after attending the funeral of the former's aunt, the late Miss Sopha Courneyea.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Quinn and family, have moved into their new home. The property was recently purchased from the Misses Marion and Amy Newton. The home was originally built by the late Mr. P. K. Newton, who for many years conducted a drug store in Tweed.

Catharine Barry, who for the past four and one half years has been a member of the Bell Telephone staff of Tweed, has been promoted to the position of chief operator of the Madoc branch. Prior to her departure, she was socially entertained by the other members and presented with gifts.

Mr. Robert Sanderson, whose home is in Marmora, and who has been on the Dominion Stores' staff here in Tweed, has been transferred to Toronto, to a recently opened super market. His many friends wish him success in his new position.

Mr. Louis Rosen, Ottawa, has recently purchased property in Tweed, and will establish a business here as "Tweed Scrap and Metal Company". Mr. Rosen's business of the same nature in Ottawa, was completely destroyed by fire. For some years the parents of Mr. Rosen resided in Tweed, and conducted a business selling out in 1925, they went to Ottawa.

The many friends of Mr. Dennis Fleming, who has been gravely ill, are glad to know he is regaining his health.

Congratulations go to Mrs. Annie Healey at 160 James Street, in Belleville, on her 74th birthday anniversary which falls on February 29. Leap year brings this coveted day once in four. A sister, Mrs. Amelia Derusha, who is well up in her eighties, resides in Tweed and is quite active for her age.

Miss Betty Jane Gehan and her friend, Miss Adeline Burtchall of town, were the weekend guests of the former's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Bateman, Marmora.

Miss Pauline O'Donnell, of Tweed high school staff, spent the weekend in Peterborough.

Miss Margaret McNeil, of Guelph, spent the weekend with Miss Mary LeSage of town.

Mr. Anthony Quinn has leased his home on Bridge Street, to Mr. Dick Vesey, of Toronto, who recently purchased The LeSage Motor Sales and Service business.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Rivers Sr., are spending a few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. G. Hunt, at Read. Mrs. Hunt, their daughter, recently underwent a serious operation at Belleville General Hospital.

A memorial service to the late King George VI was held in St. James' Anglican Church on Wednesday morning, with an overflowing crowd. Assisting the rector, Rev. F. F. Dowing, were Rev. A. L. Sisco, of St. John's United Church and Lieut. George Heron of the Salvation Army. All churches in town are arranging for a memorial service on Friday afternoon.

Longest Steel Conveyer Line

Mr. C. C. Atton, manager of Tweed Steel Works, and his competent workmen are proud they had a part in fabricating the longest steel conveyor line ever manufactured in the world for the Wabana Iron development at Bell Island, Newfoundland. This conveyor system will enable removal of 1,000 tons of ore an hour which is mined three miles beneath the Atlantic ocean-bed. The Wabana Iron ore-bed is owned by the Dominion Steel and Coal Company and will be one of the largest producers in the world.

Ken Burkitt President

Mr. Ken Burkitt elected president of Tweed Chamber of Commerce for 1952, speaking at the first dinner meeting last Thursday evening at Hotel Tweedsmuir, thanked members for his election. He said "I will endeavor to provide leadership that will benefit the citizens of Tweed, the farmers and tourist operators of this district. I believe it is in our own interests to make this village as prosperous and attractive as we can. New members must be added with every member bringing in new members which will add to our treasury for new developments."

Mr. Burkitt cited the number of new projects and accomplishments already in Tweed of which the Chamber of Commerce can rightly claim a share. "We all want to see Tweed grow from a village into a town—we can see our hopes realized if we are constantly on the alert and show we are a progressive well-kept community."

Perpetual Religious Vows

On January 25, of this year, Brother Guy Gartland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Gartland, of Tweed, made his perpetual vows of religion. Receiving his early education at St. Carthagh's school, Tweed, and Tweed high school, he entered Graymoor Garrison in New York, U.S.A. where he has now taken vows forever, along with three other classmates. Many relatives and friends attended the solemn Mass.

A number of local men are now employed by the Therrian Construction Company in the first link of the new Trans-Canada four-lane highway from Actinolite easterly to Ottawa. Clearing land and building camps is now in progress which will be followed by blasting; heavy construction and road-widening will get underway with the burst of spring.

High Tension Switch

Tweed's ingenious inventor, Mr. Felix Trudeau, has recently taken out a patent for a high tension battery switch for a motor car. When this apparatus is unscrewed, the lights, ignition and horn are automatically cut off and the car becomes fireproof.

Mr. Trudea is also in receipt of a cheque and letter from Canadian Liquid Air Company, Montreal, for submitting detailed description and drawings of an oxyacetylene cutting attachment and being complimented for having developed it.

Local conservation officers of the Department of Lands and Forests, Tweed, state that only a few applications have been received to date for fish planting. Applicants are reminded that forms must be in the local office, Tweed, by February 28th.

Mr. G. W. Nelson of Brampton has been named Public School Inspector for Centre Hastings in the absence of Mr. A. W. McGuire, who has been granted temporary leave due to ill health. Mr. Nelson is making his home in Tweed with Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilkinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth MacNeil of Guelph, Ont., spent the weekend with the latter's sisters, in Tweed, Misses Dorothy and Norine Quinn.

Mr. Joseph A. Kinlin spent last week in London, Ontario, visiting his son, Frank Kinlin, inspector of public schools of that district, also Mrs. Kinlin and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Morrow, Francis and Cecil attended the wedding of another son, Lawrence, in Rochester, N.Y., last week. They found motoring very good after all the season's changeable weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. L. Jardine had as guests last weekend their daughter, Helen, Mrs. Robert King, Mr. King and little son, Jimmy.

Mr. and Mrs. Sim McCrea spent a few days in Toronto last week.

Mrs. James Halpenny, wife of James Halpenny, owner and operator of "Crown Cleaners," Tweed, visited with her parents in Toronto last week.

Mr. Earl Curry, who has been employed in Toronto, has accepted a position on the Tweed News staff. Earl is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Curry of "Boloway," Tweed.

One of the local young ladies, Miss Lorna Doran, a graduate of Tweed High School, and now in Toronto on the staff of William Wright and Associates, Speech and Sales Consultants, gave an outline of a lady's viewpoint in shopping at the Ontario Retail Hardware convention last week.

The Trail Rangers held their regular meeting last Friday in the Sunday School rooms of St. John's United Church. After their meeting, a social time was spent. Refreshments were served and chocolate milk was donated by Chief Constable and Mrs. Spratt. Plans were made for an "Open House" to which local citizens are invited.

NERVOUS, UPSET STOMACH HEADACHE, BACKACHE, DIZZY

In Poor Health 3 Years; Then Read About Syntona and said: "That's the Way I Feel". Now Tells His Experience.

Mr. Edward Ashley, 83 Inkerman Street, London, Ontario, says he is only too glad to pass his experience along to other people, because that is the way he found relief from health disorders which had kept him feeling miserable for the past three years.

"I was having a bad time of it and couldn't get anything to help me," said Mr. Ashley. "After meals I would bloat with gas and belch up hot, sour liquids. I was subject to bilious attacks, dizzy feelings, and throbbing headaches. I had a dull aching pain across my back and rheumatic pains in my limbs and joints. I couldn't get my proper sleep at night and in the mornings I felt fatigued and found it hard to get started on my day's work.

"After trying many different things I read about Syntona and as I was reading it I said 'That's just the way I feel'. So, I began taking this medicine and now I am like a different person. Syntona cleared up all the distress in my stomach, the aches, pains and dizziness are now gone aw and I am getting more sound, restful sleep. As a result my strength has returned and I get up mornings feeling rested and ready for my day's work.

"I am certainly very happy about the way Syntona helped me and glad to recommend it to other people who suffer this same way."

Future is Uncertain for Four Airports in New York State

GENERAL VIEW OF NEWARK AIRPORT

W. D. FOSTER

Pending a U.S. congressional investigation, the airport at Newark, N.J., will remain closed. The action was taken at a conference at which the future of not only Newark, but La Guardia, New York International and Teterboro Airports — caught between the twin problems of public concern over recent air crashes and the need for first-class metropolitan air service — underwent intensive official study. Since Dec. 16 three planes have crashed in the vicinity of Elizabeth, N.J., claiming 116 victims. Latest tragedy resulted in loss of 31 lives when a DC-6, piloted by Capt. W. D. Foster of Coral Gables, Fla., crashed into an apartment building when motor failed after take-off from Newark. Of 62 aboard, 34 escaped alive, including Nancy Taylor, stewardess, who managed to jump clear when craft struck apartment building, killing four tenants. — Central Press Canadian.

NANCY TAYLOR

Dr. Logan's Wife

By Diana Gaines

Jennet Logan drove herself home in her car, Peter Surinov following in his. She pulled into the garage and walked to the front as he pulled up to her curb. The clear crisp air had the bite of smelling salts. The sky was netted with stars.

At her front door, she handed him her key, less out of social form than because her hands were trembling. But if she had expected Peter to master the situation, she was mistaken. He dropped the key had to light a match to find it in the dirt, tried both sides in the lock tugged angrily at the knob. "Maybe you better," he said, enraged. "I don't seem to have the combination."

His confusion had a perverse effect upon her. She opened the door with one half turn of the key.

She threw her wrap on the settee, snapped on the living room lights.

"I'll get the fixings," she said. Her voice was high and shaky. "Make yourself comfortable. Light the fire if you like."

He cleared his throat. "I don't want anything more to eat and drink," he growled. She felt his hands on her wrist. She turned slowly, sickened by the pounding of her heart.

"I don't want a drink. I want you. Jennet, don't make me wait any more."

"I'll meet you downstairs," she said.

He heard her coming down the stairs.

She was very pale, but she had pinned up her hair and she was wearing a sweater and skirt and the saddle shoes.

In the car, she fell asleep on his shoulder before they turned off Sunset to Sepulveda. She slept against him like a hibernating animal all the way to Tia Juana.

They stopped in Laguna for cocktails and dinner, and they entered the tavern merrily, light-hearted, noisy, superior, as Jennet had somehow always known she could be. They took a table that looked out on the ocean whose lip had been kissed by the sun to a rosy burn. The waiter laughed with them as they ordered their drinks, made them a present of his stiff-necked, continental laughter that carried the inference that he who had been around knew real thing when he saw it. When he brought their cocktails, he called their attention to the little twists of lemon they had requested, he had not forgotten, who could forget the requests of newly-weds?

But as they sat over their drinks touching hands and ankles, their voices low, vibrantly personal, the light in the sky all but died, the water lost its shine of warmth. The waiter came over, silently put a match to the candle on the table. Instantly, nature backed off, withdrawing its largess, leaving mortals to fend for themselves through the night. The suntanned faces at the tables around them flared in the sudden light of their own candles, took on the patina of old pine and their eager absorption had a look of haste. Almost, Jennet thought, as if they were carven puppets, briefly animated, hurrying to be human before their time ran out.

Jennet smiled at Peter brightly. "Let's call your mother and father and the Pelletiers. Let's phone them right now!"

As she had hoped the congratulatory excitement that thrummed along the telephone wires was an affidavit attesting the reality of the new marriage. ". . .and the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air, gave proof through the night" She could barely resist humming it aloud as she held to her ear the wild jubilation of Peter's father's voice. But her mother-in-law's sobbing was even better more reassuring.

"Is the happiest moment of my life, Jennet—daughter! So long our Peter has been loving you, so much he was talking to us about you—that you are lovely. . ."

Yes that was proof. Children imagined, mothers never. Children cried over nothing, but mothers never cried, even with joy, unless something real had happened.

There was another kind of reassurance in the gentle teasing of Stella and Walter — their words, their voices gave social blessing, the approval of the extra-familial world.

Drunk with celebrity, Jennet cried, "it's such fun, Peter, such fun to tell! Could we call Chicago from here? I can't wait. This cozy little phone booth, like a house around us."

There was no answer to the long-distance call to her parents in Chicago, but they reached Fred Chaney, the man who had been the speaker at the better housing forum. Ear to ear at the receiver, they sobered to the urgency of Fred's voice. "I've got to see you right away, Peter, it's important. Shame to interrupt your first night home, but man, I've been trying to get hold of you since Wednesday, and I have to go on a field trip tomorrow. . . Well, I'm afraid I can't not over the phone, but it concerns your future most vitally. And now, Jennet's too. Funny to think of you married, Peter. It's great though. I sure wish you luck. How long do you figure it'll take you from Laguna? Oh, you haven't had dinner. Right. I'll be there around 10. Whiteoaks, two blocks north of Sunset. Yes, Brentwood, I know, past Sepulveda. I got it. See you at 10. And my best wishes to your bride."

Now listening to Fred Chaney's account of being interviewed about Peter by the FBI man, seeing Peter's mute face, Jennet thought bitterly: the taking away is beginning it's beginning already.

But curiously she did not feel the old helplessness, the old depression. She felt, rather, a summoning of power within her, a girding for battle, and she moved from the Queen Anne chair to sit beside Peter. She took his hand and clasped it hard in hers, while she attended Fred's words. Fred was a spare man, dark, wavy-haired, and in his navy blue suit with the white pinned shirt and white-striped navy tie, his body had a right-angled, whittled look. His eyes, slightly bloodshot, were overlarge, his features fine, and a permanent frown had become imbedded in his forehead by the too constant elevation of eyebrows. The frown and the gritty voice and the impenetrable reserve gave Jennet a sense of unease in his presence, although touched by his loyalty to Peter, she felt affection for him.

Fred told of the questions he had been asked—about Peter's character, affiliations, friends, political leanings, parents—and the answers he had given. He relayed the hoarse sentences with an almost boyish shamefacedness for the questions carried an affront which made the answers sound placating. "It's easy to answer factual questions about a friend," Fred apologized "but when you're asked for your opinion of your friend's opinions, the conversation gets a little hot. I began to squirm after a few minutes of it. I felt he was trying to trip me up. I began to feel kind of sly and mean like I really had something to hide. You get that way when you're hounded, you get mean. 'Fred Chaney,' I said to myself, 'if they're after your friend, they're after you.' Anyway, Peter, I did my best. But there's one thing's got me worried. One thing in particular. . ."

"What's that?" Peter asked sharply, suddenly conscious of the two words that had lain like gall-stones at the bottom of his mind: "Washington files."

Fred spread his immaculate hands, set them, gleaming on his knees. "Remember the time we went to that girl's house to hear what we thought was going to be a a speech by Kelly? Her name was Mary Templar. Remember?"

The brittle points of the trumpet vine beat on the window pane in another rise of night wind. Jennet had left his side to put a long match to the gas under the logs, and the logs cracked in the sudden trough of flame. The wind licked the flames pointing their tips with its curving tongue. Now and then there was a disheveling downward gust of wind—a shower of sparks. Peter took his eyes from the hypnotic motion of the fire and watched his wife move from window to window drawing the heavy homespun drapes. He looked at the slim waist which he could span with his hands and he saw it thickened to support the weight of a child. His heart made a fist in his breast at the thought of what one gone night a visit more lustful than political, might do to the new family of Peter Surinovs.

Mary Templar. He had seen her first from the rear bending over a desk. The chubby pink legs straining the white silk seams, making worms of them.

"Miss Templar?"

When she turned, he saw the round pink face, the pink chubby arms swelling out of tight short cuffs.

They discussed the thyroid patient. She asked him then if he'd like to come to her house that night to hear Kelly speak, or wasn't he a democrat?

He had a date with Fred that night, but he decided to bring him along. He and Fred arrived late. Mary Templar's room was filled with people sitting in rows of those rented collapsible chairs.

They took seats in the back of the room. Mary Templar turned at the sound of their scraped chairs, dimpled at Peter and waved. The speaker was concerned with the current problems of a musicians' union. While he spoke, papers were passed among the audience for signatures. The mimeographed forms respectively portested the indictment of the Hollywood Ten and a bill written by an incumbent Republican seemingly designed to limit free speech. Peter and Fred signed each form. As the meeting progressed, it became increasingly apparent that the speakers held fast to the communist party line. Kelly did not arrive till midnight and he spoke ramblingly about very little.

The following week Peter met Jennet, after which Mary Templar looked to him like a perspiring dairy maid. She even, he noticed had a dairy smell. He didn't date her again.

The incident was closed. Or was it? As a result his signature affixed to two liberal protests was on file in Washington, and the protests would serve as a record of his attendance at a communist gathering.

"I remember," Peter said at last. "I had forgotten but I remember now. So that's what Cota meant It must be. He's got a very efficient little spy system at the hospital. He'd have dug up this sort of thing."

GETS GOOD ADVICE

After I was married, my grandmother said, "Everyone's giving you lots of advice, but they may not have told you how to keep a man's shirt sparkling white. All that is needed is a swish of Reckitt's Blue in the rinse—and that goes for all white clothes. Reckitt's Blue prevents clothes turning yellow—gives a snowy white wash every time without using anything that may damage fabric." Trust Granny to give me advice worth remembering.

Little Benny's Note Book

I ran in the house for another drink of water, and ma was in the kitchin pealing potatoes to get them reddy to be boiled, and I watched her a while, saying, G, ma, I'm lucky I've got you for a mother.

Thank you, I'm sure I appriciate being appriciated, ma said, and I said, I'm glad you're not too strict, like Sid Hunt's mother, for instants.

Well, I hope I always try to be fair, ma said, and I said, Sure you do, ma, that's what's so good about you. For instants I bet you wouldn't act the way Mrs. Hunt is acting about Sid's frog, I said.

Frog for land sakes? ma said, and I said, Aw, it's only a little bit of a small green frog. I bet anybody but Mrs. Hunt would think it was cute. Sid keeps it in a big shoe box where it gets plenty of air. Sid is teeching it to jump over a stick when he counts 3 and gives it a little poke from behind. He thinks maybe it will learn to jump when he just counts 3, without the poke, I said.

Well, if it's sutch a tiny frog, I suppose there's no grate harm, ma said, and I said, Mrs. Hunt is always afraid it's going to excape out of the box like it did a cupple of times or so, and she was scared to sit down any place because she kept on seeing it just as it was dissapeering again. So Sid had to get rid of it by today, and he offered it to me for nuthing, just for the privilidge of being allowed to come to visit it, I said.

Oh my goodness the idea, ma said. No frog of any size is going to enter this house. The whole thing is Sidney Hunt's problem, and as far as you're concerned and I'm concerned, the subject is closed, she said.

Meening there was no use arguing.

Ailsa Craig Crash Takes Four Lives; Three Others Hurt

Police Believe Motorist Fell Asleep at Wheel

Ailsa Craig, Ont., Feb. 15. (CP)—Three soldiers and a civilian were killed early today when the car in which they were riding left the highway about a mile west of here and hit a tree.

Police said their only explanation of the accident is that the driver, a civilian, Ed. Hunniford of Thedford, fell asleep at the wheel. He was killed. Three other soldiers in the car were injured, two severely.

Names of the killed and injured soldiers, members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry from Camp Ipperwash, were withheld by the army until notification of next-of-kin.

Police said the highway on which the crash occurred was straight, level and dry.

They said the soldiers met Hunniford in a Thedford restaurant late last night, went to London with him in the car and were returning when the accident occurred.

Ailsa Craig is 20 miles northwest of London. Camp Ipperwash is about 50 miles northwest of London.

Right-Hand Man Of Mossadegh Shot, Wounded

Tehran, Feb. 15 (AP)—Hossein Fatemi, right-hand man of Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh, was shot and wounded today by a youthful Moslem terrorist who shouted "there is no god but Allah."

Fatemi, former deputy prime minister was felled by a pistol shot fired at point blank range as he was addressing a crowd in a cemetery near Tehran. He was speaking on the fifth anniversary of the assassination of one of Iran's first nationalist martyrs.

Fatemi was taken to hospital where attendants said the chest wound would not be fatel.

The would-be assassin was seized by the crowd, which scuffled with police in apparent anger over police failure to prevent the attack. He told police only that his name was Mohammed.

The Moslem Terrorist Organization, Fedayan Islam, which boasted that it assassinated the late Premier, Ali Razmara, has publicly threatened Mossadegh and his followers with death unless the government frees Navab Safavi, one of its leaders.

Police have guarded Mossadegh's residence since the threats, and the aged Prime Minister has not appeared in public for two months.

Fatemi resigned as Deputy Premier last December to run for parliament. He was among 11 national front deputies elected from Tehran.

There have been a number of assassinations and plots against leaders in the last two turbulent years in Iran.

Prime Minister Ali Razmara was slain last March by members of a secret terror society. He was succeeded by Mossadegh who on several occasions has said plotters have sought to slay him. Attempts also have been made on the life of Iran's ruler, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi.

Performs Last Duty

Windsor, England, Feb. 15 — (CP) — Grizzled Jack Newton, once a corporal of the Grenadier Guards, performed his last duty for the King today as the Monarch's body was borne into Windsor Castle.

Newton, keeper at the castle's Cambridge gate since he left the army, opened the gate for the funeral cortege.

Years ago, as Newton was nearing retirement age, the King heard he did not want to leave His Majesty's service.

One day the King paused as he walked in the grounds and said: "Newton, you may stay here at the gatehouse as long as you want. I know you will always be ready to open the gate to me."

RAIN AND WIND WHIP THOUSANDS LIINED ON ROUTE

All Traffic Cleared From 122 Streets

London, Feb. 15. (AP)— Rain and a sharp wind whipped thousands of Britons who filled the sidewalks and waited patiently today to view the funeral procession of the King from Westminster Hall to Paddington railway stations.

Police estimated that at 6 a.m. (1 a.m E.S.T.) between 100,000 and 150,000 lined the curbs along the three-mile route. Many had been there since midnight; some since yesterday afternoon.

All traffic was cleared at midnight from the 122 streets along the funeral route. Nine-foot timber barricades, quickly erected in the darkness, barred the streets.

By 4:30 a.m. (11:30 p.m. Thursday E.S.T.) Whitehall, the short street where most of the government offices are situated, and Parliament Street, the street closest to Westminster Hall, were packed almost solidly. The temperature than was 30 degrees, and stinging sleet was falling.

Most of those who came hours ahead of time carried blankets and vacuum bottles of tea. Most were silent. The only persistent sounds were the shuffling footsteps of more arrivals and the cries of cockney hawkers peddling "waterproofed helmets" for half a crown.

The long lines of people waiting to pass the bier of the King in Westminster Hall faded away at 5 a.m. and those who wished to pay their personal respects could file past without waiting. The doors of the hall finally closed at 6 a.m.

Took Sheltered Positions

Where possible, people took up sheltered positions, mainly under the tin-roofed waiting stalls at bus stops, to avoid the chill rain and sleet.

One of the first to take up her stand on the streets was a woman from Cambridge who said she got her advantageous position on St. James Street by settling down there at 2:30 yesterday afternoon.

A well-equipped woman from Wales got one of the best seats on the sidewalk in front of the gates through which the funeral procession will leave Westminster Hall. She got there at 4 p.m. and brought with her a canvas folding chair, a quilt, an alcohol lamp to brew tea and heat canned chicken soup, and a stack of papers and magazines she read by the flicker of street lights between dozes.

EXPANDING LABOR FORCE EXPECTED TO MAKE RECORD

Trade Minister to Make Economic Forecast

Ottawa, Feb. 15 (CP)—An expanding labor force, experiencing only minor pockets of unemployment, is expected to produce a record $23,000,000,000 worth of goods and services in 1952.

A figure of these proportions—up almost $2,000,000,000 from the 1951 peak—likely will be used by Trade Minister Howe when he makes his annual economic forecast before the Commons when parliament reconvenes Feb. 28.

Government economists now are gathering all the vital statistics which go into this major forecasting job, and so far all signs point to another big advance in the mid-century expansion of the Canadian economy.

Key to the entire outlook is the "G.N.P."—the gross national product—total value of all goods and services produced. In 1951, the G.N.P. reached a peak $21,200,000,000—higher by $1,200,000,000 than the forecast made by Mr. Howe at the beginning of last year.

Almost all of last year's records are expected to be shattered by increases in both volume of production and prices.

The labor force is expected to climb to 5,400,000 from 5,200,000. The national income, which reached a peak of $17,000,000,000 in 1951, is likely to climb to $18,000,000,000 or more in 1952. The national income includes wages paid to labor, investment income and pay and allowances to Canada's military forces.

Spending by consumers, totalling $13,000,000,000 in 1951, may reach $14,000,000,000, and spending by governments on goods and services likely will reach $4,000,000,000 from $3,112,000,000.

Both imports and exports are expected to climb beyond the peak of more than $8,000,000,000 worth of foreign trade completed in 1951.

The economists estimate that more money will be spent in purchases of new machinery and equipment and in the building of commercial structures with public and private capital investment climbing to a record $5,000,000,000 from last year's $4,600,000,000.

5 Plead Guilty To Hijacking Big Transports

Brantford, Feb. 15 — (CP) — Five men pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of theft involving what police said was a hijacking ring that had taken $8,000 in goods from transport trucks.

Three brothers, Reginald, Bruce and Keith Myerscough, of Brant county, and Bill Dougherty and Leslie Moyer of Woodstock were remanded a week for sentence.

Police said they laid 43 charges against the men, some of which were dropped following the pleas of guilty.

Police said the thieves boarded transport trucks when they slowed up on a steep hill and threw the goods to the side of the road to be picked up later. Police have recovered most of the goods.

Plane, Dog Team and Toboggan Will Be Used to Bring Body from Bush

Sudbury, Feb. 15 — (CP) — Provincial police planned today to use a plane, a dog team and a toboggan to bring out the body of 32-year-old George Massey from an isolated trapline cabin 75 miles northwest of here.

The body was found Wednesday by Constable Herbert Roller. Massey's brother, Eugene, came to police the previous day with a story that he had been wandering the streets of Sudbury for two weeks since he had accidentally shot George through the heart Jan. 27.

He was undecided whether to report the shooting because he did not want to worry his aged parents.

Eugene is being held on a nominal charge of vagrancy.

George's body was found under a blanket in a mound of snow at the rear of the cabin he and his brother shared. A husky dog, killed by a bullet, was also found outside the cabin on Pin Tail Creek.

Eugene told police his brother was shot when a rifle accidentally discharged. Eugene said he was loading the rifle at the time.

Provincial police said they will fly to a lake near the cabin and by dog team and a toboggan will travel the rest of the distance to get the body.

Many Attend Special Services Held at Belleville Churches In Memory of George VI

A sorrowing citizenry filled two city churches to capacity this morning to pay memorial tribute to His Majesty King George VI.

West Hill residents overflowed Christ Church at 11 o'clock where Canon J. B. Creeggan conducted the service and Archdeacon Arthur Smith, St. Thomas Church, delivered the sermon.

On the East Hill, Bridge Street United Church was the mecca for another overflow crowd where the Rev. Duncan McTavish, minister of the church officiated assisted by the Rev. J. G. Hornsby. Mr. Hornsby delivered the address.

St. Michael's Church held a Libera service at three o'clock this afternoon.

Tonight at 7.30, city and district Jewry will gather at the Pinnacle Street Synagogue, where, under Rabbi A. M. Babb, special services will be held.

Reserve army units of the city attended the services with the 9th Anti Tanks Regiment under Lieut. Col. G. W. MacGregor, MC, going to Bridge Street United Church and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, commanded by Lieut. Col. Max Porritt, MC, attending Christ Church. Regimental officers wore black mourning bands on their left sleeves.

Christ Church Service

A cross section of city life sat in reverent silence as the city clock tolled the hour of eleven. The muted harmony of organ echoed softly in the crowded church. Surpliced choristers sat with bowed heads in the choral pews of the chancel. In the solemn hush, a pin dropping to the floor could have been heard.

Ancient Anglican Ritual Held At Windsor As Late King Borne to Final Resting Place

Windsor, England, Feb. 15 — (AP)— Two minutes of silence began the funeral services for the King today.

Then, to music composed by Westminster Abbey organist William Croft some 200 years ago, the St. George's Chapel choir sang: "I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord; He that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die." (St. John VI—25, 26).

"I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth, and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh I see God; Whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold and not another." (Job XIX—25-27).

"We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; Blessed be the name of the Lord." (1 Tim. VI-7, Job 1-27)

The choristers then sang The 23rd Psalm.

Special Hymn

Then the choir sang the hymn chosen for the occasion by the Queen and her mother. The hymn was "The Strife is O'er, the Battle Done," an 18th century translation from an earlier German hymn. The words of the first verse:

"The strife is o'er, the battle done
Now is the victor's triumph won,
O let the song of praise be sung,
Alleluia."

The Archbishop of Canterbury then pronounced these solemn words of scripture, passages taken from the Church of England's Book of Common Prayer written in 1662:

Ancient Ritual

"Man that is born of a woman hath but a short time to live, and is full of misery. He cometh up, and is cut down like a flower; He fleeth as it were a shadow, and never continueth in one stay.

"In the midst of life we are in death. Of whom may we seek for succour but of Thee, O Lord, who for our sins are justly displeased?"

"Yet, O Lord, God most holy, O Lord most mighty, O holy and merciful Saviour, deliver us not unto the bitter pains of eternal death.

Did Not Make Trenton

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 15 — (CP) — Flt. Lt. Cecil Rain, 26-year-old RCAF pilot who took off from Ottawa yesterday on a 150-mile flight to Trenton, Ont., made an emergency landing two hours later at Avoca airport in northwestern Pennsylvania.

Flt. Lt. Rain was heading for the RCAF station at Trenton to attend services today for the King.

He radioed from his single-engined Harvard aircraft yesterday that he couldn't locate his position and had only an hour's supply of fuel. Joseph Kuhar, airways operations specialist, said strong winds apparently had thrown the pilot off course.

'Good King' Laid to Rest To Join His Ancestors Within Tombs of Kings

Members of Royal Family Stand at Head of Coffin

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Windsor, England, Feb. 15 — (CP) — The coffin of George VI sank slowly from sight today, bearing a beloved Sovereign to join his ancestors within the tomb of kings.

In a service of mediaeval splendor, surrounded by those he loved, the chiefs of many countries, the humble and exalted of his own estate, the "Good King" who did not want to rule, was gently laid to rest amid a universal hush and general mourning.

Throughout the simple but moving Church of England burial service which lasted 26 minutes, the Queen, Queen Mother, Princess Margaret and Princess Royal, stood at the head of the plain oak coffin.

The scene in the choir chapel was an impressive one. Concealed lights in front of the pews and tall, white candles glowed on the lofty walls, reaching with delicate fan-tracery high into the tessellated roof.

Behind the royal ladies in serried ranks across the width of the choir were kings of other countries and dignitaries who had come to pay their homage.

Color Deposited

Before the coffin disappeared from sight through the floor of the chapel to the royal vault below, the King's company color of the King's Company, Grenadier Guards, was handed by an officer to the Queen. She took it from the crimson cushion and placed it on the head of the casket.

Then as the Archbishop of Canterbury pronounced the committal and the coffin descended, the Queen sprinkled some earth from a gilt bowl handed to her by an official of the household.

The Queen Mother stepped close to the Queen as the solemn notes of the dead march faded away.

As the Queen Mother and other members of the royal family passed from the chapel they bowed in final tribute as they filed past the coffin.

At a signal, the sepulchral slab bearing the King's coffin was set in motion. Slowly, amid a poignant stillness, it sank from view to rest momentarily in the underground crypt. Thus the service ended.

For this reporter, privileged to be the only Canadian newspaper representative in the chapel, it was an unique experience, moving yet majestic, a moment in history — a link in the long story of monarchical institution which endures though their outward mortal symbols change.

Quietly the chapel emptied of its more than 1,000 mourners as they filed past a profusion of floral tributes from all parts of the world. Outside, on the great Norman keep of Windsor Castle, flew the ceremonial standard, Britain's largest official flag, reminding the people that the King, who may be the last of the Windsor dynasty, had come home for the last time.

Moved by Trolley

From the crypt where it now rests, the King's coffin will be moved by trolley through an underground passage, built by the Prince Regent in 1813, to the royal tombhouse which the third of the Georges fashioned for his family a century and a half ago.

It is understood the coffin will rest beside another body, that of George's brother, the Duke of Kent, killed in a wartime air crash on a Scottish hill.

In the same arched vault lie the bones of Henry VIII and Jane Seymour, unhappy Charles 1 and all of England's rulers of the last 150 years, except Victoria. The chapel was first used for the repose of royalty at the command of Edward IV, who died in 1483.

The King's body was brought to Windsor after a funeral procession through London.

Elizabeth II, a queen at 25, led the country's final homage to her father. For 2 1-2 hours she rode in a horse-drawn carriage behind the coffin to the dirge of 10 bands, while more than 1,000,000 Britons, packed along the chill streets of London, bowed in reverence.

Then she entrained for Windsor with the body and saw it laid to rest in a crypt of royalty already holding 10 other sovereigns.

Queen Mary, 84, stayed in London and waved her farewell from a window of Marlborough House. But the widowed Queen Mother Elizabeth was here with Princess Margaret to hear the choir sing the

Canada Pays Homage to King In Coast-to-Coast Ceremonies

Ottawa, Feb. 15—(CP)—Canada today pays final homage to King George VI.

Focal point of the country's tribute will be a national ceremony of mourning to be held in parliament's Hall of Fame, with wreaths being placed by state officials and representatives of veterans and other organizations.

Simiiiar ceremonies will take place in cities and towns across the country.

Churches throughout the land held memorial services this morning for the late King, who was buried today at Windsor Castle, the burial place of British kings for nearly two centuries.

The day has been proclaimed by the government as a public holiday to be observed as a day of general mourning. Most schools are closed.

Originally, the government had planned to hold an open-air ceremony at the national war memorial on Ottawa's Confederation Square. However, unfavorable weather forecasts yesterday forced it to shift the ceremony to the parliament buildings.

The national ceremony will begin at 2.45 p. m. but before that at 2 p. m. the great bell of the carillon high in the Peace Tower will begin to toll.

At 2.53 p. m., massed bands of the armed forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police will play Chopin's Funeral March, Abide With Me, God Save the Queen and O Canada.

A two-minute silence, signalled by the firing of a gun, will follow at 2.58 p. m. It will end at 3 p. m. with the firing of the first gun of a 56-gun salute from an artillery troop stationed near the buildings.

One round will be fired for each of the 56 years of the late Sovereign's life, each at a half-minute interval.

A lament will be played by the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa pipe bands as wreaths are placed in the Hall of Fame by Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, the administrator in the absence of a governor-general; Senator Elie Bauregard, speaker of the Senate; Speaker Ross Macdonald of the commons; Field Marshal Lord Alexander, on behalf of the Canadian Legion, and by Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa.

At the 15th gun of the 56-gun salute, an honor guard lining the hall will present arms in a royal salute while drummers in the massed bands undrape their instruments for the playing of six bars of God Save the Queen.

The ceremony will end with a flourish of trumpets and the playing of God Save the Queen.

Poet Laureate Submits Poem In Commemoration

London, Feb. 15—(AP)—John Masefield, poet laureate, today published his poem in commemoration of the King. It was his second since the death of the King, Feb. 6

His first poem was a simple quatrain. The newer commemorative poem, entitled "At the passing of a beloved Monarch, Our Sovereign Lord King George the Sixth of blessed memory," follows:

"The everlasting wisdom has ordained
That this rare soul, his earthly service done,
Shall leave the peoples over whom he reigned
For other service at a higher throne,
Where life's rewarders sing at triumph won
In nobleness attempted and attained
Through years more terrible than any known.
What is a nation's love? No little thing:
A vast dumb tenderness beyond all price;
Surely a power of prayer upon a wing;
The living anguish of a hope to heal
Offered by all hearts here in sacrifice
To spirits bowed in sorrow for the King
That it may touch, to comfort or anneal.
May this devotion help them in their grief,
May the devotion kindle to resolve
To make this stricken country green with leaf
Glad with another hope to be again
A sun about which singing orbs resolve,
A kingdom grown so worthy of her chief
That millions yet unborn shall bless her reign."

Mother of King Watches Funeral From Window

London, Feb. 15 (AP)—Queen Mary, who will be 85 in May, watched from Marlborough House today the funeral procession for her son, the King. She spared herself from personal participation in the London processional and in the trip to Windsor.

Queen Mary sat in the only window of her home that was not covered with blinds. As the coffin came into view she stood, then passed her hand across the window in a gesture of farewell.

As the four ranking Dukes passed, the Duke of Windsor, himself a former King, turned and saluted his mother. Salutes came, too, from the Dukes of Edinburgh, Gloucester and Kent.

Queen Elizabeth and the Queen mother bowed toward the window as they passed down the Mall.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb 15 (CP)—Synopsis: Clear cold weather kept a firm grip on Ontario overnight. However temperatures registered about five degrees above those of the previous night in most localities. This slow moderating effect will continue today and Saturday. While clear skies are forecast for southern portions of the province, a weak disturbance moving into northern Ontario has brought cloudiness and some light snow to the regions north of Lake Superior. Gradual clearing is expected there on Saturday.

Uniformed officers and other ranks of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, under Lieut-Col. Max Porritt, MC, wore black mourning bands on their left sleeves. High above the chancel the Union Jack and other colors were still, folds drooping in figurative mourning.

Mayor A. McLean Haig and other members of the city council sat in bowed humility. City organizations were represented but it was an individual sense of loss that was plainly evident.

Outside a brilliant February sun shone down. At eleven o'clock the city paused for two minutes to honor the memory of the beloved Monarch. Then it raised its head in hope and heartfelt wishes for the Empire's new sovereign, Queen Elizabeth II.

Canon J. B. Creeggan officiated at the service. Major the Ven. Archdeacon Arthur Smith, St. Thomas Church, delivered the sermon. Also assisting were Rev. S. E. Larman, and Rev. J. S. A. Spearman.

Archdeacon Speaks

Archdeacon Smith took as his text Mark 10, 43-45 "Whosoever shall be great among you shall be your minister, and whosoever of you shall be the chiefest shall be the servant of all."

Millions of words have been spoken in sincere tribute to the high character of the late King, Archdeacon Smith said. It is impossible to say anything that has not already been said in tribute and in sympathy with the bereaved royal family.

The tone of this service is one of genuine, solemn thanksgiving to Almighty God for the goodness of the King's life and the high example set by him. Many commentators have referred to the King's character as one which exemplified "the old fashioned virtues."

"If by this is meant that the qualities displayed by King George had their root in, and were a reflection of, the ultimate truth which is in the very nature of God Himself, then indeed they were old-fashioned, for God never changes, nor does truth," Major Smith said.

"We may well thank God that the King manifested these qualities," he added. "If it is meant they are no longer the vogue, then surely has our common life deteriorated and a revival of these ancient standards is the paramount need of the day."

The speaker pointed out that King George made a great contribution to the welfare of the state, but his greatest gift was the uplift and inspiration he gave toward the highest level of integrity, of personal devotion to duty, true nobility of soul and irreproachable character.

British One Family

Expressing the hope that Canadians try to express in simple terms their sympathy with His Majesty's family Archdeacon Smith said the British peoples are not so much a union of nations and races as they are a family to whom the throne is central. The head of the family has been taken. The family's grief is real. It stands in a great circle with arms linked around those to whom the King was husband, father and brother, assuring them of the family's prayers and constant affection.

"We thank Almighty God for the King's daughter, his successor. Admirably qualified by training for her great task, she brings to the throne a graciousness and competence which has already won our admiration and affection and inspired our highest hopes," the speaker said.

"For the late King," he concluded, "our heartfelt gratitude for his life of service; for the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret Rose, the Queen Dowager and all members of the Royal Family our hands are outstretched in deepest sympathy; for the new Queen Elizabeth our earnest prayers for comfort in her grief, for strength and courage for the fulfilment of the demands of her great office."

"God save the Queen."

At Bridge Street Church

The following is the text of the sermon which Rev. J. G. Hornsby, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, preached at Bridge Street United Church before another large congregation:

When the sad news of the King's death reached us, a strange feeling possessed us; it was an emotion born of great love and respect for a good king whom we had learned to trust and honor.

As we listened to the story of his passing away in his sleep and realized that we would never again hear his voice, we felt that death had come as a thief in the night, taking from us not only our King but a fellow traveller on life's highway.

In our saddened mood, we became retrospective, and we looked back on his reign of 15 years and remembered what he had done and been in unparalleled times of danger and darkness. It has not always been possible for the subjects of the King to be able to think of their monarch as we have done and still do. Kings have lived and reigned as autocrats, and by reason of the severity of their rule and their disregard for human feeling, they earned the bitter dislike of their subjects. George VI was not of their number. He was a man of different mind and heart. Of him it can be truly said that first of all, he was a man and then a King. It was as a man that he chose to be regarded by us.

Set Good Example

Being what he was, his name will go down in history as one that bears no stain and it will do so because of the moral integrity and fidelity which he showed in all his associations and activities. He was a great king because he was so transparently a good man. On such an occasion as this, we feel more than we are able to say. And yet, though our most carefully chosen words leave us conscious of imperfect expression, we must pay our tribute. It is generally agreed that the most prominent virtue possessed by our late King was his humility. It was not something he feigned but it was a quality native to his nature. He possessed it always, or rather it possessed him, and it did more than anything else to win our esteem.

We were made to feel that he could and did stand with us on a common level where rank was forgotten and brotherhood was honored. In any study you may make of a great man's character there is always one trait that stands out in bolder relief than any other. It may be cordiality, generosity, sympathy, or some other equally fine quality. In the King it was humility. Now whenever you meet with a truly humble man you will invariably find in him a disposition to serve rather than a desire to be served and he whom we mourn today was the self-appointed servant of his people, even though he was a King.

Was Great Worker

Those who were privileged to enjoy close association with His Majesty tell us that he was a great worker. In these times, when so many of us demand greater relaxation from our labors, the King kept to the full routine he outlined for himself at the beginning of his reign. What his message to us this last Christmas must have cost him, only he and his physicians knew. His physical condition was such that had he broken his custom his disappointed subjects would have readily accepted his decision to spare himself but he refused to do so. In the days of his weakness he was as resolute and considerate as in the days of his vigor. Thinking as we do of his great service to us and for us we naturally incline in thought to his ever-ready sympathy. To me it is emblazoned in acts that could only arise from a heart that was touched and filled with a great tenderness. In all our seasons of joy and suffering the King understood. He felt, he spoke, he acted. For 15 years his heart went out toward countless numbers who in the day of their distress needed the heartening with which his messages and deeds were always weighted.

Never Found Wanting

In all the vicissitudes of national life that call for his sympathy he was never found wanting. What of his unfailing wisdom. It is sometimes argued that a constitutional monarch is debarred from exercising his gifts of wisdom and judgment, because he is merely the mouthpiece of the responsible ministers of the Crown. Theoretically that may be so, but in actual practice we know that the King showed great wisdom and tact in public and international affairs. We think of the years during which our late King reigned and we regard them as being the most eventful and precarious any monarch has been called to face.

The boundary lines of many countries have been changed, thrones have fallen, kings have fled, and the world had been sharply divided into separate schools of thought. In such a situation a weak word or thoughtless action could have damaged the King's prestige but his wisdom was never at fault and the honor in which he was held remained unbroken to the end.

You and I will never know the temptations that may have assaulted his determination to rule in the way he did. Whatever they were, he overcame them.

King George VI was at heart a religiously - minded man. He never neglected the house of God. He was a diligent student of the Bible. He was never ashamed to confess his faith in God. It was in religion where he found the grace and strength to live as the friend of God and be a friend of man.

Emulation Advocated

The life now ended has much to say to us who live in so selfish and superficial an age. May his fine influence long remain to encourage us in our resolve to emulate a character so arresting and exemplary.

This address would be greatly lacking in completeness and good taste were no reference of a kindly nature made to the Queen Mother Elizabeth. A lady of such sweet personality and gracious presence could not fail to be anything but a constant inspiration to her husband.

We think tenderly of her today. Some years ago she, in company with the King, visited Canada and won our hearts. They will always remain soft toward her. Our prayer is that in her sorrow she may come to know the nearness of God's comforting presence. We also think of a sorrowing daughter who has been called to accept the grave responsibilities involved in occupying the throne.

So very young, but greatly gifted and following in noble succession, we feel that she will more than justify the hope of a people who have loved her all her life.

From millions of hearts there rises a prayer that God will enable her to rule in the fashion of her illustrious father.

The King is dead. God save and bless our gracious Queen.

The announcement of a further increase in policyholders' dividends, reducing insurance costs; an all-time high in benefits paid; the largest volume of new life insurance issued by any Canadian company in 1951 —over $461 million; and a new record in volume of total assets which now stand at $1,666 million, are among the highlights of the 81st. Annual Report of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada just released by George W. Bourke, President.

In commenting on the continuing favorable trend in policyholders' dividends, Mr. Bourke said that any permanent improvement in interest earnings on the Company's assets brings about a reduction in the cost of insurance. The interest rate earned during 1951 was 3.70% as compared with 3.61% in 1950, 3.48% in 1949, and 3.30% in 1948.

The 1951 Report of Canada's leading life company reveals that over the twelve month period more than $1,800,000 of new business was received for each working day, the final total being an increase of more than $20 million over the previous year.

A SOCIAL INSTITUTION

Mr. Bourke described the Company as a social institution in its function of distributing payments to beneficiaries in the form of death benefits or to living policyholders in form of retirement benefits and annuities. In 1951, a total of $125 million was paid out for these purposes, including $35 million to beneficiaries of deceased policyholders, $16 million under annuity contracts, $36 million for maturing endowments, and the balance in dividends to policyholders, disability benefits, etc.

Since the first Sun Life policy was issued in 1871, total benefits paid to policyholders and beneficiaries have amounted to $2,486 million.

INSURANCE IN FORCE

The total Sun Life insurance in force at the close of 1951 was $4,801,000,000, an increase during the year of $340 million. Annuities now in force provide immediate or future payments to individuals or through Sun Life Group Pension plans to the amount of $104 million per annum. In discussing the continued progress of the Company, Mr. Bourke referred particularly to the ever-expanding services of its Group business, pointing out that the Sun Life was the first Canadian company to write Group insurance. He stressed the increasing importance attached to this form of collective protection by employers and employees alike, men and women in all walks of life, many of whom would not otherwise enjoy the benefits and security which life insurance provides.

Total Sun Life Group insurance in force now stands at $1,254 million, an increase of $168 million during 1951.

The assets of the Company increased over the twelve month period by $68 million, to reach a year-end total of $1,666 million, an all-time high figure.

NEED FOR LIFE INSURANCE

Mr. Bourke mentioned the advancement of medical science and its effect on improving the mortality rate but he emphasized the necessity for life insurance by pointing out that, in all companies, 30% of the death claims are paid on policies in force less than ten years, and 5% on policies less than one year in force. More than 50% of all deaths among Sun Life policyholders are due to heart disease, which is not necessarily a disease of old age. It kills and cripples thousands of children and tens of thousands of the young and middle-aged.

The key message of life insurance, said Mr. Bourke, is thrift. Life insurance combines protection with saving. Without the spirit of thrift and of self-reliance which life insurance has fostered over many decades, it would be difficult to imagine what the present state of our national economy would be.

A copy of the Sun Life's complete 1951 Annual Report to Policyholders, including the President's review of the year, will be sent to each policyholder or may be obtained from K. C. Dalrymple, C.L.U., Branch Manager, 402 Water St., Peterborough.

Resident Seen To Jump Into Moira River

City firemen and police are looking for the body of George Walker, 48, of 185 William Street, who shortly after midnight last night was seen to jump into the open water of the Moira River at the upper bridge. The fast current quickly swept his body away.

At least three persons, including Harold VanAllen, a local taxi driver, saw Walker take off his overcoat, hat and scarf and pause for a moment on the retaining wall of the river before jumping into the swirling current 18 feet below. They called to him but he jumped before they could reach him.

Walker had been employed at a local hotel for over 20 years but recently lost his job. It is believed by police that he had become despondent at being out of work.

He was unmarried and is not believed to have any family connections in this country. He came to Canada as a young man from England.

POLICE BLOTTER

Complaint that an unknown person had entered an unlocked home and had stolen $7 in cash from two purses, were made by a Charles Street woman this morning.

Entry had been gained through an unlocked rear door, the person going into downstairs bedrooms to get the purses. The empty purses were left by the intruder in the kitchen on his way out.

Mrs. John A. Howe, R.R. 5, Trenton, reported groceries stolen from her unlocked car left on the parking lot of a local chain store.

'Good King' Laid to Rest

hymn she and the new Queen had chosen—a hymn of victory, often sung at Easter:

"The strife is o'er, the battle done;
"Now is the victor's triumph won . . ."

The Archbishop of Canterbury voiced the commital the Church of England assigns to king and commoner alike:

"Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust, in sure and certain hope of the resurrection to eternal life. . ."

Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, governor-general-designate of Canada, was Canada's special representative at the funeral. Canada's external affairs minister, L. B. Pearson, and Defence Minister Brooke Claxton, also attended.

There was also General Eisenhower, who led Commonwealth soldiers as well as Americans against the Nazis while the King stood unflinching beside his people in this island Hitler coveted. And by the turn of time, the dignitaries invited to the funeral included the chancellor of a new Germany.

Britain and all the Commonwealth fell silent for two minutes at 2 p.m. (9 a.m. EST), the hour of the funeral. Then thousands turned to their radios to hear the service. Earlier, the street processions were seen on television.

In London, more than 1,000,000 people from all walks of life, watched in reverent silence as 150 Royal Navy ratings drew the King's coffin, mounted on a gun carriage, from Westminster Hall to Paddington Station.

Saluted His Mother

As Queen Mary waved her farewell from Marlborough House, the Duke of Windsor turned in the line of march and saluted his mother. Salutes came also from the Dukes of Edinburgh and Gloucester, and from the Duke of Kent, the King's 16-year-old nephew.

Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mother bowed toward the window where Queen Mary watched and checked each contingent in the line of march from the funeral program.

The King's body had rested in state in Westminster Hall for three days. An eight-year-old boy was the last of 305,806 persons to pass by the bier.

The King died Feb. 6 of a coronary thrombosis. Elizabeth II, in East Africa on a royal tour, hurried home to receive the homage of her subjects as Britain's first queen since Queen Victoria's death 51 years ago.

The King's coffin left Westminster Hall in London at 9.30 a.m. for the journey here. More than 1,000,000 mourners lined the route from the hall where the body had rested in state since Tuesday, to Paddington station. Women wept, and men bared their heads amid reverent silence as the mile-long cortege paced through three miles of London's streets in two hours and 25 minutes.

On his last earthbound journey through London, a sorrowing nation and its friends had marked the King's passing with a magnificence he never sought in life.

Here in the heart of his Commonwealth, a vast assembly gathered in the thin wintry sunshine to pay a last tribute to the well-loved Monarch.

Quiet homage mingled with the panoply of centuries has been the keynote since the 56-year-old Sovereign died nine days ago at the Sandringham estate where he was born. He had ruled 16 years through depression, war, austerity, and fear.

A few minutes before eight Guardsmen bore his body from its catafalque in historic Westminster Hall, his daughter-successor, the Queen, came once more to look upon his coffin.

With her was her mother, Princess Margaret, and the King's sister Princess Mary. All wore black and heavy mourning veils.

With them came Britain's four royal Dukes—Elizabeth's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh; the King's two brothers, the Dukes of Windsor and Gloucester, and the Duke of Kent, the dead Monarch's 16-year-old nephew.

Mile-Long Cortege

Bands and Europe's royal personages, British and foreign statesmen and the armed services paced in the mile-long cortege while more than 1,000,000 Britons saluted the passage of the body through London's rain-washed streets.

The Guardsmen placed the coffin upon the gun carriage just before 9.30 a.m. (4:30 a.m. EST). Then 150 sailors began to draw it slowly toward Paddington Station, three miles away, where a special train was ready to carry it to Windsor for funeral services at 2 p.m. (9 a.m. EST).

The moment of the funeral services was to mark the beginning of two minutes of silence throughout the land and in the Commonwealth countries around the world.

Big Ben, high above the route of procession, tolled 56 chimes, a minute apart, each marking a year of the late Sovereign's life.

The family mourners—the young Queen, the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret, and the King's sister, Princess Mary—rode in a special carriage immediately behind the coffin.

Queen Mary Stays at Home

The King's mother, 84-year-old Queen Mary, did not attend because of infirmities of age.

Instead the indomitable matriarch who already has seen three monarchs, including her husband buried, watched the funeral procession from a window of Marlborough House, her residence. As the coffin approached she stood, and as it passed before her, she passed her hand across the window in a gesture of farewell.

A wreath of flowers from the Queen Mother was the only floral decoration on the coffin, which was draped in the red and gold royal standard. Atop it also were the glittering bejewelled symbols of his sovereignty, the great Imperial Crown, the sceptre and the orb.

The dukes walked abreast behind the carriage—Windsor and Edinburgh in Royal Navy uniforms, Gloucester in the uniform of a general, Kent in civilian dress.

Walking just before the coffin-bearing carriage were the King's two closest personal servants—his two valets, Thomas Jerram and James Macdonald. It was Macdonald, taking a morning cup of tea to his Master, Feb. 6, who found the King dead.

In the procession were seven monarchs with their queens or consorts, 17 princes and princesses, the presidents of three states, and five prime ministers, joining with the family and with the leaders of the nation to pay homage.

Nine Bands in Cortege

Nine bands accompanied the cortege.

Prime Minister Churchill and his cabinet waited at Windsor for the special funeral train to arrive. Following tradition the government ministers did not take part in the procession through London.

After a night of sleet and rain, whipped by a sharp wind and chilled by 30-degree temperatures, the sun broke through the clouds as the cortege began to move.

As Big Ben chimed 6 a.m., the high oak doors of Westminster Hall swung shut. There the body of the King had lain in state for three days.

An eight-year-old boy was the last of 305,806 persons who filed past the coffin.

Besides the thousands who came early and got places of vantage along the funeral route, hundreds of thousands more with little chance of seeing the pageant poured into the closed off side streets.

Many with the best places had taken their stands yesterday afternoon, and waited through the night.

The throng stood 10 deep along the broad sidewalks of Whitehall, site of most government offices and the nearest point to Westminster Hall.

More than 11,000 police lined the route from the hall to Paddington.

The crowd included people from all parts of the Commonwealth and from foreign countries.

Ancient Anglican Ritual Held

"Thou knowest, Lord, the secrets of our hearts. Shut not Thy merciful ears to our prayers, but spare us, Lord most holy, O God most mighty, O holy and merciful Saviour, Thou most worthy Judge Eternal, suffer us not, at our last hour, for any pains of death, to fall from Thee."

As the body of the dead Monarch was lowered into the vault beneath the chapel, The Archbishop intoned the words of committal:

"Forasmuch as it hath pleased Almighty God to take unto Himself the soul of our dear brother here departed; We therefore commit his body to the ground; Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust, in sure and certain hope of the resurrection to eternal life, through Our Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile body, that it may be like unto His glorious body according to the mighty working, whereby he is able to subdue all things to himself."

Choir Sings

The choir sang:

"I heard a voice from Heaven, saying unto me, write, from henceforth blessed are the dead which die in the Lord. Even so saith the Spirit, for they rest from their labors."

The Dean of Windsor read three special prayers. One of them asked God's blessing on "those whom we love but see no longer." The second besought God to "deal graciously with those who mourn." The third asked God's help in keeping faith.

The Garter King of Arms, Hon. Sir. George Bellew, stepped forward and proclaimed in full the styles of the dead King:

"Thus it hath pleased Almighty God to take out of this transitory life unto His divine mercy the late most high, most mighty and most excellent Monarch, George the Sixth, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the seas, King, defender of the faith and Sovereign of the most noble Order of the Garter.

Blesing On Elizabeth

"Let us humbly beseech Almighty God to bless with long life, health and honor, and all wordly happiness, the most high, most mighty and most excellent Monarch, Our Sovereign Lady, Elizabeth the Second, now, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the seas, Queen, defender of the faith, and Sovereign of the most noble Order of the Garter."

The choir sang the anthem "God Be In My Heart And In My Understanding," composed by Sir Walford Davies, who was master of the King's music during the reign of George V. The Archbishop of Canterbury then pronounced the benediction:

"The grace of Our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all evermore. Amen."

END SEARCH

Panama, Feb. 15 — (CP)—Private investigators have ended their search for a man-eating shark which might have yielded clues to the Jan. 15 disappearance of Gosta Videgaard, wealthy Swedish engineer. The investigators hunted unsuccessfully for a shark whose stomach might contain a trace of the missing man. They are almost satisfied he drowned but do not completely rule out the possibility of foul play.

Survey Reveals Radio Sets Grow Alongside Video

New York (AP) —New evidence has been brought out that television not only has failed to kill radio but that radio is still growing at a husky rate.

A joint committee of the four major radio networks reported an increase of 9,300,000 radio sets during 1951. This makes a new high total of 105,300,000 sets in the United States as of Jan. 1.

Using the census bureau's calculation that a little more than 95 percent of American homes have one or more radio sets, the committee estimated the number of radio homes at 42,800,000.

Hugh M. Beville Jr., research director of the National Broadcasting Corporation, recalled that a recent survey showed families owning television sets had a higher rate of radio set buying than those without TV.

Fewer Evening Listeners

A survey made for station WNEW here showed an upswing in radio listening in homes with television, particularly where the home has had television for two years or more and some of the novelty has worn off.

But the new survey shows that television has made a big dent in evening radio listening. In 1947 when there was comparatively few television sets, radio was heard in 38.3 percent of metropolitan New York homes during an average evening period of 15 minutes. That average now is down to 28.2 percent.

The joint network report on radio emphasized the number of sets in parts of the house other than the living room, and in automobiles and other places. It estimated 34,000,000 secondary and portable sets in homes with 23,500,000 in automobiles and 4,100,000 in other places. NBC has estimated that 15,700,000 TV sets were in use at the start of the year.

Convention Plans

The Democratic and Republican conventions to select presidential nominees at Chicago next summer will be covered by television as never before. All sorts of television apparatus will be moved into the amphitheatre and one estimate is that at least four tons of equipment will be needed.

Cameras will be placed at various vantage points on the floor to provide panoramic and close-up shots. Special off-the-floor studios will be provided so the networks can put on individual pick-ups in addition to the pooled broadcasting.

Radio of course will have its usual facilities, its microphones being located in many instances close to the cameras. This means that much of the convention sounds will be going simultaneously to both mediums.

ALL TO BE CENSORED

Guatemala, Guatemala, Feb. 15 — (CP) — The government of Guatemala has announced that all outgoing and incoming press messages are subject to censorship. The government has always retained the right of censorship in case of a threat to its security but in the latest move no reasons were given.

Ontarians Pay Tribute to King Loved, Respected

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontarians paid tribute today to a king they loved and respected.

They joined with the rest of Canada to mourn King George VI on this day of national mourning proclaimed for the Monarch's funeral.

From the largest city to the smallest community citizens paid their respects in one form or another. Everywhere, in the still of the winter day, church bells tolled.

The quick pace of everyday life was slowed, whether the day was observed as a full statutory holiday or simply marked with special memorial services.

Services were held in churches or community halls where leading figures of the communities led their fellow-citizens in prayer. Armed forces members, Boy Scouts and veteran organizations paraded to cenotaphs and placed wreaths.

In Toronto 5,000 persons gathered at Maple Leaf Gardens for an inter-denominational service which began at 8:15 a.m. It was attended by Mayor Allan Lamport, L. O. Breithaupt, lieutenant-governor - designate, Premier Frost and citizens from all walks of life. A broadcast of the funeral procession in London was heard.

Toronto street-cars and buses stopped running for two minutes at 9 a. m. in the general observance of the two minutes of silence in the city. Public transportation also halted in other centres.

In London, a cannon shot at noon signalled the two minutes of quiet there.

Throughout the province all schools, banks, government offices and most municipal buildings were closed.

No community service was held in Paris. The town's ministerial association cancelled arrangements for a memorial service because of what it said was the lack of co-operation from industry and labor in providing employees with an opportunity to attend.

Union Employees Of Kingston Plant Reject Offers

Kingston, Feb. 15. (CP) — Union employees of the Canadian Locomotive Company here last night rejected two alternative contract offers by the company. The men are members of the United, Electrical and Machine Workers of America (Ind.).

A union statement today said the membership meeting voted 97 per cent against the offers and gave the union negotiating committee full authority to take any necessary action to reach a settlement.

The union is seeking wage increases of from 15 to 25 cents an hour. The company has offered from seven to 10 cents an hour for skilled workmen.

Present basic wage for the 800 employees is $1.26 an hour, which includes a cost-of-living adjustment of 15 cents an hour.

Brutal Assault Costs Accused Three Months

Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 15—(CP)—David Newman, 21, Thursday was sentenced to three months for what the court termed "a brutal assault" Jan. 31 on a 40-year-old construction engineer.

Clarence Hansen, Chicago engineer working for a construction company here, was in hospital for more than a week from injuries suffered in the beating after a drinking bout.

Hansen said the two had been "the best of friends" until Newman turned on him, broke his nose and jaw, kicked out his front teeth, broke bones in one hand and caused other minor injuries.

Although Hansen said Newman took $130 from his wallet after the beating, the crown did not lay a robbery charge.

WANT CLOSE CHECK

Toronto, Feb. 15 — (CP)—The federal and provincial governments were asked yesterday to keep a close eye on charitable corporations.

The request came from a meeting of a joint committee of the Community Chest and the Canadian Conference of National Voluntary Health and Welfare Organizations.

It asked that all charitable corporations be required to file an annual return setting forth operating details and the distribution of finances.

Funeral Sidelights

Wellington, N.Z., Feb. 15 (AP)—For two minutes this morning all activity came to a silent standstill throughout New Zealand in tribute to the memory of the King. Even telephone service was cut off for the two minutes.

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 15 — (AP)—Australians halted in silence for two minutes at noon here today in memory of the King.

All transport stopped and business ceased. After two minutes, police moved traffic on and city life resumed.

Many people wore black ties and dark suits. Women wore black, white or grey instead of their gay summer clothing.

Pusan, Korea, Feb. 15 (AP) —A 45-minute Memorial service was held here today for the King. The British charge d'affaires, Alex C. S. Adams, the U.S. ambassador, acting Korean Prime Minister Hin Chung and chairman P. H. Shinicky of the Republic of Korea national assembly were among the dignitaries attending the services in the English Church Mission.

Brussels, Feb. 15 (AP) —Twenty-one-year-old King Baudouin arrived 15 minutes late today at the Church of England here where a memorial service was held for King George VI.

The King who declined to attend the London funeral and deputized his brother, Prince Albert was in a Lieutenant-General's uniform with a large black band around his left arm.

New Delhi, Feb. 15 (AP) —Prime Minister Nehru today knelt in prayer alongside his sister, Mme. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandi, and his daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, in the Cathedral Church of Redemption at requiem mass for the King.

Singapore, Feb. 15 (AP)—The varied races of Malaya joined the rest of the Commonwealth today to pray at memorial services for the King in cathedrals, Moslem mosques, Jewish synagogues, Buddhist monasteries and Hindu temples.

At noon people all over the country paused for two minutes of silent remembrance, even in the jungles where British and Malay troops are fighting red terrorists.

All nine local Malay rulers ordered two weeks of court mourning beginning today, during which government officials will wear white bands around their caps.

Cairo, Feb. 15 (AP) —Prince Mohammed Aly, representing King Farouk, and Prime Minister Aly Maher Pasha attended a memorial service for King George VI at the cathedral of the Church of All Saints today.

With the British Commonwealth division, Korea, Feb. 15—(Reuters) — Guns of the Commonwealth Division were silenced today as troops observed two minutes' silence in homage to the King.

Men climbed out of their foxholes to stand, with bare heads, in silent tribute to the King.

For men of the Royal Norfolk Regiment, it was a memorial not only to their King but also to their colonel-in-chief.

Oslo, Feb. 15 — (AP)—Athletes and spectators at the Olympic Winter Games' opening ceremonies at Bislett Stadium stood in silence with bared heads for a minute today in homage to Britain's late King George VI.

Not a sound could be heard from the crowd of almost 30,000. The flags of the 30 countries competing in the games, which were grouped in a semicircle at the central platform, were dipped.

It says: "Albert Frederick George Windsor Born 1895. Died 1952."

Kuala Lumpur, Malaya, Feb. 15 — (Reuters) — Three thousand Indian and Chinese railroad shop workers staged a sit-down strike at their workshop today because they were not granted a day off to mourn the King's death.

London, Feb. 15 — (Reuters) — Nearly 1,500 Scotland Yard detectives checked every building on the route of the funeral procession and mingled with the crowds watching for pickpockets.

Moscow, Feb. 15 — (Reuters) — Officials of the Russian Foreign Ministry joined members of the diplomatic corps in Moscow in a memorial service for the King at the British Embassy today.

British Ambassador Sir Alvary Gascoigne conducted the service, jointly organized by the British, Canadian, Australian, Indian and Pakistani representatives in Moscow.

Robert Ford, Canadian Charge D'Affaires, and J. M. McMillan, Australian Charge D'Affaires, read the lessons.

London, Feb. 15 — (Reuters) — The communist Daily Worker today devoted 12 paragraphs to the King's funeral — most of them giving advice to motorists wishing to cross London without getting held up by the procession.

Pretoria, South Africa, Feb. 15 — (Reuters) — A large congregation attended a memorial service for the King in the Dutch Reformed Church here today — but one pew was empty and draped in black. It was occupied by the royal family when they were in South Africa.

Barnes, England, Feb. 15 (AP) —William Caudle and his wife, both about 70, collapsed and died within a few moments of each other today while watching the King's funeral procession on television.

Aboard the airliner Athena, over the Bay of Biscay, Feb. 15 (Reuters) — Speeding through space at 308 miles an hour, the crew and passengers of this British airliner today observed the two-minutes silence in memory of the King.

Like other British pilots the world over, Capt. F. A. Taylor kept a careful check on British time as he took his plane on its way to Lisbon.

Just before 2 p.m. he entered the main passenger salon. The 40 passengers rose and stood with him in silence.

Singapore, Feb. 15 (Reuters)—A fleet of 33 Russian fishing trawlers steamed solemnly into port today with hammer-and-sickle flags fluttering at half-mast to join in mouring for the King.

The fleet, on its way to Vladivostock from the Baltic Sea, will leave Sunday after taking on supplies and water.

London, Feb. 15 (Reuters) — News items on the King's funeral procession almost entirely pushed out other foreign and domestic news in the British press today. London's three evening newspapers, with a circulation of more than 3,000,000 carried only a total of 151 column inches of non-Royal news —about five per cent.

London, Feb. 15 (Reuters)—Ambulance workers along the route of the King's funeral procession dealt with 450 casualties today. They were mainly minor cases of fainting but 10 were taken to hospital, some with broken arms caused in falls.

Heart of Britain Stopped Beating For Two Minutes

London, Feb. 15 (Reuters) —For two minutes today the heart of Britain stopped beating as the King's funeral service started in Windsor.

Throughout the land work came to a standstill and in factories, offices and city streets, men, women and children rose to attention to stand with bowed heads.

In London, the silence began with the boom of police torpedoes. Elsewhere air-raid sirens signalled the 2 p.m. GMT (9 a.m. EST) hush.

The silence was requested specially by the Queen.

All traffic jerked to a halt in London.

At the cenotaph in Whitehall, passed by the funeral procession not long before, a crowd gathered to observe the silence.

In Piccadilly and Leicester Square, Londoners stood like statutes in memory of the King. Piccadilly Circus was a solid mass of unmoving humanity. Bus drivers jumped from their seats and stood in the roadway.

Subway trains everywhere stopped at the nearest stations to observe the silence.

Buckingham Palace Guards sprang to attention and sloped arms before hundreds of people. From nearby Wellington barracks came the sound of the Last Post.

Far underground in the coal mines of South Wales, miners stood in the dim light of their tiny lamps to pay their tribute.

ATTEND RECEPTION

Moscow, Feb. 15—(AP)—Five hundred guests including top-ranking Russian government figures, attended a communist Chinese embassy reception at the Metropole Hotel last night. It was celebrating the second anniversary of the Soviet-Chinese treaty of friendship.

IN WRONG MEETING

Toronto, Feb. 15—Albert Wilson, a 35-year-old Ojibway trapper got into the wrong meeting yesterday, but wound up with results anyway. The Fort Frances Indian mistook a meeting of the Canadian Forestry Association for a trappers convention. He got up and gave them a speech on beaver trapping seasons and wound up with plenty of support.

More Protection on Highway At Points Along Trent River Urged at Phillips Inquest

Trenton— (Special)—A recommendation for additional protection to be provided along No. 33 Highway where the road runs close to the Trent River was made by a coroner's jury last night at the adjourned inquest into the deaths of Jack Edwin Phillips, 50, and his daughter Mary Hazel Phillips, 10, of Glen Miller.

Mr. Phillips and his daughter drowned in the Trent River at Glen Miller on the night of February 8 when their car crashed through a guard rail and dropped into the river after being in collision with another vehicle on the highway.

The jury placed no blame on Ray Jensen, driver of the other car, and said the accident was due to highway and weather conditions. They recommended additional barricades along 33 Highway at any dangerous spots.

The inquest was held before Coroner Dr. E. A. McQuade, with the jurors consisting of Grant Goodsell, Bill Adams, Tom Holmes, Walter Wrightman and Don McCarnan.

Ray Davis, one of the chief witnesses at the inquest, stated that he had met Phillips at Long's store a short time before the accident. He said he saw Phillips get into his car and turn south on the highway. He then saw Phillips stop and open the car door and close it again after a car passed. Seconds later he heard a crash as a second car smashed into the Phillips vehicle. He looked up again just in time to see the tail light of the Phillips car disappear through the barricade and over the river enbankment.

He said that it was snowing at the time of the accident and that visibility was bad.

Mr. Jensen said he had been driving between 30 and 35 miles per hour. He saw the Phillips car and pulled to the left intending to pass. He blew his horn and flicked his lights but suddenly the car was directly in front of him only five feet away. He had no opportunity to stop.

Provincial Constable E. L. C. Smith said he had arrived on the scene only minutes after the accident. The lights of the Phillips' car were still on although the vehicle rested at the bottom of the river.

Six Business Places, Offices Without Heat Due to Boiler

Trenton (Special)—A wrecked furnace boiler which all but melted when its water supply was cut off, is making things unpleasant and uncomfortable for workers at six different business establishments and offices at Trenton.

The building without heat is the Trent Theatre building and the stores and offices which it contains.

Wednesday theatre manager Harry Dunk went to the furnace room and noticed the furnace and boiler were cherry red. He called Gib Martin, former manager, who despite the danger of a boiler explosion went in and turned off the furnace. Investigation revealed lime deposits had clogged the water pump with result the boiler went dry and started to melt.

Despite close to zero weather outside, workers at the unemployment insurance office yesterday stuck to the job and dressed in slacks and overcoats got out unemlpoyment cheques. The office is closed today. Last night over 400 theatre customers shivered through the evening feature.

Besides the theatre and unemployment office the building contains the theatre bar, a florist shop, and Trenton offices of CJBQ and the Ontario Intelligencer.

A new $3,000 boiler has been delivered and workmen are working day and night to install it. Before this can be done, however, the furnace room has to be remodelled and the building will be without heat for another day or so.

Hiram McCallum CNE Assistant General Manager

Toronto, Feb. 15 — (CP) — Hiram McCallum, former mayor of Toronto, yesterday was named assistant general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition over the objections of Mayor Allan Lamport.

After a meeting of the 30-man C.N.E. board of directors, Mayor Lamport said the appointment of the man he defeated in last December's civic election was "payment of political debts by other members of the board of directors."

Three or four other members of the board joined Mayor Lamport in voting against the appointment of Mr. McCallum, who will likely succeed C.N.E. General Manager Elwood Hughes.

Mr. Lamport, who has been critical of financial arrangements in contracts for the amusement concessions at the big exhibition, was named to a five-man committee to review the contracts of J. W. (Patty) Conklin and William Beasley.

The mayor said he had obtained promises from the board that two city controllers will be named to the nine-man C.N.E. executive and that grandstand performers will be engaged with the assistance of the Toronto chapter of the American Guild of Variety Artists.

He has been seeking a greater measure of city control in the C.N.E. executive and a larger Canadian representation in the grandstand show.

CONSIDER HOSPITAL PLAN

Hamilton, Feb. 15—(CP)— A complete plan for medical, hospital and surgical care for 3,000 civic employees and their families at a cost to the city of $54,000 a year will be considered by Hamilton board of control. The plan would cover hospital, surgical and medical costs.

JOINED AT BELLEVILLE

Toronto, Feb. 15—(CP)—Chief Inspector Albert H. Ward and Deputy Commissioner Edward T. Doyle of the Ontario Provincial Police soon will retire, it was learned today. Chief Inspector Ward who has headed the criminal investigation branch in Toronto for 10 years, joined the force 22 years ago at Belleville.

Christian Science Group Holds Memorial Service

Members of the Christian Science Society of Belleville, held a special memorial service this morning in tribute to His Majesty, the late King George VI, at the Masonic Temple.

"King George the Sixth of Great Britain, Northern Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the seas, has passed away, greatly beloved and deeply lamented.

"The love he inspired lives in the heart of millions. He was not only the peoples' Ruler, but in thought and deed their affectionate friend.

"In Britain's greatest hour of trial he and his Queen, Elizabeth, moved among their subjects, sharing their sufferings and encouraging them by their heroic example. His deep and affectionate nature was expressed in an ideal family life.

"His only ambition was to serve God and to help his people. 'Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee: because he trusteth in Thee'.

"The new Sovereign, Queen Elizabeth the Second, who has now succeeded her father, has already established herself in the affectionse of her subjects whose loyalty will be a sure support in the days ahead.

"The love of every Christian Scientist goes out to the royal family and to the whole British people. We are mindful of the words of our beloved leader, Mary Baker Eddy 'Who lives in good, lives also in God,—lives in all life, through all space His is an individual kingdom, His diadem a crown of crowns. His existence is deathless, forever unfolding its eternal principle'."

HIT BETWEEN EYES

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 15—(AP)—The Mississippi House of Representatives yesterday passed a bill which allows a Mississippian who thinks he has been slandered in a radio broadcast to file against the broadcaster by serving papers on the secretary of state. Its author, representative Boyce Holleman, said "this measure would hit Walter Winchell and Drew Pearson right between the eyes."

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF

The present is not the first occasion upon which the people of this country, or some of them, have been reduced to devouring horsemeat.

The previous occasion was in the winter of 1757-1758. At that time, when Canada was a French possession, known as New France, the French, in North America as in Europe, were at war with the British. Britannia really ruled the waves in those days, and the people of New France were cut off from their homeland. Certain types of food were scarce.

Partly because of the scarcity of foodstuffs, and partly because he thought there were too many horses in the country, the Marquis de Vaudreuil, the governor of New France, tried to institute the use of horseflesh among the people. The women of Montreal gathered in what would nowadays be called "an angry mob" and surrounded the residence of the marquis. They told De Vaudreuil "that the thought of horsemeat revolted them, that the horse is the friend of man, that religion forbade its slaughter, and that they would rather die than eat it." De Vaudreuil was vanquished.

With the assistance of the Marquis de Montcalm, the chief military officer of New France, a certain other officer named De Levis, and the intendant Bigot, De Vaudreuil succeeded in forcing the soldiers to accept horsemeat as part of their rations, but not without difficulty. Montcalm wrote in his diary of how the Queen's Grenadiers, one of the regiments stationed at Quebec City, objected openly when horsemeat was served to them. Montcalm wrote in his diary: "They squirmed a bit, but Bras de Fer (apparently an officer who ruled with an iron hand as his name or nickname would suggest), made them squirm."

Although the civilian governors and military officers succeeded in making the soldiers eat horsemeat, the article from which we are drawing our information indicates that they did not have any such success in dealing with the housewives.

Maybe things have not changed much in the last two centuries, in some respects at least. Governors and intendants and generals and other such highly-placed folk can still make soldiers obey orders, but they are as hesitant as ever about trying to push the women around.

JALOPIES NOT TO BLAME

In a letter which he has written to the press, H. P. Miles of Trenton comes up with a poser for those who contend that automobiles in defective condition should be ruled off the roads to reduce accidents.

Of all the accidents on the highways in the United States during 1950, says Mr. Miles, 94 per cent were caused by cars which were "apparently in good condition." The remaining six per cent of the cars in United States highway accidents were mechanically defective in one way or another. Conditions in Canada are similar enough to those in the United States so that the same percentages probably apply here.

"If we rule the jalopies off the roads because they cause six per cent of the accidents, how shall we deal with the sound cars which cause 94 per cent?" Mr. Miles asks. He adds that, according to the insurance statistics from which he draws his information, half of all accidents are caused by speeding.

Mr. Miles appears to believe that the character of the driver, and possibly his physical condition, have more to do with causing accidents than the type of car he is driving. We believe he is right in this contention.

HASTINGS BIG CHEESE PRODUCER

Hastings county was second among the counties of Ontario in cheddar cheese production during 1951, with a total output for the year of 5,075,997 pounds, it is shown by the latest issue of the Ontario Department of Agriculture's dairy report.

The united counties of Lennox and Addington stood in first place, with a production of 5,717,622 pounds. Leeds, with a production of 4,773,555, was in third place.

Total cheese production for the province for the year was 62,140,879 pounds, somewhat less than the 69,301,959 pounds produced during the preceding year.

DESERVES ITS TITLE

The city of Toronto has just completed a campaign to raise $14,000,000 to build additions to Toronto General Hospital. The campaign was so successful that more than $16,000,000 was collected. This is said to be the largest sum ever collected for a single hospital, anywhere.

Only two years ago, Toronto collected more than $8,000,000 to provide a new building for the Sick Children's Hospital.

If generosity is a regal virtue, the people of Toronto have every right to call their city the Queen City.

Or thinks of me at

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

THE ANGRY PATRON

I am one of the 4000 Canadians and Americans whose shoulders are being used to weep upon by a young multi-millionaire who is sure the world is going to the devil. As far as I'm concerned he weeps alone.

The rich young gent in question is Huntington Hartford, heir to the fortune of America's biggest chain store octupus.

Three years ago Huntington set up a 135-acre community near Los Angeles, a luxurious retreat where struggling young artists, writers, musicians and sculptors —might toil without the worry of "financial anxieties," a rich man's phrase meaning "eating."

This, in itself, was a nice gesture, but very soon Huntington succumbed to the temptation of all wealthy patrons of the arts—he wanted his talented boys and girls to perform by his standards and not their own.

Huntington's pique at modern and experimental forms of expression—notably abstract painting and hard-hitting realistic novels—ballooned to such an extent that he sat right down and wrote out his "credo", 4000 copies of which were mailed far and wide.

In a covering letter Huntington wrote, "This pamphlet represents my credo on the subject of contemporary art. What do you think of it?"

To which the obvious reply is simply, "Hurry back to the grocery business, dear Mr. Hartford."

* * *

All that Huntington asks of his subsidized artists is that they stop progressing.

If they are painters he asks them to retreat, please, to the days of Raphael and Rubens. If they are writers he urges them to find their inspiration in Charles Dickens. If they are composers he points wistfully to the scores of Verdi and Wagner.

Almost everything that is "modern" seems to Huntington to be decadent—not merely decadent, but corrupt in the same sense that fixed basketball games or the cheating of West Point cadets is corrupt.

The novel "From Here to Eternity", which most critics acclaimed as a shocking, powerful picture of army life, is, to Huntington, merely vulgarity and offends his sensitivity.

The genius of Piscasso is, to Huntington, a mere peep show to amuse the sophisticated.

The work of modern composers (except for the saccharine Rogers and Hammerstein) is merely "horrid sound, like the noises of a factory."

In short, Mr. Hartford dismisses all that is vital and progressive in the arts as perversions. Not only that but he refuses to let any artist contaminate his lavish colony unless he humbly agrees.

* * *

It doesn't take long, in reading Huntington's tract, to see that, like so many owners of great fortunes, he has an uneasy suspicion of being persecuted.

You or I may feel that modern art, writing or music (or the best of it, at any rate) is a reflection of the times, the struggle of the teeming masses everywhere, the harsh uncertainties and fears and hopes of the day, a mirror tilted with refreshing honesty to the world not merely of Belsen gas ovens, but the noble dreams of equality and decency.

Not Huntington. He pays the modern artist the supreme insult of suggesting that he is merely the voice of the malcontent, that he is a small man, jealous of the wealth and prestige of other men.

"Jealous" is Huntington's favorite word and the literature of protest to him is only a manifestation of a "creeping paralysis of jealousy."

Jealous of whom? Why, of Huntington Hartford, of course.

* * *

Happily enough, we know that this kind of thinking will have little or no effect on p rogress.

No truly creative artist is likely to compromise his need for creative expression merely because a millionaire offers him a pleasant, trouble-free $600,00 retreat, complete with swimming pool.

As it has always been, the important contributions to art will continue to come from non-subsidized men and women, some of them with empty bellies. ("From Here To Eternity" was written in a beat-up trailer.)

While Huntington's happy fellows make their pretty pictures and sentimental stories in his plush California Eden, some composer or writer or painter in a damp hall bedroom will be producing the kind of stuff that reaches into the hearts and minds of men.

If there is any decadence or corruption here it is surely only that a wealthy dilettante who puts a pricetag on creative freedom.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A GOOD COMPANION

I once read that Carlyle and Tennyson often visited each other and would sit an entire evening without much talk—just enjoying each other's companionship. If we have a friend who we know has the capacity for love and understanding, we don't need much talk to cement that relationship.

Once we learn the companions of a person, we know him or her. We play games, go on vacations, visit friends, just for the companion ship that warms within us. A good companion is an investment in happiness. In my youth, in one of the small towns in which I then lived, I knew a man whose character I greatly admired. We would go for long walks and hardly a word would pass between us, but when we parted we would feel that both of us had experienced a worthwhile time.

When married folks realize that marriage's greatest value lies in companionship, there will be fewer divorces. The trouble often is that there is too little genuine companionship between the two. And it's the little things that contribute most to this. Unexpected kindnesses, a cheery attitude of mind, and a thoughtfulness and consideration that are ever kept alive, could be the program.

We are happy with the person whom we understand. We can easily overlook many a weakness or a fault in that one so long as we know there are other qualities that stand high and far outweigh all else. The good companion always overloks and understands.

A friend or two can well be the key to both our success and happiness in life. There can be no possession so much to be desired. I have a naturalist friend of mine who always chooses two or three of his friends to accompany him on our adventures. None of us can be happy traveling alone. I came across this line in a book a friend gave to me: "The happiness of life's journey depends, not on the winding path, but on the friends who travel with you."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

PROVIDENCE—AND OUR IMAGINATIONS

Some years ago I had a friend who travelled a great deal by airplane and he was always haunted by the fear of a crash. Before taking a plane, he would check up carefully on the weather.

He is dead now, but be did not die in an airplane disaster. He contracted one of the rarest diseases known to modern science. It appears only once in millions of cases of illness. The hand of fate reached down among thronging millions and tapped the shoulder of this chap who was always afraid of crashing in an airplane.

We all remember the story of two brothers, one of whom was a swashbuckling hero and the other a timid soul who locked himself in a castle lest he be injured. The heroic brother returned from a career of adventure only to find that his timid brother had died a short while before. He had choked to death on a piece of bread.

We can be very thankful that the awful things we worry about seldom happen to us. Something else as bad or even worse may happen to us but the terrible thing we brooded over seldom does. Our imaginations call up morbid fantasies, but an Almighty Providence decides our fate. And usually Providence is kinder than our imagination. We seldom need to be afraid of what we fear.

DON'T KNOCK YOURSELF OUT KILLING GERMS

The jerks in the studio audience who laugh or applaud on signal from the director are amused and diverted by the elaborate care of the comedian to avoid an obvious hazard as he steps right into a greater one of which he was unaware.

In a similar way I'm a jerk observing the funny antics of you gullible geeks who get your health education from the vendors of nostrums.

Last Monday I told about the powerful smelling germ-killer many of you misguided ones add to the soap and water when you wash the woodwork or mop the floor, to kill the microbes the salesman tells you are always lurking on such surfaces—unless you keep constantly after them with the powerful smelling germicide.

If that little lesson caught you with a bottle of the stuff on hand you probably resented my advice that it can give you or your family no more protection against disease of any kind that ordinary soap and water cleaning, washing or mopping does. It is characteristic of Yankee wiseacres to resent enlightenment like that, I understand. Heck, I've been in just such a humiliating predicament often enough.

But let's forget that side of the picture and look at another side which I forgot to show you last Monday. It is this: Squandering good money and time in the effort to "disinfect" walls, floors and other surfaces in the home, sickroom, hospital or any other building or room occupied or used by people, other than ordinary soap and water cleanliness, is a stupid practice. I'd be afraid of a hospital or other institution that uses noisome "germicides" or "disinfectants" in that way if I were going to have a baby or an operation, just as I'd be afraid of a dentist who drops an instrument on the floor, picks it up and goes right on using it without bothering to sterilize it, or a doctor who feels the point of a needle with thumb and finger and then uses it to give a hypodermic injection without bothering to sterilize it again.

There is still another side of the picture which is most important of all. If or when your attention is fixed on the effort to "disinfect" walls, floors or other surfaces where, according to the hokum merchants, disease germs "breed," you are not likely to think about the way disease really spreads—that is, from person to person via mouth spray—the germ-laden droplets, visible and invisibly fine in the spray given off when one with the disease or a carrier talks.

All the disinfectants, germicides, antiseptics or fumigants in the world can't protect anyone against such infection.

Neither can the most meticulous care about drafts, adequate clothing, wet feet and the like ... but that's another story.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Looking for Trouble?

My tonsils are enlarged. Please tell me what will cure them without operation. I'm 64 and don't want to undergo tonsillectomy if I can help it... (Mrs. W. L. R.)

Answer—Why have any treatment? Maybe it is fortunate for you that your tonsils are large. At any rate that is no reason why treatment should be necessary.

Hygiene After Forty Years

For forty years I was plagued by itching, for which I used all sorts of salves and other remedies, and from time to time had medical treatment with little benefit—until I sent for your pamphlet, began following the hygiene you suggest therein, and soon obtained complete and permanent relief. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Farmers are said to be the reason all the banks in Canada are not closing this Saturday. There is a tradition as old as the hills that Saturday is the farmer's day for coming to town. Therefore, the village and small town banks have to stay open for him. And if the village and small town banks stay open, the towns a little larger have to stay open. Where is the line to be drawn? The bankers, not so much in their wisrom as in their anxiety, have drawn the line arbitrarily at the 50,000 mark Communities that size and over have no banks Saturday.

But my village banker friends tell me that this Saturday farmers' day is now a myth. Farmers come to town any time they like, especially on business. Most farmers have a canny streak in them. They don't want the neighbors to know their business. A farmer thinks twice about being seen going into a bank by the whole township, on a crowded Saturday morning in the village. It is as bad as doing a little banking business over the party line.

The chances are, as soon as the cities get used to being bankless on Saturday, the whole country will go bankless that day.

For a great many years, there has been a tradition as formidable as the farmers' Saturday in town: that is the tradition that bank clerks were the leanest paid, hardest-working, most disciplined of all workers. It it some years since the banks realized they had to buck that tradition, because there was enough truth in it to cause a serious falling-off of the required number of smart young men entering the banking profession. Nearly all the disabilities have been removed, salaries have increased, working conditions have been greatly improved, and the Saturday closing gives bank employees the free weekend enjoyed by factory workers, and those in insurance offices and many other businesses.

We shall now see how the farmers and the village blank clerks get along.

OUT-OF-TOWN PERSONALS

Mrs. Percy Callahan, of Read, spent the past weekend at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, a guest of her brother, Mr. Patrick Meagher.

WEDDINGS

CAREY—FRALICK

On Thursday, January 31, at 10:00 a.m., the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty double-ring ceremony when the Rev. L. M. Dubbery united in marriage, Loreen May, daughter of Mr. J. B. Fralick, of Belleville, and the late Mrs. Fralick, to Robert Joseph Carey, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Carey, also of Belleville.

Sister Mary Wilhelmina provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Ethel Lawrenson, Belleville, who sang "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother" and "Panis Angelicus".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white Chantilly lace and tulle over satin featuring a rounded neckline, long sleeves ending in points over the wrists. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a beaded coronet encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses, white hyacinth bells, and white plumes of buddleia.

Miss Mary Pigeon of Belleville, was her only attendant, wearing a gown of nylon green net over satin with Mary Queen of Scots headdress and carrying a bouquet of daffodils, narcissi, poeticus and foliage.

Mr. Raymond Carey, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and the ushers were, Mr. Russell Fralick, brother of the bride, and Mr. Douglas Preston, both of Belleville.

The reception was held at Golden Acre Inn, Kingston Road, Mrs. William Noakes, received for her sister, gowned in red printed crepe with black accessories and corsage of white carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, wearing mauve printed crepe with green accessories and corsage of mauve hyacinth bells, white feathered carnations and cream poetaz.

For travelling to Cornwall and points east, the bride wore a wine suit with black accessories and corsage of pink and white roses. Mr. and Mrs. Carey will reside in Belleville.

Mrs. M. Denton Talks to W.M.S. On 'Talent Use'

The February meeting of the Cannifton W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. R. Philp, Corbyville, with the president Mrs. J. Williams, presiding.

A short memorial service for the late King George VI followed with Mrs. Williams and Mrs. C. Matthews taking part.

Business meeting followed. Missionary Monthly secretary, Mrs. D. Brenton, told of some interesting articles to be found in the Missionary Monthly. It was decided to join the Belleville churches for the World Day of Prayer on February 29.

Miss L. Rourke, a returned missionary, is to be guest speaker for the April meeting.

The study book told about newcomers coming to this country and the part the United Church plays in connection with these immigrants.

The worship service was taken by Mrs. G. Brenton, the theme being, "Christian Stewardship of Possessions". Sometimes it is easier to give time and abilities than possessions. Often the little is withheld because it makes a poor showing against the other's "much".

A duet was sung by Mrs. Furmidge and Mrs. Howard.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker, Mrs. M. Denton, Christian Stewardship secretary of Belleville Presbyterial, was introduced by Mrs. Williams. She told the society that it should have one item on stewardship at every meeting if only a word of prayer for the missionary, Miss Margaret Brown; or perhaps a short reading, but have something if only one or two minutes long, adding that "we should give ourselves time and abilities as well as share our possessions. Each one of us has been given a talent or an ability to do one thing or more. God's work comes first. Our possessions we do not really own, they are only loaned to us. Do we take advantage of our advantages? Do we thank God for our many, many blessings? Give Him our full time service as faithful stewards."

Mrs. G. Brenton thanked Mrs. M. Denton for her inspiring words.

After the meeting closed a social half-hour followed with refreshments being served.

There were 19 members and two visitors and three children present.

Col. Vanderwater Addresses Avondale H-S. Association On 'Duty, Privilege of Citizenship'

The highlight of Monday's Avondale Home and School Association meeting was an interesting address on "Citizenship" by Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, who actively served his country in World War I; his township of Sidney as reeve; his county of Hastings as warden; and now as clerk of Sidney township.

Col. Vanderwater is also the secretary treasurer of the Moira River Valley Authority, and many who travel the Oak Hills know him as a great conservationist, as evidenced by the lovely evergreens north of his home.

Living Less Complex

In his address, the Colonel dealt with three phases of citizenship: past, present and future. He brought out the vast difference in class distinctions in England during the days of the Magna Charta, (1215), with that of today, also noting how less complex living conditions were in those days. Money was scarce then, necessitating the 'boarding around' of the teachers from home to home of the ratepayers. How different today!

During the past 36 years, everything seems to have become more and more complicated, as for example, communication and transportation. He also stressed how important the school has become in the elementary system of government. "It is not only our duty to vote, but it is our privilege. But only 50 percent of voters use their franchise and thus we are governed by the will of the minority. Many problems of today would be solved if more people expressed their opinions by voting. We should be proud to be living in such a favored country as our Canada.

"Loyalty and patriotism are not expressed just when one dons the uniform; these should be expressed in every day living." Col. Vanderwater emphasized the importance of the home, the bedrock of the community.

Keep Bible Precepts

Col. Vanderwater predicted that with the development of the St. Lawrence seaway, this area will become highly industrialized, making special mention of the rich deposits of iron ore at the north around Marmora. The development of these natural resources, along with direct taxation and borrowing are the government's only source of revenue.

Col. Vanderwater maintains that the way in which each individual can help the world out of its present morass, is to keep the precepts of the Holy Bible. Then destiny will take care of the future. "Our greatest fear is fear itself, and with knowledge we can combat that," he concluded.

A quiz, based on "citizenship" followed the address, conducted by the program convener, Mr. Arthur Clare. Questions as the following were asked, 'What is a municipality?' 'How is it governed?' and 'How many members in the township council?' Correct answers had been carefully prepared. A lively discussion arose with Col. Vanderwater elaborating on many answers.

Films are expected to play an important part of the March meeting. The April meeting will be 'open house' held in the new school. Homecooking and candy will be for sale, with games and refreshments being provided. A good display of hobbies is expected from both children and parents.

Following the close of the meeting, refreshments were served.

Would License Social Workers

Vancouver (CP)—Licensing of social workers "to protect the public against quacks," has been urged by Joy Maines, National Secretary of the Canadian Association of Social Workers.

She said the plan is being studied in association chapters in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Quebec. It was hoped that registered workers will be able to move from province to province, although licensing will probably be on the provincial level.

Next year only graduate social workers will be allowed in the association. At present graduates and workers with five years experience are permitted to join.

Miss Main said the serious shortage of social workers in Canada is due to absence of a pension scheme and low salaries.

There are about 50 per cent more men in social service work now than before the war and she said there would be more if salaries were higher.

Pupils of St. Michael's Academy Pay Tribute to Late King, Pledge Allegiance to Elizabeth II

Thursday the pupils of St. Michael's Academy assembled to give public testimony of their respect and affection for the late King, George VI.

A Gracious Ruler

First on the program was a summary of the King's life, given by Joseph Kennedy, a senior pupil. In a concise, but comprehensive review of the outstanding events from the birth of the prince on December 14, 1895, to the present time, the student body was given a vivid picture of the life of a great king and a good man. They were impressed with the fact that the death of His Majesty marks the end of the reign of a wise and gracious ruler. They were reminded that his never flagging fulfilment of the grave responsibilities of the Crown, his indomitable courage and stout heart, and his understanding sympathy for the problems of the common man will long be remembered by the peoples of the Kingdom, the British Commonwealth, and the English-speaking world.

Peggy Grant, another senior pupil, introduced the film, "A Future Queen." Briefly she recalled the sterling qualities which have endeared the new Sovereign to her millions of subjects, and stressed the universal conviction that she will prove a worthy daughter of a noble father.

For half an hour, the children followed the film with keenest interest as it unfolded many intimate details of the Queen's life from early childhood to young womanhood.

Pledge Loyalty

As the impression of her smiling, friendly countenance faded from the silver screen, the children rose with one accord and pledged their loyalty in the following words:

"We, the pupils of St. Michael's Academy, acknowledge and proclaim Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God, our Queen. To her we pledge constant obedience with hearty and humble affection, beseeching God, by Whom all Kings and Queens do reign, to bless the Royal Queen Elizabeth with long, happy years to reign over us."

Finally, the stirring strain of God Save the Queen climaxed a memorable event in the annals of St. Michael's Academy.

On Friday afternoon, at 3:00 o'clock, the children will attend a memorial service for the late King in St. Michael's Church.

Women's Activities

BETHEL-ZION W.M.S.

The members of the Bethel-Zion W.M.S., held their February meeting at the home of Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson with a good attendance of members present. The president presided and opened the meeting.

The Rev. G. J. ten Zythoff installed the officers for 1952. Several items of business were also discussed and the members of Bethel-Zion W.M.S. will attend the World's Day of Prayer at Plainfield, on the 29th of the month.

Mr. ten Zythoff paid tribute to the late King George VI and offered prayer for the Royal family and for Queen Elizabeth II.

Mrs. Percy Ray had charge of the program, with Mrs. Richard Cranston opening the worship service by reading the Scripture lesson from 1 John 4:7-21.

Chapter 13 of the study book, "From Lakes to Northern Lights", was given by Mrs. Ralph Sills. Mrs. Gordon Foster gave a short talk on "Love". Mrs. Percy Ray assisted by Mrs. Harry Ketcheson, gave another chapter from the study book.

Mr. ten Zythoff closed the meeting, which was followed by the serving of refreshments by the hostess and her assistants, Mrs. Percy Ray, Mrs. Richard Cranston, Mrs. E. Sayers and Mrs. Clifford Ray.

Appreciative thanks were tendered to Mrs. Ketcheson for her kind hospitality.

WOOLER W.M.S.A.A.

Mrs. R. Putnam opened her home on Tuesday afternoon for the February meeting of the Afternoon Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society in Wooler. Mrs. E. McMaster presided and opened the meeting by reading the theme hymn of the Presbyterial and prayer.

Mrs. L. Dorland conducted the worship service with the Scripture selections being read by Mrs. C. Dunn and Mrs. J. J. Way.

Mrs. C. McMaster, Presbyterial treasurer, gave a brief financial statement of the Presbyterial.

The delegates gave the Presbyterial report, Mrs. H. Gainforth reporting the morning session and Mrs. A. Arthur, the afternoon. They were tendered a vote of thanks for their excellent reports.

Mrs. L. Dorland and Mrs. M. Waite presented the Study Book Chapter on the folks who have come to Canada from other countries. They were assisted by Mrs. C. McMaster, Mrs Redcliffe and Mrs. Jenners.

During the business period, it was decided to serve a dinner at the church on the World's Day of Prayer.

Following the closing exercises refreshments were served by Mrs. E. McMaster, Mrs. J. J. Way and the hostess and a social time enjoyed by the 19 ladies present.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

The February meeting of the Marsh Hill W.M.S was held at the home of Mrs. E. B Finkle with 11 members and two visitors present. Mrs. Bartindale, the president, gave the call to worship and opened the meeting.

Each member present paid 50c towards the supply work. Plans for the World's Day of Prayer, were made and will be held at Mrs. David Hollinger's home. Reports of visits and cards sent was given by the members.

Mrs. E. B. Finkle, Baby Band leader, reported that the mite boxes were being distributed to the members and the copies of the "World Friends" had been given out.

Mrs. E. B. Finkle, leader of the group, was in charge of the program, the theme being, "Brotherly Love". Mrs. Walter Lindenfield gave a reading "How the Flood Brought the Boots". The Scripture lesson from Ephesians 3:14-21, was read by Mrs. Fred Campbell.

Mrs. B. Mitts and Mrs. Allyn Finkle assisted Mrs. E. B. Finkle with the program, "Our Fellow Canadians from Europe", from the study book.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. B. Mitts.

HOLLOWAY ST. W.M.S. AUX.

Holloway Street W.M.S. auxiliary met in the church parlors, Tuesday afternoon with the 1st vice-president, Mrs. Holmes, presiding.

During the business session, the Citizenship secretary, Mrs. Johns, suggested that to achieve an international peace one needs to be at peace in his own heart and life.

Mrs. Cordes conducted the worship service. A duet by Mrs. Hagerman and Mrs. Cordes was enjoyed and appreciated. An informative study on "Our Fellow Canadians, French Protestants", was given by Mrs M. Denton, assisted by Mrs. Bunnett and Mrs. Fredcrick.

A social half hour was enjoyed when Mrs. Cordes and her group served tea.

REDNERSVILLE W.A.

On Wednesday evening, 14 members of Rednersville W.A., gathered at the home of Mrs. Roy Wannamaker for the monthly meeting, which was opened by the president. All joined in singing the late Sovereign's favorite hymn, "Abide With Me", which was followed by a two minute silence.

Mrs. Dickie gave the devotional reading. All reports were read and found satisfactory.

A lot of new business was discussed, including the annual W.A. county convention, which is being held this April at Rednersville church hall.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Clark, the convener. Mrs. Dickie gave a lovely reading which was appropriate at the time of the death of the King.

A contest was won by Mrs. Carl Williamson.

Refreshments were served and Miss Dorothea Moore thanked the gracious hostess for an enjoyable evening.

FOXBORO PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of Foxboro Presbyterian Church was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jack July with eight members present. Mrs Earl Ketcheson presided at the piano and rendered quiet music.

Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. July. Mrs. Bartlett gave a reading followed by the highlights of the Kingston Presbyterial given by Mrs. Johnston. Miss Bell prepared the topic, taken from the new study book "South America", outlining the geographical layout of the ten countries composing the continents and giving the customs and habits of the various peoples who live there.

It was decided to send $25 to the treasurer at Kingston; plans were made for the Guild to hold a social evening in the S.S. rooms next month.

The meeting closed with the singing of the late King's favorite hymn "Abide With Me", following which a social half hour was spent.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S., was held in the church, on Tuesday afternoon with a good number of members present.

Mrs. Mantle presided and conducted the business portion of the meeting. A tea was arranged for March at the home of Mrs. W. J. Taylor; reports on visits were read and two of a committee were appointed to canvass the congregation with a view to encourage new members to join the society.

Mrs. D. Fleming presented a life membership certificate to Mrs. J. Miller, who expressed her pleasure most graciously.

Mrs. Lumsden took charge of the devotional period, consisting of a Bible reading this month by Mrs. A. Cameron. The missionary to be remembered with prayers this month is Mrs. Alan Reoch. Mrs. Lumsden read from the study book "The Land of South America", regarding the physical features of the country.

South America

Down through the ages, it has been known as "The Neglected Continent"; "The Continent of Opportunity", and latterly as the "Continent of Tomorrow". It was the home of the Incas, who were marvellously civilized and were sun worshippers.

South America was discovered in 1492 by Columbus. People started to come from every country in Europe; therefore, there are numerous nationalities in the South American continent and they are gradually being fused into a new people. "The question is," asked Mrs. Lumsden, "what is the church doing and will its contribution be a witness for Christ?".

The meeting adjourned and a social half hour was enjoyed with tea and chatter.

CHRIST CHURCH GUILD

The February meeting of Christ Church Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Lyle Leavens with 14 members and one visitor in attendance.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. H. Weese, the 1st vice-president, Mrs. Charles Benway, took charge of the meeting.

Mrs. M. Hardy gave the secretary's report and roll call. Mrs. Fred Morton gave the treasurer's report, several members paid yearly dues. Proceeds were $15.65.

Thank-You Letters

The secretary and Mrs. Leavens read thank-you letters from, Mrs. H. B. Anderson, Mrs. James Morton, Miss Ella Terry, Mrs George Bell, Mrs. C. E. Margetson, Mrs. Joseph Harvey, Mrs. N. Palmer for Christmas boxes sent them.

Mention was made of the sudden passing of the King, also the retirement of Archbishop Lyons in March.

Mrs. Leavens conducted a contest with Mrs. Charles Benway high score winner and Mrs. Will Dainard, low.

Mrs. Leavens and Mrs. Panting each gave a reading which was much enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Warner McFaul was presented with a cup and saucer on completion of four years as president.

Rev. C. P. Heaven closed the meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Warner McFaul and Mrs. Wesley Wright.

The vice-president on behalf of the Guild, thanked Mrs. Leavens for a most enjoyable afternoon.

ST. PAUL'S UNITED CHURCH W.A.

retary, Mrs. C. E. Stringer, the

Mrs. Emerson Laundry presided on Tuesday when the Afternoon W.A., of St. Paul's United Church, Bancroft, met at the home of Mrs. R. C. Gray, with 17 members present.

The scripture passage was read by Mrs. Gray and the devotional leaflet by Mrs. R. Stringer. Mrs. Harry Strudwick read the introduction to the new study book, "The Church and the Church Woman".

Reports were read from the secretreasurer, Mrs. E. L McColl, and the visiting committee, Mrs. A Sutherland and Mrs. K. Cutler, who had made seven calls on the sick.

It was decided to hold a bean supper in the church basement on Thursday evening, February 21. Mrs. E. L. McColl and Mrs. George Davy were appointed the visiting committee for the coming month.

Mrs. E. Laundry read a letter from her daughter Marion who had recently attended the Young People's Conference of the United Church in Kansas City, Of 2,100 young people attending from all parts of the world, 125 were from Canada.

The March meeting will be held in the church with Mrs. Alex. Sutherland and Mrs. H. L. Tanner acting as hostesses.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Mother's wild children threaten a friendship

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a married girl friend of whom I am very fond, but our friendship has become a problem to me because of her three wild children.

She allows them such complete freedom in their home that they have become very destructive, and she never tries to restrain them even when they are in the homes of her friends. I keep my own home neat and lovely, and my children have always been trained to take care of everything, and I get positively sick with nerves when my girl friend's youngsters come here because she allows such goings on. They already have done more damage in my home than my children have done in years. Today when she came over, one of the boys promptly began to put muddy feet all over my new divan, and when I said "Oh, don't let him do that!" she was deeply hurt. She petted the child and I felt like an ogre.

Her children treat her with no respect, and when I once casually asked if she thought it was good for the children to talk and act as they do to her, she said they would outgrow it.

I don't want to hurt my girl friend's feelings in any way, but I am at a loss to know what to do about this.—Mrs. C.

Dear Mrs. C.:

I don't see any reason in the world why you and your home should be victimized by your friend's badly brought-up children. If she is content to raise ill-manned young barbarians, then she should keep them at home where they will not annoy anyone but herself.

It is always too bad to have anything come between friends, but if this woman doesn't see, or care, that her children make nuisances of themselves, then I'm afraid you will just have to take a stand whether she likes it or not. It sounds to me as though she needs as much training as the children do.

Make it three-to-one to stand up to your father

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm in love with a boy my father knows nothing about. He is very strict and will not allow my sisters and me to go on dates. I met this boy about a year ago and have been going out with him ever since. My mother knows about this but is afraid to help in any way. She just tells me to keep on going out with him and things will work out.

The trouble is, I know that my boy friend is getting impatient with me, as he wants to give me a ring, and I can't accept it until my father knows about us and I'm afraid of what he'll do when I tell him.

I am 21 years old. Can you help me?—P. T.

Dear P.T.:

Since you are 21 years old, and have been going out with this boy for a year, you presumably are sure of your own feelings. Moreover, you are of an age when you can legally claim the right to follow them.

Since your mother seems to approve of your relationship with the young man, then I think it is time that the three of you—your mother, yourself, and the young man—should take things into your own hands. By that I mean that I think you and this chap should tell your father you wish to become engaged, and intend to do so, and your mother should back you up. Tell your father that you hope he will not stand in your way and that you can all be friends, but that you feel the time has come for you to make your own decision. Avoid a quarrel if you possibly can. If your father gets angry, don't answer him back. Simply go out to the movies or somewhere and leave him to cool off. Don't give in to him just because he rants and raves. If you have to, you can move out and lead your own life.

Food for Thought

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

Once more I am coming for help. I received a combination grill for Christmas and there were no directions regarding cleaning or use except instructions for making waffles. The first time I used both waffle and sandwich grill I had perfect results. Since then everything sticks. So I am wondering if I should not put the parts in water, as it seems to stick more each time I use it.

In making grilled cheese sandwiches I have cheese running over even though I slice it very thin. As yet I have not used the toast pattie section. I am afraid either oil from greasing waffle iron or some cheese or a little of each has run under the bottom element. How can I clean under that?—Mrs. L. McI.

ANSWER:

I talked to a gentleman in the household appliance department of a large Canadian electrical good manufacturer and I read him your letter. He said you could burn the cheese or grease from under the element by turning on the appliance and letting it burn until it stopped smoking or take it to the service department of the dealer from which you purchased it and let them take it apart and clean it.

Grease the appliance again with "solid, unsalted fat" which means don't use butter and don't use oil, and after you grease it burn the grease off by having it too hot. Grease again if sticking recurs.

This should solve your problem. I would like to suggest that in making toasted cheese sandwiches you not only slice the cheese thinly but make the slices too small for the bread, so that there is a one-half inch border of bread around the cheese. Thus it has space to run when it melts.

QUESTION:

I follow your column with much interest and have found some new and most delicious recipes to add to my collection,—one of those recipes being the One-egg Macaroons. However, I have a terrible time removing these from wrapping paper, usually having most of the bottom of the cookie covered with paper after it has been removed and which isn't very appetizing. Why must these be put on wrapping paper. Cocoanut macaroons are put on a greased baking sheet. Is there a difference? . . . . May I take this opportunity of wishing you the best of everything in life in 1952.—M. A.

ANSWER:

Thank you, M.A., for a very pretty little speech. Same to you. There are two simple solutions to your trouble. If you use the wrapping paper to bake the macaroons on, when you take it from the oven place it over a wet towel stretched on the table. This dampens the paper and keeps the sugar in the macaroons from sticking to it. It will stay damp even if you work slowly. Or grease your pan as you do for cocoanut macaroons made with condensed milk—if that works best for you, and do not use wrapping paper at all.

QUESTION:

Would you kindly send me the Christmas cake recipe you are talking about being so good. I enjoy your column very much.—Mrs. E. J. H.

ANSWER:

It is the readers who are going on about the cake—I think it is good too but make an attempt to be modest. Here it is—you can judge for yourself.

EMEM'S MEDIUM DARK FRUIT CAKE

(For Christmas 1951.)

On the night before baking cake mix fruits: 1 20-oz. can crushed pineapple, 8 ounces whole red glace cherries, 7 oz. citron peel, 7 oz. cut mixed peel, 1 lb. golden sultana raisins, 1 lb. seeded raisins (Lexias or Muscats), 1-4 lb. cleaned and dried currants, 4 oz. blanched almonds cut in halves, 4 oz. coarsely broken walnuts. Mix well, cover and let stand at room temperature overnight.

Sift flour and measure 2 cups into sifter, and place sifter over large mixing bowl and add: 1-2 of a freshly grated whole nutmeg, 1-4 teaspoon each salt, cinnamon and soda. Sift into mixing bowl. Add 1 cup each white and brown sugar, and 1-4 lb. soft butter and 5 eggs. Beat until batter is smooth. If desired this may be beaten under electric beater at "slow" position. Stir this batter into the mixture of fruits. Have ready 2 average-sized loaf pans, buttered and paper-lined and buttered again. Have a shallow large water pan in bottom of oven. Bake cakes at 275 deg. Fahr. for 3 1-4 hours. If baked in pans smaller than loaf pans and in 3 separate sizes they may bake in 3 hours. Replenish water in pan as it boils away. Cook cakes in pans, then on racks until room temperature then wrap in several thicknesses of waxed paper, and in heavy towels. Store in cool place in airtight containers if possible. These should ripen at least 3 weeks. Cut with very sharp knife.

VARIATIONS:

(1) Add 1 teaspoon almond flavoring. (2) Omit spices and add 2 or 3 teaspoons grated lemon rind. (3) Use margarine instead of butter. (4) Use 1-2 lb. almonds and no walnuts or 1-2 lb. walnuts and no almonds.

Fashion Flashes

NOT ONLY THE NAVY shades, but all shades of blue will conspire to make the coming one a blue spring. The blues of the heavens, of the seas, of plumage, of flowers, all are well represented in everything from head to toe, inside and out.

DON'T THINK that the full or circular skirt is having things all its own way. Much liked, too—and selling in the high-priced specialty shops—is the slim, almost sheath-type dress, usually all-over embroidered in braid or beads, and made with scoop neck and short sleeves. It is the ideal choice for big little evenings at all times and places.

STARRING in the Southland for late afternoon resort wear is the beautifully detailed lucite bag. One of the prettiest of these "see throughs" is a box with a carved flower design that produces a cut-glass effect. This design is used all over the bag. Comes in rich deep jewel shades as well as clear.

EVENINGS at home are much more pleasant now, what with television and beautiful new lounging or leisure clothes. Aqua blue satin makes a one-piece pyjama that is paired with a below-the-knee length coat of quilted corduroy in deep purple, lined with aqua satin.

WOMEN like the little jacket of Persian lamb—and it is becoming important for spring, judging by orders. A brief Persian lamb jacket, with a wrappy line has circular bandings of grosgrain around arms, shoulders and back, and slanting bands in front to offer a new line. Side slits give a capelike effect for wrapping above full skirts.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Engaged girl's mother, not aunt, should announce engagement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My engagement is to be announced very soon. And I am deeply troubled! My parents were divorced when I was four years old, I was an only child, and my custody was given to my mother. For my sake my parents always remained on friendly terms. It was necessary for my mother to work for a living. She did not want to leave me with strangers, so it was arranged that I was to be cared for by my aunt (my father's sister), and of course I lived in her home. Mother took a small apartment nearby so she could be with me some time every day, and as I grew up she did all she could for me, about my support and my care. (Mother and I never knew how much my father gave toward my support—that was between him and his sister.) My father married again and lives in the same town where we live. Mother did not marry again.

I love my aunt and uncle very much, and deeply appreciate their care and interest in me. But I love my mother also, we have always been very close, and we always will be. I think it is my mother's place to announce my engagement. But my aunt and uncle say that it is their place to announce my engagement. Who is right.

2. Also, in this circumstance, who gives me in marriage—my father or my uncle?—S. B.

1. Your mother should announce your engagement—most certainly your mother should have the privilege and honor of announcing the engagement of her so-dearly-loved daughter. Apparently you have such grace and tact that you have kept happy everyone concerned with your care and up-bringing, and so I am sure you will be able most graciously to convince your aunt and uncle that this announcement, whenever at all possible, should be made by the engaged girl's mother.

Like this, for example: "Mrs. Smith Baker, of 123 Fourth Avenue, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Susan Baker, to Mr. Robert Browne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Paul Browne, of San Francisco. Miss Baker is the daughter of Mr. Arthur Francis Baker, of this city. She resides with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clark, 777 Hill Street. The wedding is to take place in June."

2. Since, as you say, "friendly terms" have been maintained by your mother and father, and so, I judge, by you and your father, your father should give you in marriage.

(If you will write me personally, send me an addressed envelope, I would like to send you my suggestion as to your wedding invitations.)

An etiquette rule for only super-formal circumstances

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance and I have a difference of opinion on this question: When a man and woman meet on the street or at any other chance meeting, does the woman or the man speak first? I feel certain that it is the woman who speaks first. My fiance says the man should speak first.—J. S.

The rule-of-etiquette is: If there is a question of recognition, it is the prerogative of the woman to speak or bow first to a man whom she meets. But in the majority of meetings this super-formality doesn't exist, because, naturally, when the man and woman know each other well, or even fairly well, they bow to each other spontaneously . . . and simultaneously.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Eyebrows and lashes

Beauty whimsies come and go. The emaciated eyebrow has been with us long enough; it is high time for it to do farewell act and the majority of women realize this fact. When the frenzy was at its wildest, one girl's face was a carbon-copy of the next, as far as her forehead decorations were concerned. When an eyebrow is teased and tweezed down to a faint line of single marching hairs, the feminine face becomes vapid and masklike; or it carries an expression of permanent surprise, especially if the growth is deleted from the lower border and lifted above the natural position, which is along the edge of the eye socket.

Nature isn't always successful in producing a beautiful pattern, hence the need of modern improvements. When eyebrows come too close together, there should be a separation. But one should know when to stop. The inner terminal of the brow should be on a line with the inner corner of the eye. Little fuzzers that appear outside the fold must be plucked away.

The design that flatters depends upon the shape of the eyes. If the eyes are full and round, the arch should be pretty well defined. If they are long and narrow, a straight line may conform.

The ideal pattern is like that of the wing of a bird in flight, a slight down-dip at the inner end, a life in the centre, with the eyebrow somewhat wider there, a graceful downward tapering at the far end.

To keep the eyebrows in conditon, they should be wasbed carefully with soap and water every day. Few women realize that they are dust catchers. Maybe they were put there for that utilitarian purpose, to keep dust from the eyes and to catch perspiration when it flows down the forehead.

When using the tiny brush for grooming, put a little brilliantine on the bristles to impart lustre and to keep the fuzzers in mar ing form.

Mascara is the best means darkening those of light co though some women prefer to p with the crayon. The cray should never be black, but a ri dark brown. It should be u with quick short strokes, ne laid on in a distinct line. Disti lines take from the face the so ness and grace that are necess for attractive appearance.

Long, black, tilted lashes a good-looks asset. If yours short and scanty, apply min oil to the roots. It often will c them to flourish like the gr bay tree and the lustre impar by the oil makes the eyes lo dewy.

Congregational Meetings

ST. THOMAS CHURCH

Minto — The annual vestry meeting of St. Thomas' Church, Minto, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Tanner, on Friday evening of last week, with a good attendance.

The Rector, Canon Brownlie opened the meeting, following which, Mrs. Ted Preston, acting as vestry clerk, read the minutes of the last annual meeting, which was followed by a summarization of the year's activities of the church, by Canon Brownlie.

Mr. Harry Geen, rector's warden, gave his report, and Mr. John Courtney, the people's report, and also that of the Cemetery fund.

Miss Edna Tanner reported for the W. A. and stated that the missionary apportionment had been paid in full. These reports all showed a substantial balance.

Canon Brownlie thanked each and all for the loyalty and co-operation which had been given him during the past year, and especially thanked Mr. Geen who had acted as rector's warden for the past six years. On Mr. Geen's retirement, Mr. Ted Preston had been appointed as rector's warden, and Mr. John Courtney was re-elected as people's warden.

Mr. W. J. Tanner was elected lay delegate to the Synod.

After the meeting was closed by the rector, Mrs. Tanner served refreshments.

SELBY UNITED CHURCH

Selby—The annual congregational meeting of Selby United Church was held recently on Tuesday evening in the Sunday School room with a good attendance. The ladies served a delicious pot luck supper, a short worship period preceded the business portion.

Rev. Mr. Cooke showed a film entitled "Our Forest Heritage."

Various Reports Read

The minister in his report gave the number of baptisms, marriages, death and church membership. The names of the deceased members were read and a period of silence was observed and prayer offered.

The church treasurer's report presented by Mrs. Everett Price showed a balance of $510.40 on hand. The Sunday School report, read by Mrs. Allen Wood, stated there were 205 members on the roll and $102.90 were forwarded to missions. Mrs. Sam Weese reported for the "Beacon Light" class stating $7.90 given to the "March of Dimes" and $75 to the Victor Home.

The trustee board report was given by Mr. W. A. McLeod, which showed a balance on hand of $223.83.

The parsonage committee report by Mr. George Price gave a balance on hand of $53.46 after all expenses were paid.

The missionary and maintenance report by Mr. Ernest Kerr showed the total receipts to be $595.

Selby Y.P.U. report given by the secretary in the absence of the Y.P.U. treasurer stated $50 given to missions, a screen purchased for the projector and a balance of $13.42 on hand.

Mrs. Allen Wood reported on the projector fund with a balance of $44.16.

$425 Forwarded

The treasurer of the W.M.S. Mrs. Percy Hudgin, reported that $425 had been forwarded to the Presbyterial treasurer.

Mrs. J. VanKoughnet, leader of the Mission Band stated $75 had been sent to the Presbyterial treasurer leaving $18.01 on hand, and the Vacation School treasurer had $1.95 on hand when all expenses of the school were met.

A vote of appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Cooke, the choir and leader, pianist, caretaker and stewards was tendered.

Mr. Cooke showed the film "Mother Goose Stories" which the children enjoyed.

Following the election of officers the meeting was brought to a close with prayer by the minister.

EMPEY HILL UNITED CHURCH

The annual congregational meeting of the Empey Hill United Church, which was held recently in the Sunday School room was preceded by a supper under the auspices of the Women's Association. The attendance was gratifying. The minister Rev. H. Cooke presided.

Mrs. Grant Kimmerly was elected secretary.

Favorable Reports

All reports of congregational organizations showed increase in financial statements. The minister reported the number of baptisms, marriages and deaths, during the year, also the communicant membership which showed an increase of 31 members above the removal occasioned by death and transfer was reported for the two congregations of Selby Pastoral charge.

The church treasurer's report was presented by Miss I. Mowers and showed a balance of $659.07, after all demands upon the treasury had been met.

The Sunday School treasury, in charge of Wayne Waddingham, made a balance of $151.38. $346.61 was sent to the M and M Fund and $230.92 raised by the W.M.S.

The Women's Association had a successful year, having an income of $467.80 of which $128.40 was spent in redecorating the living rooms of the parsonage at Selby.

Thanks Tendered

Thanks were tendered by the minister to the various treasurers, committee of stewards, pianists, the church choir and all who shared in the success of the year '51.

The election results are as follows:

Pianist, Mrs. C. Akey, assistant Mrs. K. Chadwick; personage committee, Mr. and Mrs. H. Winters, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hunter and Mr. and Mrs. Grant Kimmerly; committee of stewards, Bruce Kimmerly, George Stapley, Harold Winters, Walter King, Harry Sweetnam, Clayton Marisette and Ken Chadwick.

Preparation of communion table, Mrs. W. Bell, Mrs. Ralph Abbott.

The meeting was opened and closed with worship led by the minister.

Mr. Arthur Duncan was the special speaker Tuesday afternoon at the Murray Township Teachers' Association. Tuesday evening, he was the speaker at the Deseronto Lions Club as District Zone chairman for the installation of officers.

The reg[illegible] weekly meeting of the Frank[illegible] Full Gospel Tabernacle C. A. was held in the Church last Friday evening. President Carl Andrews opened the meeting. Miss Mary Lee Appleby led the song service, with hymns and choruses. Juanita Fox led in a Bible quiz. Reg. Solmes favored with a trombone solo, "Jesus is Dearer than All". Following the singing of choruses, Irene Wilson led in testimonies. Rev. Gordon Pierce brought the announcements. Vivian Wood brought a message from Phillippians, and read a poem, — "Would I be Called a Christian?" Mary Elliott brought a message on "Consecration", from Romans.

Mrs. L. Giles of Napanee is visiting relatives in the village, this week.

The regular weekly meeting of the Frankford Boy Scouts was held in the Council Chambers of the Community Hall with only one Scout absent, due to illness. In place of the regular flag break to open the meeting, a period of silence was observed in respect to the late King. The Scouts then re-affirmed their promise to the Queen, with right hand on the flag, which was at half staff. Following the opening ceremonies, the balance of the evening was spent in hobby craft, model building, scroll saw work, and wood burning.

Canadian Legion

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Canadian Legion, Branch 387 was held in the Legion Hall Monday evening, with a large turnout. A period of silence was observed in tribute to the late King, followed by the playing of "The Queen." All social activities are cancelled for the balance of February in the Legion Hall. The Legionnaires welcomed Comrade Ernie Clarke of Nova Scotia, a guest of Comrade Earl Rogers.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wannamaker, Don, Glenna and Carol visited Mr. and Mrs. Nick Dainard and family, in Hastings, on Sunday.

Mr. Jim Montgomery visited Mr. and Mrs. Claude Rose and family on Sunday and Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lohnes and Darlene visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lohnes, Tuesday.

Olympic Games Get Under Way With Traditional Pomp And Pageantry

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

HAIL, THE HAWKS!

"You have a grand city. You have a fine junior hockey club. You have a splendid organization behind it and we are extremely proud to be associated with Belleville".

That was Bill Tobin, general manager of the Chicago Black Hawks speaking. Tobin with his chief eastern scout, Bob Wilson, was in town Wednesday night to look over the Hawks-Lindsay junior "B" game.

The unsmiling chief of the Hawks, sat in an inconspicuous seat with his Canadian lieutenant and watched the fray as an ordinary spectator. In his quest of local reaction regarding the seasonal performances of the junior Hawks, Tobin sought the response of a trio of teen-agers who sat immediately behind him.

He got the teen-age opinion and with it a partial pulse-beat of the general feeling of junior hockey fans here. The gals said Lalande, Jacklin and Strahan were "cute guys" while Therrien got an assist. We suspect, Tobin got his "exports" a free plug there although the mentioned trio are nowise shrinking violets when it comes to a handsome gal.

Later in an interview Tobin paid distinct tribute to this city and its hockey authorities. "We have no regrets in comin to an arrangement with the Belleville Hockey Association. We hope through co-operation with these fine people to not only promote junior hockey here, but see that yunger hockey players who possess the talent, get their chance for advancement."

It is recalled that the Chicago Black Hawks after reaching their working agreement with the BHA here last winter, came here to play an exhibition game, and at a father-and-son banquet to meet the younger fry as well as their "daddy" admirers.

Unfortunately circumstances did not permit the playing of the game. The banquet did take place.

At that function Bill Tobin, expressing his regrets at what happened, promised this city if and when the ice situation was readjusted, he would bring his Hawks back to play the exhibition tilt.

Bill Tobin kept his promise. A few days later he interrupted his schedule, brought the Hawks here, and you know the rest. Memorial Arena was packed for the show.

And here is where we pay special tribute to Bill Tobin. He knew that in order to present hockey "as she is played in the National League", an intra-club game should be played. It was tremendously successful.

Other ideas of playing National Hockey League teams against local "all-star" squads have been abysmal failures from a spectacle point of view. While they gave the local hockey heroes the opportunity of playing against internationally - known ice-lane stars, the games have resulted in more or less fiascos or at the least, lopsided scores. The Kingston - Canadiens game ended in a farcical manner,

After talking with Bill Tobin, we definitely believe he is sincere regarding his relationship with the Belleville Hockey Association. True, he has an ulterior motive, that of feeding his Chicago National League club with young blood, but in so doing he is giving added strength to this city's junior "B" team. At the same time Chief Scout Bob Wilson is keeping a keen-eye cocked on other city and district hockey-playing youngsters. Don't think for a minute Tobin and Wilson come here merely to gloat over what players they have sent here for seasoning.

But get this. Don't think for a minute that four men imports or no imports constitute a hockey team. Without such players as Billy Strahan, Don Barclay, Bob Green, Peter Green (no relation), Ray Carey, Duke Doran, Ross Mason, and the rest of the local crew, well — there just wouldn't be any junior hockey club.

Bill Tobin and his merry mob of the Chicago Black Hawks made many friends during their brief visit here last winter. This department asked him practically point-blank if he would stage a repeat exhibition game here next year and he said simply "I think that can be arranged". In other words he said "Yes".

He attributed the lowly standing of the Hawks in the National Hockey League to the injury jinx.

"Chicago" he said, "has absorbed forty per cent of the injuries of the National Hockey League. And it hit us where it hurt the most. In December we were in third place behind the Toronto Leafs and Detroit. The team was playing good hockey. The spirit was good. Then disaster struck. Stewart suffered a back injury, Gadsby broke a leg. Then another and another went out.

The stocky Chicago hockey mentor smiled when the question of Sunday hockey matinees was brough up. He, after all, is the originator of the idea and it apparently is paying off. Chicago fandom, terrific television addicts, can now see National Hockey League games and not miss their favorite TV shows at night. Over one and a quarter teevee sets are in operation in Chicago, Tobin said, and that means a "lot of fans". People from the outlying districts can drive into the city, see the hockey game and be home before dark —and in time to see their favorite teevee stars in action.

Tobin went out on a twig when asked which team, in his opinion would win the Stanley Cup. He rubbed a ruminative chin for a moment then said, "The Canadiens are a young, smart aggressive squad, and their coach Dick Irvin is one of the keenest students of hockey in the world today". You figure out what he meant by that.

We firmly believe the Chicago Black Hawks through their association with the Belleville Hockey Association have planted fertile seeds here. But Mr. Tobin and his management should not let it go at that. He can do his executive, his team and others associated with the Black Hawks a lot of good, by bringing the National Hockey League edition of the Hawks here and into other farm centres in person.

We are safe in saying that there are many hockey fans in this city and district who have never visioned a National Hockey League team in action, let alone meeting some of the famous names.

Mr. Tobin would not be doing his organization and team any harm by bringing the squad here next winter for a pre-season tilt. But he said he would, and we firmly believe he meant what he said.

"GOD SAVE THE QUEEN"

Athletes of Thirty Nations March in Colorful Parade To Open Winter Contests

By JACK SULLIVAN

Oslo, Feb. 15 (CP) —The gay parade long associated with the pageantry opening the Olympic winter games became a march of solemnity today.

At the precise time the nattily-dressed athletes of 30 countries formed lines in Oslo's huge Bislett Stadium, the funeral procession of King George VI moved through the hushed streets of London.

While 60 seconds ticked away, the sixth winter Olympics games came to a stop in respect and memory of a keen sportsman.

On the roof-top of the stadium the flags of Canada, Britain, Australia, New Zealand and Norway flew at half staff.

Thousands of persons from all parts of Norway and Europe and even remote sections of the world stood in silence.

Then the big sports show once more picked up momentum.

The marchers filed slowly past the royal box, the flag of each country preceding its marchers. Canada's flag was carried by Gordon Audley, 23-year-old railway worker from Winnipeg and a member of the Canadian speed-skating team.

Flag Salute

The flags were dipped in salute and Princess Ragnhild of Norway, the tall, dark, 21-year-old daughter of Crown Prince Olaf, officially declared the games open.

The Crown Prince and the venerable King Haakon are in London attending the funeral.

The customary honor of leading the parade went to Greece, the country where the Olympic games were born. Other countries followed in alphabetical order.

A Norwegian skier, Thorbjorn Falkange, mounted the rostrum and on behalf of the 1,187 athletes took the Olympic oath:

"We swear that we will take part in Olympic games in loyal competition, respecting the regulations which govern them and desirous of participating in them in the true spirit of sportsmanship for the honor of our country and the glory of sport."

The 30-country representation is the largest in the history of the winter games. In 1948, at St. Moritz, Switzerland, 29 countries were represented.

One Title Decided

Holding of the opening ceremonies today—a full day after competition started—marked an unusual departure from Olympic custom.

One championship was decided yesterday when Mrs. Andrea Mead Lawrence of Rutland, Vt., won the women's giant slalom race and the first gold medal of these games.

The two man bobsled competition was started, with the final two runs today and a commanding lead held by the German sled piloted by world champion Andreas Ostler.

Mrs. Lawrence's victory was expected by the experts. The tall 19-year-old New England girl flashed down the 1,640 yard course at Norefjell in two minutes, 6.8 seconds.

Dagmar Rom, Austrian movie actress, was second in 2:09 and Mrs. Annie Marie Buchner of Germany third in 2:10.

Rhoda Wurtele Eaves, 25-year-old Montreal housewife who drew the unenviable No. 1 position as trail breaker, could do no better than ninth but even so outclassed many of the world's best skiers in the field of 45. Her time was 2:14.

Rosemarie Schutz of Montreal placed 23rd, Lucille Wheeler of St. Jovite, Que., 27th and Joanne Hewson of Montreal 30th.

Following the opening ceremonies today the men skiers, who did not have time to take part in the Bislett Stadium show, took their turn at flashing down the tough Norefjell course for the men's giant slalom championship.

Bob Richardson of Montreal and Magog, Que., was believed to have Canada's best chance.

The round-robin hockey tournament, with nine countries represented, got under way today. Three games were scheduled, Canada meeting Germany in the last game starting at 3 p.m. EST.

Bisons Defeat Mohawks 4-1

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons' hopes for an American Hockey League playoff berth are brighter today.

Buffalo, Eastern division winners last year, strengthened its grip on third place, the last playoff spot, last night by beating Cincinnati Mohawks 4-1.

The Bisons wrapped it up in the first period on goals by Stan Long Ab Demarco and Loren Davis.

Buddy O'Connor scored for Cincinnati in the second period and Sid McNabny got Buffalo's fourth goal in the final stanza.

The victory enabled the Bisons to pull six points ahead of the fourth place Syracuse Warriors.

Pete Durham, the league's most penalized player, made his Buffalo debut an impressive one. Durham, a former Indianapolis forward-defenceman, drew one assist and two penalties.

IN CURLING FINALS

Guelph, Feb. 15 (CP) —A Guelph and a Kitchener rink square off today in the final game of the Guelph Curling Club Colts bonspiel.

Dr. John Geohegan skipped his Guelph foursome to a 9-4 victory over E. Heller's Kitchener entry and qualified to meet P. Bender of Kitchener who dropped S. Lane's Guelph quartet 8-3.

Bilts Defeat Black Hawks 5-4; Indians Win

(By The Canadian Press)

Guelph Mercurys pulled to within four points of the league-leading Toronto Marlboros last night when they downed the third-place Galt Black Hawks 5-4 in an Ontario Hockey Association junior A tussle.

The win moved Guelph within striking distance of the league-leaders and pulled them a full six points up on third place Galt.

The only other junior game saw Kitchener edge Barrie Flyers 5-4 at Kitchener and climb to within one point of first place, held jointly by St. Catharines Teepees and Toronto St. Michaels. The loss all but eliminated Barrie from the six team playoffs.

In senior play, the league-leading Stratford Indians dropped Hamilton Tigers 6-4 and pulled out in front of the runner-up Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts by 13 points.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

The Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Browns announced a Valentine's Day deal involving seven players, which both clubs say will strengthen prospects for the 1952 season.

The deal, a straight trade, was announced by Tiger general manager Charlie Gehringer. It moves Tiger pitchers Bob Cain and Gene Bearden and first baseman Dick Kryhoski to the Browns.

St. Louis catcher Matt Batts, outfielder Cliff Mapes, pitcher Dick Littlefield, and infielder Benjamin Taylor will join the Detroit club.

Montreal Alouettes yesterday called in a burly veteran football coach to prop up their sagging fortunes. Douglas (Peahead) Walker, assistant coach to Yale University's Herman Hickman last year, signed an Alouette contract. He was given a free hand by the club's directorate in an effort to rub out the memory of Als' tail-end finish in the Big Four last season.

Joe Louis, unbeaten king of the heavyweight fighters for 12 years, has fought his last fight. The one-time Brown Bomber announced last night in New York that he is through with fighting except for exhibitions.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard will be out of Montreal Canadiens' lineup for some time to come, it was learned yesterday. The National Hockey League star has been absent for more than a week with an aggravated groin injury.

The "undying" Olympic flame went out for 30 seconds yesterday. The flame, being carried from Morgedal, cradle to modern skiing, to Oslo for the official opening of the sixth winter Olympics, was blown out by the wind and quickly relighted.

Better Get Smythe Back, Boys The Leafs' Slip is Showing!

(By The Canadian Press)

Rumors that Conn Smythe might cut short his annual Florida winter vacation and fly north to hound Toronto Maple Leafs into more forceful ways were strengthened last night down Montreal way.

The Leaf general manager who Sunday hopped up to New York from his Florida winter hideaway to have a look at his problem children, was reported none too pleased with their showing, even though his team did edge the Rangers 4-3. However, he said little.

The Leafs came home and Wednesday stumbled 3-1 before the powerful league-leading Detroit Red Wings, then entrained for Montreal and repeated their faux pas in front of the surging Canadiens last night. Again they were on the wrong end of a 3-1 score.

Two in a Row

The loss left Toronto a bare point in front of the third-place Montrealers, while Detroit, in copping a 3-2 decision from the Black Hawks at Chicago, pulled a full seven games out in front of the runner-up Leafs.

The Habs opened fast against Toronto and took a 1-0 first-period lead. They stretched it to 3-1 in the middle session, the final stanza going scoreless.

Dickie Moore started the ball rolling for Montreal at 1:34 of the initial period while the Leafs were two men short.

Dick Gamble and Bernie Geoffrion made it 3-0 for Montreal early in the second period. Tod Sloan scored Toronto's lone marker at 18.03 of the period.

Aside from the odd scuffle there was little of the rugged play which is usually a feature of Toronto-Montreal clashes.

Elmer Lach, the veteran Canadien play-maker, played one of his best games in recent years. He drew assists on all three of the Montreal goals.

In Chicago, Gordie Howe, the National Hockey League's top point-maker scored two goals—his 30th and 31st of the season—to lead the Red Wings to their 3-2 win over Black Hawks.

Gus Bodnar tied it up for Chicago after Howe's first goal and Al Dewsbury gave the Hawks a brief third-period lead. However, Metro Prystal tied it 2-2 before Howe came through with his final marker which proved to be the winner.

No games are scheduled for tonight. New York is at Montreal Saturday night while Chicago plays in Toronto.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Lou Brouillard of Worcester, Mass., lost his third try for the World Middleweight Boxing Title 15 years ago tonight when the Frenchman Marcel Thil was awarded the bout on a sixth-round foul. Their meeting the year before had ended the same way in the fourth round, while Thil took a 12-round decision in their first clash.

'Pea-head' Walker, Former Yale Star, Named Coach Montreal Alouettes

Montreal, Feb. 15 (CP)—Douglas ((Peahead) Walker, former line coach for Yale University has been appointed coach of Montreal Alouettes in the Big Four football league.

Walker arrived in Montreal today to sign his contract with the Als where he will take over the coaching duties from Lew Hayman, part-owner of the team who will confine his future activities to front-office work.

"You can say that I'll have complete command of the club and won't be interfered with from any quarters," said Walker.

Hayman, in a long-distance call from Miami, Fla., confirmed Walker's statement.

The Als had what might adequately be described as a "disastrous" season last year and finished in the league cellar after a pre-season build-up that seemed to bode plenty of promise.

Direct From Eli

Among other things the Als imported George Ratterman from American pro football ranks, boosted his stock to the skies as a quarterbacking field general, and then had to watch the dreams go glimmering when Georgie failed to click at the Canadian game.

Fan reaction wasn't good. There was considerable clamor that Hayman was trying to do too much—run the team on the field and in the front office. In the end Lew pulled stakes as coach in favor of devoting himself to the business end of things and announced that he would find a top-line American coach to run the Als on the field.

The importation of Walker is the result.

He comes to the Als directly from Yale University where he served as line coach under the fabulous Herman Hickman.

The slow-talking 49-year-old Walker who graduated from Howard College in Birmingham, Ala., is still unfamiliar with Canadian football. But he has his own ideas of what to expect.

"I'm strictly a T-formation man and I like pass-defence to a point where I try to excel in it," he told reporters.

Ray Cicia, outstanding guard for the Als, was one of Walker's star guards at Wake Forest. Cicia termed Walker "the greatest coach I ever played under—he drives you but he usually winds up making a football player out of you."

The club made no mention of the salary at which Walker was signed.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

San Francisco — Art Soto, 150½, Oakland, Calif. outpointed Bobby Jones 150¼, Oakland (12)

Waterville, Me. — Hermie Freeman, 137, Bangor, Me. outpointed Billy Mays, 133, Boston (10).

Tacoma — Ray Aguilar, 188, Los Angeles, knocked out Dave Pittman, 182, Spokane (8).

Clinton Comets Lead Series

Brockville, Feb. 15 (CP) —Clinton, N.Y., Comets last night took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven New York-Ontario Senior Hockey series Brockville 8-6. The fifth game is scheduled for Clinton on Tuesday night.

Bus Krol was the big scorer for the winners, banging in three goals.

The next game in the B series is scheduled for Gananoque Saturday night. Cornwall Falcons lead Gananoque Gans 3-1.

Chisellers, Schwabs Win Major A Games

Moore's Chisellers and Schwab's of the Major "A" Bowling League started off the fourth quarter of the schedule in an auspicious manner at the Bowl-O-Drome last night. Both teams took seven point decisions, the Chisellers downing Kinsmen and Schwab's taking the measure of Callaghan's Ice.

In the other games the CNR team defeated Lawn Bowlers 5-2 and Belleville Golf won over City Cleaners by the same score. Scores were:

Belleville Golf	3322
C.N.R.	3356
Schwab's	3421
Moore's Chiselers	3185
City Cleaners	3101
Lawn Bowlers	2994
Callaghan Ice	2968
Kinsmen	2942

Peterborough Wins Curling Title

Toronto, Feb. 15 (CP) —A Peterborough curling club rink skipped by Dr. Ralph Clarke will represent Ontario in the Canadian curling championship at Winnipeg, starting March 3.

The Clarke rink defeated J. G. W. Sands' Kingston quartet 12-7 last night to win the Ontario Tankard final and the Ontario Curling Association Trophy. The Kingston rink fell apart on the seventh end, when Peterborough scored a big five to take a 9-3 lead that proved to be the winning margin.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, Feb. 15—(AP) —Having watched Rocky Marciano take six laborious rounds to chop up a flabby Lee Savold, we are beginning to understand why Al Weill, the International Boxing Club matchmaker, denies so aggrievedly that he owns any part of the so-called Brockton block buster. Rocky just about ruined one of the finest heavyweight buildups since Carnera.

Going into the Philadelphia venture, the husky young man from Massachusetts had scored 38 straight victories—33 of them by knockouts —and there were some very knowing fight figures around who honestly considered him a cinch to be the next heavyweight champion. The movement gained great impetus when he blasted out old Joe Louis four months ago.

But now what? The answer seems to be that the Marciano brain trust—of which Weill is believed to be at least an honorary member—made its first mistake in Rocky's career in forgetting that even a Savold, 36 and overweight and washed-up, still has a right to his pride.

It is dead certain that Marciano's handlers would never have fooled with such a veteran as Savold unless they had felt certain their boy could leave him for dead within three or four rounds. There was much too much at stake.

Most of the experts predicted that Rocky's murderous hooks and his lethal right would send the ex-bartender to an early shower. Most implied strongly that it was nothing more than target practice to prove that Rocky deserved first shot at Jersey Joe Walcott's title.

Another Galento?

Probably we will never know exactly what happened, but it could be that Savold read what some wisecracker wrote about him and his prominent jowls and took umbrage. Possibly he decided he would show 'em a thing or two. At any rate, several persons who were around Savold and his manager, Bill Daly, before the scrap were surprised at their pugnacious attitude.

It is just possible that Savold really meant to decapitate Rocky. He didn't, but what he did do to the Brockton hope was nearly as effective. He proved that Rocky, given an almost open target, simply was no part of a killing puncher. Though he bled freely from the second round on and absorbed a terrible beating, the veteran refused ever to go down, and if Daly hadn't stopped it Savold undoubtedly would have tottered out for the seventh round, ready for more of the same.

Savold, himself, probably best summed up our own impression of the Brockton terror.

"This guy is strong and the roly-poly kind of fighter, Lee said. "He's more like Tony Galento than Joe Louis."

Girl Skiers Still Hope to Win Olympic Laurels

ROSEMARIE SCHUTZ

LUCILLE WHEELER, 16

JOANNE HEWISON, 21

The traditional ritual and ceremony that reach far back into Olympic history come into a modern setting again as a gigantic relay of 100 men on skis carried the Olympic torch from the birthplace of modern skiing to the opening of the games in Oslo. Although Mrs. Andrea Mead Lawrence won the opening day event, the women's giant slalom, the other Canadian finishers, Rhoda Wurtele Eaves, 9th; Rosemarie Schutz, 23rd; Lucille Wheeler, 27th, and Joanne Hewison, 29th, will have additional chance to win Olympic honors for Canada in the women's downhill event on Feb. 17. All four members of Canada's ladies' Olympic ski team are from Quebec Province. — Central Press Canadian.

Olympic Prophets Go Out on Limb As Winter Games Get Under Way

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Oslo, Feb. 14 — (CP) — Two skaters stood out today among 1,187 athletes from 30 countries as the sixth Winter Olympics opened in this sports - mad land. Both are defending Olympic champions.

Dick Button, 22 - year - old Harvard University student whose fancy doodling on ice ranks him as the world's greatest figure-skater, is a cinch to repeat.

And speed - skater Hjalmar Andersen, Oslo sporting goods store salesman, can barely miss mounting the winners' rostrum before the 12-day games officially close.

But that's as far as the prognosticators will go.

They took a critical look at Canada's Olympic hockey team last night and the reaction wasn't too favorable. The Edmonton Mercurys, although they defeated the United States 3-2 in an exhibition game, didn't show Olympic championship calibre. And a sobering thought is that if the Czechoslovak and Swedish teams are anywhere near their strength of the 1948 games, the title could go to Europe.

The Canadians, a trifle weary after a seven-week tour of Europe, showed a distinct lack of finish around the nets. Their shooting was terrible and although they held a big territorial edge, they didn't know what to do with the puck inside the American blueline.

Europe Hockey Threat

Englebert Miller, 25-year-old left winger who created a bit of a stir on the team's arrival Tuesday when his amateur status was questioned, fired the winning goal But with or without Miller, the Canadians must improve considerably if they hope to retain the title won by the Ottawa RCAF in 1948.

Canada's first shot for points will be made this afternoon in the women's giant slalom at Norefjell and, for the first time in the history of the winter games, skiers wearing the maple leaf are given a chance to place in the first six.

The burden rests with 25-year-old Mrs. Rhoda Wurtele Eaves who has drawn the No. 1 position. She was injured in pre-game training in 1948 and finished last in a field of 37. This time the brown - haired Montrealer has been the best of the Canadians in practice and has been up with competitors from other countries.

Canada's male skiers aren't considered threats in any event Speed skaters can't hold a candle to Andersen, world's best in the 5,000 and 10,000-metres.

The Canadian figure-skaters may gain a place or two. Suzanne Morrow of Toronto and Marlene Smith of Niagara Falls, Ont., are considered probable finishers among the first six.

Jeannette Altwegg of Britain world and European champion, is favored to succeed Barbara Ann Scott as ladies' figure - skating titleholder. Her main opposition probably will be Jacqueline Dubief of France and Sonya Klopfer of the U.S.

It's Button all the way in the men's figure - skating with Jimmy Grogan of the U. S. considered his closest rival. Peter Firstbrook, 18-year-old Toronto skater, is given a slight chance of gaining some points.

How About It Uncle Joe?

Oslo, Feb. 15 (AP) —Red China has applied to the International Olympic Committee for recognition.

Avery Brundage, of Chicago, International vice president, revealed this today. He said the application referred to the executive committee. No other action was taken.

Player Trade Is Announced

Detroit, Feb. 15 (AP)—Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Browns announced a seven-player trade in one of the winter's largest baseball deals.

General manager Charlie Gehringer of the Tigers said the trade will send Tiger pitchers Bob Cain and Gene Bearden and first baseman Dick Kryhoski to the Browns.

In return the Tigers get catcher Matt Batts, outfielder Cliff Mapes, pitcher Dick Littlefield and infielder Benjamin Taylor.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

GORDIE HOWE, Detroit, who scored two of his team's three goals as the Red Wings nosed Chicago Black Hawks 3-2.

ROOKIE DICKIE MOORE, Montreal, whose goal and two assists helped the Canadiens to a 3-1 decision over Toronto Maple Leafs.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Every good rule in bridge makes sense. Else it is not a good rule. Plenty of common sense oozes through the correct rules for takeout doubles and their responses.

Suppose your opponent starts out with an opening bid of one in something. Suppost you have a biddable defence hand of some kind. You may make a simple overcall or a double in that spot.

Your simple overcall is a defensive bid in your suit at the lowest legal number. You would say you have at least five tricks; two high cards; one sure trick; and a biddable suit of your own.

Your double is for a takeout. You would say you have at least five tricks; four high cards; two sure tricks; a biddable suit of your own; or support for some suit, or a no-trump bid.

Thus, if you double you say you are better off than if you had merely bid a suit. And if there was no intervening bid partner is forced to bid something even if he has a bust hand.

Now, if partner responds with a jump, a game is there for your side. If the response was without a jump, game for your side is slim unless you have an abundance of help for a suit partner bids.

If partner bids a suit you like, you may pass or go on in that suit. If partner bids a suit you do not like, you can still bid your suit. Or switch to no-trump. Or await developments.

South opens with a heart when you have this west hand:

♠7 4
♥8 3
♦A K J 10 9 8
♣K Q 8

You have enough for a defensive bid of two diamonds. Also for a takeout double. So, double. If north passes and east responds to your double with a bid of one spade, suppose south passes.

You can now bid two diamonds. Which is what you would have done in the first place. In this case the answer from partner was not much help. But who can say when partner's answer may not be valuable?

ROBBED OF FARES

St. Louis, Feb. 15 — (AP) — Joseph Braun, a street car operator, was robbed on the run yesterday. He struggled with a man who robbed him of about $20 in fares as his street car moved through two downtown blocks. His only passenger, Thetus Wardow, was slugged but unhurt by the robber's companion.

ORDERED TO REPORT

Glendale, Calif., Feb. 15—(AP) —Accordionist Dick Contino, who served 4½ months in a federal prison for draft-dodging, has been ordered to report Monday for a pre-induction army physical examination. The 21-year-old musician who once earned $4,000 weekly as an entertainer, said he is looking forward to serving his country.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 15 (AP) —Today's travelogue comes from Hugh Marlowe, along with Gene Tierney and Rory Calhoun went to the Argentine to film "Way of the Gaucho."

"It is very much like the United States" was his comment on the southern republic. "Both our countries have good supplies of beef, good women and wheat. Man could exist on these three things alone.

"The women are very charming and very beautiful. They wear their clothes very well, too. From all I could observe, there are no falsies in the Argentine. Perhaps it is because the women lead active lives or because they eat a great deal of meat."

That was the other thing that impressed Marlowe—the abundance of beef. Beleaguered housewives will be pained to learn that the Argentines don't bother with such penny-savers as hamburger and hot dogs. They eat filets.

Marlowe said the film company shot for about 2 1-2 months in Argentina, travelling all over the country, from the Pampas to the Andes.

"The face of the country is very much like ours," he remarked. "They have the same vast spaces, since the Argentine is a third the size of the United States. The only different thing they have is the Pampas, the vast areas with rolling grass.

"In other respects we are much the same, too. Their Gaucho is similar to our cowboy. And they have the same frontier tradition. But except for Buenos Aires, the country is not as modern."

FRANKFORD

Fireballs Lose To Wellington

Frankford—Frankford's Fireballs tasted defeat for the first time in three years. Wellington down the Frankford Canners Crew 6-4. Following last week's drubbing in Frankford, the boys from down south vowed they would put a team in this week that would put these Frankford 'upstarts' in their place. They did.

Wellington had a nicely balanced team, breaking away from the Frankford defence on several occasions. The Wellington goalie was sensational to say the least, and he and his teammates earned a well-deserved victory.

Wellington went ahead after two minutes of game play, and never relinquished the lead. At the end of the opening frame they led 2-0. Frankford fought back in the second, and at the end of that time it stood 3-2. Both teams countered twice more in rapid succession in the third, and just before the final buzzer, Wellington added another for good measure.

The rubber game may possibly be played off in Frankford this week.

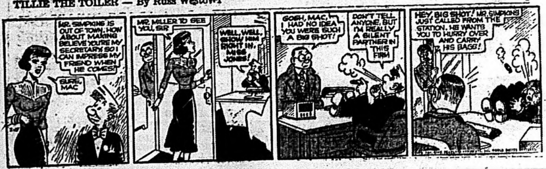
TILLIE THE TOILER — By Russ Westover



MR. SIMPKINS IS OUT OF TOWN. HOW ABOUT MAKING BELIEVE YOU'RE MY SECRETARY, SO I CAN IMPRESS MY FRIEND WHEN HE COMES!
SURE, MAC
MR. MILLER TO SEE YOU, SIR
WELL, WELL, SHOW HIM RIGHT IN, MISS JONES!
GOSH, MAC, I HAD NO IDEA YOU WERE SUCH A BIG SHOT!
DON'T TELL ANYONE, BUT I'M REALLY A SILENT PARTNER IN THIS FIRM
HEY, BIG SHOT! MR. SIMPKINS JUST CALLED FROM THE STATION. HE WANTS YOU TO HURRY OVER AND CARRY HIS BAGS!

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Saturday, February 16

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Some uncertain reactions and indications. Your enemies today could be inefficiency, lack of interest. And don't be swayed by hearsay, gossip. Learn to detect unsavory propaganda.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Fine influences. When sure of facts go ahead confidently. Afternoon especially good for business, professional matters; sound buys, contracts. News should be studied.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Excellent outlook for wise financial investments, building, travel for worth while interests. Stay ahead of schedule, avoid bottlenecks or neglecting small, important details.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Stress positiveness sanely. Glamorize your efforts tactfully, get them out of ordinary. By staying keen, giving your best, the percentage is more often with you for good returns.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Mains support worthy projects. Merchandising, engineering, religion and science highly favored. Social, welfare organizations ask care; family, heart interests can be more pleasing.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—May be some rough going. Pace schedule that you may devote some time to imporant minor essentials, too. Check temperament; promote harmony of family, loved ones, and yourself.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Benefic results from sturdy activities, daily contacts well handled. Everyday commodities, farm and labor efforts, sound investments should achieve. Romance takes its turn.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)— Open field. Greatly up to you: a sagacious attitude is a wise start. Poise essential when situations become involved. You can handle the day well, just be on guard.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—In business organizations, financial undertakings, land or any large purchase, be sure you know your way around. These are changing times, watch all assets thoughtfully.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn) — Variable indications; take a firm and sensible stand in all matters; protect your money, personal values. Be moderate in demands, co-operate with good friends, wise associates.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)— For good results, it will be wise to select first tasks first, and jobs that are familiar and within your power to carry out. Too often we crowd in too much or set too fast a pace.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)— Configurations mildly generous. Miners, masons, carpenters, engineers, seaman and labor generally be sensibly careful of health to avoid accidents. Personal affairs increasingly favored.

YOU BORN TODAY: Ruling planet Uranus, Sun in Aquarius. You are able, learn readily. Usually quiet about what you accomplish. Appreciate art, music, travel. Sometimes over-cautious in business. When educated can handle managerial position, do well in science, trade, farming, construction work. May take up reforms, at which you would be adept. Can be overly strict, or conventional, depending much on education, associates. Improve your status, standard of living always. Can recover quickly from setback if you overcome worry. Birthdate of Jeffrey Lynn, actor.

unday School Lesson of the Week

The Sin of Distraction

By ROY L. SMITH

In the little city of Bethlehem, aly a mile or two outside of rusalem, there was a humble ome to which Jesus resorted om time to time because it ovided him with a retreat in hich he could hide from the rowds, and anyone in public life nows that crowds can be very emanding.

There are those who believe at Martha, the older of the two isters of the home, was a widow, nd that she had opened her ouse to a younger brother and ister. Certainly it is true, howver that Martha was the head f the house.

A Nervous Person

Martha has usually been represented as a steady, unimaginative, hard working kind of person who did the drudgery and took care of the practical aspects of the household. Actually, she was a nervous, distraught kind of person who was constantly wasting percious energy by flyng about and blowing off steam.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for February 17: "The Family at Bethany," Luke 10:38-42; John 11:1-45; 12:1-2.

The word in the King James Version is translated "cumbered," but a much better word is "distracted." Jesus was trying to tell the good woman that she was 'all worked up" over the dinner and the burden it had laid upon her. It is evident that she had made Jesus feel that his coming had imposed an unexpected and exasperating load on her, and no guest could be comfortable under such conditions.

Faith and Gadgets

It is rather interesting to note the fact that modern life is gorged with gadgets, and at the same time our hospitals are filled with mental cases.

We never had so many labor savers, nor have we ever had so many cases of "nervous breakdown."

It is quite evident that neither television, dish washers, dictaphones, air-mail, or installment buying are the solution of life's deepest problems.

The frantic way in which we moderns struggle and strain to be entertained, and the great store we set on recreation, is a measure of the futilities by which we are plagued.

Look at the latest list of best sellers and you will find a large proportion of them are books which promise help to the worried, or assistance to the distracted. The just have to live by faith—there is no other way.

The Nearby God

Most of us turn instinctively to God when we are in trouble. It seems so easy and natural to pray when we are sick in bed.

When disaster befalls us we want God near by. But if we expect Him to be near enough to hear us when we call for help, we must grant Him the right to be just as near by when we are doing as we please. And that might be embarrassing if we stopped to think of it when we pray for help.

"I am not afraid to die," said an old man whose life was ebbing out as a result of his own follies, "but I am ashamed to die this way." It is a part of the glory of God that He goes on loving man, knowing as much about him as He does.

MARMORA

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Marmora—The February meeting of the Catholic Women's League which took the form of a Valentine party and also "Grandmother's Night" was held in Sacred Heart Hall on Tuesday evening with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Charles Cook occupied the chair and welcomed the 15 grandmothers as well as the other members present.

Reports Given

The meeting opened in the usual manner, after which the correspondence was dealt with. Mrs. Ed Warren gave the treasurer's report in the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. J. O'Neill.

Mrs. H. English and Mrs. K. Donaldson reported for Social Welfare and Mrs. E. Shannon and Mrs. J. A. Shannon reported 11 fisits made to the sick and shut-ins. Mrs. B. Hughes and Mrs. J. McCrodan volunteered for this duty in the coming month.

Tribute Paid

The president paid tribute to his late Majesty, King George VI, and pleadged loyalty of the League to Her Majesty, Elizabeth II.

Members were asked to bring donations to the March meeting for a basket of groceries for which a drawing will be held at Easter.

A discussion was held regarding the pre-lenten formal to be held in Sacred Heart Hall on February 22nd. Groups 1, 2, 6 and 9 were asked to furnish the refreshments for this occasion. Some of the members donated coffee and prizes for the spotlight dances.

Prizes Presented

The president presented prizes to the grandmothers as follows: Oldest grandmother, Mrs. B. Gaffney; largest number of grandchildren, Mrs. D. Quinlan; youngest grandmother, Mrs. Dermont Bedore; newest grandmother, Mrs. J. Black.

Mrs. J. Black, program convener, presented the following program: Reading, "Grandma, Now and Then," Mrs. S. A. Stephens; contest, "Cupid's Valentine", winner, Mrs. J. A. Shannon; reading, "The Devil Finds Work for Idle Hands to Do." Mrs. J. Doyle; piano solo, "Petite Waltz," Mrs. E. Shannon; recitation, "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," by James Whitcomb Riley, Mrs. James Black; musical contest, "Grandma's Courtship", winner, Mrs. E. D. O'Connor; reading, "Point of View," Mrs. James Black. National Anthem.

A few games were enjoyed after which refreshments were served by the ladies of group 5.

Born in Calgary, Feb. 10th to Mr. and Mrs. Norman Chate (nee Keitha Cronkright) a daughter, (Patricia Elizabeth).

The Rev. Dr. Pickett D.C.L., of Railton, was the guest of the Rev. J. A. O'Neill for a few days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Sopha and son Wayne, of Peterborough, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sopha.

Mrs. J. M. Brownlie is visiting relatives in Toronto this week.

Marmora Council No. 279 Reliable Life Insurance Society met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Cynthia Henderson. Following the business session, the hostess served refreshments and a social hour was spent.

IVANHOE

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Ivanhoe—A memorial service for his late Majesty King George VI was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Cnurch West Huntingdon, on Sunday afternoon, conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. H. V. Walker.

The text from Hebrews 12-1 was chosen for an appropriate address. In paying tribute to the late King, Mr. Walker mentioned his shining example, his steadfast devotion to duty, loyalty to his church, Christian fortitude and especially his high courage, walking with death as with a companion whom he recognized yet did not fear.

During the service, Mrs. Arthur Hassall sang "Be Still My Soul". The closing hymn, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is," a favorite of the King was sung.

Mission Band

The Mission Band of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon met on Sunday afternoon with eight members present. A new song "The World Wide Church," was sung. James Wallace read Psalm 23, a favorite Psalm of King George VI after which the leader led in a prayer for Queen Elizabeth II and the members of the Royal Family.

The offering was presented by Shirley McInroy and all joined in the offertory prayer.

Officers Elected

In this brief service the officers pledged themselves to attend regularly and be faithful to their duties. The members promised to stand behind their officers with loyal co-operation.

It was decided to make a friendship book to be sent to Br. Tulana.

The remainder of the time was spent in cutting and coloring pictures to be pasted on a large map of South America.

Mrs. Gordon Gregg and children, who have spent the past six months with Mrs. Gregg's brother, Mr. William Millan have taken up residence in Brighton.

Mr. Arthur Wood and Mr. William Gay who have been patients in Belleville General Hospital are now convalescing at their homes here.

Mr. and Mrs. William Smith and Beverly Ann ~~, of~~ Kingston were Sunday guests of Mr. William MacMillan.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl McMaster spent Thursday and Friday in Toronto.

Mrs. Donald Fleming and Mrs. A. Jimbrell were Tuesday dinner guests of Mrs. N. Thomlison.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher of Mt. Pleasant, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Shaw.

Mr. and Mrs. William Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Shaw, spent Tuesday in Picton, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stone and Mrs. John Shaw.

Mrs. John Wright and Miss Margaret Wright were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Oddie of Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Bateman, of Tweed, were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wood.

Mrs. Joseph Danford, of Norwood, spent the weekend with her niece, Mrs. Elymer Rollins and Mr. Rollins.

Memorial Services

A special service largely attended was held in Bethesda United Church on Sunday last in memory of the late King George VI.

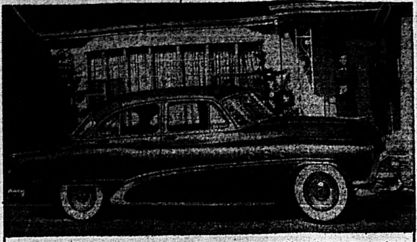
The service conducted by Rev. B. J. Beckel opened with the singing of "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

Mr. Beckel chose for the subject of his inspiring message "Two Flags and Two Sovereignties."

Preceding the singing of the closing hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers," two flags, the Union Jack and the Christian flag, placed in the church by the Women's Association, were dedicated. The service closed with the singing of "God Save the Queen."

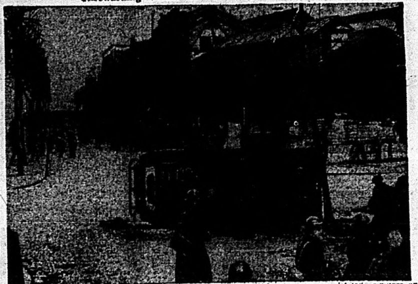
DRIVER CONVICTED

Toronto, Feb. 15—(CP)—John B. MacPherson, 28-year-old real estate broker, yesterday was convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death last Aug. 11 in a motor accident of Johannes Joosten, eight-year-old Dutch immigrant. Sentence was deferred until Feb. 19.



THE 1952 BUICK features handsome restyling inside and out and is available in three series — Roadmaster, Super and Custom — including 14 models. New for 1952 are the sweepspear and rocker panel moldings, a redesigned front end in the distinctive Buick styling and rear fender ornaments that enhance the beauty of the long, flowing fenders. Four horsepower ratings and four wheelbases are included in the three series. Buick's automatic transmission, Dynaflow, is standard on the Roadmaster and an option at extra cost on the Super and Custom. New and bigger front wheel brakes are also featured on all models, while new body insulation reduces road noise. A new four-barrel Airpower carburetor is featured on the Roadmaster only and Power Steering is optional at extra cost on this same series. Shown here is the Custom Deluxe four-door sedan.

Unrewarding Results for Such a Fine Demonstration



Fifty persons were injured recently in a riotous clash between communist-led strikers and police at the Renault motor factory near Paris, France. The rioters (background) trying to keep workers out of the plant, overturned truck and bombarded policemen with missiles, including nuts and bolts, forcing them to seek haven behind overturned truck which they used as a barricade. After the demonstration was over, it was estimated only 10 to 15 per cent of the employees went on strike, although others joined the crowds during their lunch hour. — Central Press Canadian.

Egyptian Embassy Aide Seeks U.S. Political Asylum

Mustapa Ali Nassef, 40-year-old press attache of the Egyptian Embassey in Washington, is seen with his wife as he disclosed that he plans to seek political asylum in the U.S. He said that he would offer his wife and children for adoption rather than return to the "tyranny" of Egypt which was responsible for him being cut off the embassy payroll on January 15 because "I exercised my constitutional right to speak up against something I thought was wrong in the embassy affairs." He said that he has been reduced to selling his personal belongings to buy food for his family. — Central Press Canadian.

Dr. Logan's Wife

By Diana Gaines

"Could be," Fred said, answering Peter, "because the dick let me know that somebody else gave him a different interpretation of our being at that meeting. I thought at the time he meant Cota—who else is gunning for you?—nobody. Anyhow, I swore up and down that we thought it was going to be a Democratic rally. And I took the opportunity of mentioning Cota's vested interests in some slum properties downtown. The dick had already quizzed me on your interest in slum clearance. He could put two and two together."

"I doubt if that'd cut much ice, though I appreciate your efforts, Fred," Peter said. "No, I'm afraid it looks pretty bad for me now. Pretty bad."

"Why?" Jennet demanded. "I don't get this. What is this about the Templar person? Tell me!"

She resumed her seat at Peter's side. She put her hand on his thigh and he remembered fat pink fingers with aseptic squarecut nails and he could not cover her pale, blue-veined one. Hands, like their owners, different from each other, different as moonlight from the vulgarity of noon. "Some protest I signed at a meeting this dame held in her apartment last spring," he said. "She was a social worker at Angels. She asked me to come to hear Kelly speak. I took Fred along We didn't catch on at first, but it turned out to be a communist meeting."

"But you only went there," Jennet argued. "Anyone can sign a protest. You didn't join anything. You didn't do anything."

Peter didn't look at Fred. He leveled his glance at the wide gold wedding band on her finger. It was still bright from the polishing cloth of the Mexican jeweler. "No, sweetheart," he said, "I didn't do anything."

He jumped up suddenly, began to pace, his arms folded on his chest.

"Then what are you worried about?" she asked.

He wheeled about, narrowly regarded her as once he had done before, long before, making a stranger of her.

"About the record in Washington of my presence at a communist meeting."

The flat, almost patient, drumbeats of his primary statement hit Jennet at last. Under the pounding, the dream of honeymoon slipped away. Up till now, she suddenly realized she had been merely going through the motions of concern. The joke-worn initials FBI had not yielded up the proper threatening sound. She had been making housewifely obeisance to a doom which had seemed not only equivocal but unlikely. Legal injustices occurred from time to time of course. You heard of these things. You read of them, clucked your tongue over them, sighed and turned to the movie page. Like motor accidents like wifebeatings, tornados, crimes, these things happened every day, but they did not happen to you. Only to others. Until now. Now it was happening to her, and she felt the blood turn cool, sick, run thin through her body.

She couldn't bear the sight of Peter pacing, hugging himself. She turned her obliterated gaze on Fred Chaney, saw the deeplined forehead, the sad, bloodshot eyes, the pained slash of mouth, the fine hands on the neat knees, rubbing, rubbing, back and forth—for comfort? a form of thumb-sucking? Who had the right to turn grown men into fearful boys?"

"It's like being one of a minority," she said. "All of a sudden, Peter, you and I are a minority." She saw the rivuleted face of Maxwell Cota nod to her over the rim of a martini glass, she saw it backed by a field of faces over glasses, and she threw her own glass into the menacing blur of closed faces. The fantasy thickened her blood. She felt mean enough, maternal enough to kill. "I'd like to take a gun and kill that Maxwell Cota," she said.

Peter's hand squeezed her shoulder. "Look, sweetheart, don't get excited. So far nobody's putting me in jail or killing me."

"No," she said, pioneering the depths of her thoughts, "nobody's killing you. Somebody's just taking away our means to live."

"Well, let's hope not," Fred said, rising. "I'm in this thing too now. I suppose they'll be investigating me on account of this communist meeting. I'm getting paid by the city, so they'll want to know." He sighed. "Well, I'll be going. It's past midnight. I'm sure sorry I had to be the bearer of things on your first night home."

Jennet smiled. "And we're sorry to have kept you up on a work night."

After Fred had gone, they sat close together in the corner of the couch, staring silently at the gyrations of the fire. Minutes passed, and the warmth of the flames of Peter's body melted her fear, filled her with languor. Now it was the threat of doom that seemed unreal; the reality of the dream reasserted itself. Fred Chaney dwindled down the tunnel of reluctant memory and the intelligence he had brought them powdered to ash against the banked fires of her love.

She looked at her husband, who still stared into the fireplace.

"What are you thinking, Peter?"

He turned his head away from the fire looked down at her. For answer, he put her hand in his.

"That we are married at last," he said.

She gave him a small, secret smile of delight. "So was I."

So the weeks passed, spent on alternating tides of fear and desire, menace and security, ice and fire. There were times when love was enough and there were times when even love did not ease the frustration of Peter's exile from research. Unwilling to live on Jennet's money, Peter had taken a job in the experimental division of a television firm. They assured each other that it was only a temporary measure, but the days went by, Christmas, New Year's, January was half gone, and they had not heard.

It was unpalatable irony that at that moment when her own life had assumed a greeting card fulsomeness, Peter's should have lost it; a further irony that she was as powerless to restore it to him as he was empowered to award it to her.

For her, Peter had changed everything. He had transformed her from child to woman, and she took a fierce pleasure in her womanly tasks. She did her own housework now—ingrid, unable to transfer allegiance to a new master, had gone—and under Jennet's familiarizing dust cloth, vacuum cleaner, scrub brush, the house lost the animistic tyrany with which she had moodily imbued it, became a functionally pleasant place in which one did one's living. She had ceased play-acting the role of mistress of the house, had, by virtue of her new seniority, reduced the house to service. The white picket fence was no longer a confinement but an embrace.

In the way of women whose husbands are not watchful of money, Jennet had become not only practical but thrifty, instituting of her own accord economy measures that once would have caused her to feel abused. She did her own laundry, prided herself on the mastery of ironing Peter's shirts.

The phone rang.

At Angel's Hospital, the row of nast presidents portraits striped the wall behind the long conference table. The black and white of garb and faces was repeated in the white mattings and black frames, and below them, the dark-suited, white shirted members of the hospital executive committee rayed out in two parallel lines, living extensions of the dead.

To the left of the chairman, opposite the superintendent the younger man in Gus Logan's seat moved restlessly under the felt eye of Walter Pelletier, who was indeed at that moment looking through the young man to see the benign ghost of his predecessor.

When the signal came — "Any new business or unfinished old business?" Walter Pelletier sprang up.

"Mr. Chairman!"

His voice firmed as he read aloud. "'happy to report,'" he read "'that the FBI has thoroughly checked the character and moral standards of Dr. Peter Surinov and they find that he is entirely satisfactory without reservation. We are therefore instructing our office to approve your budget request for your project and you will receive payment in quarterly installments.

When he had finished reading the letter, Dr. Pelletier folded it and looked up. The faces were almost flatteringly attentive. More than attentive, they were alert. He slapped the letter against the table edge. "This letter," he said, "is from the Division of Biology and Medicine of the Atomic Energy Commission.' The experiment to which it refers will, if successful, protect human beings from the damage of atomic bombing."

He paused, glanced at the superintendent's drumming fingers which had begun to beat the table with the frenzy of a Geiger counter put to pitchblende. The fingers stopped then and Dr. Pelletier continued.

"The idea for this piece of work is Peter Surinov's. The work was started here last May by Peter Surinov. The United States Government says it may be continued by Peter Surinov. And frankly, gentlemen, I say it must be done by Peter Surinbv or not at this hospital at all. In view of the confused and tragic circumstances under which Dr. Surinov was released from Angels some months ago, I want to get this committee's approval before re-appointing him to my department staff."

Maxwell Cota shot out of his seat. Mr. Chairman, this is an administrative matter. Administration is my job. Dr. Pelletier is out of order bringing this up as committee business!"

"It was this committee that fired him!" Dr. Pelletier bellowed "How technical can you get? This is a medical board, not a court of law."

"The firing was different," Cota retorted. "The loyalty oath involved hospital policy."

"I want the matter cleared through this committee," Dr. Pelletier insisted. "I'm not finicky about points of order. There's too much at stake. Last time the main issue of Peter Surinov's loyalty was lost in the explosion of a dirty stick of homemade dynamite. It killed our beloved colleague, Gus Logan. I'm not going to let it maim a great young scientist. Scientists like Peter Surinov are rare birds. Superintendents like Maxwell Cota are a dime a dozen!"

"By God," Cota shrilled, "if men like me are a dime a dozen, then X-ray men like you must be sold by the bunch!"

British Children Prefer Caning To Poor Report Card

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 14. (CP) — The average child in Britain would rather submit to corporal punishment or other disciplinary measures than face the humiliation of taking home an unfavorable school report

Children also disagree with teachers that assignment of pupils to posts of responsibility is one of the best incentives to better work and behavior.

These are conclusions reached by the National Foundation for Education Research in a survey just completed at the request of the ministry of education. The investigators questioned nearly 1,000 teachers and 7.500 secondary school-children through the country.

In a poll confined to teachers, the report shows than 89.2 per cent consider that the cane or strap should be retained in schools. Most feel justified in administering punishment as a last resort for conduct involving malicious destructiveness, wilful disobedience and bullying. Only 5.6 per cent favored abolition of all forms of corporal punishment.

It was found that teachers in rural schools were less prone to use the cane than those in towns and cities. Men teachers also regards punishment more favorably than women and it is resorted to more frequently by elderly instructors.

Here is how the children listed in order of importance punishment that impressed them most: (1) taking home unfavorable reports; (2) loss of games or favorite lessons; (3) being regarded as pupils requiring close supervision; (4) corporal punishment; (5) reporting to the head teacher for misbehavior; (6) being made to look foolish in class through a teacher's sarcasm.

Look Foolish

The report discloses that girls dislike corporal punishment and class-room sarcasm more than boys, but boys were found to be more sensitive to jocular ridicule

Teachers believe a good talking to in private is an effective deterrent to misbehavior. The children, however, thought differently. They rate it with detention after school or some such discipline, as much less effective than having to look foolish in class.

There was no disagreement as to the best incentives to good work. These, said the teachers, were quiet appreciation of work, entrusting a pupil with some position of authority or public praise.

But that's not the way the children saw it. They voted overwhelmingly in favor of factors relating to high scholarship standing. Here they are: good reports to take home: success in school tests; achievement by team or grade representatives; good marks for written work.

Rejecting the teachers' suggestion about public praise, the report observes: "the adolescent pupil may find praise embarrassing. It may induce a swelled head in some. It may also arouse envy and suspicion in fellow pupils."

Among reforms most urgently needed to improve school work generally, the teachers listed stricter home discipline, small classes, more special school and better facilities for difficult and backward children.

Red Nomination Of Soviet as Truce Inspector Rejected

Poland, Czechoslovakia Acceptable to Allies

Munsan, Korea, Feb. 16. (AP)—The United States command today vetoed communist nomination of Russia as a neutral power to help police a Korean armistice.

The U.N. accepted two Soviet satellites—Poland and Czechoslovakia—as the other red representatives on neutral behind-the-lines inspection teams.

An Allied staff officer said the reason for rejection of Russia should be obvious.

He did not elaborate. But the Russians have supplied communist armies in Korea with fighter planes, tanks and other war materials, and Russian officers trained the North Korean army before the outbreak of war.

The action came in a staff officer meeting after a full-dress session by top negotiators in which the reds offered a revised proposal for a top-level Korean peace conference.

The new red proposal said only that a "higher level' political conference should be held within three months after a truce is signed to discuss withdrawal of foreign troops and "the peaceful settlement of the Korean problem," etc."

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, senior Allied negotiator, said "etc could mean a lot of things. . .I will not interpret anything until I have had a chance to study it."

Ask Adjournment

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, in submitting the new draft, said it did not commit the later conference to anything not mutually agreeable. But he said it was "a matter of certainty" that other questions "which are directly related to peace in Korea would be touched upon."

Nam said the new draft was submitted to prevent "continued haggling."

Joy asked for an adjournment until 10 a.m. Sunday (8 p.m. EST, Saturday) to study the new proposal.

The new red proposal on recommendations to the belligerent countries in effect covered all the points on which the two sides already were agreed.

Those were that:

1. A Korean peace settlement be undertaken within three months of the signing of the armistice.

2. That the governments concerned with such a settlement consider: (a) withdrawal of foreign troops and (b) peaceful settlement of the Korean question.

These disputed points were left to the governments themselves to decide:

1. Which nations should receive the armistice negotiators' recommendations?

2. What other questions—Korean or non-Korean — should be decided in addition to troop withdrawal and Korean peace?

One other possible area of dispute remained.

The U.N. command's proposal suggested the governments be free to negotiate Korean peace and the other problems at a conference or by other political means.

Woman Removes Her Own Teeth With Old Pliers

Wayne, W.Va., Feb. 16 — (AP) The 25-year-old wife of a coal miner here does her own dental surgery with a sterilized safety razor blade, pulls her own teeth with an old pair of forceps and says it "doesn't hurst as much" as a visit to a dentist.

Mrs. Paul Napier, who has pulled 13 of her own teeth and has 11 left to go, got into business after a dentist had extracted two teeth.

Abscesses developed, so she sterilized a safety razor blade, lanced the gums, probed and worked out the bits of bone she said were causing the trouble.

The surgery healed properly, but aches developed in other teeth so she decided they all must go. She resurrected an old pair of forceps her grandfather owned — "teeth pliers," she called them — and went to work.

"The eye teeth were the worst," Mrs. Napier said. It took two days of tugging whenever she could stand it to get one of them out. Her technique improved with experience, however, and on her best day she removed five.

Italian Skier Equals Record In Downhill Run

Norefjell, Norway, Feb. 16. —(CP)—Zeno Colo, Italy's world champion downhill skier, won the Olympic downhill event today, equalling the course record of two minutes, 30.8 second for the hazardous, twisting run of 2,435 metres—1 1-2 miles

Austria, which has placed well up in the ski events so far in the winter games, took second and third places. Othmar Schneider was clocked in 2:32 and Christian Pravda, who was second in yesterday's giant slalom, finished in 2:32.4.

The placing of the four Canadians who also competed in the giant slalom was undetermined but all were again far down the list.

Bob Richardson of Montreal, was clocked in 2:43.2, Gordie Morrison of Banff, Alta., in 2:51.1, Jack Griffin, of Vancouver, in 2:52.2 and Andre Bertrand, of in 2:56:

Fredu Rubi, Switzerland's top skier, was fourth today in 2:32.5 and Stein Eriksen ,who won the giant slalom for Norway yesterday, could do no better than sixth today in 2:33.8.

Colo, fourth yesterday, equalled the course record set by Norway's Gunnar Hjeltnes.

Bill Beck, 22-year-old Dartmouth athlete from Kingston, R.I., was clocked in 2:33.: which placed him fifth. The Americans were not given a chance to make the point-scoring first six and Beck's time drew loud cheers from the U.S. rooters.

55 COAL MINERS KILLED

Washington, Feb. 16 (AP)—Fifty-five coal miners were killed during January, compared with 80 in January 1951, Secretary of the Interior Chapman reports. He said fatalities last month were 48 in bituminous mines and seven in Pennsylvania anthracite mines. In January 1951 these were, respectively 69 and 11.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 16 (CP)—Synopsis: Temperatures over Ontario during Friday night remained considerably higher than the previous three nights as the latest cold spell came to an end. This milder weather will continue over the weekend except in the most northern regions where the trend will be to lower temperatures on Sunday.

A disturbance centred along the north shore of the Gulf of Mexico this morning is showing signs of moving northeasterly with a wide band of precipitation ahead of it. Snow is now likely to spread throughout southern Ontario on Sunday.

HOPES ARE HIGH FORD STRIKE WILL BE AVERTED

Daley Says Negotiators Have Made Progress

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 16 (CP) — Hopes are high that a Ford strike set for 10 p.m. Sunday can be averted.

Contract talks between the Ford Motor Company of Canada and the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) go on again today. If necessary, they will continue tomorrow.

Labor Minister Daley said at the end of yesterday's conference that the negotiators had made progress.

Mr. Daley brought the principals in the dispute together here Wednesday after another set of talks broke down in Toronto Monday. They launched a clause-by-clause discussion of a contract to replace one that expired last June.

The proposed contract has 85 clauses. By last night's adjournment, company and union representatives had taken up 62 of them.

It was learned that three of the main topics in dispute had been settled in yesterday's speeded - up talks. They are voluntary overtime union security and seniority.

Negotiators on both sides were said to have shown a spirit of give and take.

Still unsettled up to the start of today's deliberations were union requests concerning contract length leave of absence arrangements, statutory holidays, night-shift premiums and vacation schedules. The union seeks $1,000 company-paid life insurance policies for Ford pensioners.

Want Extra Items

Some of these items are regarded by the union as part of a monetary "package" it seeks to have included in the new contract. The union has expressed willingness to accept a 15-cent increase over the basic hourly rate of $1.35 instead of the 30-cent boost it sought originally, but union leaders are reported firm in their demands for the extra items.

The present overtime clause gives the company authority to require Ford production workers to put in overtime, even if an employee is unwilling to work beyond his regular hours. An Ontario Labor Department conciliation board recommended an arrangement by which an employee can be asked—but not forced—to work overtime.

Ford requests for overtime work were blamed for eight short work stoppages last fall. The dismissal of a group of workers accused of inspiring the stoppages led to a 12-day strike that made 12,000 Ford employees idle last December.

AGENTS SEIZE HEROIN

New York, Feb. 16 (AP) —Federal agents seized $700,000 worth of heroin and arrested four persons yesterday in what was described as the biggest single narcotics haul in five years. Narcotics agents picked up two men and two women in an early morning raid on a Harlem apartment after three weeks of patient sleuthing.

DEATH TOP PENALTY

Athens, Feb. 16 (AP)—A senior police officer, testifying at the court martial trial of 29 persons charged with aiding a communist spy ring, said yesterday about 30-000 Greeks are getting military training in Soviet satellite countries. He said the aim is an attack on Greece. The defendants, who include five women, are charged with espionage and treason. The top penalty is death.

U.N. Has New Problem And it May Take Act of Congress to End Dispute

New York, Feb. 16 — (AP) — The United Nations has a new problem — a Third Avenue barber. It may take an act of Congress to end their dispute.

The U.N., already grappling with such vital issues as Korea and world disarmament, now must contend with Tom Fucarino —occupation, barber — address, Third Avenue, New York, U.S.A.

Fucarino, whose shop is in the east side area of the new U.N. headquarters, went to the county clerk back in 1946 and registered the name of the shop as "United Nations Barber Shop."

But just a few days before the registration, the U.N. General Assembly adopted a resolution against the use of its title for commercial purposes.

The barber didn't know about the U.N. resolution, and the world organization didn't know about Fucarino. The county clerk's office apparently was in the dark, too. Then a couple of weeks ago someone reported the barber to V. J. G. Stavridi, a U.N. official.

Stavridi promptly dispatched a letter to the Third Avenue barber requesting that he "cease using the name."

But Fucarino, who has been barbering for 32 years, said he had no intentions of changing his shop's name until someone proves he is breaking a law.

That's where Congress comes in. There just isn't such a law in the United States, although the U.N. has asked Congress to back up its resolution with federal legislation.

Stavridi admitted that, for the time being, he just can use persuasion on Fucarino.

C.C.F. Urges Public Ownership Milk Distribution

Toronto, Feb. 16 — (CP)—The opening session of the Toronto and District C. C. F. convention last night passed resolutions urging public ownership of Toronto's milk distribution facilities, extension of the franchise in municipal elections and a program of subsidized low-rental housing.

The sessions, attended by 50 delegates from Toronto and district, will continue today.

Delegates claimed that cheaper milk could be supplied without affecting the employment situation among drivers if the city took over facilities for sale and distribution.

William Temple, former C.C.F. member of the Ontario Legislature for High Park, charged the Frost government had frozen the cost of milk last year simply to deceive the public of Toronto in the face of last fall's election. He said that one week after the election, "the price went up 1½ cents a quart."

Milk sells for 22 cents a quart delivered in Toronto. It is 21 cents sold in stores.

They felt the only solution was a collaboration between federal, provincial and municipal governments which would establish low-rental homes for working people.

On the extension of municipal franchises, the gathering unanimously agreed that city electoral rolls should be the same as those for provincial voting.

FORMER 'HELLO GIRL' WEDS HEIR TO $3,000,000

Johnny Smallman Is Looking for Job

London, Ont., Feb. 16 — (CP)— A former telephone operator marries the heir to $3,000,000 today. They said they hope for a quiet ceremony.

The bride is Mary Kathleen Connell Steers of a well - known London family. The groom is 18-year-old John Leonard Smallman, often described as Canada's richest teen-ager. The ceremony will be held in St. Martin's Roman Catholic Church.

The bride, who received her engagement ring last Dec. 18 on her 20th birthday, will be given in marriage by a brother, Barry Steers. Another brother, Kevin, will attend the groom.

A honeymoon trip to Mexico follows a small reception at the home of the bride.

Johnny Smallman, 14 when he received a $2,600,000 bequest under the will of a great-aunt, is a Protestant, his bride a Roman Catholic. Holding the ceremony in the church is permitted as London's Diocese is one of the four in Canada where mixed marriages in a Roman Catholic Church are permitted by the Bishop.

Peacetime Budget May Contain Tax Reductions and Surplus Of Possibly $500,000,000

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 16 (CP)—A record peacetime budget containing tax reductions and announcing a surplus of possibly $500,000,000 for 1951-52, will be presented to the forthcoming session of parliament.

The session opens Thursday Feb. 28 and Finance Minister Abbott may bring down the 1952-53 budget Tuesday, April 8, a short time before the Commons adjourns for the Easter recess. The 1951-52 budget was presented April 10 last.

The contents of the budget will remain a secret until read in the Commons, but hints dropped by Mr. Abbott in the last few months have launched a flood of speculation.

Some political observers have predicted tax reductions amounting to between $100,000,000 and $150,000,000, despite forecasts that record peacetime defence expenditures of $2,200,000,000 are planned for 1952-53.

Mr. Abbott has said that in preparing the budget he and his officials will look closely at the heavy cigaret taxes, blamed for large-scale smuggling of American cigarets into Canada, a drop in consumption of Canadian cigarets and unemployment in Canadian tobacco factories.

The federal tax now amounts to 25 cents on a package of 20 cigarets retailing for 42 cents in Ottawa. There has been speculation in unofficial circles that Mr. Abbott will cut the tax by from two-to-five cents a package.

Some also have predicted reductions in the 15-per-cent excise tax on electric stoves, washing machines and refrigerators.

Mother and Four Children Escape With Lives as House, Contents Totally Destroyed

Bancroft — (Special) — Mrs. Re . Crawford and her four childr . Mary, ten, Cecil, five, Shirlc . four and Sammy, three, escaped with their lives, when fire destroyed their story-and-a-half frame cottage, on Spring Street early Friday morning.

When a blazing ember dropped by Mary's bed at about three-thirty a. m., she awakened the family, and all rushed outside, covering their night clothes with blankets. They awoke a neighbor, Wallace Brethour, who summoned the fire department. Meanwhile Mrs. Crawford hustled her children to the home of her mother, Mrs. W. Yateman, a few doors away.

Difficult Getting Water

Firemen quickly emptied the emergency tank of the truck, but had difficulty in obtaining additional water, from the York River and a small tributary creek, as the house was situated on a hill about three hundred yards from the spot where the suction valve of the pump was placed. About an hour later when the flames were extinguished completely the building was a burned out shell with the roof and the walls canted askew.

Everything burned including furniture, clothing and personal possessions. There was a forty - eight pound bag of flour just inside the front door, but fire spread too rapidly for it to be rescued.

Mr. Crawford, an employee of a lumber company, was working in a camp 15 miles back of Harcourt. Twelve-hours later it was not known whether or not word of the disaster had reached him.

Cause of the fire was unknown but it was believed to have started in or near the chimney. The loss was only fractionally covered by insurance, one thousand dollars on the house, and five hundred on the contents.

Four Accused Of Being Burglars Held

New York, Feb. 16 — (AP) — Four men accused of being ace burglars were seized yesterday. and an angry police commissioner learned one of them was a detective from his own department.

Commissioner George Monaghan joined in quizzing the foursome he called the "best band of burglars in town."

He bitterly denounced the detective, identified as James J. Fox, 33, a member of the force since 1946.

"Look at this bum, six years in the department, three years in the detective bureau, and he's lousing up the entire department," Monaghan said. "He's worse than these other thugs."

The four were arrested after they allegedly tried to force open locks of two apartments. The detective had on his badge and was carrying his service revolver. it was said.

Queen Elizabeth, Secluded From Trials of King's Death, Faces Host of Duties

Sources Believe Philip Will Become Prince Consort

By ERNEST AGNEW

London, Feb. 16—(AP)—Queen Elizabeth hid lingering grief for her father behind her home's secluding walls today before grappling with a host of duties and taking the long rest her advisers are urging upon her.

Within Clarence House she rested amid the comforting presence of the Duke of Edinburgh, and their two children, three-year-old crown Prince Charles and year-old Princess Anne.

Before she takes a holiday to recover from the strains imposed upon her by the death of the King, and her sudden ascension of the throne, she must make the decisions that only a sovereign can make.

One of these decisions came only to a queen, and never to a king—the choice of rank and title for her husband.

Palace sources believe he will receive the title of Prince Consort and be raised in precedence to rank ahead of all in the kingdom except the Sovereign. Queen Victoria, the great-great-grandmother of both Elizabeth and the Duke set the precedent by conferring this title and rank to her husband, Albert.

The Duke now is outranked by his son, who, as eldest son of the Sovereign, became Duke of Cornwall the moment the King died.

Will Be Promoted

Edinburgh also will probably be promoted to senior rank in all the services—the navy, in which he has been an active lieutenant-commander, the army and the R.A.F.

Elizabeth must also consider plans for her coronation. A likely time for it is early summer, inasmuch as she decreed mourning only until June 1, in place of the customary nine months to a year.

She now has to select more than 20 senior members of the staff to run the royal household, and arrange to move into Buckingham Palace, London seat of the Monarch, from her present residence nearby in Clarence House.

Duty will keep her in London for several weeks. Then she is expected to go to one of the royal estates—perhaps to the Sandringham estate where her father was born and died—to rest from the heavy demands thrust upon her by the death of the King from a blood clot 10 days ago.

Drove Back Together

Elizabeth and her husband drove back together in yesterday's dusk from Windsor immediately after the burial of the King in St. George's Chapel.

Her grieving mother and her younger sister, Princess Margaret, returned to Buckingham Palace and there, today, they rested.

The Duke of Windsor, who marched behind his brother's coffin in yesterday's historic pageantry of death, will return to New York early next week.

Some of the royal visitors who attended the King's funeral were leaving today.

Among them are Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands, Crown Prince Olav of Norway, Prince Axel of Denmark, Prince Albert of Belgium, and Grand Duchess Charlotte and Prince Felix of Luxembourg.

Resume Daily Routine

Greek King Paul and Sweden's King Gustav Adolf and Queen Louise will be the weekend guests of the Earl and Countess Mountbatten at their country home in Hampshire. King Frederik and Queen Ingrid of Denmark sail for home Sunday. King Haakon of Norway departs Tuesday.

Britons still mourned the King who shared their life of adversity for nearly 16 years, but seemed determined to resume their daily routine quickly.

Pictures of the dead King, draped in black, were removed from store windows. All signs of mourning were removed from Paddington Station, from where his body started its train trip to burial, and from other public buildings.

"The long strain—it has been a strain—begins to ease this morning and the people, looking back over 10 testing days, are sorting out their thoughts and emotions.

"After the military funeral, the ceremonial drill was put abruptly in reverse. The band, which a few minutes earlier had been playing solemn music, breaks into a marching tune. The escort departs briskly from the grave which it had approached with reversed arms and at slow march.

"The inherent dramatic justice of this procedure cannot be questioned.

"The living must carry on, and if they languished in too-prolonged mourning they would provoke the impatience of the dead."

Vincent Massey On Way Home To Take Post

London, Feb. 16—(CP)— Vincent Massey took off by air today for Canada where he will take up his appointment as governor-general.

Aboard the same R.C.A.F. aircraft were leading members of Canada's delegation to next week's North Atlantic Treaty council meeting in Lisbon, including L. B. Pearson, external affairs minister, chairman of the council, Defence Minister Claxton, and L. Dana Wilgress, high commissioner in London.

Also aboard the big C-5 plane were a host of other Canadian officials and military men heading for Lisbon.

Massey will remain aboard when the conference delegates disembark at Lisbon. eH will condisembark at Lisbon. He will con-Azores.

Massey was among Canadians who attended the funeral of the King yesterday.

He will be sworn in as governor-general Feb. 28 at the opening of parliament.

Another passenger on the plane was Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Canada's wartime army commander, returning after attending the royal funeral as one of the late King's aides-de-camp.

Allied Vessels Begin Second Year Of Bombarding Wonsan Harbor

Aboard the Destroyer Twining in Wonsan Harbor, Feb. 16 (AP)—Allied warships unloaded a "birthday bombardment" through a snowstorm on battered Wonsan today.

The shelling repeated daily for 365 consecutive days, today entered its second year. Before dawn two U.S. destroyers—the Twining and Gregory—hurled shells on the east coast seaport, also a vital communist industrial and transportation hub.

A snowstorm blocked observation of shell hits from radar-directed guns of the Twining and Gregory.

After a solid year of bombardment from the sea and air without let-up, Wonsan, once a city of 100,000 is largely in ruins.

The city is no longer the hub into which all main road networks of East Korea funnel supplies from Manchuria and Siberia to red troops at the front

It was a key port for Allied forces until November, 1950, when the Chinese communists swept south.

Throughout the year-long siege, naval guns have averaged 8,000 tons of hot steel an hour. Despite this, the reds have managed to repair bridges and rail lines to some extent.

Railroad trains still sneak in and out of the city on haphazard schedules. Communist batteries still return occasional fire.

Nine countries have sent their ships and men into Wonsan—Canada, the United States, Britain, The Netherlands, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, the Republic of Korea and Colombia.

They have operated under the United Nations blockading and escort force, known as task force 95.

Far East naval headquarters say that U.N. naval casualties have been heavier in the 25 square miles that make up Wonsan inner harbor than in any other area in the Korean war.

Two U.S. minesweepers were sunk that killed 13 men and wounded 87. In all, 20 Allied ships have been damaged.

Red Ambassador Lonely Figure At Funeral

Windsor, England, Feb. 16 — (AP) — A lonely figure at Windsor yesterday was the Soviet Union's official representative to the funeral of the King, Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin.

As the ranking diplomat in years of service in London, Zarubin arrived with the other members of the diplomatic corps in a train preceding the royal funeral train. As the diplomats gathered on the railway platform they talked quietly together — all except Zarubin, who spoke to no one.

His face impassive, Zarubin turned his back on the platform and watched the Grenadier Guards lined up in the station approach.

Duke of Windsor To Spend Time With Mother

London, Feb. 16—(Reuters)—The Duke of Windsor, who Friday followed the coffin of his brother the King to its last resting place, intends to spend the next two weeks here.

"He has made no definite plans for his return but it is probable that he will sail for America on the Queen Elizabeth Feb. 28" his secretary said last night.

The Duke is staying with his mother, Queen Mary, at Marlborough House.

Memory had been sharply stirred in the capital by the first public reappearance of the Duke, 16 years after his abdication, as a principal royal mourner for the brother who succeeded him on the throne.

In his admiral's uniform, he seemed little changed from the Sovereign Edward VIII, who in similar uniform, followed the cortege of his father George V in 1936.

The Duke Thursday night had a talk with his old friend, Prime Minister Churchill. Their meeting was believed to have been purely social.

The mass-circulation Daily Express said yesterday that although the Duke and Prime Minister were unlikely to have discussed the Duke's income Thursday night, some state allowance might be under consideration.

"King George is understood to have made an allowance to his brother from his own resources," the newspaper added.

A Belleville boy with several years experience in grocery merchandising in this city is opening a groceteria in Trenton. He is Don Evans, son of Constable W. T. Evans of the local police department and Mrs. Evans. For several years he has worked at local groceterias and next week will take over a grocery store on Dundas Street in Trenton to be known as Evans Groceteria.

Services Held At Main Station For Late King

Trenton—(Special)— Memorial services for King George VI were held at the Trenton RCAF main station and at No. 6 Repair Depot at five o'clock Friday afternoon. Officers and airmen as well as a number of air women took part in a parade to the main station sports hangar, where the service was held.

Both the King's Colors and the Airforce Colors were draped in black for the service and drums were muffled. Buglers from the station-bugle band sounded "Last Post" and "Reveille."

The service at the sports hangar was in charge of Protestant padre S.L. K. W. House and Roman Catholic padre F.L. C. J. Girard. Wing Commander G. A. McKenna, acting commanding officer, led the parade. A number of civilians from Trenton, including Mayor Kenneth Couch, attended the service.

FRANCIS J. TRUAISCH
(Montreal — Belleville)

Francis J. Truaisch died in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, late Thursday evening. He was in failing health for some time.

The late Mr. Truaisch was born in Belleville 79 years ago and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Basilius Truaisch. His mother's name prior to her marriage was Margaret Sullivan. As a young man he went to reside in Chicago and eventually moved to Montreal where he made his home for over fifty years. Of late years he lived retired. He was a parishioner of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Montreal.

Mr. Truaisch was twice married, his first wife was Miss Mary Dunn of this city. His second wife survives him together with one married daughter, Grace of Montreal and one son Kentigern, who is night manager of the King Edward Hotel, Toronto; two brothers, J. V. C. Truaisch of this city and Thomas H. Truaisch of Montreal.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

MRS. FRANKIE ETTA PATRICK
(Frankford)

In failing health for the past four years, Mrs Frankie Etta Patrick, 6th concession of Sidney township, was taken seriously ill two weeks ago and died in Kingston General Hospital on Friday, February 15th. She was in her 57th year.

Born in Murray township, the daughter of John Maybee and the former Mary Donaldson, who are deceased, she had lived in this community all of her life. She was a member of the Frankford United Church and former member of Rebekah Lodge.

Surviving, besides her husband, Harvey Patrick, is one daughter, Mrs. Harold (Evelyn) Smith, of Orland, and two sons, Harry and Oran, of Frankford. Another daughter, Mrs. Thelma Sine, predeceased her.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Jack Shannon, of Trenton, and Mrs. Lorne Perry, of Peterborough, and 13 grandchildren.

Funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Attendance Cut On Local Market, Prices Lower

A raw cold wind cut attendance on the outside market this morning as only a few vendors put in appearance.

Beef by the quarter took a tumble with farmers quoting 45 cents for hinds and 40 cents for fronts. Pork sold at 30 cents and 35 cents for fronts and hinds, respectively.

Vegetables sold at regular prices with $4.50 per bag asked for potatoes. Turnips were a dime or three for 25 cents, while cabbages were a dime up to 20 cents. Carrots, beets and parsnips brought the usual 30 cents per half peck. Onions were 75 cents per basket. Sauerkraut was 25 cents per quart, and beans 20 cents a pint.

Frozen whitefish was 40 cents a pound; herrings were 30 cents or four pounds for $1, and smelts were 35 cents per pound.

On the inside market eggs held at 42 cents for firsts with 40 cents being asked for mediums, and 35 cents for pullets.

Chicken seemed a trifle easier with prices ranging from 50 cents for mature birds and up to 55 cents for young birds.

Apples were offered in quantity with top grade spys bringing 95 cents per peck for fancy quality. Delicious and spys sold at $2.75 per hamper with McIntosh and Talman Sweets selling at $2.50 per hamper.

Hand-to-Mouth Musicians Hike Humble Harmonica's Popularity

Don't look now, but if on your jaunts to the rural districts or the northern hunting grounds, you hear the plaintive or jazzy strains of a mouth organ, don't be surprised.

It could be a future Larry Adler or the leader of a district "Harmonica Rascals" getting in their training-ground practice licks.

For believe it or not, the lowly mouth organ, now elevated to the proud status of "harmonica," is one of the best selling musical instruments on the market today.

That is the statement of a dealer in the lip-stick pianos who should know whereof he speaks.

And the greater majority of them are going to the outlying areas with emphasis on the wooded hinterlands of the north.

It seems that "full many a blower is born to blush unseen and waste his sweetness (musical) on the forest air."

And the backwoods virtuosos are not sparing the shekels when it comes to purchasing their favorite instrument. They select anything from the one-inch size that fits nicely in the average tooth cavity and sells at 75 cents, to the four-sided revolving type that fits in a golf bag and needs a brawny-chested he-man to manipulate it. These one-man orchestras sell at anywhere from $15 to $22 bucks, and the boys don't raise an eyebrow as they plank down the long green.

True a lot of them are sold in the city, but the embryonic Adlers must do their practice stints in the family garages, or when they go out-of-town in their hot-rods.

The "longhairs" may raise shocked eyebrows at this but some of these hand-to-mouth musicians can produce classical music that is a pleasure to hear. And much better rendered than some of the so-called topflight instrumentalists that clutter the airways with their caterwaulings of the classics that should make the composers twitch in their graves.

The midget of the mouth organ family is a popular one. Scarcely an inch long, with practice it can be secreted in the mouth and sweet melodies played while the hands are busy with other instruments.

The medium-priced harmonicas ($3.00 to $7.50) are popular too. But the giant four-siders are not without their coterie of admirers and artists. The agility and dexterity with which some of the boys manipulate these instruments is marvellous to behold. There's no point in asking an artist for a match when he is in the midst of his own arrangement of "The Flight of the Bumble Bee."

Popularity of the harmonica, and it is consistent, is evidenced in the fact that a representative of a manufacturing company told a city dealer he would be surprised to see how the higher-priced mouth organ would sell.

The dealer was skeptical. The salesman said he would "put in" a half-dozen priced at to $22.00 and if not sold within a certain time, he would take them back.

They were sold in half the time. And are still selling.

The popularity of the humble harmonica is at least partially understood. After all, when a fellow feels the urge to make music, it is not everybody who can reach in his hip pocket and pull out a grand piano or a saxaphone.

District Jewry Holds Impressive Memorial Service

A large representation of the Jewish community of Belleville, Trenton and Picton held impressive services last evening out of respect to the memory of our late monarch, King George VI.

After the conclusion of the regular Sabbath service, appropriate readings from the scriptures were delivered by Mr. T. Schwab, president of the congregation. Mr. I. Lindenberg carried out the cantorial portion of the services and led the hymn singing, and Rabbi A. M. Babb officiated and delivered the main address.

The Rabbi opened his remarks with the 73rd. Psalm "But I am continually with Thee. Thou hast holden my right hand. Thy shalt guide me with they counsel, and afterwards receive me to glory. Whom have I in Heaven but Thee? And there is none upon earth that I desire but Thee. My flesh and my heart faileth, but God is the strength of my heart and my portion forever." "Today, a ceremony has been enacted — a ceremony ineffably sad and solemn—upon which has been focused the eyes of a mourning Empire, and which has evoked a feeling of sympathy throughout the world. The mortal remains of our King, who had ruled over his domain for over 15 years, were borne through the streets of London, on their way to their final resting place."

Great Loss

"We, here, in our humble way, have assembled in our House of Worship, to offer up our supplications for the dead and the living, and to voice the meditations prompted by this turning point in Canadian history. Authoritative voices that have been lifted up in temples of prayer, in senate houses and in halls of justice, have borne eloquent witness to the great loss that the British Empire and the world have sustained. Rarely, indeed, has there been a career richer in golden lessons that should be learned and treasured by all."

"We are proud to count ourselves citizens of the British Commonwealth. Historians of the future will describe in glowing terms all that our late King had accomplished by his exemplary life and conduct, to the interest and well-being of his entire realm. By a rare combination of sweetness and strength, a harmonious blending of the best qualities of head and heart, by gentle sagacity and rectitude, he succeeded in guilding the Empire through many of its most critical moments. It was thus that he strove and thus that he triumphed, so that the record of his reign appears as a realization of the Psalmist's ideal "and in thy Majesty ride prosperously, because of truth and meekness and righteousness."

"The splendid heritage of the British Empire has fallen into the hands of a worthy heir. Queen Elizabeth II, aided by her gracious concort, will work devotedly, as did her father before her, for the glory and the welfare of her people. Let us lift up our full hearts to God, the God of the living and of the dead."

At the conclusion of Rabbi Babb's address, appropriate prayers were offered for the entire Royal Family, and for the well-being of the new Queen.

Board Guests Y's Men's Club At Luncheon

The Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. were the guests of the Y's Men's Club on Thursday night, when the Rev. Duncan McTavish was the speaker. In his address Mr. McTavish referred to the Y.M.C.A. as an auxiliary of the church doing many of the necessary things which the church is unable, unequipped and untrained to do. He suggested that there were many parallels between the church and the Y.M.C.A., particularly in the service and responsibility expected of lay and volunteer people. He admitted that it was surprising to him to often find men, who were successful in their own business, failing to discharge church responsibilities, which they have accepted. This he explained as the result of these same people being so absorbed in their own business that they forget their outside duties. As a result he added many necessary and worthwhile projects have never been realized because of lack of sufficient interest and energy by those who could and should have put them over.

May Set Example

These trained business leaders should not need prodding in community or church work, he continued. Many a minister and probably Y.M.C.A. secretary often sets an example of poor leadership by doing tasks themselves rather than continuing the distasteful procedure of prodding others, which is often a more difficult procedure than the work at hand.

He warned that there were too many people satisfied to drift along on the misty flats rather than reaching out on the high places in leadership efforts

The speaker had considerable to say in regard to contributions in support of the many worthwhile enterprises in the community. He noted the increasing opposition to the many money raising projects annually. Nevertheless it was interesting to note that while the government allowed a limit of 10 percent for income tax deductions for charitable purposes, the figure for Canada was only one and one quarter percent and in Ontario less than one per cent. He added that if tax payers had gone the limit of tax deductions for charitable purposes an additional $560,000,000 would be given to worthy causes. The speaker also noted how out of balance we were in our thinking and action when we spend 2500 times the amount on machinery that we do on man. Machinery, be continued, while doing things for us also did things to us.

Great issues of life he concluded were not settled by machinery buttons. We must live on the heights above the fog where we can see clearly these real issues of life and do something about solving them.

Thanks of Club Expressed

The speaker was introduced by the general secretary, Al Davis, and received the thanks of the Club from Archie Boyd. Solo numbers were given by James Bankier accompanied by Alec Gordon. Recognition was given Bert Hiles for the work he had done in organizing, planning and supervising the renovation of the auditorium. President Bryson Leslie was in the chair.

At the meeting of the Board of Directors preceding the Y's Men's meeting, Dr. Bert Howard spoke in a brief memorial tribute to His late Majesty King George VI.

Tribute was also paid to A. Merle Harding, Y.M.C.A. National Physical Director, whose death occurred in Toronto on February 8.

Announcement was made that a Free Learn-to-Swim Campaign for boys of the grade schools was proceeding weekly under the direction of the physical director, Ants Juurup, with the splendid co-operation of school principals, teachers and parents. It is expected that all boys who are non swimmers will have received instruction before summer vacation.

Will Conduct Course

Announcement was also made that the Y.M.C.A. will conduct a recreational leadership training course on March 10th and 11th, which will be open to persons in churches, clubs, schools, etc., who are interested in improving their recreational leadership skills. Content of the course will include program planning, partly mixers, games, folk, square and social dancing, social etiquette, community singing and other recreational aids.

Another announcement of importance was the appointment of Bernard A. Grady as program director. Mr. Grady, a graduate of Y.M.C.A. College, Chicago, is a native of Edmonton with Y.M.C.A. experience in Toronto and comes to Belleville from Ottawa, where he was a staff member of the recreation commission. He takes on his duties next week.

Many Seek Information About Canada

(Article 57)

Germershein au Rhein — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — I have become convinced that the Canadian government should set me up in the immigration business for it seems that I am continually answering questions about Canada. Quite a few of these questions come from people who would like to immigrate or from those who already have their papers and are waiting for the sailing date.

Word seems to spread somehow that there is a Canadian living in the district for I have received letters from people whom I do not know asking if they could meet me for a little while since there are a few things they would like to know about Canada. I can always find time for such people for I enjoy meeting those who are going to become someday citizens of Canada, and it is always interesting to learn why they have chosen Canada as their future home.

Interested in Plywood

The first letter I received was not many months after I had settled down in St. Gallen. It came from a former student of the university I was attending. He wrote that he was at present working in the plywood industry and was thinking of starting up a branch in Canada. Before making any definite plans he was going to visit the country once, so would I please come to meet him in Zurich where he could discuss his problems. I packed together all the maps I had and met him there.

He was interested, of course, mainly in the lumber districts, where the greatest markets for plywood were to be found, wages, shipping, well, just about everything along that line. In some instances I could give him only general information, but managed to clear up a few doubts in his mind, in addition to giving him a few addresses which would be of help to him. He has since made the trip and I am interested in learning his reactions.

Another instance just before I left Switzerland was when a doctor called me up, said he had learned about me from the hospital in St. Gallen and wondered if I could answer some questions about Canada since he was all ready to set sail. He came to the house and brought his family with him, and turned out to be a Vienese doctor who wished to practise medicine near the oil fields at Leduc, Alberta. Never having visited this area before, I was unable to give him any definite information but we talked about Canada for the better part of the afternoon. When he left I gave him a couple of small booklets written especially for immigrants which by this time I had received from the Canadian embassy.

I remembered his wife in particular was quite concerned whether it was safe to travel by sea, since she was afraid there might be some submarines left. I often wonder if she had some experience during the war which she cannot forget since she asked me the same question several times. This family, I expect, are now settled in Canada.

Letter from Sweden

Just this week I received a letter from Sweden, written in Esperanto. It was from a Swedish member of the Esperanto Society who had learned my name through the society since I learned this language before leaving Canada. He stated that he had just returned to Sweden after serving fourteen months with the Red Cross in Korea. While there he met many Canadian soldiers, especially in Pusan. From talking to them he learned quite a bit about the country, and decided he would like to immigrate there. He was especially interested in what possibilities there were for his profession.

There are a wide variety of reasons why Europeans want to immigrate. Perhaps one of the most important is that almost every country in Europe is overcrowded, some more than others. There is just not enough land to go around, nor can jobs be found for all in the present economy. Germany at present is doubly overcrowded because of all the refugees who have entered the western zones from Eastern Germany or from the other communist countries. Many of these refugees have to pass long months in refugee camps for there is nothing for them to do and so they have to be supported by the state. In countries like Holland, Belgium, England or Switzerland, there are over two hundred inhabitants to the square mile which is certainly much higher than Canada's less than two.

In Catholic countries, the church does not approve of birth control, and advocate instead the so-called rhythmic method. Since the people have shown themselves rather incapable of following this method the population keeps increasing at a rapid rate, which results in overcrowding and unemployment. A rather curious situation has recently risen in that Italians are leaving Italy to work in the coal mines because of the shortage of miners there while at the same time Englishmen are immigrating to the New World.

Canada Preferred

Why is Canada so often preferred as a country of immigration? For one thing there is far more room there than fourteen million Canadians can occupy. People over here have to gasp in amazement when I tell them the size of Canada and then the population. They just will not believe it at first. Another reason is that Canada has a reputation over here of being a very stable country, more so I would say than even the United States. So many people have told me I was lucky to be a Canadian since Canada was a country with a future. Many have expressed the wish that they might have been able to immigrate during the thirties, but unfortunately the flow of immigrants was almost at a standstill then due partly to the world depression.
ADD — MANY Europeons .. ..

There are other reasons but these are the main ones. I imagine it must be a momentous decision when a family resolves to immigrate but I only hope they will have no cause to regret that they became Canadians.

TO THE NEGEV

(Article 21)

Jerusalem, Israel — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — While travelling through the Negev we visited the ruins of many ancient cities. These ruins tell a story of how people lived in ancient times, their standard of cultural and social activities, and of their living quarters. These ruins give hope to the present-day settlers because they show that vegetation existed at one time on the desert of the Negev.

One of the cities that existed in the Negev was the city of Subeita. It existed from the period of 200 B.C. until about 600 A.D. and had a population of approximately 25,000 people. The ruins show a tight concentration of houses, built in such a way as to form a wall around the city, to protect the inhabitants against bands of robbers who attacked the richly-laden caravans. These houses were of two-storey height, for better protection.

Seat of Government

The remains of three churches in the centre of the city explain to a large extent the typical Byzantine church. Large sections still stand. No other public buildings still stand, but the churches served as a congregating point and as a seat of government for the city.

The people of Subeita were skilled stone craftsmen. Many examples of their work may be seen today in the ruins of the churches. One is surprised to see hundreds of small piles of stones covering the land around the city. These piles are arranged in an organized fashion and archeologists tell us that this did not come about by chance.
